Work on Fall Play Nears Completion

Mrs. Moonlight is well on the way to perfection for its presentation November 19th. It has accepted the kind offer of the New London Dramatic Guild to place three of their able players in the male characters, Stewart Witt as Thomas Moonlight a well-known member of the Guild, to fill the role of Percy, Mrs. Moonlight's son in law, and George Somerville as Pa, the faithful suitor of Jane Moonlight. Shirley Bryan is the wife of Mr. and Mrs. Moonlight, and Dorothy Balwin is the daughter of Sarah, Jane's sister. George Somerville's sister, Minnie, the old Scotch maid, and Jane Wiggins will be Jane, Sarah Moonlight's daughter. The play takes place in a living room of the Moonlight's house, where a three-act presentation covering the years from 1881 to the present. It is under the direction of Mrs. Ray, and it promises to be a success. There will be elaborate costumes of the nineteenth century, pewter, and period, and present day, set off by a scene which promises to be a hit. Best of all, the direction of Jules Racine who has done all the construction work and planned the entire set, the scenes have taken shape with remarkable rapidity. The Moonlight's house is to be a delicate blue stripe wallpaper, with the hall in the living room throughout, and arched at center stage. The stairs are an added luxury to the set, and is the tea room, both are in the window and the window seat! The Freshmen have been both cooperative and understanding in the construction work. Under the direction of Paull and Carter, and the Freshmen brought in a goodly crew of an eight-man team, under the direction of Ethel Conroy and Kitty Peck. Doctor's Biography

By Mary Elizabeth Baldwin '70

If you have avoided an American Doctor's Odyssey by Victor Heiser, assuming it to be another treatise on tropical diseases peregrinating under the flag of an adventuresome story, or, if you have, as some people do, avoided it because it was a best-seller, you had better reform right now, because it is one of the most entertaining pieces of work of its kind that has come to popularity in a long time. From the opening moment of Dr. Heiser's miraculous escape from the Johnstown flood that robbed him of all his family and most of his worldly possessions, to his request for retrival from active service with the Rockefeller Foundation, his story is a panorama of fascinating incidents and discoveries.

Dr. Heiser says that he did not know exactly what the idea of becoming a doctor struck him, but that it was some time during the first year of his work at an engineering school. It is entirely characteristic of him that he finished his engineering training as well as his medical training. While an intern at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, he found that he was more interested in the prevention of disease than in the curing of it. Consequently, he won through the examination, a post with the Marine Hospital Service, and became connected with Immigration Service. When the United States took over control of the Philippines, he went there as Director of Health.

After ten years in this capacity, he began to travel to many of the out of the way places of the world to spread the idea of health. In this effort, he was backed by the Rockefeller Foundation until, at his own request, he was retired from that service in 1935. His travels included sixteen trips around the world, most fascinating and dramatic experiences. (Continued on Page 3, Column 3)

Modern Age Causes Much Buzzing All Around

By Rosalie Harrison '41

Never since the time when I was first acquainted with Pyramus and Thisbe in the wall in the wall watching my ownactions so important as it does now. It is all because of the buzzer system here at Connecticut College. Although it is only a hollow square equipped with a button and a shutter, it can cause a whole house to shackle and tremble with excitement. Immediately upon the sound of a buzz, shouts of "Is that for me?" or "Whose room is that in?" echo up and down the corridor. They are sure to be answered by Who is calling mine?"

"Call down and find out if it's anybody. " says the buzzer. "Will you fix my hair?" By this time the flustered queen of the moment steps to the door and is met by a puff... to a few minutes late, red and puffing, so that they find it isn't long distance at all and are kept "Over in a class in Farming tomorrow)."

As we know the bunner is not the only buzzing noise to be found in the dormitories. Therefore it is with a sigh to our chagrin that we have changed into a frame of eager anticipation. People of college age ought to know the names of their elders. Those of you who do not are jeered at around on Saturday mornings and feast your eyes on the coming inexcusable.

Open Letter to "Hat Hater" of last week:

"Who cares whether you wear hats or not? say our chagers. We are not detaining you in one place to be impressed. If you are determined in one place to be impressive that will be late at the next."

Perhaps you think nothing of the town people or the barber, but Kenneth says "There is something about your—your position, your opportunities, your behavior, your appearance. New London has always locked up to the C. C. girl. She has caused to the future!" as being a little more distinctive, and just that much superior to the less fortunate and more ordinary people who are around in most cases hateful, and in many cases, praiseful.

New, Hat Hater, say I, "Come let us reason together. Just how is a girl to maintain that distinction with which New London accustomed or otherwise, justifiably or otherwise, honors you and the result? There is only one way to maintain distinction, say I, and that simply by being distinctive. Simple, isn't it? Let me give you a concrete example of what I mean."

Dartmouth, Yale or Harvard, might call us at all such an hour. Then much to our chagrin we find it isn't long distance at all and are kept "Over in a class in Farming tomorrow)."

I stand from out the crowd. It must be the way we are dressed. "Hey, my dear Hat Hater, was I ever dignifyingly or otherwise, the general consensus of opinion about your physical appearance."

While all the summations that the hatters give us is not so much disheartening as these, there are always air mail special from our O. A. O., N. R., and packages from home, which help to keep life interesting and involved. Soso—may I say three cheers for our modern age of push-buttons.

An example of the supreme egoist: (according to the Fillmorean) "I am not the happiest person in the world, but I am next to the happiest person in the world."

Dear Editor:

I seem to remember that sometime in the dim long ago when I was a gallile girl, I was told that people thought me a bit flippant. Why, some of them was young and easily impressed, but at the time it seemed to be almost an axiom, as a matter of fact, it is true.

I think most every student can see the necessity for everybody arriving at class on time so I won't say much on that point. I think, however, that no member of the faculty sees the necessity for class promptness; so I think it would be well to review a few reasons for doing so:

1—If you are kept over in a class in Farming out there as Director of Health.

When the United States took over control of the Philippines, he went there as Director of Health. While all the summons that the hatters give us is not so much disheartening as these, there are always air mail special from our O. A. O., N. R., and packages from home, which help to keep life interesting and involved. Soso—may I say three cheers for our modern age of push-buttons.

Tells Classes Of Population Changes in Connecticut and Their Implications

Dr. J. L. Hyres, head of the Department of Sociology at Connecticut State College, spoke last Friday before a section of Sociology classes. His subject was "Sociological Implications of Population Mobility in Connecticut." Dr. Hyres mentioned three types of population: rural, urban, and mixed. The rural community is the most stable. Urban communities are changing rapidly with the influx of jobs and new ideas. Mixed communities are experiencing the most change.

The Outlook for Connecticut College Students

Dr. H. Hyres

The department of Sociology at Connecticut College will see an increase in the number of students next semester. This increase is due to the growth of the college and the demand for sociologists. The department is preparing to expand its facilities to accommodate the new students. The department is also preparing to offer new courses in the field of sociology.

Extra-Curricular Activities at C.C. In Curriculum!

Looking around a C.C. classroom one might easily decide that C.C. girls have always been busy; for she has a pet occupation for keeping idle hands busy and ideolo:ns: wandering (too)+; same: teachers have methods too. (Rquirinir notes that are taken and giving them in class gives them a chance to Fanning 422 as soon as possible.)

The annual Ethnic Survey of the Freshman Class was conducted last semester. This survey was used to determine the social and ethnic background of the students. The survey is a part of a scientific research project which the Department of Sociology has been carrying on over a period of years.

The class of 1941 makes the tenth class to contribute information on Ethnic Composition, and with this class, the Department of Sociology expects to complete a survey of the ten classes (1932-1941).

Extra-Curricular Art Show of Black And White Prints

By E. CARLA EAKIN '41

At the exhibition, held during the past week in Knowlton Salon, there were some outstanding black and white prints loaned by the Carnegie Institute of Arts.

Rockwell Kent's And New Here was the first print in the line of the twenty-five prints carried around the lawn. The severe, classic simplicity of this print is one of the main characteristics that make his work so popular. The linear lines and smooth sweeps of his pen are some of the things that are interesting in art. It is symbolic of the age old problem of employment. The artist himself, a kind of modern saint, draws a picture of those things that his prints will show.

Mystery of Blind Dates Is Reason For Their Frequent

By JANET PETO '41

Hi, Suzy! Wake up! The most wonderful thing just happened to me! I've just met the most wonderful boy on earth! Oh well, of course you would guess, but isn't it wonderful? Yes, for the first time in this whole week I've met a boy! And he told me he got the job for the printing office at Wellesley! Not bad, is it? He really saw the physical side of it, and overhapping strokes of his pen. Bordering this print was one of extreme expression and emotion, yet funny. He looked like a mysterious sense of power. This was Louis Loewish's Oil Country. A forest of oil wells tower above the Love greater than his own. He really was the man of mystery. He was the man of mystery. He was the man of mystery.

Football Frenzy Hits Female Fans As Autumn Activities Accumulate

By JANE M.

What do we look forward to all week long? Of course it’s the game! And what about the fans? They’ll be up all night Saturday, cheering for their beloved teams. Let’s get ready for some football fun!

SINCEP

Sunny was so intent on her imaginary knitting during rehearsal for Mrs. Moonlight that she put her work down carefully. Phoenix—she answered the bell.

Can you find Coy-neigh in the hall?
Yes, she’s the plug. Do you see her in classes? No, she’s a prom-trotter. What does she do to polishes? She’s the marc.

What does she do for subscriptions?
She nags you.

In Zoo lab Jane Wray was heard to exclaim, “This paraenaxis looks just like one of Campbell’s racing cars.”

One pouring afternoon, Helen Canty arrived at History class with her books meticulously wrapped in bath towels. She’s hardworking.

A Big Apple School of Dance started at Winthrop House by Jane Wray, who realized to “trunk on down” at a Kellogg house party.

Freshman Psych. Test brought forth this question: What does one where in a football game? A freshman emerging from “37 with her parents was heard to mark, “I feel just like a filthy capitalist up here—in fact I just lost fifteen dollars.”

A Sophomore recently secured a naturalized party by a History House Party by advertising, just proving again that old adage that “It pays to advertise.” Incidentally, the results were very satisfactory—she drew a house president on her book.

Sylvia Draper rates the second week: this time because of the carrier pigeon who “called” one day at Mary Harkness, and found such attention from the hands of said damsel that he stayed several days, always carefully fed on leftovers from the dining room.

Betty Hubert kept Miss Ernst and thirty students waiting outside 200 Fanning while she studiously worked behind locked doors on Eng. Lit.

Are you feeling so that we too may depart on a weekend: “Environment is contractible” is the basis of our philosophy. And so it is that one Senior who “called” one day popped into the college a great favor. Just a flip of the dial, and we can hear how any one of our favorites teams is coming along.

The only thing we miss is the gaiety and hilarity that makes football what it is, and that isn’t too much of a blow, for there’s always next week’s game to see, and it’ll probably be more exciting than this one. As the final scores are announced to a waiting world, we anxiouslybesides waiting for some “cherry” and start counting the days all over again.

May Saturday come quickly!

Something obviously in the wind when gals appear first the part of the whole done up in curls, etc. Explanation comes when one Senior asks another, “Have you had your pictures taken yet?”

Now to go on with your argument about the relative respe-rability of certain of your hats. "It's human nature", you say, "to stick a hat you don't care about on to a place you don't care about." All right, we grant you that. But remember, there is an excellent chance that the hat you "simply detest", or consider "a perfect mess" outlining your pasty map may or may be considered very neat by your great-aunt back home or your best friend up here. And who knows, perhaps the people of New London will consider you simply ravishing in "oh, that old thing". And besides, if New London is a "place you don't care about", why do you go if you need some tooth-paste, find someone who does care about New London and ask her to get it for you. If you wish to go to the movies on this day, you and I have to go through New London, why then, cover your ears, my dear, but, for the same reason, cover your head. Other people may think you look just as ugly with curlers in your hair as State Street looks after the Ameri-
