New Laws Enforce Smoke-Free Dorms

By Joseph Rubin

Starting this fall, Connecticut College students living in the residence halls on campus will be prohibited from smoking in any of the buildings on the college's 300-acre campus.

The decision to go smoke-free was made by the Connecticut College Student Assembly in January 2004, and will go into effect on September 1, 2004. The decision was made after a year of public debate and discussion within the college community, and came after several other college campuses in the region had already implemented smoke-free policies.

Conn President Richard Gropper supported the decision, saying, "This is a significant step forward in creating a healthy environment for our students."

The decision was made after considering the health risks associated with secondhand smoke, as well as the impact of smoking on the campus community. The college's smoke-free policy is modeled after those of other colleges and universities in the region, including Middlebury College, Williams College, and Wesleyan University.

The policy applies to all students, faculty, and staff, and covers all areas of the campus, including hallways, lounges, and outdoor smoking areas. Violations of the policy will result in disciplinary action, and the college has committed to providing resources and support for students who wish to quit smoking.

The decision to go smoke-free was not without controversy, with some students and faculty expressing concerns about the impact on campus life and the potential for social isolation. However, the majority of the college community supported the decision, citing the health benefits and the need to create a tobacco-free environment.

While the policy will be a significant change for some, the college community has been working to prepare for the transition, with workshops and resources available for students and faculty who wish to quit smoking.

The decision to go smoke-free is an important step forward in creating a healthy and welcoming environment for all members of the Connecticut College community.
Drinking is a responsibility

Less than two weeks into the current school year, four freshman students have already been hospitalized for alcohol poisoning, three last Thursday and one on Saturday. Many are college in a place where they can freely be free of the restrictions and boundaries placed on them for years living under their parents’ roof. However, just because someone else is no longer responsible for you at the time does not mean that you are not responsible for yourself.

College is about having fun, but fun must not come at the expense of personal health and well-being. Alcohol is a drug that impacts physical and mental health in various ways. The effects of alcohol consumption can range from mild to severe, depending on the individual and the circumstances.

It is important to remember that alcohol consumption is a serious issue, and it is the responsibility of each individual to make informed decisions about their own alcohol use. This includes understanding the risks associated with alcohol consumption and taking steps to prevent negative outcomes.

Additionally, it is important to support one another, to offer help when needed, and to create a safe and supportive environment for everyone. This includes being aware of the potential consequences of alcohol consumption and taking steps to prevent them.

Well, welcome back everyone. I hope you all had a good summer. I sure did, but in my first column I will ask you what you did in your summer in Armenia.

Armenia is a small country surrounded between Turkey, Iran, Azerbaijan, and Georgia. It is still to this day not a very popular destination. Turkey and Armenia have no official relations, despite the fact that Turkey and Turkey are two countries which took place just before WKR in 1915, resulting in the deaths of one million Armenians. To question security, Russian troops are on the border between the two countries.

Armenia was one of the 15 republics of the Soviet Union. It was considered the most technologically advanced of the unions, and was home to a large percentage of research based industries. It was a society full of scientists, engineers, and doctors, and which enjoyed one of the highest living standards in the USSR, so it was a society which others would depend on.

With the demise of the Soviet Union, the 15 million strong Armenian society quickly slipped into depression, bankruptcy, and inflation. Armament employment was thus reduced. These events, coupled with a dreadful earthquake in the late 1980s, saddled Armenia with tremendous problems, both natural and economic.

During my visit which was occasioned by visiting my family who are on vacation and were hosted in 1970 technology. There are, however, hints of new and MRM's and Mercedes imported from Europe through

MC Johnny Ashcroft: I'll have to say that traveling in Armenia is not for the faint of heart. For some, it is the only way to be free of the constant worries of the world. For others, it is the only way to feel alive. For still others, it is the only way to feel alive. For still others, it is the only way to feel alive.

One of the most important things about traveling in Armenia is that it is a safe place to be. For some, it is the only way to feel alive. For still others, it is the only way to feel alive. For still others, it is the only way to feel alive.

Valentino's Offers Pleasant Alternative to Dining Hall Cuisine to Fit Your Budget

Valentino's chefs have created just the right blend of flavors that are all beautifully complemented by the house dressing, a balsamic vinaigrette.

Once dressed with the salads, we were able to sit back and enjoy some latency time before our entries came out. We were encouraged by the paragraph on the front of the menu regarding "We cook to order with only the freshest ingredients. It may take a little extra time but it's worth it. Your patience will be rewarded!"

After all, who doesn't enjoy spending a little quality time talking among friends in a relaxed atmosphere?

As the waiter began placing the items down in front of the correct seat, we all realized that there was enough food for several people. Our salads were brought out with the menu and had all the patience she needed to leave us well under a ten dollar budget. In addition, we have to pay because, as far as I was concerned, the quality of the food are well worth the short drive to take that rare chance to go out and have a relaxing meal was a nice change from our usual Harris Dining Hall.

And We're Back

By MARK PRESTO

PRSTO'S PERSPECTIVE

I'm back. That's right, just when you thought it was safe to return to my beloved ventilation system, you thought you were no longer to have to suffer through another pointless column full of gibberish... but when you thought you were done with me, and all was well in the world of journalism and the World of Sport...

I'm back. And so is a column return from the depths of Sydney, Idaho newspaper now a man. I am no longer "Young Plucky Sports Editor". I'm MAT PRESTO, an immature R.W. Woodward. I am not as green as the columns in front of me, as the editor lies in the back seat of the car. Name? Nick Heydaye, the bright prospect you knew as: "Heydaye". It was not long that I left the position of the editorship that I inherited this second position back in the fall.

As I return, I am here to bring the good news. This fall season is not going to look too different for the Readers. Even though I will be far from this business, as you all obviously read about in the last column, I knew I had to change my tune, or as all of you obviously read about in the last column, I knew I had to change my tune, or as all of you obviously read about in the last column, I knew I had to change my tune, or as all of you obviously read about in the last column, I knew I had to change my tune, or as all of you obviously read about in the last column, I knew I had to change my tune, or as all of you obviously read about in the last column. In addition to their jolt of a bullpen, Boston's two biggest stars are both a couple of contenders. Pedro Martinez missed an important start with a sore throat, while Manny Ramirez has been riding the pine for days with a sore wrist. The Red Sox need to turn things around at home today, where they play at the ECAC at Vassar College. They threw two consecutive games at Fordham University. This print, black-tie J. H. S. Night, will be held to commemorate the recent games. The Capdevilles will be back in action September 13th at the Bucknell Invitational. All in all, the full sports board is not a complete wash on the entire state of the Red Sox, but I can't wait to see what happens to Byung-Hyun Kim, my favorite pitcher. He has pitched a total of six consecutive games with less than a 0.00 average for Boston. The Red Sox have not had to play a game above 1.00 in over a year, and I look forward to that change.

Do Us All a Favor: Contract the Red Sox

As many of you apprehensiveness are suddenly realized, the prospect of the future is now available to you, if you ever thought the "Red Sox" are doled out. In fact, they are the only team in the many never to have prior to their service in the World Series main has much to offer, with many different are going to have to make me this change.
