Conn. Sends Large Delegation to Silver Bay Conference

Students Report Experiences at Special Chapel Friday

This summer at the Silver Bay Conference, Connecticut had the largest delegation the college has ever sent—seventeen attended: in including Dean Burbick, Ruth Lam- bentz, Peg Baylis, Hazel Desev, Fudge Sawdele, Marjorie Nichol- son, Margaret Waterman, Yvonne Kelle, Mary Savile, Lillian Greer, Cath- erine Fitzgerald, Agatha Zimmerman, Betty Merrill, Lois Ryan, Ruth Esbele, Dorothy Beal and Ethel Rothfuss.

A Silver Bay Chapel was held on October 26, at which time a few of the delegates explained the purpose of such a conference and described happenings there. Silver Bay is a conference held annually at Silver Bay, New York, and is sponsored by the W. Y. C. A. It lasts for one week and is planned completely by the student representatives. The subject for the 1934 conference was “Meeting the Challenge of the Inter- dependent World.”

Mrs. Mary Harkness House Dedicated Mon. Afternoon

Mrs. Harkness House, the new dormitory donated to Connecticu- t College by Mrs. Mary Harkness, was dedicated at a short ceremony Monday afternoon, October 29, at which time a large group of guests were present for the occasion.

Mrs. McBride’s presentation of the college to the public was a huge success, and students and faculty alike were very proud of the new facility. The dedication ceremony was led by President D. R. Plimpton, who gave a speech on the importance of higher education and the role of the college in society.

The ceremony was held on the campus, and a large crowd gathered to witness the dedication. The new dormitory was named in honor of Mrs. Mary Harkness, a former student of the college who had donated the building.

The new dormitory was designed to meet the needs of students in the 1930s and 1940s. It was equipped with modern facilities and was located near the main part of the campus. The building was dedicated by President Plimpton, who spoke about the importance of higher education and the role of the college in society.

ALUMNUS NOTES

Although the adage, here's opportunity knocking again for all of us who did not win that trip to Bermuda last year. The New Jersey and New York alumnus chapters are going to raise money to help support this fund by selling chances on merchandising tickets. The winning numbers will be one hundred dollars ($100) in trade at Macy's for the New Jersey branch, and at Best's for the New York chapter.

Dr. Frank Morris of the Philosophy department will be guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the New Haven Alumnus chapter on November 14.

Dr. Ackerman, of C. G. students were questioned as to their interest in voting. The majority, not yet of age, acknowledged their intention to vote as soon as they were eligible. The few of voting age, surprisingly enough, had not voted—their chief excuse being that they had not found time to register. Certainly, this laxness must indicate a lack of interest which is contradictory to the widespread recognition of political rights which students in all colleges are showing. Students alert to their opportunities, should not fail to realize the importance of this great day.

The election of this week is important in that it affords the core of the New Deal. Men will be put in office who will foster or break this regime. Too little interest is shown week that the issue appears. "News" testifies that articles to be printed Miss Julia Bower of the mathematics department, at the first meeting of the American Mathematical Society and Association, October 23 in Fanning Hall. At the University of Chicago chapel, Dr. Frank Morris of the University of Chicago will speak on the subject of "Mathematics, Its Importance and Use in All Fields of Science."

The Medical Aptitude Test will be given December 7, 1935. This test is open to all students who are interested in science and medicine. The test is composed of a set of questions in subjects which the varsity student is likely to have studied. The purpose of the test is to enable the student to determine whether he would be a likely candidate for medical school.

The writer states that such matters should or could be brought to the attention of the student body. As to other college functions, I fail to see how they can be given December 7, 1935. WOMAN'S OPPORTUNITY IS DISCUSSED BY MRS. DOUBLEDAY meals she offers her husband should do more than simply satisfy his hunger. They should be cleverly arranged and nicely served. Quite as important as variety of food is interesting conversation. Thus a wife should interest herself in civic activities, for men and women can meet in the discussion of politics. Moreover, not only for the sake of her husband, but also for the good of her children she needs to keep up to date on literature, the theatre and on all the general phases of life. Talk only about bridge hands and everyday gossip is narrowing. While still in college, and after she gets out in the world, woman wants to broaden her scope by learning new things, and finding entertaining stories to bring home. The dinner table ought to be a place for discussion.

One of the great faults in American homes today, Mrs. Doubleday asserts, is the absence of cultivation. She defines cultivation as a general kind of knowledge, an understanding of people and their problems, and the ability to give people what they want. English homes have that air of cultivation, which many of our homes in America lack.

Imperative to the success of any family is a budget. A wife deserves to know all the details of her husband's income. She should receive a certain amount as her allowance, and endeavor never to exceed that. Mrs. Doubleday believes that neither husband nor wife need ever give any account of the way in which each spends his or her share of the income. All girls are potential homemakers, Mrs. Doubleday believes. Hence one of her chief interests is the organization of a Community Center at Oyster Bay, where girls and women may receive a fine training in the art of homemaking.

MRS. McBRIDE SPEAKS

If we care at all about things, trends, or people, and can stand to be disagreed with, we should go into politics. The educational system in schools and colleges have changed in the last five years, and it stands to reason they will continue to change along the same lines during the next years. They have developed more academic freedom, and youth are being taught to realize they have an obligation to their government that is beyond their own personal lives. They should keep away from the political parties which are dead and unthinking for the most part. They are run by a prejudiced few and are supported by members, half of whom do not even know what the various platforms mean. The world is, however, moving on in its fight for thinking people to manage our government. The youth of today and tomorrow must help.

A short discussion period followed, during which Mrs. McBride emphasized the fact that youth who are politically minded should keep away from partisan groups and pressure parties; but should take an active part in organizations like the League of Women Voters. Youth must join and foster non-partisan movements to find the causes and cures for political corruption.

DR. CHAMBERLAIN TO HOLD CONFERENCE

Dr. Roy B. Chamberlain, Chapel Director of Dartmouth College, will lead a conference here Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Nov. 11-13. The subject will be "The Investment of Life."

He will be the Vesper speaker Sunday evening. The service will be followed by a coffee in Windham House at 8:15.

Dr. Chamberlain will meet students for personal consultation in Mary Harkness House on Monday and Tuesday from 10:00-12:00 and 2:00-5:00. In the evenings of those days, there will be an opportunity for group discussion with Dr. Chamberlain in Knowlton at 7:00 p.m.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

MRS. WOODHOUSE SPEAKS AT CHAPEL ON WEDNESDAY

(Continued from Page 1—Col. 4) come to play a most important part in our life. Women physicians and dentists are in more demand than men because they are interested in preventive work. We all find changes in the economic organization. Classes are now being organized for those interested in housing for social reasons; methods in organization are studied. It is natural that we turn to women as housing managers. The third and last point to be considered is the fact that the consumer is becoming more important and more intelligent; there is a necessary to know merchandise and to understand the consumer. Producers of goods realize that the consumer is interested in appearance and quality; thus, since art is becoming a powerful force in business, a training in art is very valuable.

There is one thing to be stressed in all this—it is necessary for educated men and women to be interested in their community, and to take an active part in it.

ARNOVICI DISCUSSES COMMUNITY PLANNING

(Continued from Page 1—Col. 1) skilled in building who have absolutely nothing to do. At the same time, there are 1,500,000 families that can not find suitable places to live. The underlying idea of the American government is to provide work and homes.

One of the latest provisions of the government is the National Housing Corporation—a concern to lend money at 4% for the building of homes. The interest rate on this concern is far too high to reach that the consumer badly is in need of money for rehousing. Until bankers agree to lend money at 1% for rehousing, the project will probably have small success.

To prove that rehousing is practical as well as essential, Dr. Arnowici cited Germany's accomplishments. Since the war, she has built 1,000,000 new dwellings for wage earners. These structures are modern and up-todate equipment, have actually housed thousands of people. Germany has built up attractive communities for these wage-earners. They are equipped with recreation centers, gardens, nursery schools, common laundries and other requisites for a happy, well-governed society.

Austria, also ravaged by war, has rebuilt much of her country. During the years 1917-19, one third of the Viennese population was housed in structure farms with modern conveniences, which rented for 8 to 9 a year.

In England, too, rehousing has been going on systematically for at least ten years. Two million dwellings for the same number of families have been built. And in London, there is need for a million more.

Germany, Austria and England have been immensely benefited by rehousing. Of course, it was done on borrowed money—borrowed, ironically enough, from United States, where the question of suitable dwellings is one of our greatest social problems. The low price rental provides merely for the upkeep and the depreciation of the building. Also a monetary profit. But the advantage of the German, Austrian and English systems is that it is infinite. Good housing is bound to encourage further efficiency, decency and good citizenship.

In our own country, the rehousing accomplishments have been negligible. With all our boards and committees, plans and appropriations, we have actually provided only for 2,000 people—in a country there is need for 10,000,000 new dwellings.

The National Housing Act appointed regional directors to persuade bankers to lend money for reconstruction. Dr. Arnowici emphasized the fact that the restoration of old homes, particularly tenements, is far more costly than tearing them down and building new ones. And of course bankers are unwilling to lend money from which they gain no profit. There are too many cases of the same sort. The American is not only a menace to the community, but they are also a huge expense and burden for the city. In cities where slums districts are prevalent, one finds more need for fire protection, insurance, higher taxes, etc.

Certainly the social economy of the rehousing project has been proved. Better housing encourages better citizenship, decency and self-respect. People become more responsible and are consequently less of a burden on the community. If the government would lend 100,000,000 for rehousing, our living conditions would be infinitely improved. The government would be relieved, and the moral standards of the wage-earning class would be considerably raised.

 Tex McNutt Tells

Of Living In The

Midst Of Strikes

Is Spending Her Junior Year
In Spain

Most of us have had the opportunity to know "Tex" McNutt during her two years in Connecticut, and therefore are interested in hearing of some of her experiences in Madrid, Spain, where she is spending her Junior year. After reading various accounts of the tournament that is taking place in Spain at this time, it is quite enjoyable to get a more personal view-point. Extracts from one of her letters are as follows:

"Saturday, October 9"

"The first thing we discussed in class was the 'bogota'. The professor was much too cheerful about it, saying 'Either the strike ends very quickly or else it will develop intourrenches and killings. It is not the temperament of the Spanish people that we need to worry about."

"I merely hope that the temper of the Spanish people will keep its self-control a little longer, as I just went up on the roof and saw that today is the last day of the strike."

"It seems that like Boy Scouts, the Spanish soldiers' duty is to be 'prepared' and to know how to meet emergency situations, rather than to be simply sitting on the platform ready to fire at anyone who tries anything; the other one hops on the front, pushes the handle, and starts it going. The same gun and soldier combination holds forth in the taxi business, making everyone feel very important with two such officials sitting in front."

Last night the Direcress of the Bank Branch announced that no one could go outside except for mail, or to attend business with a commission. The only thing we can do is

Armistice weekend this year from Friday, November 9th, to Sunday, November 11th will be the occasion for the expression of student opinion to war, if the following plans of the national student organizations go through as planned:

1—Seven national student organizations are signing an Armistice day proclamation stressing the urgency of the immediate situation with respect to war and concluding with a request that students undertake whatever actions they consider fitting. The organizations signing are:

Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., National Student League, Student L. I. D., International Student Service, Committee on Militarism in Education, and the Student Division of the War Organizations (See attached proclamation).

2—The National Student League and the Student L. I. D. are planning the following action—On Friday, November 10th, national student delegation to President Roosevelt urging the abolition of the B. O. T. C. accompanied by supporting assemblies and demonstrations on all college campuses.

3—Anti-war conferences in approximately different regions on the 10th and 11th of each region to be picked with attention to its central location.

4—Twilight parades on Saturday night, November 10th, to the war memorials in the different college towns, there to take the Oxford pledge. These parades are being carried out jointly by the Student League for Industrial Democracy and the National Student League. The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. are not sponsoring them nationally although local units may join in. (LID)

The “Student and the Crisis” will be the subject of the Second National Conference of Students in Politics to be held in St. Louis, Mo. The conference will take place during Christmas week and is being sponsored by the Student Y. W. C. A., and Y. M. C. A. International Student Service; National Student League, Student League for Industrial Democracy; Foreign Policy Association; Young Americans; Intercollegiate Peace Union; the National Student Council; and the War Registers League. It is hoped that the Young Democrats, the Young Republicans, the Woman’s Christian Temperance Union, and several of the Fraternities will help sponsor the Conference.

The evening of the 27th will hear “WHAT IS THE CRISIS?” to be answered from the points of view of: Teacher, Farmer, Employer, Social Worker, Churchman, Laborer and Economist.

There will be much more student participation in this year’s conference than last. On the morning of the 28th, there will be discussion groups growing out of the discussion of the night before, all of which will be led by students prominent on campuses throughout the country.

Following these discussions, representatives of different student groups will give the answer of their organizations on “How to Meet the Crisis.”

On the evening of the 28th the most exciting session of the conference will occur when students representing all parts of the country will present the subject, “Can the Major Political Parties Solve the Crisis?”

The last session on the morning of the 29th will be taken up with resolutions and discussions.

Let's find out why Turkish tobacco is so important to a good cigarette

On the sunny slopes of Smyrna... in the fertile fields of Macedonia... along the shores of the Black Sea... grows a kind of tobacco that is different from any other tobacco in the world.

These Turkish tobaccos are the only tobaccos of foreign cultivation that are used to any great extent in making American cigarettes. Turkish tobaccos are famous for their spicy aroma, and a blend of the right kinds of Turkish tobacco with our own home-grown tobaccos is better than any one kind used alone.

In Chesterfield we balance mild, ripe tobaccos grown in this country with just the right amounts of the right kinds of Turkish.

It is by blending and cross-blending these different tobaccos that we make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.
