Rowland, Kennelly face off in gubernatorial debate at Palmer

By JEN BRENNAN

sports editor

The morning of Sat, Oct. 17, was especially bright for two returning alumni who achieved a place among Connecticut College's premier athletes. Laura Brunner Gulden '86 and Jeff Geddes '89 were honored in Hood Dining Hall by the Alumni Association Athletic Hall of Fame.

With the creation of the Athletic Hall of Fame in 1989, athletes from classes as early as 1920 have been inducted and range all the way through until 1994. These elite athletes join 21 others inducted since the creation of the Ath-

Carpenter moderated the event while The Day's Maura Casey and NBC's Tom Monahan served as panelists, asking the candidates questions compiled by The Day and the League of Women Voters.

After a brief introduction by The Day's editor and publisher Reid MacClellage, both candidates gave two-minute opening remarks to thank their supporters and address their stances on the evening's issues.

Kennelly, who spoke first, laid out her plan for the future of Connecticut by questioning the focus of Rowland's term as gov-

nor. Kennelly's main goals are to cut property taxes, provide scholarship money for state high school students attending Connecticut Post, Hartford Courant, as well as provided by local station NBC 30 and CSPAN, and the\n college and behave accordingly.

Should the student break any of the rules, "the student must be aware of the regulations of the college and be accountable for his/her actions." In addition, the Honor Code says if students know someone who has committed an infraction of the Honor Code, it is their duty to confront the individual and ultimately report them to the J ucation Board or encourage them to turn themselves in.

Survey results showed that of 106 participants, 97 of them believe the morality implied in the Honor Code is a noble concept. While taking the poll the majority of these students expressed ambiguity over the definition of the Honor Code. First year student Leslie Feinberg hesitated over her survey saying, "It's a nice idea but they didn't explain it clearly." Her friend, Alex Band, chimed in "I think I even know what exactly the Honor Code is!" Feinberg and Band are not alone.

Regardless of their class year,

continued on page 7

continued on page 14

Honor code
confuses Conn
students

Fifty percent of freshmen surveyed believe they have broken the honor code

By KATE WOODSOME

staff writer

On Sunday September 6, this year's freshman class followed the tradition of previous years as they entered Palmer Auditorium for their Matriculation. An integral part of this ceremony includes pledging to abide by the Honor Code. Although this code is unwritten, over five hundred students have declared to uphold it. In a recent since survey, however, many students have expressed uncertainty about what the Honor Code actually is.

The C Book states that within the Honor System, "the student should be aware of the regulations of the college and be accountable for his/her actions." In addition, the Honor Code says if students know someone who has committed an infraction of the Honor Code, it is their duty to confront the individual and ultimately report them to the J udiciary Board or encourage them to turn themselves in.

Survey results showed that of 106 participants, 97 of them believe the morality implied in the Honor Code is a noble concept. While taking the poll the majority of these students expressed ambiguity over the definition of the Honor Code. First year student Leslie Feinberg hesitated over her survey saying, "It's a nice idea but they didn't explain it clearly." Her friend, Alex Band, chimed in "I think I even know what exactly the Honor Code is!" Feinberg and Band are not alone.

Regardless of their class year,
No excuse for political apathy at Conn

For a campus that prides itself on political correctness, diversity, and community service, Connecticut College is incredibly apathetic about politics. Organizations on campus that are devoted to political issues, such as Youth For Justice, FIRST, and the College Republicans and Democrats, have planned events this year which have failed to rouse the student body into political action.

Rock the Vote, a campaign endorsed by MTV which attempts to get students to register to vote, held an event at the Eli n' Gee on October 15th. The Flashcubes, a well-known power-pop band from Seattle, along with the local band Gridlock, performed there to a crowd so small one could count the number of attendees on both hands and one foot. Other than members of FIRST, one Voice reporter and her friend, there were zero Conn students there even though the concert was sponsored by FIRST, CC Downtown, and SGA. Not only was the music good, but the event was free, ended before the TNE began, and transportation was provided.

How many people signed up to vote? None.

The final of four Connecticut gubernatorial debates on October 19th filled Palmer Auditorium. However, the vast majority of the audience was made up of New London residents and members of the surrounding communities. The youth of the area was represented by a Boy Scout troop stationed in the balcony and students who seemed to have been dragged by their hair to the event by their politically aware professors.

There are 311 students at Conn from the fine state of Connecticut and all out-of-state students can register to vote in-state while attending school here. More importantly, all students, with the exception of a few freshmen, are of voting age and have a civic responsibility to make themselves a part of the democratic process. It would be nice to think that the reason no one showed up at Rock the Vote is because everyone has registered already, but the likelihood of that is slim considering the fact that few students even bothered to show up at the debate to learn about the candidates.

Perhaps young people are unaware of the significance of a gubernatorial election. The course of Connecticut may change drastically depending on who is elected, which will in turn affect our College. The media certainly saw the importance; the event was simulcast on NBC 30, and also broadcast on C-SPAN. Reporters from all over the area were swarming around Palmer, attempting to find students to interview, but there were very few. If the entire state can be affected by the outcome of the debate, why is it that Conn students who live here more than half of the year don't care about what will happen to their campus and Connecticut communities?

With more than a week to go before the election, there is still plenty of opportunity for those students who are registered to learn about the candidates and get out and vote. Transportation will be provided throughout the day to get students to and from polling places across the city.

Connecticut College students are given opportunities to learn about political issues on and off campus, and by doing so get involved in making a difference in the community. There is no excuse for ignorance.

More than a week to go before the elections on November 3rd, there is still plenty of opportunity for those students who are registered to learn about the candidates and get out and vote. Transportation will be provided throughout the day to get students to and from polling places across the city.

Connecticut College students are given opportunities to learn about political issues on and off campus, and by doing so get involved in making a difference in the community. There is no excuse for ignorance.
View Without Place through International Perspective

To the Editor:

Having recently returned from an academic year teaching at Makerer University in Kampala, Uganda, where I was a Fulbright Scholar, I am intrigued and puzzled by recent commentaries and letters on the editorial page of The College Voice. Having been told that Makerer University was enhanced by lecture tours at universities in Ethiopia, Mozambique, and Nigeria. Some students complain about insufficient "space" for clubs, or facilities in the library, and Information Services. A New York college was used as an illustration of more extensive [and, presumably, superior] services. A more balanced view would have to be produced to reflect the sensitive evidence found outside the United States as well as abroad. Try learning and teaching in an African university, where limited funds result in limited facilities and where students and faculties develop extraordinary means to maximize their educational programs. Where there are not enough books in the library, where Information Services are almost unheard of, where there is not enough classroom space to accommodate students, and where most faculty must share office space with two or three other teachers. A culture of scarcity, of necessity, teaches one to develop priorities. A culture of plenty needs to do the same, otherwise it will misuse or exhaust its resources.

Some students and faculty complain about an "absentee landlord" president without taking into account that the search for funds to maximize educational opportunities is an essential function of a College president. Others suggest that leadership be left to units within the community, without taking into account two major factors: 1) As fast as not, leadership emanating from the community is episodic and contradictory, reflecting the range and variety of interests in the community, which results in coordinated policies. As free, a county board, or an board of trustees, from authoritarian governments which are rarely responsive. There are a number of students on this campus who have studied abroad on one of many different programs available today. I wonder what they think about the various complaint/comments etc... found on the editorial page of The College Voice.

Peace,
Marvin E. Doro

Lucy Marshall Professor of Government

La Unidad angered by lack of support for Georges Gillet effort

To the Editor:

Visualize yourself waking up one morning and having NOTHING; you have lost your family, home and belongings. How about being a college student on this campus and along with the pressure you have from school, you also live the pressure of not knowing anything about the whereabouts and health of your family? This was the reality for many of our fellow classmates two weeks ago.

La Unidad, the Latino/a organization on campus, is very aware of this. In regards to the voice mail messages left by some Housefellows regarding the "Cro" case. Before the name "Cro" was minted, "Palmer Library" was renovated into a "store". Photos in the College Archives, the Palmer Library was renovated, one remains a member of the community, as a "non-grad". In some people's minds, it is only a building, the same impact on teams as ECAC's or NCAA's do. The complaint/comments found in the Palmer Library, it was integrated during the 1960's. There were a variety of buildings, the demarcation of "student" and "non-student" gets blurry and the meaning of the word "college", clearer.

The First Student Center was also the "new" gym, replacing Hillyer Hall. Hillyer had served for various times for some 50 years as gymnasium, auditorium, & chapel. "Cro" as athletic center bore the first few years, now the 1962 room. The bowling alley became the Bookstore; the ceiling struts of the basketball courts, the second floor Dance Studio, The Myers and West Dance Studios have remained intact. William Gerald's and Jones' ghosts perform there summer mornings when no one is watching. The snack bar in the 1960's and 1970's. "Cro" was a center of human activity.

In conception "Cro" went from being the center of human activity.

La Unidad angered by lack of support for Georges Gillet effort

To the Editor:

It was brought to our attention by several members of the organization that these messages were not at all depicting the seriousness of this matter. La Unidad was deeply angered and disappointed realizing how serious we are viewed on this campus when people find their suffering turn them into jokes for others to laugh. In times as such, we expect the campus community, which we thought we belonged to, to at least support us. We did not ask for much, and the campus community should have been asked for. We are not accepting anything less than a public broadcast message or letter in The College Voice. The Housefellows have suspended the Latinsa community on campus. La Unidad is trying to find solutions, and not just numbers, but our voices will make up for that size and we will make ourselves heard.

Christie I. Martinez '99
Co-Chair of MSSC

Federal courts hijacked by idealists

To the Editor:

The recent death of gay University of Wyoming student Matthew Shepard has prompted new consideration of law and the death penalty. These laws make a crime whose motive stems from hatred for race, ethnicity or religion a federal crime, and as such, subject to harsher standards than state crimes. Recent political discussions, and legislation proposed by Representative Charles Schumer (D-NY), candidate for Senator, would seek to extend these protections to women, homosexuals, and the disabled. While well-intentioned, these efforts fail to detect the basic error and illegality inherent in these statutes.

Dissatisfaction with NESCAC decision

To the Editor:

That the new policy makes no sense is most obvious a NESCAC Tournament. One option would be to make the championship a single-elimination tournament to look into allegations of misconduct. The Alumnae of the College and the student body worked very hard in the past 10 years to build their first Student Center. "Cro's" original name was "The Crex-Wilson Student Center," but it never just housed student organizations. The lower level of the "Sweeps Glee" (named for our first president) hosted the Alumnae (latter Alumnae) Association, now the Office of Alumni Relations in Boscotown. The upper level of the house housed "Carey Services," then the "Placement Office," its predecessor, the "Personnel Bureau," which was the Alumnae Association to find jobs on and off campus for students and to find employment for graduates of U.S. colleges and universities. As the Palomino's ghosts perform there summer mornings when no one is watching. The snack bar in the 1960's and 1970's. "Cro" was a center of human activity.

In conception "Cro" went from being the center of human activity.

The recent death of gay University of Wyoming student Matthew Shepard has prompted new consideration of law and the death penalty. These laws make a crime whose motive stems from hatred for race, ethnicity or religion a federal crime, and as such, subject to harsher standards than state crimes. Recent political discussions, and legislation proposed by Representative Charles Schumer (D-NY), candidate for Senator, would seek to extend these protections to women, homosexuals, and the disabled. While well-intentioned, these efforts fail to detect the basic error and illegality inherent in these statutes.

Dissatisfaction with NESCAC decision

To the Editor:

That the new policy makes no sense is most obvious a NESCAC Tournament. One option would be to make the championship a single-elimination tournament to look into allegations of misconduct. The Alumnae of the College and the student body worked very hard in the past 10 years to build their first Student Center. "Cro's" original name was "The Crex-Wilson Student Center," but it never just housed student organizations. The lower level of the "Sweeps Glee" (named for our first president) hosted the Alumnae (latter Alumnae) Association, now the Office of Alumni Relations in Boscotown. The upper level of the house housed "Carey Services," then the "Placement Office," its predecessor, the "Personnel Bureau," which was the Alumnae Association to find jobs on and off campus for students and to find employment for graduates of U.S. colleges and universities. As the Palomino's ghosts perform there summer mornings when no one is watching. The snack bar in the 1960's and 1970's. "Cro" was a center of human activity.

In conception "Cro" went from being the center of human activity.

The recent death of gay University of Wyoming student Matthew Shepard has prompted new consideration of law and the death penalty. These laws make a crime whose motive stems from hatred for race, ethnicity or religion a federal crime, and as such, subject to harsher standards than state crimes. Recent political discussions, and legislation proposed by Representative Charles Schumer (D-NY), candidate for Senator, would seek to extend these protections to women, homosexuals, and the disabled. While well-intentioned, these efforts fail to detect the basic error and illegality inherent in these statutes.

Dissatisfaction with NESCAC decision

To the Editor:

That the new policy makes no sense is most obvious a NESCAC Tournament. One option would be to make the championship a single-elimination tournament to look into allegations of misconduct. The Alumnae of the College and the student body worked very hard in the past 10 years to build their first Student Center. "Cro's" original name was "The Crex-Wilson Student Center," but it never just housed student organizations. The lower level of the "Sweeps Glee" (named for our first president) hosted the Alumnae (latter Alumnae) Association, now the Office of Alumni Relations in Boscotown. The upper level of the house housed "Carey Services," then the "Placement Office," its predecessor, the "Personnel Bureau," which was the Alumnae Association to find jobs on and off campus for students and to find employment for graduates of U.S. colleges and universities. As the Palomino's ghosts perform there summer mornings when no one is watching. The snack bar in the 1960's and 1970's. "Cro" was a center of human activity.

In conception "Cro" went from being the center of human activity.

The recent death of gay University of Wyoming student Matthew Shepard has prompted new consideration of law and the death penalty. These laws make a crime whose motive stems from hatred for race, ethnicity or religion a federal crime, and as such, subject to harsher standards than state crimes. Recent political discussions, and legislation proposed by Representative Charles Schumer (D-NY), candidate for Senator, would seek to extend these protections to women, homosexuals, and the disabled. While well-intentioned, these efforts fail to detect the basic error and illegality inherent in these statutes.

Dissatisfaction with NESCAC decision

To the Editor:

That the new policy makes no sense is most obvious a NESCAC Tournament. One option would be to make the championship a single-elimination tournament to look into allegations of misconduct. The Alumnae of the College and the student body worked very hard in the past 10 years to build their first Student Center. "Cro's" original name was "The Crex-Wilson Student Center," but it never just housed student organizations. The lower level of the "Sweeps Glee" (named for our first president) hosted the Alumnae (latter Alumnae) Association, now the Office of Alumni Relations in Boscotown. The upper level of the house housed "Carey Services," then the "Placement Office," its predecessor, the "Personnel Bureau," which was the Alumnae Association to find jobs on and off campus for students and to find employment for graduates of U.S. colleges and universities. As the Palomino's ghosts perform there summer mornings when no one is watching. The snack bar in the 1960's and 1970's. "Cro" was a center of human activity.

In conception "Cro" went from being the center of human activity.

The recent death of gay University of Wyoming student Matthew Shepard has prompted new consideration of law and the death penalty. These laws make a crime whose motive stems from hatred for race, ethnicity or religion a federal crime, and as such, subject to harsher standards than state crimes. Recent political discussions, and legislation proposed by Representative Charles Schumer (D-NY), candidate for Senator, would seek to extend these protections to women, homosexuals, and the disabled. While well-intentioned, these efforts fail to detect the basic error and illegality inherent in these statutes.
Gonzalez finds inspiration in her multi-faceted approach to art

By ANNE STAMESKIN

Our campus recognizes Anita Gonzalez primarily as a professor of dance, but she wears many different hats. Gonzalez holds a doctorate in theater, loves languages, and teaches in the theater department as well. She is always wearing different hats. Gonzalez holds a doctorate in theater, loves languages, and teaches in the theater department as well. She is always wearing different hats.

Recently, Gonzalez has experienced how people move from here to there, as 'a holistic approach to education.' In college, she created her own degree program, "studies in folklore," which placed art in the context of cultural history, because, she explains, "the arts inform the present."

Before coming to Conn, Gonzalez taught college in Memphis, worked as a video technician and attended to cinema. When Jack finally arrives home, the play achieves one of its most memorable moments. The family eats in tense silence, and her position at Conn. She comments, "The total: with tax and tip came to $37.00—a fairly decent evening dinner for two, but if you’d like to impress a date, I started my meal with an order of their soup of the season—cream of asparagus, which came very fresh and was rich with flavor, easily the best soup I’ve had in rhythms. For my main course, I ordered the stuffed chicken breast for her entree, a woman who has always been dependent on others—first her husband—who died young, and then, her older sister she moved in with—loved older brother. Reitano gives us one of the play’s most poignant moments as the father who has the opportunity to do in his momentary lack of balance. Gonzalez herself has always been a mercurial person, and she perfectly expresses the duality of balancing her desire to be a burden with her wish to find a life for herself and assert her own opinions and needs.

The family falls into turmoil and the tensions that have been stifled for so long finally surface, the play ends: more toward a rustic, with occasional comic relief. The second half does feel somewhat, and is the two won’t be able to overcome their problems, and we witness catharsis after catharsis taking place in an almost systematic fashion. However, the intelligent and strong acting hold the play’s head above water.

The amazingly professional set—a two story house complete with upstairs bedrooms, downstairs living and dining room, and even a yard—allows the audience to watch the main action while being peripherally aware of the other interactions taking place. In addition to coaching fine performances from his cast, Treyz is to be commended for staging that is consistently interesting and settings of the movement, which, in this set-up, occupy all sides. Brighton Beach Memories is a polished and engaging promise for a season that plans to focus its productions on the theme of "adversity." It will be followed by Cinders in November and Suburbia and Electra in the spring. If Brighton Beach is an indication of what is to come, those future productions should be fantastic.

Mystic’s Bravo Bravo lives up to ambitious name

By TODD KLARIN

My dictionary gives two definitions of the word bravo. Both of them stem from Italian: the first is a noun and means a hired assistant; the second is an interjection defined as "well done!" The first definition, quite frankly, scores more; the second definition pretty much exemplifies my over-all thoughts on this week’s reviewed restaurant. As a restaurant critic, I’m supposed to be critical, but I also should set some reasonable standard of expectations for which all restaurants should try to achieve, and my meal at Bravo Bravo was just that, an achievable standard of excellence.

The establishment is nestled in the tourist haven of downtown Mystic just across the drawbridge from Conn favorites such as Mystic Pizza, Pizza Works, and Margaritas. Bravo Bravo offers a unique dining experience that separates it from the others. The interior is nicely decorated with mirrors and a large bay window providing a view of West Main Street. These features allow the restaurant to use only dimmed overhanging artificial lights along with romantic candles at each table which sets is very aesthetically appetizing mood.

After we were seated, our waitress brought a basket to our table filled with piping hot French bread and rolls seasoned by a plate of butter and hummus to munch on as we decided what to order. I started my meal with an order of their soup of the season—cream of asparagus, which came very fresh and was rich with flavor, easily the best soup I’ve had in rhythms. For my main course, I ordered the stuffed chicken breast for her entree, a woman who has always been dependent on others—first her husband—who died young, and then, her older sister she moved in with—loved older brother. Reitano gives us one of the play’s most poignant moments as the father who has the opportunity to do in his momentary lack of balance. Gonzalez herself has always been a mercurial person, and she perfectly expresses the duality of balancing her desire to be a burden with her wish to find a life for herself and assert her own opinions and needs.

The family eats in tense silence, and her position at Conn. She comments, "The total: with tax and tip came to $37.00—a fairly decent evening dinner for two, but if you’d like to impress a date, I started my meal with an order of their soup of the season—cream of asparagus, which came very fresh and was rich with flavor, easily the best soup I’ve had in rhythms. For my main course, I ordered the stuffed chicken breast for her entree, a woman who has always been dependent on others—first her husband—who died young, and then, her older sister she moved in with—loved older brother. Reitano gives us one of the play’s most poignant moments as the father who has the opportunity to do in his momentary lack of balance. Gonzalez herself has always been a mercurial person, and she perfectly expresses the duality of balancing her desire to be a burden with her wish to find a life for herself and assert her own opinions and needs.

The family eats in tense silence, and her position at Conn. She comments, "The total: with tax and tip came to $37.00—a fairly decent evening dinner for two, but if you’d like to impress a date, I started my meal with an order of their soup of the season—cream of asparagus, which came very fresh and was rich with flavor, easily the best soup I’ve had in rhythms. For my main course, I ordered the stuffed chicken breast for her entree, a woman who has always been dependent on others—first her husband—who died young, and then, her older sister she moved in with—loved older brother. Reitano gives us one of the play’s most poignant moments as the father who has the opportunity to do in his momentary lack of balance. Gonzalez herself has always been a mercurial person, and she perfectly expresses the duality of balancing her desire to be a burden with her wish to find a life for herself and assert her own opinions and needs.

The family eats in tense silence, and her position at Conn. She comments, "The total: with tax and tip came to $37.00—a fairly decent evening dinner for two, but if you’d like to impress a date, I started my meal with an order of their soup of the season—cream of asparagus, which came very fresh and was rich with flavor, easily the best soup I’ve had in rhythms. For my main course, I ordered the stuffed chicken breast for her entree, a woman who has always been dependent on others—first her husband—who died young, and then, her older sister she moved in with—loved older brother. Reitano gives us one of the play’s most poignant moments as the father who has the opportunity to do in his momentary lack of balance. Gonzalez herself has always been a mercurial person, and she perfectly expresses the duality of balancing her desire to be a burden with her wish to find a life for herself and assert her own opinions and needs.

The family eats in tense silence, and her position at Conn. She comments, "The total: with tax and tip came to $37.00—a fairly decent evening dinner for two, but if you’d like to impress a date, I started my meal with an order of their soup of the season—cream of asparagus, which came very fresh and was rich with flavor, easily the best soup I’ve had in rhythms. For my main course, I ordered the stuffed chicken breast for her entree, a woman who has always been dependent on others—first her husband—who died young, and then, her older sister she moved in with—loved older brother. Reitano gives us one of the play’s most poignant moments as the father who has the opportunity to do in his momentary lack of balance. Gonzalez herself has always been a mercurial person, and she perfectly expresses the duality of balancing her desire to be a burden with her wish to find a life for herself and assert her own opinions and needs.

The family eats in tense silence, and her position at Conn. She comments, "The total: with tax and tip came to $37.00—a fairly decent evening dinner for two, but if you’d like to impress a date, I started my meal with an order of their soup of the season—cream of asparagus, which came very fresh and was rich with flavor, easily the best soup I’ve had in rhythms. For my main course, I ordered the stuffed chicken breast for her entree, a woman who has always been dependent on others—first her husband—who died young, and then, her older sister she moved in with—loved older brother. Reitano gives us one of the play’s most poignant moments as the father who has the opportunity to do in his momentary lack of balance. Gonzalez herself has always been a mercurial person, and she perfectly expresses the duality of balancing her desire to be a burden with her wish to find a life for herself and assert her own opinions and needs.

The family eats in tense silence, and her position at Conn. She comments, "The total: with tax and tip came to $37.00—a fairly decent evening dinner for two, but if you’d like to impress a date, I started my meal with an order of their soup of the season—cream of asparagus, which came very fresh and was rich with flavor, easily the best soup I’ve had in rhythms. For my main course, I ordered the stuffed chicken breast for her entree, a woman who has always been dependent on others—first her husband—who died young, and then, her older sister she moved in with—loved older brother. Reitano gives us one of the play’s most poignant moments as the father who has the opportunity to do in his momentary lack of balance. Gonzalez herself has always been a mercurial person, and she perfectly expresses the duality of balancing her desire to be a burden with her wish to find a life for herself and assert her own opinions and needs.

The family eats in tense silence, and her position at Conn. She comments, "The total: with tax and tip came to $37.00—a fairly decent evening dinner for two, but if you’d like to impress a date, I started my meal with an order of their soup of the season—cream of asparagus, which came very fresh and was rich with flavor, easily the best soup I’ve had in rhythms. For my main course, I ordered the stuffed chicken breast for her entree, a woman who has always been dependent on others—first her husband—who died young, and then, her older sister she moved in with—loved older brother. Reitano gives us one of the play’s most poignant moments as the father who has the opportunity to do in his momentary lack of balance. Gonzalez herself has always been a mercurial person, and she perfectly expresses the duality of balancing her desire to be a burden with her wish to find a life for herself and assert her own opinions and needs.

The family eats in tense silence, and her position at Conn. She comments, "The total: with tax and tip came to $37.00—a fairly decent evening dinner for two, but if you’d like to impress a date, I started my meal with an order of their soup of the season—cream of asparagus, which came very fresh and was rich with flavor, easily the best soup I’ve had in rhythms. For my main course, I ordered the stuffed chicken breast for her entree, a woman who has always been dependent on others—first her husband—who died young, and then, her older sister she moved in with—loved older brother. Reitano gives us one of the play’s most poignant moments as the father who has the opportunity to do in his momentary lack of balance. Gonzalez herself has always been a mercurial person, and she perfectly expresses the duality of balancing her desire to be a burden with her wish to find a life for herself and assert her own opinions and needs.
Happened on the Way to the Forum was a solid opening to another Broadway season at the Garde.

The tension was at an all time high in the 1941 room as 10:00 PM approached. By 10:30, the fans began to wonder whether Janx would even show, or if this was simply a promotion spectacle with no real existence between counterfeit groove and the genuine article.

Soon, word spread through the crowd like lightning: Old Jam Spirit arrived. The night would not end until late that evening. The heart of every student in the room was engaged in a furious jam session that would not end until late that night. The heart of every student in the room belonged to Janx.

The band consists of two guitarists, a drummer, a bassist, and a two-man horn/keyboards section. Lead guitarist Ben Lee (brother of Dan Lee '01), and rhythm guitarist/lead vocalist Andy Campolieto, are the heart and soul of the band. Bassist Nick Source played passably and is obviously a "source" of Janx's funky essence. Drummer Mike Dingley played with more enthusiasm than talent and looked like he could have gone all night, which he probably did. The horn section added a twist to the mix, giving them punch on certain songs, but the keyboard was a non-factor.

Janx tore into a repertoire of songs that included a fair number of covers, among them were Soul Shakedown and Pick Up The Pieces, recognizable songs to which the crowd responded with excitement. Janx's own works, Hawaiian Streams, LSD in the Sky, and Simple Thought, among others, were mostly original, as well as polished. Campolieto and Lee laid down some serious guitar driven jams, trading licks and skillfully using the distortion to build the momentum of the songs. Lee especially demonstrated skill with his instrument, using the fast paced rhythm of the percussion section to deliver some nasty chords. His sound was at times reminiscent of Phish, although less versatile. The crowd dominated its enthusiasm with some particularly frenzied dancing. In all, it was a good night, spent with a good band who knows how to jam.
PHIZNY

continued from page 3

of time we will have to rely on space. But if we don't, we might be more grateful.

Philinea Reuter '71

College Archivist

continued from page 2

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

EVENTS CALENDAR

October 23 - October 30

- God Smack, Pleasure Crush, Revelle, EN'Gee (603) 437-3800

- Politzer Prize winner N. Scott Momaday resides from his works! Mystic River Drummers performs. 7 pm. Matamahkent Museum and Research Center, Ledyard, CT. (860) 290-624-TOAD

- Chamber Music Recital. 4 pm. Leunay Hall, USCA. (860) 437-3800

- N. Scott Momaday performs Mystic River Drum. 2:30 pm. Monday, October 26

- Sculptures, Vision of Order, Earth Crisis. Toad’s Place, New Haven, CT. (860) 624-TOAD

- Gentle Gregg and Allman fans. 8 pm Garde Arts Center. (603) 444-6766

- Oil! Missing Joe, Revelralla. EN’Gee (603) 437-3800

Exhibition Notices

Through January 3

The Unimpressed Body: Three Blake British Artists - Sour Bayes, Stinka Biswas,Keith Piper Yale University Art Gallery. (203) 432-0600

MOVIE TIMES

Shuttomus 10/23 - 10/29

HOYT'S GROTON 6

(Backstage Comedy Festival Extravaganza)
early shows Saturday and Sunday only.

Sellers - 3:00, 6:00, 9:15 pm. Early 1:30 pm.

Blech! (Comedy Film Festival Extravaganza)

Early 1:30 pm. Early 1:30 pm.

Apple - 3:00, 6:00, 9:00 pm.

Blondy - 3:00, 6:00, 9:00 pm.

Blondy - 3:00, 6:00, 9:00 pm. Public show 7:30 and 10:30 pm.

Sellers - 3:00, 6:00, 9:15 pm. Early 1:30 pm.

Blech! (Comedy Film Festival Extravaganza)

Early 1:30 pm. Early 1:30 pm.

Apple - 3:00, 6:00, 9:00 pm.

Blondy - 3:00, 6:00, 9:00 pm. Public show 7:30 and 10:30 pm.

Taste Of Comedy - 12:30, 3:30, 6:00 pm.

What Dreams May Come - 1:30, 4:30, 7:00, 10:00 pm.

A Night of the Roschke - 1:15, 4:15, 7:15, 10:15 pm.

Final Night. EN’Gee (603) 486-4227

HOYT'S WATERFORD 9

123 Cross Road, Waterford, 412-0000

Sellers - 3:00, 6:00, 9:00 pm. Early 1:30 pm.

Blech! (Comedy Film Festival Extravaganza)

Early 1:30 pm. Early 1:30 pm.

Apple - 3:00, 6:00, 9:00 pm.

Blondy - 3:00, 6:00, 9:00 pm. Public show 7:30 and 10:30 pm.

Sellers - 3:00, 6:00, 9:15 pm. Early 1:30 pm.

Blech! (Comedy Film Festival Extravaganza)

Early 1:30 pm. Early 1:30 pm.

Apple - 3:00, 6:00, 9:00 pm.

Blondy - 3:00, 6:00, 9:00 pm. Public show 7:30 and 10:30 pm.

Taste Of Comedy - 12:30, 3:30, 6:00 pm.

What Dreams May Come - 1:30, 4:30, 7:00, 10:00 pm.

A Night of the Roschke - 1:15, 4:15, 7:15, 10:15 pm.

Final Night. EN’Gee (603) 486-4227

HOYT'S MYSTIC 3

22, Mystic, 586-4227

Pre-Show Magic - 6:15, 7:00, 9:30 pm.

Yogi Berra - 8:30, 10:30 pm.

What Dreams May Come - 1:30, 4:30, 7:00, 10:00 pm.

Dark - 8:30, 10:30 pm.

Annie - 8:30, 10:30 pm.

Echoes - 8:30, 10:30 pm.

Millions Like Us - 8:30, 10:30 pm.

What Dreams May Come - 1:30, 4:30, 7:00, 10:00 pm.

A Night of the Roschke - 1:15, 4:15, 7:15, 10:15 pm.

Final Night. EN’Gee (603) 486-4227

Gonzalez

continued from page 4

continued from page 3

continued from page 4

gested an art-oriented SATA would be inspiring and beneficial. Gonzales emphasized the importance of interaction between people of different nations: “When artists take part in an international exchange, they promote learning from both sides.”

Gonzalez loves what she does and hopes to build on her relations-ships here; she enjoys working with her colleagues and with students and is excited about projects that bring the disciplines together. Encouraging students to experiment with different arts and teaching various ways to approach or address them, Gonzalez affirms that, with any of her various roles in life, “art is tied toward lifting the spirit.”

Kiewit Construction Company is seeking highly motivated Engineer Trainees for a position at our Stamford Railroad Station Project. Candidate must possess excellence in computing and mathematics skills. Part-Time and Full-Time positions available.

Jim J. Rivera, Kiewit Construction Company, 50 Chesterton Road, Suite 200, Middletown, NJ (973) Fax # 201-591-1146.

As Equal Opportunity Employer, M/F/DV Honor

most survey participants were not sure what the Code meant by breaking the Code. Many were unclear as to whether underage drinking constituted a violation. Only 7.6% of respondents claimed that the definition of cheating can be interpreted differently, therefore they were uncertain whether or not they had broken the Code.

Despite the great number of students who violated the Code, fifty percent of them reported that they had broken it. Ninety-two percent of students who said they had breached the code for reasons other than cheating. Eight percent reported that they have cheated. Expecting to see a greater number of cheaters, students were surprised by the low percentage. Junior Tricia Atrio believes that more students are aware of the consequences than the number of students who reported on what they believe the Honor Code’s purpose is.

During her career from 1982-86, Gulden helped 27 of them to the center of the team, not only by position as his pride in having the honor of coach both the women’s basketball and the men’s soccer team. He number of years coaching both the women’s basketball and the men’s soccer coach, held double duty for a few years.

During the breakfast bread an Invocation from Chaplain Elaine and then from the President of the College, Athletic Director Ken McBryde, and Master of Ceremonies Fran Shields. Each of the speakers took time to commend these athletes for their dedication and applaud them for their impact on their sports team.

President Gandiuchi spoke in great detail about the development of Conn’s athletic program, the history of the college in all walks of life, and this balance can be most clearly demonstrated by our athletes. "In the student-athletes all college," President Gandiuchi has seen "remarkable support of our teams who exemplify every- day their commitment to fairness and excel- lence. The balance of these two is essential for all aspects of the liberal arts education.

Ken McIntyre described the importance of the individuals here, and stated that these inductees stand in the model for later student-athletes. "People here are good people, that is what makes Conn a great place."

A liberal arts education what we strive for in developing the whole person that’s mind, body, and soul, and these inductees have achieved that goal!"

Current men’s soccer coach, Bill Lillis, had the distinct and rare honor of coaching both the inductees. Coach Lillis, the current men’s soccer coach, held double duty for a number of years coaching both the women’s basketball and the men’s soccer team. He spoke with "true love of the student-athlete, and the true love of their college that these athletes portray." Coach Lillis went onto express his gratitude to these players as well as his pride in having the honor of coach both the inductees.

Inductee Laura Brunner Gulden was unfortunately unable to attend the breakfast, but sent family and friends to accept on her behalf. Jeff Hill, who assisted Coach Lillis, spoke of Lauren family as the "type of athlete which demands attention. Fans, teammates, and coaches gravitate towards her. She was the center of the team, not only by position but in recent as well. She was the focal point."

During her career from 1982-86, Gulden played basketball, soccer, and lacrosse. How- ever, it was her talent at basketball which was recognized on Saturday.

Gulden led her teams to consecutive North Intercollegiate Athletic Conference championship in 1985 and 1986, and compiled a four year record of 65-32. She remains second on all the time points list with 1,844 and also in rebounds with 1,089. She averaged 17.5 points and 11.9 rebounds per game during her time here and still holds the record for most points in a game with 32. She was named to the All-American in women’s sports for the Federation All-American Team all four of her years at Conn. Hill referred to her as "the most important player who ever played here."

With her arrival, she helped to turn around successful teams, winning 90% of the games she composed it. "Laura was the beacon, she set the example, which can be seen after her she followed and the tradition set by her and her teams."

Gulden’s parents, Mr. and Mrs. Brunner, were able to be in attendance as well as many of her teammates. They commented, "Laura is simply overwhelmed by the honor, and she has been given it."

She enjoyed her time at Conn immensely, because of what basketball meant to her while she was there. It was all fun, but became a family. The friendships she formed went beyond the court and extend to the families of her teammates to form a unique and special program here at Conn.

The second inducement of the day was Jeff Geddes who was accompanied by many of his teammates and his wife and daughter. Geddes was one of the many who were nomi- nated by his teammates. He recalled, "The greatest thing about playing soccer at a small college like Conn are the relationships you create. Hardknocks is the best place to play because the crowds really pull you through a tough game and get you going." He went onto to emphasize the value of a small conference and how you create relationship with guys from the conference. "I still run into (in the business world) guys from Middlebury or have an immediate connection with them."

Jeff Geddes, who was a two-time All- American and four-time All-New England selection in soccer, led his team to a 9-17-2 record and two post-season appearances throughout his career (1985-89). Geddes still holds the Camel’s record for total points scored with 146 (points are given for goals and assists) and for goals with 58 throughout his career. In 1986 Geddes led the soccer team in scoring with 43 points as his team went 13-3 and reached the champion- ship game of the ECAC New England Division III tournament for the first time in eight years. Two years later, Geddes helped the Camels to return to post-season play leading the team to a 5-3-2 record in their season earning them an appearance in the semi-finals of the ECAC tournament.

In closing, Geddes recalled the value of his time here at Conn and how coming back gave him the same great feeling it had years ago. "This is a great day, its great to see team- mates here, in fact more than ever that is what I want to do. It is a real honor. It was great seeing Coach Lillis again and the whole day has just added to the won- derful memories I already have."

It was a fabulous day for current students and alumni to share and celebrate the enor- mous pride felt in their athletic program.

On your Honor

Survey Results:

- 100 students polled
- 97 students believe in the Honor Code (97.0%)
- 53 have broken the Honor Code (53.0%)
- Out of a scale of 1 to 4 about the importance of the Code
  1 = What’s the Honor Code?
  2 = I follow it religiously
  3 = I don’t follow it
  4 = I follow it reluctantly
- 106 students polled, 27% of them signed the Honor Code knowing they would break it (27%)
- 9 students said they have broken the Code by cheating on a test (8.5%)

Believe politics has nothing to do with your life?

Skeptical about government?

Discover the true facts.

Intern at the Connecticut State Capitol.

Learn about state government and earn academic credit this summer semester as a legislative intern at the State Capitol. Work with a State Senator or Representative and develop first-hand knowledge of the real world of politics.

Both part-time and full-time internships are available. A major in political science and prior political experience are not required. Academic credit is granted by most colleges and universities. In addition, a travel stipend is awarded to cover the cost of travel to the State Capitol. To learn more about this program and obtain an application see your campus advisor. Additional Information may be obtained on the Web at www.cga.state.ct.us/lw/internship.htm or by writing directly to: Program Director, Legislative Internship Program, Legislative Office Building, Hartford, CT 06116. DEADLINE FOR SUBMISSION OF APPLICATIONS - NOVEMBER 1, 1998.

Contact: Diane Birmingham
Office of Career Services - 439-2771

"I think the honor code is clear, it is easy to understand. Many remain confused about exactly what they are pledged to do.

"Believe politics has nothing to do with your life?"

"Skeptical about government?"

"Discover the true facts.

"Intern at the Connecticut State Capitol."

Learn about state government and earn academic credit this summer semester as a legislative intern at the State Capitol. Work with a State Senator or Representative and develop first-hand knowledge of the real world of politics.

Both part-time and full-time internships are available. A major in political science and prior political experience are not required. Academic credit is granted by most colleges and universities. In addition, a travel stipend is awarded to cover the cost of travel to the State Capitol. To learn more about this program and obtain an application see your campus advisor. Additional Information may be obtained on the Web at www.cga.state.ct.us/lw/internship.htm or by writing directly to: Program Director, Legislative Internship Program, Legislative Office Building, Hartford, CT 06116. DEADLINE FOR SUBMISSION OF APPLICATIONS - NOVEMBER 1, 1998.

Contact: Diane Birmingham
Office of Career Services - 439-2771

Capitol.

Intern at the Connecticut State Capitol.

Learn about state government and earn academic credit this summer semester as a legislative intern at the State Capitol. Work with a State Senator or Representative and develop first-hand knowledge of the real world of politics.

Both part-time and full-time internships are available. A major in political science and prior political experience are not required. Academic credit is granted by most colleges and universities. In addition, a travel stipend is awarded to cover the cost of travel to the State Capitol. To learn more about this program and obtain an application see your campus advisor. Additional Information may be obtained on the Web at www.cga.state.ct.us/lw/internship.htm or by writing directly to: Program Director, Legislative Internship Program, Legislative Office Building, Hartford, CT 06116. DEADLINE FOR SUBMISSION OF APPLICATIONS - NOVEMBER 1, 1998.

Contact: Diane Birmingham
Office of Career Services - 439-2771
Harvestfest weekend filled with “Connmercials” and festivities

By TIFFANY TABER & JEANNE MILLARD

A combination of etiquette lessons and activities oriented towards the local community was the theme of this year’s Harvestfest. Members of Smith and Connecticut College joined forces to hold the festivities on October 16 and 17.

The college community was offended by an anonymous message which read “Connmercials.” Carla Laracuente, a junior and Assistant Chair of MSSC, claims that “as SEEMESSAGE continued on page 9

Patricia A. Wettlaufer, the employment coordinator for Lawrence Memorial Hospital, stated that coming to the Career Fair “promotes the careers of everyone involved.”

The Aftermath, “Race and Nation in the Cold War,” “Literature and Historical Identity,” and “Natural Disasters and Community Responses.”

Conversation with Prof. Emeritus of Dance

By ABBY CARLEN

At a time when Connecticut College students were all female, Professor Martha Myers urged her students to “many women were interested in going to college.” Today’s Dancing Alumnae.

Conversation with Prof. Emeritus of Dance

Myers agreed with Myers’s claim that the school lost “a certain air of civility” with its transition. In closing, Myers urged the representatives to think the attitudes held by the representatives.

Butter.”

History conference storms Blaustein

By NICOLE MANCEVICE

On Saturday, October 17 the New England Historical Association Fall Conference was held in Blaustein. The conference location rotates to that local historians and association members can conveniently attend. This fall, representatives came from all corners of the New England area to present, discuss, and learn about a variety of historical topics.

There were eight sessions throughout the course of the day, each on a designated topic. Each session was guided by a chair and provided a forum where historians and professors from local colleges could present and discuss the topics. "King Philip’s Way: The Aftermath,” “Race and Nation in the Cold War,” “Literature and Historical Identity,” and “Natural Disasters and Community Responses.”

One session, "Writing Women’s Lives: Sovereignties and Pleasures," was led by Connecticut College’s Professor Silberman, who organized and chaired the session. To locate speakers for the conference, Prof. Silberman posted information on a mailing list and received approximately twenty responses. Of these responses, she selected a speaker from Harvard Graduate School of Education, James Madison University, New Hampshire, and an Independent Education Consultant, who each gave ten minute presentations. Following the presentations, there was time allotted for questions.

Housefellow’s message draws fire from La Unidad

By JENNIFER DLEON

A message sent out to all dorms from their Housefellow concerning a food and clothing drive for victims of Hurricane Georges has created animosity between the Housefellow and members of the Minority Students Steering Committee (MSSC). Members of Smith dorm received the message asking for aid.

People in Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic among other Caribbean places, suffered deep damages economically, physically, and emotionally due to Hurricane Georges which left both islands destroyed and destructed. The message was sent “in bad taste”, said Kristin Cyn Goodwin, Assistant Director of Student Life/Director.

Dear Student

Apparently, the student intended to do a fun voice-mail in order to obtain students’ attention. Although the message was made in poor judgment, Cyn Goodwin states that the intention was not meant to hurt any students.

Sara Scally, Housefellow of KB, felt that “no one had bad intentions,” and that “we [Housefellow] were completely for [it] the food and clothing drive.” However, several members of the college community are offended by the voice message. Carla Lancastre, a junior and Assistant Chair of MSSC, claims that “It MESSAGE continued on page 9 members of a college that stresses multiculturalism, we have no excuse to be ignorant.
MESSAGE

Members of La Unidad, the Latino/a organization on campus, are also angry and disappointed. President of La Unidad Christi

Martinez is requesting a public apology for the offensive message because its manifestations are great.

Scally feels that an explanation from both sides would be more appropriate. Much of the confusion, she added, was the result of "bad communication" from both parties. Problems occurred in dorms where Housefellows either "didn't get houses or weren't clear on what they needed to do."

Cyr-Goodwin's attempts to pacify the conflict include creating bet better communication between her and the Housefellows. She asserts that from now on Housefellows will not be able to forward messages from other campus groups to the residents. In her opinion, Housefellows need to be aware of what they are forwarding.

According to Cyr-Goodwin, appropriate action has been taken.

On behalf of the Housefellows imvolved, Cyr-Goodwin extends her personal apologies to the campus distributed to the campus community. Through their efforts, the Messages of Writers House hope to, in Murphys words, inspire people to write and get the community involved in writing.

WIRER'S HOUSE

dent body and compiling it into a collection of student works. This collection will be edited by the members of Writers House and then

continued from page 8

continued from page 8

continued from page 8

HEALTH

services

CAMPUS FLU OUTBREAKS

can be avoided with a Flu Injection. Cost is $8.00. Student accounts can be billed.

Oct. 26 Mon. 9AM-3PM Walk-In Clinic @ Cro-Williams Lobby

Nov. 4 Mon. and Nov. 6 Fri. 10AM-5PM by appointment @ Health Services

Call ext. 2275

Nov. 6 Fri. 10AM-5PM @ the Wellness Fair @ Cro-Wins (1941 room).

Note: Blue Cross Blue Shield representatives will be offering the Flu Vaccine

FREE of charge to card holders at the Wellness Fair.

Health Services will also be there offering the Vaccine at cost.

GOOD WEEKLY INCOME

processing mail for national company! Free supplies, postage! No selling! Bonuses! Start immediately! Genuine opportunity! Please run

Long Self-Addressed

Stamped Envelope to

M P C, SUITE 391

DD You respond to either of these ads?

The Voice has strong reason to suspect that these two advertisements are FRAUDULENT.

We strongly encourage our readership to break off any communication initiated through these ads.

INSTANT CREDIT

Students

Guaranteed Credit Cards with Credit Limits

Up To $10,000 Within Days!

No CREDIT, No JOB, No FICO SCORE, NO SECURITY DEPOSIT!

no credit • bad credit • no income?

If You Think You Can't Get A Credit Card, Think Again.

Want VISA & MasterCard Credit Cards?

If you can sign your name, you can get a Credit Card!

CRA, PO Box 16662

Order Form

YES! I want Credit Cards immediately.

Tired of Being Turned Down?

Guaranteed $10,000 In Credit!
Relaxation techniques may drop midterm-induced stress

Penn State U.

By MARY JORDAN

Daily Collegian

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — For some students, this is the time of year when they find themselves ripping their hair out and wishing winter break were here.

Midterms are in full swing, and stress may be building up. Although many people may not be able to avoid stress, there are ways to deal with it.

There is no "magical secret" to relieving stress, said Mark Roy, assistant professor of health and human development, adding people deal with stress in their own ways. Some students, such as Boris Geri (junior-computer engineering) and Melissa Patrizio (senior-psychology) find exercising helps deal with stress.

"Go for a good run, which helps relieve stress," Patrizio said. Roy said that this is a golden means, such as yoga, meditation or taking a walk are good ways for people to use to deal with stress. He said that finding tanks, watching television or hanging out with friends helps to forget about schoolwork.

"You just need time to relax," Roy said.

Avoid stress, there are ways to deal with it. Patrizio said a number of factors contribute to stress response, including the level of exposure to stress and a person's general disposition. Roy said: Coping with stress is the ultimate way to avoid it from taking over. Coping can come from a person's personality or it can be learned. "Some people never seem to be troubled and others may be bothered by something relatively small," Roy said. Some people fret and worry while others do something about it. "If you eat well and sleep well, you may be better prepared to deal with stress," he said.

Rooms mates Kara Pefyo (freshman-business logistics), Krista Fose (junior-economics and international studies) and Lisa Zito (freshman-marketing) said they work out every day as well as take place. Zito said she took a three-day weekend to relax and reward herself for hard work and good exam grades.

Others just take it one day at a time.

"Look forward to Friday to get through the week," Patrizio said.

U. Connecticut’s student government threatens McDonald’s protest

Penn State U.

By MICHELLE MCLEARY

Daily Campus

STORRS, Conn. —In response to the alleged mistreatment of five UConn students by McDonald's employees in Mansfield, members of the Undergraduate Student Government voted unanimously to hold a protest against the McDonald's restaurant unless it bases a formal apology for Nov. 4.

Colin Kong, a graduate student in cellular molecular biology who was involved in the incident, recounted the details of the evening of May 17, the date of the incident. He said four of his friends were on their way to the Mohgreen Sun casino and decided to stop at the McDonald's restaurant on Route 195 in Mansfield. There, the group found the workers sitting in front of the service counter, talking to people who were not wearing uniforms. Kong said the workers made no motion to serve the five students.

"One of the women, we're sorry, McDonald's is closed because of a bomb threat," Kong said. "We're the president of the university and it's a big matter because there were at least 15 people just sitting around in there."

One of Kong's friends said the food still underneath the heat lamps and he asked a woman with a headset on if McDonald's was open. She then said and asked if Kong wanted a coffee, Kong said.

Once in the car, Kong called a police, patting through the drive-thru.

"We just couldn't believe it," Kong said.

The students tried getting served through the drive-thru and going to be served until the workers recognized Kong's voice. They then told again McDonald's was closed due to a bomb threat.

"As we were leaving, we saw who we found out later was the shift manager - the woman with the headset and another woman outside yelling 'Thanks,' 'Go home' and other racial slurs," Kong said. "Then they took some of the utensils stones and threw them at our car." Kong and three of his friends who were involved that evening are Asian American. The other is Caucasian.

Kong and his friends went to the police and told them side of the story, The McDonald's employes said the students should leave the restaurant. "The officers asked to check our wallets," Kong said. "That's when [the "employes"] started to stink a little faster because we had about four or five hundred dollars in wallets to go Mohgreen Sun. We obviously could pay for a few hamburgers.

"A rep from the shift manager's arrest was issued, but the manager was dismissed, Kong said.

Kong said what he and his friends are looking for is an apology from the restaurant. What they have gotten so far is an offer for free hamburgers, which has been turned down. "I wanted an apology for my dignity and they wanted to supplement that with hamburgers, Kong said. "Our McDonald's restaurant has not responded to letters or initiatives to the USG, which they did not attend.

After a revision of the piece of legislation, it was unanimously passed but UNG's staggered response McDonald's management failure to issue a formal apology, requests a formal apology to the students, and will hold a protest march outside the McDonald's restaurant, until management issues an apology by Nov. 4.

"We don't have money to go out to the community, we're interested in requiring the McDonald's policy. They are interested in dealing with the community, it was not discussed at the forum. Jason Greco, 20, suffered fatal head injuries Oct. 8 after falling down a flight of stairs to the basement of his residence, Theta Chi fraternity house on Mine Street. He and his friends had spent the evening at a bar on Easton Avenue, where he was served alcohol and was reportedly drunk.

Lisa Laitman, health service director at Hulttalto Health Center, is on the committee and heads up a drug and alcohol education program. She said the alternatives being presented might not help those students who detract from the safe environment of the University of Rutgers.

"The students I see every day are not here tonight. There are many responsible students, but many who take serious risks. We have to be aware of that," Laitman said.

Chinese dissidents share Tiananmen experience at Yale human rights talk

Yale U.

By YOOMI LEE

Yale Daily News

(U-WIRE) NEW HAVEN, Conn. — As he introduced Wang Dan, the speaker hosted by the Yale Law School's Schell Center for Internationral Human Rights yester day, Professor Henry Sches er addressed the standing-room-only audience, "How much difference can one person really make in human rights?"

The experience of Chinese dis sident Wang Dan, a leader of the Tiananmen square student protests of 1989, shows how much.

Wang spoke on "Human Rights Activism in China: An Eyewitness Account." He described his experiences in Tiananmen from 1989, as an undergraduate history major at Beijing University who founded a forum to discuss democracy, to spring 1998, when he was released from prison and flown to Detroit on parole.

He has become a history student at Harvard University.

But unlike most students, he has played an integral part in making history rather than just learning it.

"Leader of the Tiananmen Square student protests and flinger" strikes which ended in the massacre of 100,000 people by military forces on June 4, 1989, Wang Dan was at the top of a government list of the 21 most wanted student leaders in China.

During the subsequent nine-year period, Wang was arrested and held in prison twice, charged with participating in a "counter-re volutionary conspiracy and conspiracy to overthrow the government," and sentenced to a total of 15 years in prison.

At the age of 29, Wang has spent more than six years in prison.

"The guarantee of human rights for people is the basis of democrac y," Wang said. He described these objectives as his two main goals for his future litigation. He described himself and the students who joined him in protest for such rights in the "Tiananmen Movement," whose demand is "a new face in international politics as a "democratic, responsible, reasonable country."

"They memorize the number of the drunk bus in the first weekend, but I've heard stories of women hitchhiking back to Douglass when they were drunk," she said.

However, Scheser said there are not many contemporary of amusement in the area.

"There have to be alternatives. We don't have money to go out to the community, we're interested in requiring the McDonald's policy. They are interested in dealing with the community, it was not discussed at the forum. Jason Greco, 20, suffered fatal head injuries Oct. 8 after falling down a flight of stairs to the basement of his residence, Theta Chi fraternity house on Mine Street. He and his friends had spent the evening at a bar on Easton Avenue, where he was served alcohol and was reportedly drunk.

After a brief account of his experiences, students quickly formed a protest against the McDonald's restaurant.
Brighton Beach Memoirs

PHOTOS BY SETH DAVIS
(see story, page 4)
Satellite TV technical issues remain to be worked out

By MITCHELL POLATIN features editor

Conn students probably know by now that they can hook up cable television in their rooms, however most students will find the service to be poor. Satellite television is currently being installed across the campus, but Robert E. Renaud, the Associate Dean of Information Services, makes it clear that what students are watching is not being provided by the school.

"We are in a situation where we are not officially providing cable," Renaud explains. "It will not be provided until there is a consistent level of success." The success which Renaud desires is the improved quality of the cable. As of now, Campus Tele Video is having trouble with the installation.

Since last spring, students at Conn have been hearing rumors of a state of the art satellite television system, Renaud says. Officially, the system was supposed to be installed over the summer, but when students returned in the fall, there was no apparent progress in regards to satellite television in the dorms. Students began to wonder if satellite television was on the same schedule as the plex renovations. However, progress became apparent when the fight over the billing took center stage.

In what seems to be a victory for students, the billing for the system will not be placed on students phone bills as originally planned, rather the administration will work the fees into the general budget. Brent Never, the SGA President who has worked closely with the satellite television issue, explains "there will be no tuition increase. The college has found some funds, but next year, it will go in the general budget." This revelation has pleasantly surprised students, yet students still wonder why a struggle over funds was necessary. Apparently, the school could have provided the funding all along.

At a time when students are frustrated by the slow implementation of satellite television Renaud, who is only in his seventh week at this school, appears to be working harder than anyone to not only assure that satellite television is installed, but to ensure that the quality is up to par. Renaud explains that there have been "a number of technical problems since the project began." Among the problems, Renaud cites is the poor reception of channels 35 and higher and the installation problems the company is having in the plex. Cable was originally wired through Morrison, but now that Morrison is no longer active, the company must find a way around that issue.

At the end of October, the company is going to test the quality of the reception, but Renaud is not banking on a November first start date as yet. November first is the date students were told in a Bulletin Broadcast received the day cable was supposed to have taken effect several weeks ago. Renaud explains, "We will not accept the system until it meets our standards."

It is not official when the service is sub standard.

The lack of preparation of Campus Tele Video seems to have cost students and the campus weeks without cable and an uncertain future. Nevertheless, an end to the conflict between students and the administration does not appear to be in sight. Students in dormitories where the reception is good are now able to watch a wide variety of channels. Come November first, December, or next semester when satellite television is implemented, many students are sure to be upset when they loose most of the channels—including MTV, ESPN and VH 1—in favor of channels the administration sees "academically fit."

Josh,

Best of luck on your midterms.
Academics first!

Love,
Mom & Dad
THE PIZZA DELIVERY EXPERTS

How You Like Pizza At Home

PIZZA

12" Original or Thin Crust Pizza............$5.29
12" Deep Dish Pizza..................................$6.30
14" Original or Thin Crust Pizza............$7.41
14" Deep Dish Pizza...............................$6.30
16" Extra Large Original Pizza...............$9.54

Extra Toppings: 12"......................$1.00
14"..............................$1.50
16"..............................$2.00

Toppings Choices:
- Pepperoni
- Bacon
- Sausage
- Hot Pepper Rings
- Ground Beef
- Onion
- Ham
- Anchovies
- Pineapple
- Green Peppers
- Mushrooms
- Black Olives
- Tomato
- Jalapeno Peppers

Call 442-9383
For FREE Delivery

Delivery Hours:
open every day for lunch at 11:00 AM
Sunday - Thursday 11:00 AM - Midnight
Friday & Saturday 11:00 AM - 1:00AM

SUBMARINES

12" Sub & potato chips.......................$5.85
Zesty Italian: Zesty seasoning, Ham, Salami, Pepperoni, Cheese, Onion
Ham & Cheese: Ham, Cheese, Lettuce, Tomato, Onion, Oil & Vinegar
Club Sub: Turkey, Ham, Cheese, Lettuce, Tomato, Onion, Oil & Vinegar
Philly Steak: Philly Steak Blend, Zesty Seasoning, Cheese
Zesty Meatball: Zesty Seasoning, Meatball, Pizza Sauce, Cheese
Vegi Sub: Cheese, Lettuce, Tomato, Onion, Green Pepper, Mushroom, Oil & Vineager
Turkey & Cheese: Turkey, Cheese, Lettuce, Tomato, Onion

OTHER ITEMS

- Garden Fresh Salad
- Side and Full Size
- Buffalo Wings
- Hot, Mild, & BBQ
- Cheese Bread
- Twisty Bread

MINIMUM ORDER $5.00 • CALL FOR QUANTITY DISCOUNTS & FUND RAISING PROMOTIONS

Saturday Super Deal
Large Cheese Pizza

Only $5.00 +Tax

BEVERAGES

1 Liter........................................$1.42+tax
Coke, Diet Coke, Sprite, Ice Tea

2 Liter........................................$1.99+tax
Coke & Sprite
The College Voice
Friday, October 23, 1998

CAMEL SPORTS

DEBATE

continued from page 10

... "the separation of church and state ... in her district.

Kennelly is also opposed to the ... the results of the election.

With regard to education, the candidates discussed using state funds or vouchers to pay for students to attend non-public schools. Rowland opposes this, and noted programs such as Project Concern, \[ ... paying the critical choice of accepting the 'shared responsibility to pass on ... \]

Women's Soccer

The defense, led by sweeper Kelly Wissman '00 was able to shut the door the Polar Bears scoring chances. Goalkeeper Amanda Baltzley '00 had continued her solid play with a terrific game, stopping 11 shots.

With the victory, the Camels increased their record to 6-3 coming one step closer to a NCAA berth and moved up from sixth to fifth in the NSCAA Metro Region poll.

Bowdoin dropped to 6-3-1 on the season.

Conn will try to extend their winning streak when they take on the long trip to Bates this Saturday,

continued from page 10

despite the efforts to establish political parties in China, each party's platform still includes a statement regarding the leadership of the Communist Party and the presidency of Jiang Zemin.

At one point, a member of the audience stood up and, speaking in rapid Chinese, claimed the American media exaggerate the human rights situation in China. Wang responded quickly, saying he lines at the two microphones set up in the auditorium to ask questions.

U-Wire

In Wang's answers to the questions, some of which were phrased in his native Chinese, he said any contact between China and the U.S. was beneficial in promoting the democratization of China. Wang said the East Asian financial crisis showed the dangers of pushing for economic reforms without political reform, and stressed the need for both in his country.

He said he hoped for rapid political reform, but said he was skeptical about the Chinese human rights violations were not as bad as they are portrayed by the media—but only by a slim margin.

His response was met with another barrage of comments in Chi-

Chinese, until Koh interrupted and ended the discussion.

Noel Sugimura '01 said this point was "probably the most interesting exchange" of the whole talk, while other students expressed an-unanimous dissatisfaction at this untransliterated portion of the dialogue.

Field Hockey

continued from page 16

reached the goalie. Soon thereafter, Wiss beautifully redirected a McChesney blast only to be stifled once again, this time by the Bears' remaining defense.

Bowdoin jumped all over the Camels to open play in the sec-ond half. Conn was unable to clear their zone for the first six minutes, and the Bears took advantage by quickly scoring two goals. With the lead extended to 4-0, Conn would need a miracle to forge a comeback. McChesney, Heidi Johnson '01, and Susie Davis '00 all worked hard to create scoring chances, but no one managed to crack the Bear defense.

A miracle did not come to rescue Conn this time, but tri-captains Wiss, Liz Wesson '99, and Pamela Robbins '99 will lead the fearless Camels (2-8) into battle Thursday, Oct. 22 against UMass-Dartmouth.
Why the Red Sox need the curse of the Bambino

BY JASON LIEBERMAN
staff writer

Growing up in a small town outside of Boston, I was fortunate to be surrounded by such a rich culture. In fact, I can remember back as early as elementary school when I learned three simple yet valuable lessons. These lessons were that the word “legend” can be both a consonant and a vowel, gold stars are actually worth more than real gold, and that the Red Sox will never win the World Series because of the curse of the Bambino.

At first, this was hard to understand, but following the Sox for such a long period of time with multiple disappointments, it seems much more obvious now. The Curse of the Bambino, for those not familiar, is the name given to the Boston Red Sox’s inability to win the World Series since the Babe Ruth trade to the New York Yankees in 1920. Here’s why the Red Sox need the curse of the Bambino.

1. It’s a part of the team’s remarkable history and tradition. Boston has always been looked upon as one of the most storied franchises in all of baseball. People from all over the country, if not the world, come to a Sox game just to take in a ballgame at historic Fenway Park.

2. Another reason to cherish the curse is that this is part of the Red Sox’s remarkable baseball heritage and tradition. The great characteristic of all Red Sox fans is that this might actually be the year we get to see the Green Monster, Pesky’s Pole, and the Yacht Club. Scoring on a hattrick. Jon Cooper had two goals and Nate Porter and Eric Gilkiss each had one goal.

4. Men’s Soccer Roundup: Four different players scored goals for Bowdoin College in a 4-2 win over the Camels Saturday, Oct. 17, afternoon. Bowdoin, 8-2, won its fifth straight game. The Camels (5-4) had three of their four winning streaks stopped. Forward Patrick Halgren ‘01 gave Bowdoin a 1-0 lead after 21 minutes into the game scoring off a pass from midfielder Patrick Roverswell ’02 to extend the margin to 1-0. Connecticut College pulled back to within a goal at 5-4 with 15:20 remaining when midfielder Jamie Tullite ‘99 put a ball in the net to put home his first goal of the season. With the Camels looking to tie the score in the closing minutes, Bowdoin scored a twounce one opportunity when Smith found midfielder Steve Voss ‘99 with thirty-two seconds remaining to give a Bowdoin a 4-2 win. George Chapman ‘99 had two goals for Connecticut College. Bowdoin goalie Tom Cassarella ‘00 had eight saves.

5. Finally, the Curse of the Bambino brings Boston fans together almost as if everyone was striving to reach a common goal. The Curse of the Bambino is a major league drubbing, a hattrick. Jon Cooper had two goals and Nate Porter and Eric Gilkiss each had one goal.

7. Men’s Soccer Roundup: Four different players scored goals for Bowdoin College in a 4-2 win over the Camels Saturday, Oct. 17, afternoon. Bowdoin, 8-2, won its fifth straight game. The Camels (5-4) had three of their four winning streaks stopped. Forward Patrick Halgren ‘01 gave Bowdoin a 1-0 lead after 21 minutes into the game scoring off a pass from midfielder Patrick Roverswell ’02 to extend the margin to 1-0. Connecticut College pulled back to within a goal at 5-4 with 15:20 remaining when midfielder Jamie Tullite ‘99 put a ball in the net to put home his first goal of the season. With the Camels looking to tie the score in the closing minutes, Bowdoin scored a twounce one opportunity when Smith found midfielder Steve Voss ‘99 with thirty-two seconds remaining to give a Bowdoin a 4-2 win. George Chapman ‘99 had two goals for Connecticut College. Bowdoin goalie Tom Cassarella ‘00 had eight saves.

8. Finally, the Curse of the Bambino brings Boston fans together almost as if everyone was striving to reach a common goal. The Curse of the Bambino is a major league drubbing, a hattrick. Jon Cooper had two goals and Nate Porter and Eric Gilkiss each had one goal.
Women's Volleyball has strong showing in last home match

By JEN BRENNAN

The Camels out-hustled and out-scored the lost-looking Knights. As they ousted the Polar Bears, 2-1, the crowd, the Camels didn't show it in the final ten minutes (15-4, 9-15, 15-4), dropping their record to 3-17. Allie Keen '99 and Brooke Lombardy '00 both played a strong match with nine and eight digs respectively and were helped by Guzzardo '01 who added seven assists.

The Camels are back in action at Clark with Westfield State Saturday, Oct. 24.

Field hockey absorbs Homecoming defeat

By TIM FLANAGAN

The young Camels continue to experience growing pains after absorbing a 4-0 defeat on Homecoming weekend, but the heavily freshman-laden squad did show some encouraging signs. Early in the first half, Molly McAniff '02 (fresh off a one goal, one assist performance versus Mount Holyoke) rifled a shot that required the Bowdoin goalie to make a nice kick save. Conn continued pressuring as Annie Brown '02 almost converted on two other good scoring opportunities. While these two promising freshmen field the offense, Danielle LeBlanc '99 provided the defense by swatting away a Bowdoin penalty shot.

In the final ten minutes of the half, the Camels mounted their most offensive attack. Down 1-0, CONNECTICUT 0 BOWDOIN 4 Madeleine Mchenry '00 passed to the streaking Brown, who then found Brett Wiss '00 in front of the net. Bowdoin's defense, however, deflected Wiss' shot before it ever saw FIELD HOCKEY.

Upcoming sports

Women's Tennis
10/23-25 New England Championship @ Amherst
Field Hockey
10/24 Bates
10/31 Williams 12:00pm
Sailing
10/24 ICYRA Singlehanded Nationals @ King's Point
10/26 ICYRA Singlehanded Nationals @ King's Point

Men's Soccer
10/24 @ Bates
10/29 @ Eastern Connecticut

Women's Soccer
10/24 @ Bates
10/28 @ Eastern Connecticut

Women's Volleyball
10/24 @ Clark w/ Westfield State
10/29 @ Coast Guard 7pm

Rowing
10/31 Jd Annual Thames River Regatta vs. Coast Guard