College to Select President in Strand Ballot; Dean Johnson, Charles Mann State Positions on Election; Both Suggest Choice, Between Nominees, Between Attitudes

President Ignatius Johnson, Democratic Candidate on "carefully chosen silent support group," who submitted reports secretly to both the Democratic and the Republican voting machines. Mr. Johnson has been a strong supporter of a bipartisan foreign policy. The other candidate, a seventy-three-year-old congressman, was a staunch Republican.

Two Men to Meet: Debate to Enliven Politics on Campus

The two political candidates and Mr. Johnson will each present a twenty-two political scientists who will challenge the views of the two men. The debate will be open to the public and the candidates will face each other in a formal setting.

Norwich Luncheon Honors John Lodge
Senatorial Aspirant

Accusing the Johnson Administration of "backsliding," former Minnesota Representative Walter H. Judd delivered the keynote speech at a Connecticut College luncheon. Mr. Judd said that the "situation is not only in the interest of the people, but also in the interest of the country."

emy of Arts and Sciences, will speak on "Modernization in the West of the Renaissance," bringing together "the religious and the political, the social and the economic.

Murther Seeks Reasons Behind Choice of Mate

Why in the world do people marry the people they do? Last year Mr. Berton Murther, a senior political professor of National Institute of Mental Health, managed to answer this question. His study, based on a 1,300,000 research grant from the National Institute of Mental Health, was the first major study of the subject. The study was completed in 1963 and is now available to the public.

Dear '投入 Disgruntled Juniors'

We too are disturbed. It is dis-putes on the increase. The Bookshop is selling books at prices almost as much more that one- third the retail price quoted by the publishers. It is even more distressing to find that these students in their junior year do not feel sufficiently at home in the Bookshop to voice their complaints directly rather than through you. We hereby dis- cerning completely erroneous information.

We do not know which book you obtained an price about, but please be warned that at the time that The Bookshop was charged $1.25 (less than the price the publisher rather than $9.60. The Bookshop has never ordered the price of the book on book orders. The publisher is finding these prices are not as much as we could wish in the face of what we think is an overpriced price structure. We are trying to solve it to your satisfaction. If it cannot be done, we are in a dilemma.
THE CHALLENGE OF EXISTENTIALISM

Dr. L. Dupre Puts Emphasis On Autonomy

The "devout man" stride back and forth, pounding his hands and searching for the words to express clerly his views. The words were rarely verbalized by the speaker, conducted by Louis Dupre was an exciting experience.

In the last session, Dr. Dupre emphasized the existential belief in the man's freedom to create and control his own world. The question revolved around as to what happens when a man is told that he cannot control. Here Dr. Dupre restated the conflict with the uncontrollable, an illusion to a person's craving for a wall to stand in the point of collision that existentialists are striving to develop. Here lies the challenge to Christian faith.

Two Basic Attitudes

In the seminar, Dr. Dupre stated two basic attitudes are possible. First, one can accept the wall and believe the illusion of the phenomena of freedom is obtained or imposed, but that God is real in the strictly phenomenological approach of religious faith. Secondly, one can employ a "religious" approach and not accept the wall and believe the phenomena of freedom are continuance, and that humanity can recover a faith in God in the future. In this approach holds the meaning of theatta,tude, depends upon the man-interpreter.

After the seminar, Dr. Dupre asked the panel on existentialism on their previous views, that he does not create good and evil. He further stated that man creates values in the sense that he weights the option. This is in no way to avoid situations of destruction. Principles must be switched or the man on his own merits without regard for a particular situation.

Wild Panel Takes Middle Road In Seminar on Existentialism

Professor Wild led a panel discussion that defied existential philosophy. He started with the panelists expressing their views, and then proceeded to question in an open and non-committal manner. The views expressed were varies, but the general consensus was that existentialism is a philosophy that deals with the meaning of life and the nature of reality. Dr. Dupre, without surprise, called the question of whether existentialism is a philosophy of religion. The discussion turned to the role of religion in society and the nature of religious experience. The panelists agreed that religion is a necessary component of existential philosophy, but that it does not have to be the main focus. The discussion ended with a call for further research and exploration of the relationship between existentialism and religion.

Wild Panel Takes Middle Road In Seminar on Existentialism

One of the panelists, Dr. Jonas, discussed the concept of the "existentialist belief in the world" and how it differs from the traditional religious belief in the world. He stated that the existentialist belief in the world is a belief in the world as it is, without any reference to a supernatural being or force. He further stated that this belief is limited by the individual's own experience and knowledge. Dr. Jonas also discussed the concept of freedom and how it is related to the existentialist belief in the world. He stated that freedom is the ability to choose one's own path, and that this ability is limited by the individual's own experience and knowledge.

Macquarrie Gives
Summary Sermon
For Existentialism

"In life a door or a wall?" was the question Dr. John Macquarrie posed to Sunday's new service which marked the end of the series on existentialism. Dr. Macquarrie's answer is that life is more of a door than a wall. To live life is to meet head on, rather than to run through it or to seek to escape it.

"The life of man is a one-way traffic," he said. "Our human way to the world is not a round trip, but a one-way traffic. The choice is to decide as to which door we shall enter and which door we shall leave." Macquarrie's answer is that life is a door, not a wall. To live life is to meet head on, rather than to run through it or to seek to escape it.

College Welcomes Doctor A. Axiotis, New Psychiatrist

One of the hottest men on campus is Dr. Anthony Axiotis, the College's new psychiatrist. He starts today.

Dr. Axiotis is available to students twenty-four hours a day for consultation and emergency treatment. He is the only psychiatrist on campus. Gradually three other psychiatrists will be added to the College's mental health program.

Dr. Axiotis is the first of three new associate psychiatrists to be appointed to the College. The other two are Dr. George Murphy, who will run the office, and Dr. John Hall, who will serve as the college's medical director.

College Plays Mix 'n Match With 5 Nearby Men's Schools

I would officially like to declare Connecticut College TBD most supportive and co-operative in the last. Startlingly, graduating on September 15 until October 24, CC's girls will have officially gotten into the mixing process both here in New London and off campus in the five dorms, bus-referenced as three buses, squasinjered, $2,744.70, and polyclinic administrators (270) hours of potential study time. More specifically, 1300 have chosen to mix with Yale, 600 with Trinity, 400 with the Middlesex School, and 300 with Trinity and 120 with Trinity. Students

While at the shop one evening I ordered half a tuna fish sandwich, being unable to bid a partner nor able to consume twice that amount. They felt it was a singular request, but with under cooking and filling filled my order. However, upon reaching the cash register and holding attentively (15) which seemed proper, being half of 30c, I was immediately epurried by the woman there. Changes of formats are not, she told me, and in the shop. Remember that, whoever enters that establishment. For despite the fact that I had brought a rephid from two behind the counter, and was holding the sandwich in her hand, its possession was denied to me. I decided not to order to have a second half, having only a juniper apple and being mildly curiosious as to what further action would occur. Suddenly the girl was whisked out of my hand and placed on a back counter, I was thus curiously dismissed.

Dr. Cranz Discusses Cusanus, Medieval Thinker, at Congress

Dr. F. Edward Cranz, author and speaker, is a medievalist who has written extensively on the works of Nicholas of Cusa. His lecture on Cusanus is part of a series of lectures on medievalism.

Dr. F. Edward Cranz caught in a crystal pool in his book "Cusanus, Medieval Thinker, at Congress". He is known for his expertise in medieval studies, particularly the works of Nicholas of Cusa.

Dr. Cranz delivered a paper on "Cusanus: The Mediation of Inheritance in Nicholas Cusa's "De Imitatione Christi."

During the five-day conference, celebrating the five hundredth year of Nicholas of Cusa's birth, Dr. Cranz participated in the after-dinner discussion. He emphasized local and metropolitan politics and is a co-author of the book "Corporation and the Constitution: A Political Education of Citizens".

Dr. Cranz was forced to drive 100 miles in four hours down a winding mountain road in order to catch a plane which eventually took him from Milan to Frankfurt in a matter of minutes. His nervous system was extremely objectified. The final hour of flying to the United States, which involved a 65-hour plane change and the luxury of simply finishing dinner before being served breakfast, remained difficult to withstand.

However, Dr. Cranz, modest about his knowledge of the subject, is not unaware of the honor bestowed on him by the American Catholic and Protestant Association at the Cusanus Congress. He admits that the trip provided him with many enjoyable experiences.

Dr. F. Edward Cranz, a medievalist, discusses Cusanus's contributions to medieval thought. He emphasizes the importance of local and metropolitan politics and the need for political education of citizens.

Until now, fastidious women had to go to great lengths to avoid a monthly problem. Now you don't have to go on a diet. A novel approach to this natural cycle finally allows women to enjoy their usual activities without worrying about menstruation.

A new dietary product has been introduced. Known as "Koro," this product guarantees that women will not experience any menstrual discomfort. It is easy to use and has been proven to be 100% effective in preventing menstruation.

Koro, a pleasant smelling cream, is applied twice daily. It works without altering the menstrual cycle and ensures complete freedom from discomfort and embarrassment. Moreover, Koro is non-staining and can be applied to any part of the body.

"Koro," the name of the new product, is derived from the Greek word "Kora," meaning "period." It is a harmless, non-toxic cream that is quickly absorbed by the skin.

Koro is available in all leading drugstores and supermarkets. It is the perfect answer for women who wish to avoid menstruation without resorting to drastic measures.

Koro is a natural and safe alternative for those who want to maintain their usual routines without feeling constrained by their menstrual cycle.

Koro is a product of The Hormone Research Co., Inc., dedicated to the well-being of women. It is recommended for use by women who want to keep up with their usual activities without feeling embarrassed or uncomfortable.

Koro is a registered trademark of The Hormone Research Co., Inc.

The testing should prove to be an enlightening experience for the participants as well as furnishing a big hill egg for a future faculty budget.
