Swanson pushes for five year plan

by Nickle Wood

On September 13, 1974, President Oakes Ames and Dean of Faculty, Wayne Swanson, met with department chairmen for an annual planning and departmental topics, department planning was discussed, and a questionnaire formulated by President Ames and Dean Swanson was circulated concerning program reviews and curriculum projections for the next five years. Responses have been requested for mid-February or early March, 1975. Meanwhile, department chairmen will be deliberating changes with interested members of the administration, faculty and student body.

Dean Swanson expressed a hope, "that by encouraging departments to cooperate with one another through team teaching or in other ways, that the programs of individual departments will be strengthened." Speaking for himself and President Ames, he added, "We think that there is talent and competence in our faculty that can be utilized more effectively in an interdisciplinary fashion, but we do not envisage that this will lead to any reorganization of academic departments."

Politics '74

Eleventh hour rundown

by Bill Loeney

Due largely to the unprecedented challenge of a President and the pardon granted to him by his successor, next Tuesday's election promises to yield some interesting results. In Connecticut, as elsewhere across the country, state wide and local contests seem to hinge on the by now familiar litany of post-Watergate themes: integrity in government, personal probity and the disavowal of "special interest" politics. Added to this is the sluggish state of the economy, which the New London Day refers to as "an important, indeed vital factor, affecting the outcome of the upcoming election."

The following is a capsule summary of major party candidates for Governor of Connecticut, for U.S. Senator, and the state representative from the Congressional district encompassing the New London area, and a summary of their respective campaigns. Although calls were made over a month ago to the most popular of the candidates, much of the information found here was gleaned from the columns of the New London Day, The Norwich Bulletin, and the Hartford Courant. The Courier regrets that it cannot give equal time to alternative candidates of opposing viewpoints and this summary cannot claim to be definitive or unimpeachably accurate; much like goats ensnared in fly papers, political candidates remain dedicated to the fine art of deducing just which way the political wind blows; views change, positions are altered, previously enunciated ideas and conceptualizations are trimmed or denied altogether. What with all the hyperbole, charges and counter-charges that are endemic to a political campaign, it is one of the reasons why we waited so long to present it.

For Governor

In the opinion of most political pundits, Ella T. Grasso, the Democratic candidate and a Connecticut College Trustee, and Robert Steele, the Republican candidate, are the most attractive, dedicated public servants with an eye toward the common sensical approach to state problems. Neither can be considered ideologues: both stress their practical experience and familiarity with the state's problems. Mrs. Grasso states that her highest priorities will be "to redress the state local economies, to improve schools, mass transit, housing and other state wide responsibilities, to encourage sound growth through industrial development, to increase research, skill training and environmental preservation, and to vigorously enforce public health, safety and consumer protection measures." Mr. Steele, who is presently U.S. Congressman from New London and environs, lists his priorities as "education, research, skill training and environmental protection and health services." Concerning higher education in the state, both candidates pledge to consider questions of reorganization and to use the student-faculty committee as one vehicle for student opinion. Specific five year plans have not been made but they are in preliminary stages of development. Department chairmen are now considering questions concerning possible innovations in the department planning realms of curriculum, staff teaching and interdepartmental relationships. Meanwhile students, interested in activating changes, should voice their opinions. Correspondingly anyone involved in or concerned with alternatives in present department plans should speak out now.

Suggested Student Org allocations

MEMORANDUM TO ALL ORGANIZATION TREASURERS: The student Senate, at its October 13, 1974 Organization Budget breakdown, this year there was $34,800.00 to allocate and over $60,000 worth of requests. Each group budget was carefully read and analyzed and the Financial Sub-Committee has made the attached recommendations. All groups are invited to send their treasurer to review and copy their budget allocation line by line on Wednesday, October 30, 1974 from 4:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. in the Student Government Room. Any club wishing to appeal must make arrangements with Rick Allen by 5:30 p.m., Monday, November 4, 1974. College Council will plan to vote on the Student Organizations Budget on Thursday, November 7, 1974.

Summer program changes discussed

By 8nIee E. CoIJIa
Two important innovations relating to the college's summer program were discussed. The proposed changes were designed to make the program more flexible and to increase its appeal to students.

The first innovation was the introduction of a new orientation program for incoming students. This program would be conducted over a period of two weeks, with the goal of helping students adjust to college life. The second innovation was the introduction of a new program for students who had completed their coursework and were looking for ways to earn additional credits. This program would allow students to take courses at a nearby community college and receive credit for them at the college.

Despite these changes, there were still some challenges to implementing them. For example, the college had to work with the local community college to arrange for the courses and to ensure that the credits would transfer properly.

Summer and winter jobs in Europe

Summer jobs are available in Europe for August, September and October. These are the busiest times for European employers, and there are plenty of opportunities for students interested in gaining work experience.

Winter jobs are also available in Europe, with positions ranging from seasonal work in ski resorts to more permanent positions in European cities. These jobs are perfect for students looking to earn extra money during school breaks.

Both summer and winter jobs in Europe offer a chance to meet new people and to experience different cultures. They also provide a great way to improve language skills and to see more of the world.

CNI -- It's F.M.

by Dennis Moore

At 12:15 p.m., 28 October, with little fanfare and with great fanfare of relief, a somewhat innocuous switch was thrown on the seasoned console in the main studios of CNI. Upon that signal, an equally innocuous switch closed an A.C. power circuit somewhere in a remote and dusty corner of the attic in Bill Brannen's home where, according to the professor, two things would begin to hear a hum not for many students to notice.

Far this summer more than a thousand students have chosen to pack up and see Europe on this low-cost, earn-as-you-go basis. The expanding experience of working in Europe combined with the opportunity to earn back the trip costs seems to be a practical way for many students to get to Europe in Europe.

However, many students have taken part in the orientation program and have been made aware of the various opportunities in the atmosphere of fun and excitement that awaits them in Europe. The famous SOS "Operation Backroads" bicycle tours which careen through the Champagne region of France and the Alps, and the known famous SOS "Operation Backroads" bicycle tours which careen through the Champagne region of France and the Alps, and the

The trip seems to be a practical way for many students to make the best of the college man about town, driving around in a shanty new Oldsmobile furnished to the Dodd family by one of his father's automotive concerns. While at Providence College, Brannen had been committed to one who was too far up on the student and the Dodd family by one of his father's automotive concerns. While at Providence College, Brannen had been committed to the college's budget. At press time these rumors remain unconfirmed. There have been rumors of the college's budget. Go take a walk

by Mark McDouall

Do you have trouble finding interesting things to do with your free time? Well take a walk, Connecticut College is endowed with many acres of beautiful woodlands. The purpose of this article and those to come will be to introduce students and other members of the college community to these areas by suggesting some walks to take.

Fall has come upon quickly; the trees have already begun changing to their autumn colors. This is a most splendid time of year to get out and take a short walk. One of the most pleasurable walks is to Mamacoke Natural Area located just North of campus on the Thames River. (See map insert).

To reach this area go down Benham Ave. toward the river; on the left-hand side of the road, just past the houses, there is a path with a barbed-wire fence across it with a yellow and a red streamer tied to it. There is also a Wildlife Refuge sign posted in a tree just to the left of the path as you face down it. Following this path you find it bordered on both sides by fairly large trees.

From here you come to another open area, a short way down the path. This area has been set aside by the Botany Dept. as an example of a naturalistic landscape. (See Coro. Assign. 22, Creating New Landscapes with Herbicides - A Home Owner's Guide).

Bird Haunting

Continue along this path, down a slight incline onto the marsh. This is called Rock Polypody. Be careful now that you don't lose the path here, as you continue, for it becomes a little obscure, just continue in a southerly direction following parallel to the river. The woods through here appear a little more open. A bit further up the path on your left you will come to an opening in the tree canopy and you can see the river clearly as well as the Sub Base. From here you can see north up the Thames River and on the right is the U.S. Submarine Base. I hope you will take some time to look down at some of the unique patterns formed by the weathering rocks.

Moving along once again... To get back on the path, walk to the right, as you face up river, about fifty feet and on the right you will be at an oak tree with a Wildlife Refuge sign posted on it - the path continues through the right of this tree. On the left only a few feet further up this path, you notice the light becomes less and the path is bordered on both sides by the mountain laurel the Connecticut State Flower. The path now follows the river south toward the bridges. Eventually on the right there will be another ledge, this one not as steep as the one on the other side. This slope provides a very favorable environment for fens. Many of the fens have already started to brown, which makes them difficult to identify, but the major change is that the pitcher plant found in these fens will be eliminated this species from our forests.

Asteraceae

Moving along once again... You have now completely circled Mamacoke Island. From this point you go right onto the same path. One thing you would like to stress is that treat this natural area with respect for it is unique, and please take out everything you brought in. The Arboretum Bulletins mentioned can be purchased in the Botany Dept. office on the second floor of New London Hall.

Science Fellowships

by Pan Alippanos

The National Science Foundation, as a means of promoting the progress of science, is currently offering 500 three-year fellowships to students who have special aptitude for advanced training in this area. The grants will be awarded for study leading to master's or doctoral degrees and will be awarded in the spring of 1975.

Eligibility requirements include being a U.S. citizen, college senior or first year graduate student, and that it is only valid for one year.

For application materials may be obtained from the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20418. The deadline for filing is December 2, 1974 and winners will be notified on March 15, 1975. For the accompanying brochure, call 445-7227.

On October 17, Stevie Wonder brought his magic to New Haven Coliseum. For those of us who were fortunate enough to attend, the experience will stay in our minds for quite some time. The first band on stage was Rufus, the group responsible for the single "Tell Me Something Good." The best thing that they did was leave the stage after about forty-five minutes. The crowd thought they were awful and boosed them off. I had to agree with the crowd's judgment. After a too-long intermission, Wonderlove, Stevie's backup band took the stage. They performed for twenty-five minutes which seemed like an eternity. Then, after the band had been introduced, the drummer went into a familiar beat. And somewhere in the darkness came the voice of THE MAN cranking out the introduction to "Bird Of Paradise." The crowd went crazy. Stevie came out in a black leather and felt checked jacket and hat (check the picture in last week's Newsweek). He sat at an empty stage behind an electric piano but didn't stay there too long. The first song was "Living For The City," and somewhere in the darkness came the voice of the same band. That was fantastic, and it was all uphill from there.

The highlight of the evening, besides Stevie's obscure bump routine was "Ground Breaker," an oldies medley which featured every old Motown hit you could think of. It was a full blast version of "Respect" left every pair of feet in the hall stamping. But Stevie did not let his fall tour to the New Haven Coliseum will persist, but it has not the best, shows blow up other people. I don't think about the audience in quivering flames worthy of a cigarette lighter. Keith's column continued on p.8

There are those people who will argue that the truest form of Western culture would be the effective synthesis of sex and science fiction. Now, there are students on this campus who have achieved this noble goal, but since their efforts have not been captured on film, "Flash Gordon" must be considered the authoritative work on the subject. In order to be fair to all parties, we shall review the merits of this film, both as erotic material and as family entertainment.

To begin with, it must be stated emphatically that "Flash Gordon" is not the film, the pornographic film is one in which a vague (sometimes non-existent) story serves as a pretense for any number of degrading and/or enlightening acts. "Flash Gordon" is precisely the opposite of this. It is graced with marvelously witty dialogue, and its humor is equal to its complexity. It overshadows its erotic aspects. Instead, one must admit that the film is sexually inventive. While "Flash" provides just enough pulsating pulsation to nauseate the squeamish, it offers far too little to satisfy the intrinsic cravings of hard-core fans. This is not to say that the film is boring. There were several points at which it held the audience in quivering suspense, and many sat erect in their seats. Gordon's adventures, the sexual episodes are mere instances of baccanalian revelry which no red-blooded American would be ashamed to witness. Thus, one should neither be dissuaded nor encouraged by the "X" rating of the film or by its alluring title.

Wholesome Entertainment

Putting these carnal matters aside, we come to the question of whether "Flash Gordon" provides any good, wholesome entertainment. If the film is not a hit, it comes up a winner. "Flash" is brilliantly parodies the "Flash Gordon" adventure that appeared in the movie theaters in the 30s and reappeared on T.V. in the 60s. The ancient enemy between Flash and the Emperor Ming (now the Emperor Wang) is brought back to life, as well the cheap special effects of the original: rocket ships emitting flames worthy of a cigarette lighter, pointy views of an "Earth" which looks suspiciously like a Rand McNally globe, and so forth. But, in addition to all this, there are some truly spectacular sets, and a generous selection of bizarre and outstandingly like...

A new federal law granting college students access to all confidential school files goes into effect November 20. Material open to student inspection includes everything in his or her records: identifying data, scores on standardized tests, grades, personal recommendations and relevant health data. Student requests to see material in question must be honored within 45 days. In addition, the new law, an amendment to Education Act of 1965 and sponsored by Senator James Buckley of New York forbids third parties — including most federal agencies — access to student records, unless the student has given written consent.

The Board of Trustees of Amherst College will meet in executive session on November 3 to make a definitive decision on whether to institute coeducation. The Board has made an exhaustive study of coeducation at other institutions of higher learning in order to help facilitate its decision.

Our "regular gal" of the month award goes to Caroline Kennedy. It seems that a staffer at Senator Kennedy's Washington office, where Ms. Kennedy worked as an intern last summer, offered to place a phone call for her. As the staffer began to place the call, Sush Kennedy forcefully slammed the phone back down on the receiver, smiled demurely, and said, "I can dial." Credit this piece to the upcoming November issue of McCall's, which wherever its way onto the newstand this week, once again exhibiting in toto a rather marked propensity for expository exaltation.

Dear Editor:

I was looking at my compass today, and I discovered that North Campus is not actually north of Central Campus. It is north-northwest. I sent my compass back to the company to have it fixed. They sent it back and said it was in order. I therefore concluded that the campus is out of order. From this I postulate only two alternatives for viable political action.

1) We could call "North Campus" North-North-West Campus.

2) We could move the Complex approximately 376 yards to the east, (east, to make it west).

That would square everything.

Sincerely,

We're surprised that they don't claim it cures cancer.

The makers of STP Oil Treatment make it sound like a fountain of youth for old cars and a super tonic for new cars. They claim it does everything from protecting engine parts to reducing heat, noise, friction, and wear.

They say it's the "racer's edge." Whatever that means. Well, here's what STP Oil Treatment really is.

It's a can of thick goo that makes the oil it's added to thicker. But if you want a thicker oil, you can just buy a heavier grade of oil (like 40 or 50 weight) in the first place. Or if you want a "multi-viscosity" oil (like 10W-30), you can just buy that, too. And save the expense of STP. For most cars under almost all driving conditions, the right motor oil is all you'll ever need for your car's crankcase.

The very nicest thing we can say about STP Oil Treatment is that it's probably a waste of money. But there are less nice things, too.

STP can change the proportions of chemical additives (detergent, anti-rust, etc.) already formulated in most motor oils, and it can make cold weather starts harder.

Mercedes Benz even says it could invalidate their new car warranties.

Many motor oil manufacturers, including Kendall, Quaker State, Pennzoil and Valvoline, advise you not to use additives like STP. Even Consumer Reports (July 1971) says you don't need STP. The makers of STP must have forgotten to mention all that. And what do you have on the other side? "The racer's edge." Whatever that means.

with Mr. Kenneth Almgren of the Graduate School of Management, University of Rochester. He will be here Thursday, 7 November 9:00-12, to meet with students from all disciplines who are interested in graduate management education leading to an M.B.A., M.S., or Ph.D. degree.

In the M.B.A. program, you may concentrate in accounting, finance, marketing, applied economics, operations management, computers and information management, or behavioral science.

The M.S. in Systems Analysis is for people who plan careers in management of non-profit organizations. And the Ph.D. is for highly qualified students who want ultimately to teach or do research. Joint degree programs with the University's College of Education, and other schools and departments, can also be arranged. Contact the placement office for information.

One win, one loss for the Grey Plaids

By two team members
The Connecticut College field hockey team returned from a well deserved vacation, ready to come on strong against Wesleyan. The game was played on October 23. In spite of Conn's powerful line up, we were unable to break through and defeat the Wesleyan team. The final score was 3-6.

In our game against Mitchell College on October 24, Conn pulled together and defeated them 4-0. Mitchell put up a brutal fight resulting with two minor, but unnecessary injuries to our team members, and a stick was broken in half by one of the Mitchell players. This week closes the season of the field hockey team. Although we have had little support from our fellow colleagues, we are hopeful that next year the situation will be different.

Soccer team ending strong

On October 18, the Conn College soccer team traveled to Hamden, Ct., where they played a highly overdue Quinipiac game. After a lengthy delay, due to the scheduling difficulties of the Quinnipiac team, Conn was on the field and dominating play. The scoring was opened for Conn on an awesome play executed by Charlie Clasie and Scott Carney. Clasie, an excellent playmaker, passed the ball from midfield Carney who in mid-air volleyed the ball into the upper corner of the Quinipiac goal. The second half was a hard played period by both teams. Quinipiac jumped out to a 3-1 lead in the early stages of this period to stun the Conn boosters. Conn came back on two goals by the Quinnipiac team that resulted in two penalty shots by co-captain, Dave Kelly, "Golden foot" Kelly calmly chose the right and left corners of the goal respectively to humiliate the Quinnipiac goal-keeper. The final score of the match was 3-2 in favor of Conn.

Conn’s next match was with the Coast Guard Academy, on October 25, and it was a truly frustrating game. Play was unquestionably dominated by Conn in the first half of the game, but they managed to score by one goal. The goal came on a strong shot by Sean Smaith which gave Conn the lead. The second half was also well played by Conn but the fighting cadets, noted for their endless abundance of spirit, surprised Conn by a 2-1 victory.

SWIM TEAM

The Connecticut College field hockey team traveled to Hamden, Ct., where they played a highly overdue Quinipiac game. After a lengthy delay, due to the scheduling difficulties of the Quinnipiac team, Conn was on the field and dominating play. The scoring was opened for Conn on an awesome play executed by Charlie Clasie and Scott Carney. Clasie, an excellent playmaker, passed the ball from midfield Carney who in mid-air volleyed the ball into the upper corner of the Quinipiac goal. The second half was a hard played period by both teams. Quinipiac jumped out to a 3-1 lead in the early stages of this period to stun the Conn boosters. Conn came back on two goals by the Quinnipiac team that resulted in two penalty shots by co-captain, Dave Kelly, “Golden foot” Kelly calmly chose the right and left corners of the goal respectively to humiliate the Quinnipiac goal-keeper. The final score of the match was 3-2 in favor of Conn.

Conn’s next match was with the Coast Guard Academy, on October 25, and it was a truly frustrating game. Play was unquestionably dominated by Conn in the first half of the game, but they managed to score by one goal. The goal came on a strong shot by Sean Smaith which gave Conn the lead. The second half was also well played by Conn but the fighting cadets, noted for their endless abundance of spirit, surprised Conn by a 2-1 victory.
Sports

Winners and losers

The past week in flag football saw a lot of action in the Southern division. The South had four undefeated teams going into action and it wound up with the two teams who had a share in first place being displaced by the third and fourth place teams. Burdick took over first with their defeat of Freeman with Blunt right behind, still undefeated but having one tie. The Faculty almost won a game against Emily Abbey. They held a 7-0 lead until late in the game but lost it by giving up two interceptions. The final score was 21-7.

The Burdick-Freeman match saw an unexpected rout of a very strong Freeman team by Burdick, playing in their first game, by a score of 35-14. Superior efforts were turned in by Ted Von Glahn of Freeman on the defensive pass rush, and Paul Lantz, Burdick's quarterback, who found an outstanding receiver in Rich Glam. The R.B. machine once again cranked it self up to run all over an opponent. An undefeated Harkness-Windham team lost their composure and Blunt took advantage of that fact by intercepting five Harkness passes. Turning in a great performance for Blunt was Robbe Roberts with three interceptions.

J.A. Beats the Spread

The Quad picked up its first victory while handing Jane Addams its fourth defeat in as many games. J.A., despite being out-muscled, beat the spread but still lost by a score of 14-0. The Quad displayed a fine defense but the offense could not come up with the big play. A bright spot for the Quad's offense is receiver in Rich Glam. They defeated Annjecie (St. Joseph's) 6-0, 8-0, 14-0. Pam Keris '77 also closed its fall schedule with victories over Wesleyan and St. Joseph's. Their final record is 6-3. On October 23 they defeated Wesleyan 6-3. Bambi Flickinger downed Abby Maynard 7-8, 7-4, Molly Flickinger defeated Cathy Megan '84, 6-3, 6-2, and Pam Keris beat Linda Jaffe '73, 6-1, 5-7.

Conn doubles combinations of Miller-B. Flickinger, Smith-M. Flickinger, and Keris-Sherman all posted victories. In their final match, October 28, the women defeated St. Joseph's 9-4. Scoring was done in a record because of the shortage of time. The matchups were — M. Flickinger over Miga '84, Smith defeated Rosani 10-7, Brooks over Estabrook 6-1, and Sherman over Hill 1-0. Pairing up for doubles victories were M. Flickinger-Smith over Miga-Ryan 10-1, Keris-Schwab defeated Rossan-Brancheau 10-2, and Brooks-Sherman defeated Estabrook-Hill 10-1.

It's still the same old story, a fight for love and glory, a case of do or die.

Idyll on the Charles

By Jay Clifford

Sunday, October 27, was, for thousands of devoted sports fans, an old-fashioned Sunday in Cambridge, Mass. Boston, with its red brick buildings, cobblestone streets, historical and cultural atmosphere returned, for a day, to a time when life was more relaxed and people were less calculating. With ivy-covered Harvard behind us and the sparkling Charles at our feet, the imposing silhouette of Boston's skyline was in the distance, yet far from our thoughts that day.

The early morning air felt brisk, the foliage was brilliantly illuminated by the warming sun — it was a masterpiece of the变色 racism that is in autumn. Most Cambidgesites were in their warm apartments reading the Sunday paper, but there were others, who, in the early morning light, clad in sweat suits, Addidas, and head bands, were busy in preparation for the tenth annual Head of the Charles Regatta.

The largest crew race of the season was on the verge of becoming a reality. Three thousand oarsmen, both young and old and male and female, would row the three-mile course in as short a time as possible. The races would be approximately twenty minutes long and would painfully and spectacularly test the endurance and skill of each crew. All too quickly, the placidity of the morning gave way to the drama and the excitement of competition. The Race Itself, and More Thousands were gathered on the banks of the Charles, observing the races, basking in the mid-afternoon sun, and downing wine and cheese at a healthy luncheon. The regatta added color to the autumn season, and the Charles was the perfect setting for a day of beauty and sport.

Curran cops 2nd championship

Conn Senior, Jo Curran, successfully defended her state title in the singles division by defeating Barb Fischer (Trinity) on October 30 in the Connecticut State Intercollegiate Championships for Women at Wesleyan University. En route to victory Curran eliminated Ann Rice (St. Joseph's) '80, 66; Sarah Shrik (University of Conn), 64, 41, 75; and Leslie Piliter (Southern Conn) '60, 64; before defeating Fischer 6-2, 6-2. Curran was the reigning state champion having defeated Della Osmar (UConn) in last years finals. She also teamed with Bambi Flickinger to win the state doubles title as a freshman. The next year they reached the finals before bowing out. Jo Curran can boast of one of the most prestigious records in state tournament play for many years. In other matches — Conn senior Bambi Flickinger teamed with Sophomore Wendy Miller to reach quarterfinals before losing to Dierdre Redden and Vicki Tiley (Trinity) 7-5, 7-4, who then went on to the finals. Conn's freshman combination of M. Flickinger, and Jody Smith ousted teams from Central Conn. and the University of Bridgeport before losing to the eventual winners from Trinity 6-1, 6-1. Pam Keris '77 also represented Conn in the tournament. She defeated Sue Kalscher (St. Joseph's) before losing to a strong Wesleyan opponent.

New England Intercollegiate Tournament

In the New England Intercollegiate Tournament, October 23-27, Jo Curran and Bambi Flickinger teamed to reach the semifinals before losing to Emily Barron and Mimi Coolidge (Trinity) '64, 74. Fifty-two teams represented in the doubles draw including some of the best teams in New England. Other Conn participants were Molly Flickinger, Jody Smith and Wendy Miller.

The Women's Tennis Team closed its fall schedule with victories over Wesleyan and St. Joseph's. Their final record is 6-3.
