Budget sweeps through SGA Assembly
1993–1994: Finance committee allocations passes 29–1–0 with minimal debate

by Ben Rubin
The College Voice
Despite noticeable amounts of displeasure and controversy which circulated throughout many of the campus's clubs and organizations, on Thursday the SGA assembly approved the finance committee's budget proposal for the 1993-94 school year by a 29–1–0 margin. The budget must still be approved by the campus at large.

This year, as the result of a donation to the college of ten percent of the student activities budget, the finance committee was forced to work with a diminished pool of resources. After doing work out what the finance committee considered appropriate allocations, the committee realized it did not have sufficient funds to cover the allocations. The committee chose to make an across the board cut of 8.449 percent as the fairest manner to handle the situation.

Neela Mulchandani, SGA vice president and chair of the finance committee, felt that the cut was an appropriate and justifiable measure to take.

"The general reaction I felt would be because they see an 8.449 percent cut across the board, that they would know that it's not their club that's just getting hit hard, but it's every single club. Therefore, they were more apt to accept the budget knowing that everybody was in the same situation that they were," said Mulchandani.

Though many organizations were passive in their attitudes towards the finance committee's budget, SAC was most vocal in displaying their disapproval of the allocations, igniting conflicting feelings among SGA members.

"SAC cannot do its job the way it's being expected to with $46,000," said Jennifer Scott, SAC chair, during the SGA Assembly on Thursday night.

Scott continued, saying "We can do a job, but we'll never be able to meet the expectations of the students." SAC caught the attention of the entire student body the day after the allocations were presented, by placing table tents on dining hall tables urging students to voice their disapproval of the budget.

According to Assembly members, the table tents seemed to imply that SAC had not received funding for Floralia. In addition, SAC displayed a blank activities calendar outside of the post office, claiming that the calendar of events would remain blank if the current budget proposal was passed. These tactics were major points of discussion and debate, both during the SGA Assembly, and in the days before it. Several student leaders said that the table tents were deceptive, as they did not explain SAC’s $52,202.03 debt from the previous year or the 8.449 percent cut that all clubs were given to the student body.

While addressing the SGA assembly, Chris McDaniell, house senator of IA and member of the Finance Committee, said, "It is political propaganda, plain and simple. The information that SAC"

Liaison committee discusses financial aid for study away
by April Onists
News Editor

Students and Trustees met to discuss important issues which have surfaced this semester at the first Student Trustee Liaison Committee meeting.

Elizabeth Grester, young alumni trustee of the class of 1991, opened the meeting, explaining the changes that have taken place in the committee's structure since last semester.

Now, the trustee members of the Student Life Committee are also members of the Student Trustee Liaison Committee. In addition, the dean of the college, Robert Hampton, and the dean of student life, Catherine Wood-Brooks are members of both committees.

Said Grester, "We think it develops a more collegial atmosphere to have the dean of the college here. Hopefully, this will help us to improve the lines of communication . . . it's a divergence from the past, but we're looking forward to seeing how that works."

Karen Gillen, chair of the Everywomen's Center, spoke next, explaining the purpose of the Everywomen's Center, as well as something of the center's past actions. Gillen said that this year, the organization will publish its own magazine, sponsor an 18 month lecture series on gender, and hold a second Take Back The Night march on October 18.

Next Priya Mathur and Ernest Montgomery, co-chairs of the Minority Student Steering Committee, spoke, giving the trustees a brief history of the committee, and describing it as a "political voice for students of color."

Mathur and Montgomery also read the statement of concerns which was identified when MSSC was formed after the Fanning Takeover in 1986. According to Mathur, the committee will update the statement this year.

Said Mathur, MSSC will make a "very in depth analysis of what has been done, what has not been done, what needs to be done."

Montgomery spoke later of the MSSC's goals for this year.

"The project for the chains is to evaluate the initial statement of concerns from 1986, looking very specifically at the areas of admissions, affirmative action policy, and diversification of the curriculum. Along with that will be other issues brought to us from the Unity organizations that we oversee," said Montgomery.

After stating MSSC's goals for the year, Mathur spoke of the move to divest from South African corporations.

On May 4, 1990, Connecticut College also withdrew its investments from South Africa, and now, the Board of Trustees has called on the campus to reexamine its policy of divestment.

John Evans, Board of Trustees chair, said, "Connecticut College made its first decision as a community and we will take our next step in a similar way... The board takes Nelson Mandela's call to permit reinvestment in his country seriously, but the trustees will only come to a decision on this important issue after widespread discussion by the college community."

College reconsiders policy of divestment

See SAC p.9

by April Onists
News Editor

On September 23, the South African parliaments officially ended apartheid, and the next day, Nelson Mandela asked the governments around the world to end their policies of financial divestment from his country. Now Connecticut College is faced with the decision whether or not to reinvest in South Africa.

In years past, governments around the world have divested from the predominantly racist nation as a matter of conscience. As a result of the U.S. government's decision to divest, many American companies also withdrew investment from South African corporations.

On May 4, 1990, Connecticut College also withdrew its investments from South Africa, and now, the Board of Trustees has called on the campus to reexamine its policy of divestment.

John Evans, Board of Trustees chair, said, "Connecticut College made its first decision as a community and we will take our next step in a similar way... The board takes Nelson Mandela's call to permit reinvestment in his country seriously, but the trustees will only come to a decision on this important issue after widespread discussion by the college community."

See SAC p.9

Index:
A&E, pp. 13, 15, 16
Carli and Michelle stay up all night - and live to tell about it
Sports, pp. 17–20
Recap of successful Homecoming weekend

The College Voice October 6, 1993 Page 1
Reconsider divestment

The Term Coordinating Committee (DTCC) would like to address a few points presented in the article of September 28, 1993, "Debating the Importance of Corporate Divestment," in your Dean's Term Committee." Over the past several weeks, our committee has become increasingly aware that the student body's support of the Dean's Term and our efforts on behalf of the program. In the last letter, we have given the opportunity to correct the errors in last week's issue before that supportive community can mistake them for facts.

In regard to the issue of funding, sufficient funds are available in the Mellon grant to cover the cost of the term. If alternate funding becomes available, the Mellon funds can be secured for future use. However, the DTCC has never been responsible for researching or drafting independent grants, nor is it a member of the DTCC under that illusion.

The DTCC was likened to the Priorities Planning and Budget Committee (PPBC) in the sense that both were originally formed without official representatives from the Student Government Association. The DTCC, like the PPBC, is about two people who are attempting to live out a fantasy. Alabama and Clarence want to be assembled, it is unfortunate that supportive community to make this the first administrative consultant to that this letter clarifies any

The DTCC was "thrown together" during final week of last semester to ensure that the program could be piloted for the 1993-94 academic year. Due to the urgency with which the DTCC had to be fulfilled, it is unfortunate that time constraints did not allow for the formation of a committee through one of the appropriate channels of collegial decision-making. However, we have done our best to make the necessary connections to all areas of the college community.

Sincerely,
Christopher Scott
Associate Publisher
Jon Finnimore
Publisher

We hope that energies can now be focused on the positive aspects of the upcoming term.

The DTCC is putting forth its best efforts to work with the college community to make this first Dean's Term successful. We hope that this letter clarifies any miscon-cceptions which you may have.

The info. Line (Ext. 2319) and the contact sessions are designed to give you the opportunity for any member of the conversation to express concerns and questions. In addition, the members of the DTCC invite you to approach them informally at any time to discuss the term.

Sincerely,
Christopher Scott
Associate Publisher
Jon Finnimore
Publisher

The College Voice October 5, 1993 Page 2
CONNTHOUGHT
Trustee encourages discussion of divestment

The following is an open letter on South Africa, to members of the Connecticut College community, from the Social Responsibility Committee; it was addressed on October 2, 1993.

This letter is to inform the campus community about actions by the trustees this weekend in response to Nelson Mandela's call for lifting economic sanctions against South Africa.

As background, on May 4, 1990, the Connecticut College Board of Trustees, on the recommendation of the Social Responsibility Committee and as a culmination of Board decisions beginning in 1978, adopted the policy for divestment of stocks in companies doing business in South Africa as an expression of its abhorrence of and objection to the apartheid systems in South Africa.

On September 24, 1993, in response to the South African Parliament's adoption of a package of laws giving blacks their first say in the country's government, Nelson Mandela, President of the African National Congress, called on the international community to lift all economic sanctions against South Africa. The Social Responsibility Committee met on October 2, 1993 to begin the discussion of the divestment policy in a timely manner.

The committee understands and endorses the need for the college community—faculty, students, and staff—to discuss the issue of whether or not to remove the restriction on investing in companies doing business in South Africa and to provide a sense of the community to the board of trustees. The Social Responsibility Committee further acknowledges the process required by the college community to fully address the issue of removing the bar before the board formally considers the issue. The committee also expresses its encouragement of the college community to take advantage of the opportunity to be distinctive and address the issue with all deliberate speed.

After discussing the current divestment policy, the committee concluded that it is timely to re-examine the restriction on investing in companies doing business in South Africa. Given its belief, the committee further recommended that the Board of Trustees empower the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees to remove the ban if the community did not raise significant issues. This recommendation was approved by the board to position the College for distinctive action by responding to Nelson Mandela's request in a timely manner.

The committee and the board are confident that the college community's deliberations will be well-informed and thoughtful.

Kevin Copeland
Trustee and Chair
Social Responsibility Committee
Class of 1976

College social life needs a jump-start

Quality of student life here at Connecticut College recently has become the focus of a great deal of attention, both as a result of the heated debate in SGA over Amity Simon's proposal to create an ad hoc committee to study the effectiveness of the Student Activities Committee, and the controversy surrounding SAC's allocation by the Finance Committee last week.

First of all, although Simon's proposal failed (13-14-1), the mere fact that it was conceived, not to mention that the SAC chair herself co-sponsored it, suggests that there is something amiss in the social life here at Conn.

Tom Just, house senator of Abigail, commented accurately in Assembly two weeks ago that it seems for the most part as though the juniors and seniors just want to go to the bar and drink all night, while freshmen and sophomores spend their time trying to do the same.

It also has been said that a student without a car is one without a life. Come out Fonny to the El 'n' Gee and the casino are great occasions, but they should by no means substitute for a campus social life. What is wrong with a community when it consistently has to look either to the outside or to the same old Bachmanian festivities for entertainment?

Now, there is only so much that SAC can do. Unable to sponsor all campus events solely centered around alcohol, the Council is necessarily confined to providing activities to accommodate non-drinkers, though they are few, as well as the seasoned professionals.

Let's face it; as one assembly member stated during the debate over Simon's proposal, keg parties are the biggest social activity on campus. SAC events fall flat in competition with kegs and floor parties. Larger SAC events such as Floralia and the winter formal are the biggest social activity on campus when it consistently has to look elsewhere for effective events and begin focusing on larger affairs? Why doesn't SAC invest their limited dollars and bring something big to Conn — a widely acclaimed band, for example — and charge admission, simultaneously pleasing the crowd and fundraising a bundle?

The committee understands and endorses the need for the college community—faculty, students, and staff—to discuss the issue of whether or not to remove the restriction on investing in companies doing business in South Africa and to provide a sense of the community to the board of trustees. The Social Responsibility Committee further acknowledges the process required by the college community to fully address the issue of removing the bar before the board formally considers the issue. The committee also expresses its encouragement of the college community to take advantage of the opportunity to be distinctive and address the issue with all deliberate speed.

After discussing the current divestment policy, the committee concluded that it is timely to re-examine the restriction on investing in companies doing business in South Africa. Given its belief, the committee further recommended that the Board of Trustees empower the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees to remove the ban if the community did not raise significant issues. This recommendation was approved by the board to position the College for distinctive action by responding to Nelson Mandela's request in a timely manner.

The committee and the board are confident that the college community's deliberations will be well-informed and thoughtful.

Kevin Copeland
Trustee and Chair
Social Responsibility Committee
Class of 1976

Infirmary warns community of dangers of Hepatitis B

The doctors, nurses, practitioners and nurses of the student health service want you to know about a virus that has been totally upstaged by AIDS, but which is in a much more infectious disease. It is Hepatitis B. First the bad news. Every year, 300,000 new hepatitis infections occur. Each year 4,000 to 5,000 people die of chronic liver disease caused by Hepatitis B.

The good news is that the disease can be prevented by routine immunization of all adolescents and young adults. Recently the Center for Disease Control (CDC) and the American Academy of Pediatrics recommended widespread use of the hepatitis B vaccine for adolescents. Those at particular risk are sexually active students who:

a) Have more than one sexual partner in six months
b) Have had a sexually transmitted disease
c) Engage in unprotected sex (i.e. no condom)
d) Men who have sex with men

It is interesting to note on the adjacent graph that 27% of cases were among heterosexuals in 1990. Also, a good 40% had no known risk factors, hence the recommendation for widespread immunization.

Hepatitis B is also spread through blood contact from an infected individual, a Hepatitis B carrier. The symptoms of Hepatitis B are variable. Some individuals who contract the disease are mildly fatigued with decreased appetite for about six weeks and then spontaneously improve without any serious effect. Others may go on to become Hepatitis B carriers with resulting inflammation of the liver so that it can not clear bile, provide energy or make proteins.

The cost of the vaccine is about $130.00. It requires three shots given over a 6 month period. We encourage you to try to get this through your private physician. If you are unable to do this and wish to get the vaccine, please contact the Student Health Center at extension 2275. We will order it for you.

Edith Sullivan
Director of Health
Student Health Center

SPEAK OUT!
Please feel free to express your opinion -- any opinion, on any topic -- on our Op-ed pages! Submissions due Thursday at 5 p.m. to the Voice Office on a Macintosh Disk. Questions, call Matt at x4495. The College Voice October 6, 1993 Page 3 made by the Board of Trustees to reexamine its policy of divestment from South Africa. Mathur said that she hoped that the board would not make a decision on the issue without receiving student input.
Continued from 1)

One trustee assured Mathur that no action would be taken to reinvest in South Africa without input from students.

Paul Weissman, a member of the investment planning subcommittee, said, "I would give you my assurance that nothing would be done in terms of investment until this matter has been completely discussed by you, the students, and by the community at large. In fact, we discussed this at a meeting just last week, and that is what we decided."

Next, members of the Student Government Association executive board described SGA Issues Project for the year to the trustees. Kim Roark, chair of academic affairs, spoke about the issue of financial aid for study away.

Roark explained that Connecticut College is one of the last liberal arts colleges to set a definitive policy on this matter. Said Roark, "All of our peer schools that were polled already have this program [for financial aid] study away, so we thought it was important for us to look at it."

Roark went on to say that, according to a survey that the college put out, students would like to see financial aid travel with students when they study abroad.

In keeping with this desire, the students and faculty voted that the GPA requirement to study away be raised from 2.7 to 3.2, so that students on financial aid would be able to take their funds with them when they study away.

"That would allow financial aid to travel and that would be cost neutral, ... this will be implemented for the class of 1998," said Roark.

Grenier said she had read the Financial Aid Study Away Committee's report, and had been struck by its statement that studying abroad is a "privilege," rather than a "right."

Other trustees mentioned that they did not approve of the use of the term "privilege."

There seemed to be some misunderstanding surrounding the issue involved in the consideration of financial aid for study away. Warren Erickson, trustee, said, "Will someone explain why financial aid for study away is such a cost liability?"

Several members of the committee, including students and administrators, explained that if financial aid were given to students when they study abroad, tuition is being paid out, students would like to see financial aid travel and that would be cost neutral, ... this will be implemented for the class of 1998," said Roark.

According to Roark and other members of the Student Trustee Liaison Committee, with the 3.2 GPA requirement, more students who can afford to pay full tuition to the college will remain on campus, which, theoretically, will pay for those students who need to use financial aid funds to study away.

"That's one of the big questions. That's what we'll look at this year," said Roark.

All agreed that the issue requires further consideration and adjustment. Hampton said, "We're not sure where we need to be, but I think that we've identified some of the paths that we need to take."

In conclusion, Grenier said, "I think [the process of development of the study away policy] is typical of the college - identifying high-minded goals, and then investigating ways to accomplish them."

Savonna Dhall, president of SGA, announced that the Strategic Planning Teams met last week, and will be meeting weekly during the construction of the new Strategic Plan. Dhall said the three teams will be meeting collectively once a month.

Dhall also said that Dean's Term applications will be available in the Post Office after October 1.

Lynda Salthoff, pr director, announced that freshman candidates for their class representatives Tuesday October 5, and Wednesday October 6 outside the post office.

The Dining Services Committee met and elected Neal Marlan, president of class of '94, and Andrea Canavan, house secretary of Marshall, as co-chairs.

Angela Tisch, house secretary of Wright, said the Academic Advising and Planning Committee met three times this semester and is currently reviewing new courses for next semester.

Yvonne Watkins, house secretary of Knowlton; Esther Pater, parliamentarian, sponsored a proposal to clarify the duties of the Residential Life Committee and the Housing Committee. The proposal passed unanimously, 32-0-0, without discussion.

Neelu Mulchandani, vice president of SGA, sponsored the continuation of the women's rugby club. The proposal passed 30-0-0, without any discussion.

Mulchandani, also the chair of the finance committee, sponsored a proposal of the allocation for the club budgets. Each member spoke on behalf of their organizations and assembly members discussed the proposal for about an hour and a half, which many of them felt was too short a time to consider such an important proposal. The proposal passed 29-0-1.
College tackles reinvestment in South Africa after Mandela calls for dropping of sanctions

According to a press release from the Office of College Relations, in a meeting last Saturday between the Board of Trustees and the Social Responsibility Committee, it was resolved that the entire campus will be involved in a discussion of the implications of reinvestment.

"The Board of Trustees is empowered to act in its judgment on behalf of the board following discussion of the campus community on the issue of whether or not to remove the restrictions on investing in companies doing business in South Africa," said Evans.

However, according to a statement from Kevin Copeland, a trustee and chair of the Social Responsibility Committee, the board has said that it possesses the ultimate power to decide whether or not the college will reinvest in South Africa.

In an open letter to the college community, Copeland said that "the committee understands and endorses the need for the college community—faculty, students, and staff—to discuss the issues of whether or not to remove the restriction on investing in companies doing business in South Africa and to provide a sense of the community to the board of trustees."

However, Copeland also said that if the campus does not "raise significant issues," the trustees have authorized the executive committee of the board to remove the ban on investments in South Africa.

Last Friday, Ernest Montgomery and Priya Mathur, Minority Student Steering Committee co-chairs, presented the MESC's goals for the year to the Student Trustee Liaison Committee. At the conclusion of the presentation, the MESC leaders expressed their hope that no decision will be made with regard to the reinvestment issue without student input.

"We would like to encourage the college to have dialogue between faculty, staff, administrators, and students before making any decisions on this matter," said Mathur.

Montgomery reacted to news of the joint decision by the Social Responsibility Committee and the Board of Trustees that allows the board to decide on the reinvestment issue if students do not get involved in the discussion.

"I think that it is very interesting that this decision was made, especially after speaking to another trustee who said that there definitely would be no decision made without student input," said Montgomery.

Montgomery commented on the implications of the Board's ability to decide to reinvest if there is no student involvement in the issue.

"Now that I do know that if there is no dialogue they will make the decision on their own, which is a very straightforward statement [by the trustees], then I will relay that message to the students and the community at this campus. I would highly, highly recommend to students to call me, talk to me, but if they don't, there's nothing I can do about it. I'm one person working within a community that I represent," said Montgomery.

Angela Troth, house senator of Wright, and student member of the Social Responsibility Committee, commented on the collegiality of the reinvestment decision making process. According toTroth, it is important that the committee is letting the college community make the decision. The students had led the movement to not invest, so by the same token the students, faculty, and staff should be the ones to at least participate in the process of changing the policy," said Troth.

Troth commented on the board of trustee's ultimate power to decide to reinvest without the input of the Social Responsibility Committee, stating that she believes the decision was made in order to ensure that the question of reinvestment is brought to a timely resolution.

"By leaving it to the board of trustees, then this could be resolved in month, or at least before, say, December, which is when [the Social Responsibility Committee] will meet next," said Troth.

Troth continued, "If the college community supports the move to reinvest, then we will hold a forum, and maybe take it to SGA as a proposal ... if SGA passes that, and if the college supports it, then we as a committee will support the college's decision. They are assuming that the college will ultimately move for something like this ... but they want to promote a discussion."

Troth said, "We want [the issue] to be investigated quickly. Since Nelson Mandela made this call, ... if we want to show that we're reacting to his call, then we need to do it quickly."

Montgomery reiterated his statement that the course of the decision-making process on reinvestment is in students' hands. "I more or less act as a community liaison between students and administrators. If students really feel that they want no dialogue, then there's nothing I can do about that. On the other hand, if students feel that dialogue is needed, and they want to relay that to the trustees, then that's what I'll do," said Montgomery.

Montgomery said that he does not yet feel able to make a decision on the issue personally.

"I don't know enough about the specifics of reinvestment in South Africa to really have an opinion. The only thing I'm very aware of is why we divested. Now, I will try to find out why Mandela feels that way [that corporations and nations should reinvest], and why the college feels that we should divest," said Montgomery.

The SGA will hold an informal discussion about reinvestment during the Assembly meeting on Thursday evening at 6:45 in the 1941 room of the college center.
College recognizes author Fuentes with honorary degree

by Shalaken Payne
The College Voice

Carlos Fuentes, a world-renowned writer and ambassador, received an honorary degree from Connecticut College, the latest in a string of honorary degrees he has received from colleges and universities. The degree was presented to Fuentes last Friday by Claire Gaudiani, president of the college.

Fuentes has been an ambassador to France and in the Mexican National Commerce of Human Rights. He is also a writer and has received honorary degrees from Harvard and Dartmouth.

A Mexican citizen raised in Washington, D.C., Argentina, and Chile, Fuentes spoke on cultural relations between the United States and Mexico. The U.S. has always held an admirable position in the eyes of the world because it has no strong neighbors to threaten its power, yet it can maintain strong trade relations with Mexico and Canada.

The history of U.S.-Mexican relations is a long and interesting one. Fuentes spoke of past U.S. presidents and their varying degrees of effectiveness in Mexican relations. He spoke of Calvin Coolidge, who, in his opinion, was quite ineffective in his foreign relations with Mexico, and then brushed off PDR's policy of respecting Mexico's sovereignty, while at the same time expecting Mexico and Latin America in general to support the U.S.'s alliances. However, Mexico's foreign policy acted independently of U.S. expectations at that time.

Fuentes also compared the U.S. and Mexican cultures, and said the U.S. is unique in that it was "born from a diversity of peoples and cultures that have formed the U.S. as a country that has to prove its own identity, seeing itself as a model for the rest of the world to follow."

One of the points that Fuentes addressed is that the accredited founders of the "American Dream" did not include blacks, women, Native Americans, children and immigrants. Had the U.S. included these peoples from the very beginning, he said, the U.S. would be a stronger country.

Fuentes stressed that American culture cannot be discussed without looking at the influences of African, European, Indian, Mexican, and many other cultures. Similarly, Mexican culture is based upon mixed heritage much like that of the U.S. "Mexico," Fuentes said, "has also been influential in its culture, reflecting, among other things, toinstances where Mexicans have seen African culture as "barbaric."

Mexican and the U.S. share common traits within their cultures, yet they both need to accept the differences in their nations. Eighteen independent forest Indian linguistic groups are protected by Mexico's constitution.

Fuentes said that he has yet to discover every day of the future or past. For example, the presence of black/African culture was brought to America in struggle and hardship, but it was turned around as back culture became assimilated into American traditions.

The U.S. is also an influential nation on the Mexican culture. Although Chicano writers and Mexican-American communities such as Olton Estafan are important to Mexican culture; it is also heavily influenced by American culture. American soft drinks, jeans and fast food joints have made a great impact; even Santa Claus is sometime preferred over the Three Wise Kings, who are associated with Christmas in Mexican traditions.

Although he personally does not have problems with American influence on Mexican culture, he said some Mexicans are concerned about the presence of U.S. commercial trade and in general, influence America in the world, which was previously dominated by France.

Some cultures are now coming into the forefront and demanding their rights in the world, but he said his history is far from over. Fuentes also stressed again how important it is to make sure that the U.S. is in charge of designing the Reagan-Gorbachev summit.

According to Fuentes, the U.S. and Mexico now have a common internal agenda, both countries currently have crises in urban areas. These problems, Fuentes said, should help the U.S. and Mexico identify with each other.

According to Fuentes, we need to realize that we are all migrants in our own countries and we need other cultures to complete the other half of ourselves. "We are constantly changing and ending our past," Fuentes said.

Roger Fisher comes to college to discuss negotiations skills

by Alisa Selig
The College Voice

Roger Fisher, a world-renowned expert on negotiations and conflict resolution, is speaking on "Negotiating With Your Roommate," as part of a lecture sponsored by the Dean's Term Coordinating Committee on Monday October 4, 1993.

This January, Fisher will teach the Negotiations Resolution seminar in the Dean's Term program in January.

Fisher is director of the Harvard Negotiation Project and is the William professor of law emeritus at Harvard Law School.

Fisher is an expert on international law as well as co-author of a best-selling book on negotiation called Getting to Yes. The book is now in its twentieth printing and has sold almost two million copies in fifteen languages, worldwide.

Fisher was a major architect of the negotiations process used in the Camp David negotiations and the signing of the Camp David Accords between Anwar Sadat, president of Egypt, and Menachem Begin, prime minister of Israel.

Fisher's lecture will be held in the Ernst Common Room of the Blaustein Humanities Center. The topic will be, "Negotiating with Saddam Hussein and your Roommate: Is There a Difference?"

The president's office will sponsor the lecture.

Along with helping to design the process that Jimmy Carter used in mediating the Camp David negotiations, Fisher's Harvard Negotiation Project advised the committee in charge of designing the Reagan-Gorbachev Summit in 1985.

Fisher has been the teacher and advisor of many corporate executives, labor leaders, attorneys, and military and government officials, who were involved in trying to resolve disputes between two bodies.

---

The microphones in the Ernst Common Room, will be turned off at 8:30 p.m., but there will be time after the lecture for questions.

The book Getting to Yes is new in paperback and is available in the campus bookstore.

Fisher is an expert on international law as well as co-author of a best-selling book on negotiation called Getting to Yes. The book is now in its twentieth printing and has sold almost two million copies in fifteen languages, worldwide.

Fisher was a major architect of the negotiations process used in the Camp David negotiations and led to the signing of the Camp David Accords between Anwar Sadat, president of Egypt, and Menachem Begin, prime minister of Israel.

Fisher's lecture will be held in the Ernst Common Room of the Blaustein Humanities Center. The topic will be, "Negotiating with Saddam Hussein and your Roommate: Is There a Difference?"

The president's office will sponsor the lecture.

Along with helping to design the process that Jimmy Carter used in mediating the Camp David negotiations, Fisher's Harvard Negotiation Project advised the committee in charge of designing the Reagan-Gorbachev Summit in 1985.

Fisher has been the teacher and advisor of many corporate executives, labor leaders, attorneys, and military and government officials, who were involved in trying to resolve disputes between two bodies.

---

The book Getting to Yes is new in paperback and is available in the campus bookstore.

---

The most complete arsenal of test prep tools in the world.

FREE SEMINAR
Understanding the LSAT + Law School Admissions
Oct. 6 1993 7-8pm
Room 209 College Center
KAPLAN RULES

Lowell Weicker, governor of Connecticut, will not seek reelection for another term. Weicker was elected as an independent, defeating, among others, William Cibes, professor of Government at Connecticut College. Weicker, who has been on leave serving on Weicker's staff, has been in charge of Connecticut's efforts to draw the New England Patriots to this state. Weicker's decision not to run leaves Cibes career up in the air, though many hope for his return to the college.

---

The book Getting to Yes is new in paperback and is available in the campus bookstore.

---

The most complete arsenal of test prep tools in the world.

FREE SEMINAR
Understanding the LSAT + Law School Admissions
Oct. 6 1993 7-8pm
Room 209 College Center
KAPLAN RULES

Lowell Weicker, governor of Connecticut, will not seek reelection for another term. Weicker was elected as an independent, defeating, among others, William Cibes, professor of Government at Connecticut College. Weicker, who has been on leave serving on Weicker's staff, has been in charge of Connecticut's efforts to draw the New England Patriots to this state. Weicker's decision not to run leaves Cibes career up in the air, though many hope for his return to the college.
They say college is supposed to broaden your horizons.

Next semester, take them literally.

Next semester, broaden your horizons with Beaver College. You can intern in London, ponder Peace Studies in Austria, cycle to class in Oxford or sun yourself in Mexico (while studying Spanish, of course). You can even linger at a cafe in Vienna or tour a Greek isle.

We also have a wide variety of integrated university programs in the U.K. and Ireland. For over 30 years Beaver has been sending students abroad for the experience of their life. Now it's time for yours. Call us today for more information.

Study Abroad with Beaver College.

1.800.755.5607
LIFE WITH-OUT IT BITES.

Here's something to chew on.
No annual fee. Now that's something you can sink your teeth into.

IF YOU DON'T GOT IT,
GET IT.

DDB NEEDHAM CHICAGO INC.
Nancy Rice, Jim Newcombe, Carl Warner, John Lindsey, David Stevenson, Robin Mutter-Lopez, Pam Madden

Ad Caption "Life Without It Bites"
Publication Case Publications—Issue 1/4
Ad Number DCCFS 32706—B
Client Discover Card
Size Page—9 3/4 X 14
JPO# P3-2706
Product 1993 College Effort
Specs 85 Line 50W

The College Voice October 5, 1993 Page 8
1993–1994 Budget: SAC becomes focus of debate at Assembly

Continued from p. 1

money because, "Political lobbying is against the Student Government rules. We don't fund them to support a certain party because they represent the college as a whole." The budget needed the vote of a simple majority during the SGA Assembly in order to pass and it is expected to be supported by representatives from each dorm later this week.

Mulchandani downplayed the biggest topic during the last week, SAC's allocation, saying, "I don't think that it is going to be a big problem. I do know that SAC will have to raise a little more this year... I don't think it should hurt them that much.

During the assembly, Neil Maniar, president of the senior class, expressed his view of the entire situation. "We have a responsibility as action leaders, last year, SAC ran a deficit and this year we have to pay for it... probably the most important lesson to be learned from this is that when we're put in a position of responsibility like this, we have to be damn sure we don't screw it up," said Maniar.

In all, a total of $190,399.87 was allocated to clubs and organizations. Of this, classes received $27,105.86, including senior dinner and senior week. Campus media groups accounted for $35,080.66, and diversity groups $34,227.10. A total of $20,671.60 was meted to various sports clubs.

We were just simply suggesting that was what could happen... our purpose was to get people talking; our purpose was to get people thinking... but the fact remains that with $46,000, you cannot have the types of events that this campus is expecting.

— Jennifer Scott, SAC chair

The College Voice October 5, 1993 Page 9
JUDICIARY BOARD LOG

To protect the identity of all individuals involved, the following case summaries refer to every witness, accuser and accused as male. The Board will alternate gender in each issue of the case summaries.

CASE SUMMARY #1
ACCUSED: Student A and Student B
ACCUSER: Student Z

CHARGES: Cruelty to an Animal
Failure to Comply with College Regulations (in the form of possession of an animal)

EVIDENCE:
- Written and verbal statements from the accuser in addition to written statements from the accused, a member of the custodial staff, and Student B served as evidence.

DISCUSSION:
- Students A and B purchased an animal and jointly maintained it on campus after being told by their professor not to do so in violation of a college regulation. They kept the animal off-campus where they were told individually that they must get rid of it in late spring they brought the animal back to campus.

- When leaving campus at the end of the semester neither Student A nor B were able to take the animal in their care. Consequently, they left the animal in the care of Student B who was returning on campus. The Board intended the work hours to return for the animal later that week. The animal stayed in the quarters of the accuser or the accused. Several days laster, Student Z found piles of feces in the room, "stinky stuff" on the walls, writing on the door, and the paws from the animal on the floor outside the closed door. Student B admitted in a written statement that he had not sufficiently maintained the animal but was not aware of the extent of the damages.

DECISION:
Guilty of Cruelty to an Animal (6-0)

Guilty of Failure to Comply with College Regulations (6-0)

Not Guilty of Failure to Comply with College Regulations (6-0)

Elected:
- Lee Rawles '94
- Almea Hamlin '96
- Wanda Hardin '96
- Dan Sheed '96

Guilty of Vandalism (5-1)

Elected:
- Lee Rawles '94
- Almea Hamlin '96

Reason:
The Board found Students A and B guilty of cruelty to an animal because the evidence clearly showed neglect. A member of the custodial staff estimated that the animal had been abandoned for four weeks, and the paws of feces left in the room. In addition, the door had been taped closed in front of the animal’s reach, and there was insufficient water available to the animal. The Board agreed that Students A and B were unreasonable in assuming the animal is safely during their absence.

The Board found Students A and B guilty of failure to comply with college regulations because they admitted both to showing that having the animal was illegal and to having individually neglected the consequences. The accused were found not guilty of failure to comply with a college official by a decision of 5-1. In the case of a plea in the decision of guilt or non-guilt, the accused are automatically found not guilty.

- Three Board members voted for guilt because the accused brought the animal onto campus despite warnings. The board voted to return for the animal later that week. The animal stayed in the quarters of the accuser or the accused. Several days later, Student Z found piles of feces in the room, "stinky stuff" on the walls, writing on the door, and the paws from the animal on the floor outside the closed door. Student B admitted in a written statement that he had not sufficiently maintained the animal but was not aware of the extent of the damages.

RECOMMENDATION:
- By a vote of (5-1-0), the Board recommended that Students A and B be assigned 18 hours work at a local animal shelter to be completed by Winter Break.

Elected:
- Lee Rawles '94
- Almea Hamlin '96
- Wanda Hardin '96
- Dan Sheed '96

Reason:
The accused were found guilty of various charges; however, their behavior was believed to be a result of neglect and not to have been intentional. The evidence showed that the accused were aware of the charges against them in their room and that they were not aware of the extent of the damages.

ATTENDANCE: All members were present.

CASE SUMMARY #2
ACCUSED: Student A and Student B
ACCUSER: Professor Z

CHARGE: Cheating

EVIDENCE:
- A statement from Professor Z to copies of Students A and B's exams and written and verbal statements from the accused served as evidence.

DISCUSSION:
- Both parties pleaded not guilty. Students A and B testified that they studied together but stated that they took the exams in different rooms at different times. However, the exams were handled in back-to-back seating arrangements for the semester. Both students admitted that they had been in the exam rooms with other students that they did not know and could not identify. The evidence, while compelling, was insufficient.

DECISION: Not Guilty (3-2)

Elected:
- Almea Hamlin '96
- Wanda Hardin '96
- Sarah Hamlin '96

Reason:
The Board believed that the facts were insufficient to substantiate a guilty vote. Dan Sheed and Almea Hamlin felt that the evidence of cheating, the layout of the exam, and specific words were too similar to be accidental and could not attribute this similarity to student cheating.

ATTENDANCE: Lee Rawles '94 stepped down.

CASE SUMMARY #3
ACCUSED: Student A
ACCUSER: The Judiciary Board

CHARGE: Failure to Comply with College Regulations (in the form of not completing work hours assigned by the Judiciary Board)

EVIDENCE:
- Student A's written and verbal statements served as evidence.

DISCUSSION:
- Student A had been assigned 18 work hours as a result of a previous Honor Code violation. The work hours were to be completed by the end of the Spring Semester 1993. Student A explained to the Board that he had not completed a single hour of his sanction by the specified deadline because of "transportation problems." At the time Student A failed to fulfill his sanction, he was on social probation.

DECISION: Guilty (6-0)

Reason:
- Student A admitted his guilt.

RECOMMENDATION:
- The Board recommended that Student A be given Suspended Suspension. This means that if he has no further trouble with the Honor Code, he will not be suspended from Connecticut College. Furthermore, the Board voted that he would be required to work off his work hours during Spring Service to be completed on Thanksgiving Break, and that he be on Social Probation for the fall term.

Elected:
- Almea Hamlin '96
- Sarah Hamlin '96

Reason:
The Board agreed that Student A should have been suspended for the Honor Code, but the Board's failure to contact the Chair Board when it became apparent that he would not complete his work hours was improper. At the time that Student A failed to complete his work hours, he was already on Social Probation. Therefore, the Board seriously considered his suspension. The number of work hours from the original date was doubled and was added to the work hours that was added, for a total of 36 hours. Lee Rawles dissented because she wanted the work hours to be completed in Physical Plant. Sarah Hamlin believed that suspension would be more appropriate. Dan Sheed was undecided and thus abstained.

CASE SUMMARY #4
ACCUSED: Student A
ACCUSER: Student Z

CHARGE: Fraud

EVIDENCE:
- Evidence included Student Z's phone logs with identification of cell source, in addition to written and verbal statements from the accuser and the accused.

DISCUSSION:
- Student Z's Personal Identification Number was used to make calls from Student A's line. Student A pleaded not guilty to the charge of fraud alleging he had no knowledge of the calls being made. However, Student A admitted that he had left the door to his room open so that Harry could make use of the VCR and television. Student A and Student Z had never made one another's acquaintance before the hearing. Student Z was able to use the calls back to Student A's room with the use of the Connecticut College phone directory.

DECISION: Guilty (5-1)

Elected:
- Almea Hamlin '96
- Dan Sheed '96

Reason:
The Board found Student A guilty of fraud because of his lack of control of his actual degree of involvement. Student A freely admitted that he allowed others into his room and frequently left his door unlocked, which was an indication that Harry could use his VCR and television. Student A and Student Z had never made one another's acquaintance before the hearing. Student Z was able to use the calls back to Student A's room with the use of the Connecticut College phone directory.

Reason:
The Board believed the Board believed that while Student A had not actually made the calls from his line, he had not taken the proper steps to prevent this. This failure to inform his roommate Student A was responsible for the fraud in question and is thus held responsible.

ATTENDANCE: All members were present.

All information printed above was compiled by the Judiciary Board. The College Voice reserves the right to verify the information contained herein, and any questions or comments should be directed to Sara Spramball, chair of the Judiciary Board, at x5064.
ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Late night television successfully entertains the socially aware and chronically sleepless

by Carli Schultz

QVC. QVC’s popularity rises over time as the night wears on, why burn out on it before midnight? AAf 9:30 the movie circuit was in full swing. We found a movie, whose name we never did learn, that featured Patrick Swayze in a bulldozer running over houses containing men tied to beds. Jamie Lee Curtis was there too, along with a really nasty wierdog.

At 9:30 VH-1 started their "Countdown, which set VH-1 off limits for the next half hour. The Patrick Swayze movie continued on into the 10 o’clock hour, when we were mercifully saved by two episodes of Beavis and Butthead on MTV. If you must watch a cartoon of this genre, Beavis is a far better choice than Ren and Stimpy, it isn’t gross just to be gross, and one can enjoy cool videos by Raging Slab that feature Gary Coleman. We got a little carried away by a Tiffany video, and watching Michelle imitate Tiffany was far more interesting than the video itself.

Since we had no desire to watch the countdown to the Headbanger’s Ball, it seemed an appropriate time to flick through the channels. At 11 o’clock we decided to view a little of "Nightmare on Elm Street. Yeah, the original one with Johnny Depp and everything. In case you miss the beginning of the movie and think you will never be able to re-member the characters names, fear not, they are repeated several thousand times. Allow us to paraphrase a little with the dialogue, because it goes something kind of like this: “Tina?” “Nancy?” “Glenn?” (Watch out, it gets a little complex here) “Tina? Tina? Tina?”

So at 11:30, after seeing a Shasta food commercial that launched Carli into hysterics, we flipped on over to "Saturday Night Live. Lucky for us, it was being hosted by Shannondoherty. There was an amusing take off on MTV’s Real World but nothing else was worthy of attention.

Returning to what became a faithful distraction we stepped at QVC. At this point the host was dressed in traditional German clothing as they presented the Oktoberfest hour. Hey, we were almost tempted to buy that set of six commemorative mugs.

Carli had never seen "Nightmare on Elm Street to although Michelle attempted to act out the rest of it for her, she seemed to want to see the end. At 11 a.m. it was over and we were forced to move on.

USA Up All Night offered another one in the chain of the spine-twinging "Nightmare on Elm Street sequels, but despite its lure we changed channels. Instead, we found Siskel and Ebert. We thought that was cool because maybe we could pick up a few movie review techniques: 1:30 offered us Amazing Discoveries with special guest Tony Little, but since we both had seen that one we already decided to pass.

Late night with Conan O’Brien is apparently on every night so we got to see Radiohead, who happened to be his first ever musical guest. We rejoiced at the conclusion of Conan O’Brien; it was 2 a.m. and the Headbanger’s Ball was over.

While Michelle made a quick trek for caffeine in the form of Mountain Dew, yet another quick channel scan found Mouth and Mindy, which was watched with enthusiasm for about 5 minutes.

This was fortunate, for our departure from the land of rainbow suspenders landed us right in the middle of a Monster Truck event. JOY.

Since the Headbanger’s Ball had ended, we found out to our delight Ringo Starr. Yes, the same episode, but we watched them anyway. Seeing Tiffany twice in one night is not an opportunity to ignore. By this point Michelle was sitting in a chair, moving around trying desperately to make it squeak and laughing all by herself about it.

The 2-43 a.m. weather report: it was raining. And you thought it only rained during the day in New London just to piss you off.

By 3 a.m. the selection was getting low. Several channels had already gone off the air.

Another movie on USA Up All Night was on, but since we had started, this was a bad sort of Conan type flick. The woman in it had a clock railing Carli’s own father was afraid of clocks and there was a nifty lion sitting around, but it certainly was not something to get involved in. Yet another channel, random movie cliché is a short flurry of excitement. The man who plays Cliff Claven on Cheers was shot and killed wearing a soldier’s uniform.

Amazing Discoveries with Tony Little was on AGAIN, as was the Countdown to the Ball. As an aside...what could Blind Melon possibly be doing on that countdown? The mind boggles.

But, thankfully, St. Elsewhere was on, which helped another hour pass on by.

Late night television is good for one thing: long commercials that make you feel guilty. Save the Children, Food Stamps, AIDS—you name the subject, there was a depressing commercial about it.

At 4:15 we had the opportunity to see the critically acclaimed Crips, which was good because it saved Michelle from lapsing into a coma.

At 5 we decided that to save our sanity we should get some sleep. We felt that we had done the best we could do and that ten hours was probably enough for anyone.

Watching late night television can make for some interesting studies in the human psyche, as watching someone watch late night television is just as entertaining as the tube itself. Also, hand eye coordi-nation appears to fall off after 5 a.m.

In the twenty-two shots that Carli made from across the room with her pen throughout the night, a noticeable drop in actual pen-to-screen contact was observed in the last couple hours. One thing is for sure without USA Up All Night insomniacs would be really bored. If you must stay up then feel free to look for some of these goodies but otherwise go to bed.
The El 'n' Gee features two up-and-comers

Todd Maguire
The College Voice

Breaking through in today's multi-faceted music arena, having only been released one album, and are currently touring and recuperating in preparation for the next. If I were to mention my favorite aspect of the band, it would be their strong horn section, which they believe is integral to all of their songs. There are few places one can go around here where you can hear new bands in a cool atmosphere.

Anne Rice releases second book of series in time for Halloween

by Carl Schultz
A&E Editor

If the fall weather brings on thoughts of hot apple cider, wool blankets and snuggling down with a good book, why not try a story with a supernatural twist? In my case, I also ran into a girl who used to beat the crap out of me at my Grandma's house when I was five. Regardless, check out these books and look into the El 'N Gee for some off-campus excitement.

Lasher’s birth and Rowan’s subsequent disappearance from the Mayfair family’s house on First Street in New Orleans, leave a confused husband, suspicious family members and a trail of death in their wake. Lasher was brought into the family by one of the family’s early witches, and has latched on to each following witch through thirteen generations in order to achieve his most precious goal: to become human and not just possess another’s body, but have his own. In Lasher’s dream comes true, and in an extraordinary evolution, Lasher becomes a full grown man in a mere few days. This accelerated growth process is just one of Lasher’s unique abilities that allow him to imitate human existence. Once alive, Lasher has a much grander purpose: to populate the world with others like him. Lasher forces himself upon the female members of the Mayfair clan. His superior evolution makes it impossible for the women to carry the pregnancy to term because of the rapid development of his species. Through miscarriages the women begin dropping off like flies, causing paranoia and fear among the rest. Lasher impregnates his own mother in hopes of producing offspring, and Rowan eventually makes it through the pregnancy. After weeks of being held captive, Rowan eventually escapes, only to give birth to his daughter shortly after. And so the chase continues—Rowan’s husband desperately searching for the woman he loves, the family searching to find and destroy the demon who has come into his own, and Lasher himself searching for his daughter who is in flight with Rowan.

In a journey that spans the globe, Anne Rice adds yet another success story to her list. The book is a good read, not as enticing as the Vampire Chronicles, but then again, compared to The Chronicles to some of her hard-core erotica and the Chronicles become children’s stories. Overall, if you have a blanket, some cider and the time, Lasher is a perfect book to ease you into that Halloween state of mind.

Please recycle

The College Voice
October 5, 1993
Summer reading author speaks at Conn: Maus author discusses the rationale behind cartoon format in books depicting Jewish life during holocaust

by James Santangelo
Feature Editor

As part of a seminar in conjunction with the summer reading program, Art Spiegelman spoke about his book Maus on October 5, 1993 at Dana Hall's Arcadia.

The story's main characters are Spiegelman's parents, Vladek and Anja Spiegelman, so the story is told in hindsight by Vladek. Spiegelman spoke for over an hour and a half, addressing every aspect about his book. A majority of his lecture was given in the dark as he showed a series of slides and panels from the book. The first and most asked-about topic was his parents. Spiegelman explained, "It was never going to be anything else. I got the most confused positive reviews in history. No one knew what kind of book it was. I even got a special Pulitzer." According to Spiegelman, his initial interest in comic books came from growing up reading comic books like "Tales from the Crypt, Visions of Fear, Weird Tales and so on." Spiegelman said, "It was a way of getting into the story." The story's main characters are Spiegelman's parents, Vladek and Anja Spiegelman, so the story is told in hindsight by Vladek. Spiegelman spoke for over an hour and a half, addressing every aspect about his book. A majority of his lecture was given in the dark as he showed a series of slides and panels from the book.

Spiegelman said, "The whole book took a year and a half, and about three months to write. The last four months was just tweaking and cleaning."

Spiegelman did not consider Maus as a comic book. "A comic book is a narrative series of pictures. But what I write has a complexity of theme analysis that is not seen in other comics." After playing a recording of one of his interviews with his father, Spiegelman took questions from the audience. One audience member asked if there had been any other storylines that he had considered doing before this one. Spiegelman said, "I thought of a story about black America, but didn't know enough about the black experience in America except to be a well-meaning liberal schmuck." Referring to the length of time in which he wrote Maus, Spiegelman said "The whole book took 13 years. It was published on its bar mitzvah."

Claire Gaudiani interrupted the question/answer process to announce that Spiegelman had to go to dinner with Linda Berge, professor of English, and some of her students. So the questions stopped and the stage was flooded with people eager to get autographs from Spiegelman, who remained for an additional twenty-five minutes to sign every last copy of Maus.

---

SUBMISSIONS for the Sex Issue of Voice Magazine are due on Wednesday, October 13

DON'T FORGET TO PUBLISH YOUR SEX!!!

Also, applications for PHOTO EDITOR of the Magazine are due ASAP, by October 13 at the latest.

---

CC REVIEW

is desperately searching for aspiring politicians who would like to air their opinions on the pages of Conn College's #1 political magazine

Call the College Voice Publishing Group, x2841, immediately to reserve space in the November issue. Submissions due by Wednesday, October 20.

MYSTIC'S ARMY NAVY STORE

Flight Jackets & Field Jackets
100% Wool Sweaters, Hats, Scarves, Gloves, belts, bandanas, berets, boots & boomerangs

2 Steamboat Wharf Downtown Mystic
MON-SAT: 9-9 SUN: 12-5 536-1877
SPORTS

IM Update:
Program and Derby notch important football victories

In Sunday’s first flag football contest, The Program and Roadkill, first half touchdowns by Friend Weiler and Mike Weed gave The Derby a 14-0 lead at the half. In the second half, Roadkill, led by senior quarterback Chad Marlow, took the air and managed to tie the score at 14-14. But Derby quarterback Tom Anderson connected with Weiler late in the half to seal a Derby victory at 21-14.

The Freshmen took another beating on Tuesday, losing to Repression 28-7. Repression quarterback Jeff Gilton connected with Ben Trip for three touchdowns, while teammate Jon Zall ran for another. Trip also recorded two interceptions on the day. Ray Flau tallied The Freshmen’s sole touchdown.

In the weeks only other game, Kenny Ray was a forfeit winner over Milkbone Underwear, who has forfeited out of the league. In Sunday’s sole six-a-side soccer match, With Themselves overpowered a resilient Branford squad 4-0, Zandy Mangold and Fred Pelletier each had a pair of goals, while Noah Goldner and Brendan Hinchee added an assist apiece.

The rain on Monday had little effect on the first match, when the Mulligans outfed the Mistfits 8-1. Lee Rawles and Knute Gregg each notched hat tricks for the winners, while Bill Mulligan added two goals and an assist. Scott McDevitt added three assists for the victors. Matt Magnussen tallied the only goal for the Mistfits.

Monday’s second match between II Low and The Gods was canceled on account of rain and will be rescheduled for this Wednesday, October 16, at 4 p.m.

Wednesday, the Wicked Wookies squeezed by a tough Branford squad 5-2. The Wookies were up 3-0 at the half, but Branford’s resilient comeback came just short. Wednesday’s second game between Moscow Express and With Themselves was re-scheduled for early November.

Next week: Team Tennis results.

Women in Sports

Monday, October 4th - 7:30 pm - Blaustein 210

MOVIE: “A League of Their Own” (refreshments)

Tuesday, October 5th - 8:00 pm - West Loft

LECTURE: Sue Macy (A Whole New Ball Game) & Panel Discussion concerning “Women in Sports”

Wednesday, October 6th - 8:00 pm - West Loft

Panel Discussion concerning “Women in Sports”

Congratulations and Thanks to all of the dorms, classes and clubs who helped make Homecoming a successful day!

The BUDGET effects every student on this campus. Ask questions......Know the issues.......Don’t just vote to vote

BARTENDER

Become a QUALIFIED BARTENDER with our comprehensive 30 Hour Course

Instruction in: Bartending/Mixology, TIPS, alcohol awareness certification

One Week Courses: Monday-Friday
5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Two Week Courses: Monday-Friday
6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Certificate Awarded Upon Graduation. For More Information Please Call Today!

SUPPORTECk Sewing

- Quality clothing handmade in Colorado

TURTLE TREK tm
Made of single faced Polartec 100 Malden Mills Climate control Fabric. High collar with zipper.

$70.00

TREK SHIRT tm
Made of single faced Polartec 100 Malden Mills Climate control Fabric. Sweatshirt style.

$55.00

HEAD GEAR:

Alaskan Flap Hats....$21.50
Head Band..................$9.00

OPTIONS:
Zipper Pockets....$15.00pair
Cordura elbow or knee patches...$10.00pair
Your choice of color at no charge.

Heavy jackets, pants and cold climate camping and athletic gear are available.

To order call Chris Scott at 439-4696 or Dave Hermele at 444-7718
SPORTS

Field hockey gets first win against Assumption, but drops one to Clark

by Kate Wilson

The Conn field hockey team and its fans heard a beautiful sound Saturday—the sound of a ball hitting the back of the opposing cage. The Camel Stuckeys had their first victory of the season after four losses, when they defeated the Assumption Greyhounds with a score of 2-0 on Saturday. They were not as fortunate on Tuesday at Clark, losing 1-0 in overtime.

Freshman goalie Wendy Kanter, who had been averaging ten saves a game, had nine in another superb outing in net. This helped make up for being outshot ten to seven. Both goals in the game were scored by freshmen. Darby Mulder had the first one at 14:10 in the first half, uninspired. Her goal was the first goal of the season for the team.

"I don't think the goalie could see the ball," Mulder said of the goal. "Even I couldn't see that I had a shot until a defender stepped out of the way."

The second was scored by Alyson Kaurker at 18:24 in the second half. Sophomore Laura Bayon got the assist. Kaurker's goal was almost a duplicate of a shot she had been struggling with in practice.

"We had been working on that shot and Alyson kept shooting it wide," said Coach Ann Parmenter. The win did not come easily, with Assumption spending a lot of time near the Conn net. "They had a lot of chances to win," said Parmenter, "but today the ball went our way."

This was true particularly in the second half, when Assumption turned on the heat and took several hard shots at the goal. One of these was a penalty stroke which went just wide of a diving Kanter. Despite those tense moments, Parmenter praised the team's hard effort.

"They played really gutsy today," she said. "Those freshman wings did a great job, and the defense remained strong."

Other members of the team agreed. "It was a real team effort," said Louise Brooks. "The win was without a doubt a significant one for everyone. Many players said that it meant a lot to them."

"We are really excited about getting to win," said Mulder. "We were really excited about getting to win, I think it is a real turn around," said Mulder. "It gave us a lot of confidence, and showed us that we can do it."

Laura Bayon in action during the victory over Assumption.

"I think that I shall never see a pizza lovely as a tree - except at the Recovery Room."

Joyce Kilmer

"To eat pizza or not to eat pizza, that is the question"

William Shakespeare

"A pizza is a pizza is a pizza - except at the Recovery Room"

Genoise Sorel

"We shall eat pizza in the fields and in the streets"

Winston S. Churchill

"That's one small pizza for man, one giant pizza for mankind"

Neil Armstrong

We make award-winning pizza—a memorable experience.

FAMOUS QUOTES FROM PIZZA HISTORY #2

PHOTO CREDITS:

The College Voice October 6, 1993 Page 18
Schmoozing with Josh and The Donut:
President witnessed cashing alumni checks at Foxwoods, gets free dance lesson from Hamre

First person to correctly answer

6) Dana 'Ruin my New Year'
7) Dana 'Ruin my senior year'
8) Dana 'Ruin my college career'
9) Dana 'Don't give him another beer'
10) Dana 'Goose my darling'

This is the part of the article that gives her a free dance lesson.

Megan Hanselman led the way for victory. She was selected as the Most Valuable Player of the event, and deservedly so, with 35 kills, 21 digs, and three assists.

Sophomore Megan Carly had 105 assists, senior Bonnie Silberschtein had 48 kills, and sophomore Martha Vivian chipped in with 15 service aces.

Thursday’s home meet against Wesleyan was just as successful, as the Camels defeated Roger Williams 2-0. Megan Hanselman led the way with eight kills, Hanselman had 48 kills, and sophomores Martha Vivian chipped in with 15 service aces.

WOMEN’S TENNIS: The tennis team had a 2-0 weekend, stifling Clark on Friday and Salve Regina on Sunday. The women’s team had a 2-0 week, stifling Clark on Friday and Salve Regina on Wednesday by identical 9-0 scores.

Seniors Jen Preuss, Michelle LaChantence, Christina Widoode, and juniors Amy Malkin and junior Heidi Szycher all had singles victories on Friday against Furman. Senior John Whitehead and Holohan, Preuss and Szycher, and Widoode and fellow junior Danielle Freedomstein turned up for doubles victories.

The Camels were just as dominating on Wednesday against Salve Regina. Single wins came from Preuss, LaChantence, Widoode, Holohan, Malkin, and Szycher.

Doubles wins came from the teams of LaChantence and Holohan, Preuss and Malkin, and Widoode and Freedomstein.

The Camels will attempt to continue their winning ways this week at Wheaton today at 3:00, and at home against Wesleyan on Wednesday at 5:00.

While we are on the subject of rugby, Schmoozing would like to pay homage to our utility scrumhalf Dana Rosenmuenster (Sounds like Roo-man). With a last name as versatile as his, he is in the middle of his first year. He’s our top 10 lists of Dana’s nicknames:

10) Dana ‘Goose my darling’
9) Dana ‘Don’t give him another beer’
8) Dana ‘Goose my career’
7) Dana ‘Clean your gravy hair’
6) Dana ‘Has a big rear’
5) Dana ‘In the morning, you look beautiful’
4) Dana ‘Ruin my New Year’
3) Dana ‘Ruin your year’
2) Dana ‘Ruin my senior year’
1) Dana ‘Ruin my college career’

This is the part of the article that first person to correctly answer.

Notebook:
Care to guess what was the most successful part of Homecoming / Parents / Alumni / Harvest Weekend? The remarkable cuisine on Knowlton Green? Maybe, but since this is the Sports Section, we think it was the athletic teams. Volleyball and Women’s Tennis not only had phenomenal weekends, but fantastic weekends on the court.

VOLLEYBALL: The Camels took the road to homecoming, but enjoyed themselves immensely despite being away from home. Con was won the Rhode Island College Tournament on Saturday, sweeping all six of their matches and raising their season record to 16-11. They defeated Roger Williams, 15-8, 15-11, 15-2, and Trinity, 15-4, 15-8.

Megan Hanselman led the way for victory. She was selected as the Most Valuable Player of the event, and deservedly so, with 35 kills, 21 digs, and three assists.

Sophomore Megan Carly had 105 assists, senior Bonnie Silberschtein had 48 kills, and sophomore Martha Vivian chipped in with 15 service aces.

Thursday’s home meet against Wesleyan was just as successful, as the Camels swept the Cardinals back to Middletown. Con beat up on their rivals by the scores of 15-6, 15-2, and 17-15. Silberschtein led the way with eight kills, Hanselman tuned up for her MVP performance on Saturday with four aces and four kills and Vivian added two aces and five kills.

WOMEN’S TENNIS: The tennis team had a 2-0 weekend, stifling Clark on Friday and Salve Regina on Wednesday by identical 9-0 scores.

Seniors Jen Preuss, Michelle LaChantence, Christina Widoode, and juniors Amy Malkin and junior Heidi Szycher all had singles victories on Friday against Furman. Senior John Whitehead and Holohan, Preuss and Szycher, and Widoode and fellow junior Danielle Freedomstein turned up for doubles victories.

The Camels were just as dominating on Wednesday against Salve Regina. Single wins came from Preuss, LaChantence, Widoode, Holohan, Malkin, and Szycher.

Doubles wins came from the teams of LaChantence and Holohan, Preuss and Malkin, and Widoode and Freedomstein.

The Camels will attempt to continue their winning ways this week at Wheaton today at 3:00, and at home against Wesleyan on Wednesday at 5:00.
Women's soccer pummels Wellesley
Impressive 4-0 victory on Saturday

by Matt Burstein
Acting Sports Editor

Maybe the Wellesley women's soccer team was distracted. After all, there was a lot happening on Harkness Green on Saturday afternoon: parents and alumni with fashionable name tags, dogs milling about everywhere, and President Gaudiani finishing another inspiring address.

Or perhaps they just ran into better competition. After being terrorized by UMass-Dartmouth 1-0 on Wednesday, the Camels, ranked seventh in New England, pummeled Wellesley with 32 shots and roared to a 4-0 triumph, raising their record to 4-2.

Perhaps even more impressive than the Camels' offensive onslaught was the fact that they allowed only one shot. The lone shot did not occur until the second half, when freshman goalie Holly Deycke easily scooped it up to preserve the shutout. She and junior teammate Julie Granof each played one half.

The Camels began strong and out-shot their visitors 22-4. Semiddlefielders.

The game, scoring seven goals against Salve Regina on Harkness Green. The Camels began strong and dominated play for the entire game, out-shooting their visitors 22-4. Senior Chris Melchior scored the first goal with a header into the Salve net twenty minutes into the first half. His second goal came five minutes later with help from a pass across the goal cage by Nihato Mokonate.

Woods, who converted it for her team-leading fourth goal and a 1-0 Conn lead.

Conn's second half offense was strictly for the Byrds (Amy, that is). A pass from fellow first-year-student Justine Oppenheim allowed Byrd to take her second goal of the season and give Conn a 3-0 lead with 34 minutes to play. Jen Eisenberg set up her third and Conn's fourth of the day, a hard shot off the goalkeeper's hands two minutes later.

Byrd credited her teammates for making the offensive explosion possible. "Our passing was a key," Byrd said. "So were the runs by the midfielders."

With his team safely ahead for most of the second half, head coach Ken Kline pleased the players and fans by allowing the reserves into the game so their families could watch them compete.

There were fewer distractions on Wednesday afternoon, but that was just as well, as a much tougher opponent took to Harkness Green. The Corsairs of UMass-Dartmouth entered the game with an impressive resume: they were ranked #2 in New England, had a 3-0 record, and had allowed nary a goal. They kept their credentials in perfect order by defeating the Camels 1-0.

It was an evenly matched contest, with Conn out-shooting their

Cross country teams win the Invitational

by Matt Burstein
Acting Sports Editor

Hosting an event at Conn is not too shabby. There are no bus rides, and Salve Regina's Amanda Weis needed a shot to keep her equally phenomenal, with four goals. Matt Raynor passed the ball to Burke, who had a nice turn-around move by the sophomore. At the stroke of the crossbar, Conn's first actual goal occurred with about thirteen minutes left in the half. Junior co-captain Marmi Sheehan doubled in front of the goal, and had her shot blocked. Not giving up, Sher hustled back to the ball, and nudged it past freshman Betty Woods, who converted it for her leading-fourth goal and a 1-0 Conn lead.

The final goal of the first half was scored by Ben Sams. Beating all of the defenders, Sams was left with a clean shot into the goal.

In the second half, Conn took away any hope of a victory for Salve Regina by scoring three more goals. Matt Raynor passed the ball in front of the goal and Melchior tapped it in for his third goal of the day. Freshman Justin Burke had his first goal of his college career and the sixth of the match, as Matt Raynor, with his second assist, passed the ball to Burke, who had a clean shot into the goal.

"It was nice," Burke commended, "...nice for me," and for Conn.

The women garnered 59 team points, easily holding off second-place Smith (71) and third-place Mount Holyoke (79), thanks to the performance of Lyn Ballo. The senior finished second in the 5000- meter race with a time of 17:31. Sophomore Megan Clay took only 20:37 to run to a fourth place finish, and senior Jennichelle Devine placed fifth with a time of 22:15.

Amherst's Amanda Weis needed 20:12 to take the race, and her team was not quite as fortunate. Robert Stack was the top performer of the day, finishing first in the 10,000 meter race with a time of 30:24. His performance helped the men cruise to victory with 22 points, but the rest of the team was equally phenomenal, with seven Camels runners finishing in the top ten.

Second place SUNY-Stony Brook, which qualified for the NCAA Division III national meet last year, was literally left in the Camel's tracks, coming up with 59 points. Amherst finished in third with 69 points.

Junior Craig Morrison ran the race in 30:05 for a second-place finish, and sophomore Matthew Lund came in fourth with a time of 30:26. The Camels will divide next week, but they hope to conquer as they hit the road. The men will travel to Babson for a meet at noon, and the women will journey to Mount Holyoke for an 11:00 event. Conn will reunite at home for two more events this month, the Thames River Invitational on Friday, October 15 at 4:00, and the Dawley Field Invitational on Saturday the 23rd at 11:00.

Ken Kline pleased the players and fans by allowing the reserves into the game so their families could watch them compete.

This week's Athlete of the Week award goes to ROBERT STACK. STACK was the top performer this past Saturday at the Connecticut College Invitational, finishing first in the 10,000 meter race with a time of 29:24 and helping the men to their victory.

The College Voice October 5, 1993 Page 20