"Why a World, Wanting Peace, Gets War" - Is Chosen Topic

Tuesday, October 15, Sir Norman Angell, winner of the 1933 Nobel Peace Prize, comes to Connecticut College as the inaugural speaker in the Convocation series. His topic "Why a World, Wanting Peace, Gets War," is one which is particularly apt at the moment.

Sir Norman Angell, an international figure for over thirty years in his fight against war, is an author, lecturer, and economist of repute. His book, "The Great Illusion," written four years before the outbreak of the World War, stressed the fact that war has become economically outdated. He envisaged another war as being equally detrimental to the victor and the vanquished. The events of recent years have adequately proven his premise. In 1932 "The Unseen Assassin" was published, in which Sir Norman Angell discussed the handling of problems of peace and war in this modern era.

The following year another book was published which emphasized the necessity of maintaining peace. The book was "Chaos of Control."

Last June, when delivering the Inaugural address at the Nobel Institute in Oslo, he discussed the nonfeasibility of war. An abstract of his speech, as prepared by the New York Times, follows:

"The public mind can be easily persuaded to adopt policies which mean war. The pre-war method of defense is a fruitful cause of conflict. The method consists in each state's attempting to be stronger than the other, and in challenging its interests. It is rooted in the denial of right to the weaker.

"The only way out is for the community of States to create common protection. The public thinks falsely that armies and navies have the same function as police, whereas their purpose really is to permit the imposition of certain views upon any challenger.

"Defense of the individual, whether as a person or as a state, must be the affair of the community. This principle gains force from the fact that the defense of wealth in the modern world does not mean the defense of goods, as they must change hands to create wealth."

INTERNATIONAL CLUB TO HOLD MEETING

There will be an important meeting of the International Relations Club Wednesday, October 16. Plans are being made by the committee in charge for a speaker.

IN MEMORIAM

Herbert Z. Kip, Ph.D., chairman of the German department and Lucretia L. Allyn professor of German at Connecticut College, died July 9th at his home in Quaker Hill. For several years his health had been failing but he quietly continued his activity as a teacher, sustained by an admirable serenity.

Dr. Kip was a descendant of Jacobus Kip, who came from Holland in 1654 and settled in New York. He was born in Fishkill, N. Y., Jan. 30, 1874, the son of Peter Kip and Josephine Stuthpen. In 1894 he received his bachelor's degree from Princeton University. Pursuing his studies at the Universities of Berlin, Gottingen and Leipsig, he was awarded the Ph.D. degree by the University of Leipsig in 1899.

Dr. Kip was adjunct professor of German at Leland Stanford, Jr. University from 1899 to 1901; adjunct professor of German at Vassar College from 1901 to 1906 and associate professor from 1906 to 1915.

In 1915, when Connecticut college opened its doors, Dr. Kip was chosen by the first president of that institution to organize the German department and from that moment on, as professor, gave his strength and time to the task. The year preceding the appointment of Dr. Katharine Blunt as president of Connecticut college in 1919, Dr. Kip served as one of three members of the presidential committee. On December 14, 1933, the administration and the board of trustees of Connecticut college honored Dr. Kip by making him the first incumbent of the Lucretia L. Allyn professorship.

Besides numerous contributions to scholarly magazines and textbooks for use in the German classrooms, Dr. Kip wrote, for the information of his youngest son, a charming biography of himself, "The Boy I Knew the Best," published by the Gorham Press.

Above all, what Dr. Kip leaves behind, to his family, his students, his colleagues, his friends, is the quietude and the nobility of his soul. No one could approach him without forgetting the vicissitudes of everyday existence, without discarding for a while even the slightest trace of pettiness. He lived and thought with the simplicity which comes from a true understanding of the complexity of life, in constant communion with nature and with the heritage of the greatest poets. He loved the solitude of the forest where he loved Nature. He looked always for the peace of the summits, from where human agitation appears in its transitory light. That is why he was supremely kind, considerate, understanding, and never uttered a harsh word or an unfavorable judgment. He pitied men and loved him. But he dwelt in the eternal, the permanent, the sacred.

After this, it would be idle to speak of him as a true friend or as a teacher. He knew the secret of true living and communicated something of his serenity to whoever approached him; he gave them this intangible something which cannot die.

Plans for the celebration of Connecticut's Twen- tieth Anniversary were discussed by President Brinton in her Tuesday morning Chapel talk. Mentioning briefly the early years of college, she stressed the tremendous enthusiasm with which it was founded. Not the interest of merely one person made possible the existing college, but the devotion and courage of many generous citizens, anxious to foster higher education for girls in the State of Connecticut. The founding of the college answered a need of long standing. Before 1915, there was no girls' college in the state qualified to award the degree of bachelor of arts. And it was primarily through the efforts of Miss Elizabeth Wright, who was active on a committee of the Hartford College Club, that interest was aroused among citizens who gave unselfishly of their time and energy in a drive for funds. So it was with this enthusiasm that Connecticut began, backed by the encouragement of people interested in the progress of education. Not to one benefactor are we grateful, but to many, whose loyalty to Connecticut has been important to her growth.

Miss Blunt urged the attendance of the entire college at the various ceremonies which will take place this week-end, beginning with the "Pageant of the Tree", which will be followed by addresses on the opening years of the college. These should be particularly interesting, because the speakers will present the college's early history from the viewpoints of a trustee, Mr. F. Valentine Chappell, a member of the faculty, Dean Nye, and a student, Miss Marenza E. Prescott, who was the first president of the Class of 1919. Mr. Blunt, a member of the Board of Trustees, will talk on "Highlights of College History". In the evening, Dr. Henry N. MacCracken, President of Vassar College, will talk on "30 Val- ues in Education", following which he will lead a dis- cussion on education for college women of today. In- stead of Vespers Sunday evening, a morning service will be conducted in the Outdoor Theatre, Rev. Edward M. Chapman. Herbert E. Kip Memorial Address. Outdoor Theatre, 11:00.

ANTHOLOGY OF COLLEGE POETRY

An Anthology of Connecticut College poetry will be published by the Winthrop Scholars, October 10. The committee in charge of this publica- tion is composed of the following members: Anna Ludgren Shepard '28, Minnie Watchwelps Peck '27, Jen- nie Copeland '29, Gertrude E. Noyes '27, Mary Crofoot DeGange '27.

This book, which is dedicated to Dr. Kip, who was influential in hav- ing these poems collected, will be ready in time for the college anni- versary celebration. It contains poetry by all students and alumni who wish to purchase a copy may do so this week end.

Can it be that our "Annie" has taken up the hobby of collecting men's hats? She says she found that she had it!

One senior already has her pri- vate office nameplate made. What is it, President, or Vice-President, Rebekah? * * *

What member of the faculty is following up modern social dancing?

We all envy the ability of a trans- fer to get herself a "blind" and six others out of it! * * *

And then there is the Professor who was heard to say to her class when she came in "Pardon me, I'm interrupting, but I would like to call the roll." At least that's a novel way of quieting a class! * * *

What's this about a certain Senior who came back from a weekend in Princeton and her leg wouldn't knock over a few pickpockets in work? Have you seen her hobbling about up and down the stairs? This "Charley Horse" business is bad!

EVENTS AT OTHER COLLEGES

New York (NSA) — 100 lucky freshmen at N. Y. U. have been selected to take the new "unified course" which leads to a comprehensive examination at the end of the second year. Until then students chosen for "superior preparation" will be given in- struction and guidance designed to stimulate "broad cultural appreciation of values in all sig- nificant phases of contemporary life." The program will dovetail into the regular liberal arts course. The first year it will include the funda- mentals of the physical sciences; the history of Western culture; art or music and one elective, with special attention on the languages.

In the second year, students will be courses in biol- ogy and psychology, theories in the social sciences, social and community problems, literature, philosophy and an elective.

A future Sam Johnson at the University of Mich- igan develops a few word definitions: Honesty—fear of being caught. Truth—luck of a tact. Courage— commitment of stubborness and resignation. Patience—one half memory; one half anticipation. Love—one half imagination; one half biology. Moron—one who is content with a serene mind.

New development in campus etiquette as outlined by a dean at the University of Iowa (Iowa City). He thinks that students should wait three minutes for an instructor to appear, five for an assistant professor, eight for an associate professor and ten for a full pro- fessor or dean.

To which we amend: O. K.—if the faculty will do this: Allow freshmen to be two minutes late, sopho- mores five minutes, juniors ten minutes and seniors fifteen minutes.

Minneapolis, Minn. (ACP) — Minnesota statis- ticians and figures have estimated another idea that is prevalent among collegians:

Women students spend only 76 cents more per month in beauty shops than men do in barber shops! And she spends only a fraction of the amount that men spend on tobacco.

These figures were revealed as a result of a survey of the buying habits at the University of Minnesota made by a group of sociologists. The survey showed that clothes form the greater part of the co-ed's budget while food is the largest item in the collegian's budget.

COLLEGE SENIORS

A college education is a steppingstone to an objective, not the objective itself—a apprenticeship for the business of accomplishment.

Many young women who have been graduated from college recently have found that a thorough training in shorthand and typing is inscrutable. The Packard Intensive Secretarial Course for College Women is especially arranged, through our method of Individual Advancement, so that college graduates may be admitted practically at any time the year.

Attractive catalog will be mailed upon request.
