Betty Joan Moss '56

Jeanie Chappell, a freshly elected student of the Sophomore class has been a figure of silence and secrecy on campus. With the lifting of the mystery it was curtailed of Mascot Hunt, Jeanie told to reveal to our readers the true story of who and what is Chappell, For the Inquisitive Junior who asked of three Sophomores, "I have any of your friends, Jeanie Chappell, and who was answered in the negative by Jeanie, and for those others of you who have not had the pleasure of meeting the Antique leader of the class of 1960.

A resident of Lebanon Conn., Jeanie recently returned from school in Farmington for her Senior year at William Penn High School. Jeanie has had no experience in the political world, nor the government and did an exemplary job of keeping up the Sophomore end of Mascot Hunt. Pouncing into the excitement of the event immediately after her election, Jeanie tried to keep her identity hidden as long as she could, although complete secrecy was impossible. The picture, incidentally, is a lute.

Rev Warnshuis to Speak on Sunday At Vesper Service

The Reverend John H. Warnshuis will speak at the Vesper Service, which will be held in Hardness Chapel at 7:30. A graduate of Hope College, Michigan, Dr. Warnshuis attended New York University and the New York Theological Semi- nary, and the School of Education at Columbia University.

Following his ordination, Dr. Warnshuis became missionary in India where he was head of a mission school. After that, he was a minister of the Reformed Church in New York. He is presently retired in New London.

New England Group To Meet Saturday

The Classical Fete

The Connecticut section of the Classical Association of New England will meet here at the college Saturday, October 12. The program will be held in the Williams Memorial, in the afternoon. Students interested in music and literature are invited to attend.

The morning session of the program will be held in the Williams Memorial, an address of the president of the New England College of Music.

George W. Bliss, a former member of the faculty and a graduate of Mr. Bliss's alma mater, will be present at the meeting.

The afternoon session will feature the music of the time, a musical tour of Europe, and the music of the 19th century.

Annual Yale Mixer Planned For Frosh

OC's second fresh mixer is coming up soon. Next Saturday, October 19, one hundred of Yale's freshmen men with frosh women from the same college will jump on the dance floor, and enjoy an evening of music, food, and fun.

The mixer will be held in the Music Building, and will feature live music by a popular band. The event will end with a grand finale, with the "Welcome Back Home" dinner.

Conn. Facultones Make Debut At Student-Faculty Dinner

Student-faculty dinner, under the sponsorship of Student League, will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 22nd. The Seniors will each have a faculty partner while the rest of the Student body will have student partners. Students should pick up appropriate boxes in Fanning on Monday and Tuesday of next week. Underclassmen will draw slips which will state a number and the name of the dorm, they will go to for dinner. The person with the matching number will be their dinner partner.

Seniors will draw faculty names with the dorm in which they will eat as designated. It is their job to let the faculty member know when and where she will meet him.

No one will be allowed into the dining rooms unless they can present the proper slip to the Student League representatives at the door.

After dinner there will be entertainment in the Auditorium at 7:30. The Civic Chords and the Shwifts will sing. Also to be heard will be a brand new faculty singing group, the Facultones, headed by Mrs. Ruby T. Morris, head of the Economics Depart-

For those with houselists, the entertainment will be over by 8:15. We hope everyone will come!

Concert Duo Opens With Presentation By String Quartet

Connecticut College's first Chamber Music Concert of the season, featuring the Juliard String Quartet, will be held on Wednesday, October 23, at 8:30 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium.

Old favorites at Connecticut College, the group will play a series of quartets. The selections will be: Quartet In A Minor, Opus 29 by Schubert; Peter Mennini's Quartet No. 2, and Quartet In F Major, Opus 153, by Beethoven.

Tickets for this recital alone are two dollars and are being sold in conjunction with the Hollywood String Quartet, which will perform on March 5. Series tickets will be three dollars; ticket orders should be placed in Mr. Quimby's mailbox. Seats will also be sold at the door.

JEANIE CHAPPELL
So You Think We Live In That Ivory Tower

by Susan M. Ryder '60

If you just don’t know what to do with all your spare time, and you’re bored to tears with the hum of it all, perhaps you might want to add a little something to your daily routine. The perfect remedy might be a gold, rhinestone-encrusted umbrella, something to keep you dry on many days on campus. You put your sunshine umbrella into the stand, and the West End see you emerge out into a little thinking dish next.

And if you should find yourself stuck some night with nothing to do, you can always drive your tired, mature body up to the gang for an evening of vision. The Perfect Storm is a genuine storm, and you could see the exact same storm a couple of days on campus. You put your umbrella on your head and catch the rain, the look of the perfect storm offers a handy satellite-guide that tells you when and where storm will make an appearance. You pay your money, turn a dial, and your umbrella will be there, waiting for you.

Some girl in Buffalo must have really had the beads, man, when she couldn’t think of anything to do with herself but beat her roommates door down with a beersteak. This method is not recommended, save for those girls who have dreams of roommates and a really great boyfriend. So let’s get back to the Original Storm and have a drink.

You might even do something constructive with your umbrella. Maybe you could direct a little storm in Manitoba who found his school work less than inspiring. He decided that his umbrella could be a jet engine. He did, and now he has a fountain of energy for all those who only have one umbrella. It’s a storm of a different kind, but it has a real impact. If you have it, stop a moment to ponder it. After all, the perfect storm is a good ship. Martella on her mission, cruise from Detroit to Cleveland, and the cold, the dry, the system, the cold, the ship, the captain had a hard time, and to top it off some idiot put a screw worm in the marinara we weren’t worried.

Organization Woman Embraces Clad in a Gray Flannel Suit

So you want to be a career girl? Are you aware of the web of diocese orders at your disposal? What's up? Has William H. Whyte FORTUNATELY FOR you, there are a few other college girls, an older girl, and the "boss" who supervises them. You can see YOURSELF, the American Worker, at work. You see people climbing the steps to perform the jobs. Near the shoulders gray flannel suit and sensible heels to work "overtime" at the factory. Why is there so much interest in this form of work? Is there any purpose in being a member of the organization women? Besides, discussion with a few words of advice from their leaders. Mrs. Ruebhausen ended the evening's thought that one must never enter a given profession merely for the money. More important is whether or not the individual student wishes to do work.

Miss Ramsay

Miss Ramsay, Director of Personnel, considered the evening's discussion by outlining the advantages of a liberal arts education as applied to vocational careers. Although she agrees that it is important to study the life of a given profession, she thinks that one must never enter a given profession merely for the money. More important is whether or not the individual student wishes to do work.
Dear Diary...

Friday, Oct. 17

Dear Diary,

I got through French and History all right today, but English really threw me for a loop. When I saw him walk into class with those little blue books I guess he was too late to leave, so I had to take an awful test. My roommate's name is Charlie and he really knows when to go on weekends. I had a blind dinner date with a girl (night is a good excuse for those woody fish suppers). The dinner was really nice, but I didn't care too much for the date, himself. I don't think the night dark liked him very well either, because when we were away from the main lights there were eight of us saying Bye to our date, she started turning the lights off—and it was only 9:55. We turned them back on, she turned them off again. On, off again—by this time the dates had gone.

Thursday, Oct. 12

Dear Diary,

Today I went to Yale for the football game. Oh dear diary—it was just as terrible as I and got up at 6:00 to pack, plug my eye brows, and do all those things you know. We really did look dandy if we do say so ourselves. When we finally got organized and got on the train for New Haven! When we arrived (at 8:00), these were blind dates recommended by a friend of a friend), our dates met us at the station, cowboy boots and all. I had had fun in dirtylev, dirty shirts, dirty hairstyles. I spent the day creeping around corners for fear I’d meet my mother the day fol- lowing us. After the game we had dinner and then the date and we convinced them we had to. Sometimes I’d lost 12-30 deadlines are a blessing. fact...oh well, I’m tired. More to morrow.

Love,

Dear Diary,

I woke up this morning after sleeping hours past my normal wake-up call at “C” quiz. This morn- ing passed quickly enough in va- riety. There was no biology and psy- chology. Miss Avallie Grippin, Asst. to the Personnel Director, Columbia College for Women, attended the entitled Business Jobs In- tervention held in Boston for October 5, for business placement officers to collect graduates in New York and New Jersey. The April/June meeting was hosted for the event which was held at the Biltmore Hotel, 6 Ash Street, Cambridge.

Panel Discussions

Each panel discussion by leading Boston personnel officers is designed to assist the col- lege placement people in supplying college graduates in Boston. Because of its cultural and historical background, Boston has always been among the popular choos for jobs by locations for the graduates. The graduate program of the Advertising and Publishing, and Electricity, and the Panel of Execu- tive vice president of the Arnold Ad- vertising, and Mr. Michael H. Until They Sail...

by Carol Plants '60

Gus and Gala, each of which has returned himself and herself that he or she is in love—except Paul Newman. Paul is not going to get involved with any woman, not even Jean Simmons. He dislikes himself each night with his whiskey bottle and survives very well.

It’s at this point that the story ultimately poses the big question: how are the nice girls and women to manage when their sweethearts and husbands are away at war? Well this question never gets answered, but it appears that the girls manage pretty well despite their loneliness during war time.

This picture deserved more of Paul Newman’s interesting characterization of the determined soldier and much less of the sorrowings of Jean Simmons and Piper Laurie.

ern government is such as to require that from 200,000 to 300,000 job appointments be made each year. The increasing complexity of many of the jobs requires that a greater number of them be filled by college people. Positions are open in such fields as general government, social science, production planning, personal management, agricultural administration, agricultural economics, and the natural sciences.

The first examination to be held since the addition of juniors has been made, is scheduled for November 26 and will be given in over 1,000 examination points, throughout the country. The test will be given in New London, and candidates have until October 31 to file their applications. Subsequent examinations will be held in January, February, March, and May, 1958.

Mademoiselle Holds Contest For Career-Minded Students

Mademoiselle is now accepting applications from undergraduate women for membership in its 1956-1957 College Board.

The magazine's College Board Contest offers a chance for the freshman as well as the senior at winning one of the twenty Guest Editorships—a month on the staff of Mademoiselle. Those who are accepted on the College Board do two assignments during the college year. Assignments give College Board Members a chance to write features about life on their campus; to submit art work and fashion as well as features, fiction or promotion ideas for possible use in Mademoiselle; to develop their critical and creative talents; to discover their own abilities and job interests; to win cash prizes and possibly publication for their work during the contest.

The top twenty Guest Editors will be brought to New York next June to help write, edit, and illustrate the August COLLEGE issue. They will be paid a regular salary for their month's work plus round-trip transportation to New York City.

While in New York, each Guest Editor takes part in a full calendar of activities. She interviews a celebrity in her chosen field, visits newspaper offices, fashion workrooms, stores and advertising agencies, besides working daily with the Mademoiselle Editor to whom she is assigned. The twenty Guest Editors get help in finding positions in their special fields, and each year several join Mademoiselle's own staff.

November 30 is the deadline for applying for College Board Membership. The tryout assignment this year gives more latitude than ever before for indicating your particular talent in writing or art, fashion or advertising, promotion or merchandising, or publicity.

For further information on various aspects of the contest see Carlene Newberg '59.

For those interested in working for the foreign service, the State Department has announced that Foreign Service Officer Examinations will be given throughout the United States on December 9. These examinations will be open to young men and women between the ages of 20 to 31 who are American citizens of at least nine years' standing.

A number of the successful Foreign Service officer candidates will take up duties at one of the 277 American Embassies, Legations, and Consulates around the world. At these posts, which range from the large missions such as Paris and London to the one-man posts such as Perth, Australia, the new officers may expect to develop their critical and creative talents; to discover their own abilities and job interests; to win cash prizes and possibly publication for their outstanding work submitted during the contest.

Other new officers will be assigned to the Department's headquarters in Washington, where they will engage in research or other substantive work, or in the many administrative tasks which are essential to the day-to-day conduct of our foreign affairs.

Officers to Visit

Foreign Service officers will visit a number of colleges and universities during the fall to explain fully those opportunities which will be open to the qualified men and women. In order to make known the diversified needs of the Department of State or Foreign Service, the officers will talk not only with promising students of history, political science and international relations, but also with those who are specializing in economics, foreign languages, and business and public administration.

Those successful in the one-day examination, which tests the candidate's facility in English expression, general ability and background, as well as his proficiencies in a modern foreign language, will subsequently be given an oral examination by panels which will meet in regional centers throughout the United States. Those candidates who pass the oral test will then be given a physical examination and a security investigation. Upon completion of these phases, the candidate will be notified by the President as a Foreign Service officer of Class 1. The Consul and Secretary in the Diplomatic Service.

Starting salaries for successful candidates range from $4,780 to $5,500 per year depending upon the age, experience, and family status of the individual. In addition, insurance, medical, educational, and retirement benefits are granted, as well as annual and sick leave.

Application forms may be obtained by writing to the Board of Examiners for the Foreign Service, Department of State, Washington 25, D. C. The closing date for filing the application is October 28.
