I Knock at the Door . . .

Paul Syre's stage adaptation of the initial Sean O'Casey autobiographic volume, I Knock at the Door, has its premiere on Broadway at the Belasco Theatre Sunday night, September 28, for a limited engagement of six weeks. Producers Lucille Lortel, Mr. Syre and Howard Gottfried fashioned a casting coup with the uprising of Allen McNichol and Sats Cotswalt in the leading roles. The production, with these two noted players, first received a two-performance tryout in March, 1956, at Manhattan's WHMA Kaufmann Auditorium from Northwestern, closed the program with a contemporary set of pieces for the piano, Pintor's Scenas Infantiles. Miss von Ehricke read the poems that accompanied the scenes. Her ease at reading was carried over into her role at the piano. She possessed a finesse at the piano that is rarely seen in Manhattan's Central Park. Her playing was smooth, and her interpretation of these delightfully whimsical scenes of childhood was excellent.

The concert was an indication that this year is one to look forward to in the field of music.

Connecticut Sails Triumphantly Over Mitchell College

Five members of the Connecti cut Sailing team won in a meet with Mitchell College, held on Sunday, September 29 at Mitchell. The Conn College participants were Nancy Allen '61, Margarethe Zahniser '61, Kitty Boyd-Hoover '60, (Conn. Normasters), Lucy Allen '59, and Bette Rake '59. The meet, consisting of four races, started at 2:30, and Conn. College won every race. There was a good breeze and only one collision—a broken mast, which caused a Mitchell boat to quit first race.

The whole day didn't have much excitement, and the meet was added to by a very colorful committee boat on which Ann Frasseti '59 and Ann Collier '59 helped out. Two more meets with Mitchell have been tentatively planned for Oct. 13 and 20. Sounds more like "outfitting"! There is a lot of new blood in the freshman class. Looks like a good sailing season ahead!
