Financial Contributions Support College's Academic Endeavors

Higher education for women at Connecticut College has been enlivened for the past eleven months by the contributions of over 300 members of the College's undergraduate student body. During this time, the College has received over $10,000,000 in financial contributions by cash gifts totaling $919,355.86, enriched and strengthened during numerous gifts of value that could be used to purchase items such as pianos, 35 dogwood trees, and a can opener and inclusions to alumnae and friends of the College.

Pamela A. Rockwell, chair of the board of visitors of the College, and President Richard C. Mason, commended the donors who have contributed to the College. "There is something to be said about the idea of providing for future generations," said Mrs. Rockwell, "and we are grateful for the contributions of our donors who have made this possible."}

To Present Lecture of Dr. J. Buckley

A Professor of English at Harvard University will speak tonight, Thursday, October 29, in the lecture hall of the College. Dr. Buckley's lecture will be titled "The Victorian Era: Its Impact on American Culture." Dr. Buckley is a well-known scholar in the field of Victorian literature and has published extensively on the subject. His lecture will focus on the cultural and intellectual developments of the Victorian era, and how they influenced the arts and literature of the time.

Editorial...

Keep Off the Crass

We are appalled and disgusted by the behavior of a very small number of students, all of whom are of the political poster variety. The failure to pay bills, and petty thievery.

First, defaulting on the payment of past debts that the college has a right to expect. In many cases, it is of no fault of the college, but rather of the student's own lack of responsibility.

Second, Bills. The local Telephone company is generous, but we doubt that there are many students who have not paid their bills on time. This is not only unfair to the company, but also to the other students who pay their bills on time.

Third, petty thievery: from a few extra square inches of desk space to the most valuable items that the college owns. We have some evidence that these are attitudes that are not limited to these few students, but are widespread among the student body.

To the Students...

We are writing to you because we have seen enough to make us feel that you need to be reminded of the privileges that come with being a student at this college. You have the right to use the facilities of the college, but you also have the responsibility to respect those facilities.

We encourage you to think about the consequences of your actions. The college is not in the business of providing a free ride for all its students. It is your job to make the best of your education, and to do that, you need to respect the resources of the college.

We urge you to think about the implications of your actions. The college is not just a place to go to get a degree. It is a community where you can learn and grow. You need to respect that community, and to do that, you need to respect the resources of the college.

We hope that you will take this letter to heart, and that you will work to improve the behavior of the student body at this college.

John Jay To Show 'Persian Powder'

The art exhibition at Connecticut College will start with an emphasis on art and color on the screen. The event will feature the work of mountain-dirt experts and Olympic fencers who are expected to arrive on campus to present their latest work. This is an exciting opportunity for anyone who is interested in the arts or sports.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am sending you a copy of the 20th Century American Magazine, which has an article on the work of Marcel Goudeau. It is a fascinating read, and I think you would enjoy it.

Mode of Transportation

I wonder how many people have heard of the recent killing of a church organist and a priest in St. Louis. It was a terrible event, and it is something that everyone should be aware of.

To the Editor:

As a point of clarification, the Wednesday afternoon program of the Interscolar Skiers Association was not as I described it in my previous letter. After the first week of outdoor activities, when someone had awakened an adjacent room, I was told that no one could be heard and that they had to abandon the program. True or false?

Perhaps there were conditions that were not described in my letter. I would be happy to hear from anyone who attended or was associated with the program.

Representatives of 11 Colleges Meet to Discuss Honor Codes

What are the purposes and goals of college honor codes? Are the various systems in operation now useful? These are questions which was part of the Second Annual Student Conference in Boston last Saturday in Crozier-Wilcox.

The representatives were: Student Government officers of Smith, Vassar, Wesleyan, Colby Junior College, Connecticut, Colby, Wesleyan, Amherst, Brides, Simmons, Skidmore, Vassar, Smith, Wells and Welles.

The group agreed that the purpose of an Honor Code is to prevent punitive offenders as to educate private morality. The System depends on a number of systems a community and the duty of reporting oneself for infractions. These feelings and observations of Simmons noted that in no so-

Religious Fellowship Initiates Program of Evening Prayer

Religious Fellowship affords the Connecticut College community an opportunity to share in an experience offered to no other class of campus life. The program of Evening Prayers allows students to voice their love of God in several moments of meditation.

The first of these meditations was held on Tuesday, October 26, in the Chapel. Conducting this service, Mr. Purvis spoke on the meaning of prayer, and offered many helpful thoughts with candor. Caroline Johnson provided organ setting, a peaceful mood for the service.

Chapel director, Mr. Wilks, states that this program constitutes a rule found not any where else on campus. Religious Fellowship offers opportunities for group debate and discussion, but this evening meditation is a time set aside for personal prayer. Different members of the faculty will participate in the service. The meetings will be held every Tuesday at 5:30.
