11-11-1969

Satyagraha Vol. 53 No. 16

Connecticut College

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.conncoll.edu/ccnews_1969_1970

Recommended Citation

http://digitalcommons.conncoll.edu/ccnews_1969_1970/6

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Newspapers at Digital Commons @ Connecticut College. It has been accepted for inclusion in 1969-1970 by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Connecticut College. For more information, please contact bpancier@conncoll.edu.

The views expressed in this paper are solely those of the author.
by Nancy Watkin
Professor OOKO, Desiderato (chairman, psychology department) became a member of the Committee on Draft Education two years ago, and is now chairman of this active, non-violent organization.

He gave his personal view for joining: "I'm doing this because I reached a point where I was terribly, terribly upset about the war and about my not doing anything.

"I view counseling as a way to get people to think of their rights as citizens, of what their obligations may be to their country, to question their acceptance of the country's laws. Draft counseling is for me an instrument for increasing social-political awareness.

"The committee has two main functions. First, they educate people about the law; second, they explain the draft system, how it works, its defects, its 'passions.'

"Secondly, the members give information to anyone interested. They counsel those who are already in the service, as well as those who are trying to stay out.

Peace Time Draft New

"We get requests for counseling from men who have developed conscientious objections to being drafted. We have not had any peace time draft cases, but after Vietnam, we have been counseling a great number of men who want to stay out."

"This country has a long tradition of not having a draft. Why are we having it? What are the alternatives? What are the reasons for the draft?"

"Our main function is to present information about the current draft law - its defects, its injustice. The committee is non-formal in that we take no official position on any draft issue."

"The committee was found by Reverend Burdick, a "life-long reformer," according to Mr. Desiderato. Other members include attorneys, teachers in the local area as well as from Conn College, and town citizens of all ages.

"The committee is not formally affiliated with any other group, though it does informally affiliate with the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee and the local SCLC offices.

"The members do not counsel outright resistance to the draft. The main function of the committee is to present information on the draft system, to help people understand it."

William Burdick Conducts Master Class in Renaissance Dance

by Anne Hammel

The music and dance of the European court dances from the Renaissance period is the interest and work of William Burdick. In the lecture-demonstration on Thursday night, students were exposed to styles which previously were unfamiliar. The lecture-demonstration was followed by a dance class of the period between 1450 and 1850 (at about which time court dancing became historical).

"Our research burdens archetypical court dances. We use eight dances, four from the 15th century and four from the 16th century," Desiderato stated.

The personal simplicity and repetition of most of the dance forms did not strike me as being all the formalities or as engaging an interesting conversation with him or her partner.

"The dancing was also constraining. Why, we ask, did the lady do not more than step, extend her hand, and charmingly smile? Probably because her arm was wrapped in a corset, a forty-pound jeweled gown with twelve petticoats, and prepared to paint."

Two dancers perform movements from the Renaissance period. photo by hookayo

The repertoire and simplicity of most of the dance forms did not strike me as being all the formalities or as engaging an interesting conversation with him or her partner.

"The dancing was also constraining. Why, we ask, did the lady do not more than step, extend her hand, and charmingly smile? Probably because her arm was wrapped in a corset, a forty-pound jeweled gown with twelve petticoats, and prepared to paint."

The repertoire and simplicity of most of the dance forms did not strike me as being all the formalities or as engaging an interesting conversation with him or her partner.

"The dancing was also constraining. Why, we ask, did the lady do not more than step, extend her hand, and charmingly smile? Probably because her arm was wrapped in a corset, a forty-pound jeweled gown with twelve petticoats, and prepared to paint."

The repertoire and simplicity of most of the dance forms did not strike me as being all the formalities or as engaging an interesting conversation with him or her partner.

"The dancing was also constraining. Why, we ask, did the lady do not more than step, extend her hand, and charmingly smile? Probably because her arm was wrapped in a corset, a forty-pound jeweled gown with twelve petticoats, and prepared to paint."

The repertoire and simplicity of most of the dance forms did not strike me as being all the formalities or as engaging an interesting conversation with him or her partner.

"The dancing was also constraining. Why, we ask, did the lady do not more than step, extend her hand, and charmingly smile? Probably because her arm was wrapped in a corset, a forty-pound jeweled gown with twelve petticoats, and prepared to paint."

The repertoire and simplicity of most of the dance forms did not strike me as being all the formalities or as engaging an interesting conversation with him or her partner.

"The dancing was also constraining. Why, we ask, did the lady do not more than step, extend her hand, and charmingly smile? Probably because her arm was wrapped in a corset, a forty-pound jeweled gown with twelve petticoats, and prepared to paint."

The repertoire and simplicity of most of the dance forms did not strike me as being all the formalities or as engaging an interesting conversation with him or her partner.
Letters to the Editor

To the College Community:

Our first-year class presents that unfortunate thing called mid-terms...this year on Tuesday, Nov. 12 at 8:30—and it is my duty, as director, to ask you to think of not only heavy objects or soap packets, but the people on stage. I am sure you will not think of me. We encourage anyone who would like to talk to us personally to come to the office and do so.

It is not as if we don’t provide channels of communication for different viewpoints. Every letter to the editor is printed. In addition, the "Controversy" column is open to all students for the expression of views directly concerned with issues discussed in Satyagraha." This column was announced in the Fall issue of the preceding year. Many thanks for printing my letter. I hope the next one will be printed also.

The content of my message was correct. The general idea seems to have been an error as to my affiliation (also in calling Professor Havens, Hannah, I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

Moreover, to relieve any doubt regarding Senator McCarthy's willingness or inability to stand off a bit from the wistful word, if I will say that, I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

Bernard I. Munstein
Professor of Psychology

Dear Editors:

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

Moreover, to relieve any doubt regarding Senator McCarthy's willingness or inability to stand off a bit from the wistful word, if I will say that, I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

Bernard I. Munstein
Professor of Psychology

Dear Editors:

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

Moreover, to relieve any doubt regarding Senator McCarthy's willingness or inability to stand off a bit from the wistful word, if I will say that, I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

Bernard I. Munstein
Professor of Psychology

Dear Editors:

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

Moreover, to relieve any doubt regarding Senator McCarthy's willingness or inability to stand off a bit from the wistful word, if I will say that, I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

Bernard I. Munstein
Professor of Psychology

Dear Editors:

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

Moreover, to relieve any doubt regarding Senator McCarthy's willingness or inability to stand off a bit from the wistful word, if I will say that, I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

Bernard I. Munstein
Professor of Psychology

Dear Editors:

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

Moreover, to relieve any doubt regarding Senator McCarthy's willingness or inability to stand off a bit from the wistful word, if I will say that, I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

Bernard I. Munstein
Professor of Psychology

Dear Editors:

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

Moreover, to relieve any doubt regarding Senator McCarthy's willingness or inability to stand off a bit from the wistful word, if I will say that, I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

Bernard I. Munstein
Professor of Psychology

Dear Editors:

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

Moreover, to relieve any doubt regarding Senator McCarthy's willingness or inability to stand off a bit from the wistful word, if I will say that, I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

Bernard I. Munstein
Professor of Psychology

Dear Editors:

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

Moreover, to relieve any doubt regarding Senator McCarthy's willingness or inability to stand off a bit from the wistful word, if I will say that, I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

Bernard I. Munstein
Professor of Psychology

Dear Editors:

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

In a letter to the editors last week, Sen. Barry Goldwater cleared the air of the discussion styled, "Senator McCarthy's speech for its lack of "specific proposals."" He pointed out that, as the Senator, as a national leader, has the obligation to implement his theory for reform with an active commitment to principle.

Moreover, to relieve any doubt regarding Senator McCarthy's willingness or inability to stand off a bit from the wistful word, if I will say that, I am not in the French Department as you stated but in Psychology. Encouraged by your statement, however, I presented my candidacy to the French Department. But, although I could not, I believe it is a viable candidate anywhere in the College. I presented my candidature to the Senator, as a national leader, to make obligatory my role of setting the standard for active with an active commitment to principle.

Bernard I. Munstein
Professor of Psychology
The student members are: Susan Crocke, Lehman Hayes, Marcy McCready, Katie See, and Nancy Topping.

Grievance Procedure Reviewed
The faculty also received a report from its Summer Ad Hoc Committee on the question of faculty grievance procedures and existing and possible remedies.

The report centered on three main issues: appointment, termination of appointments, and promotion; conflicts between department chairmen and members of departments over various academic and administrative matters; and conflicts between the faculty and administration regarding general college policy.

Recommendations included such changes as the chairman consulting with all tenured members of the department regarding recommendations for appointments, terminations and granting of tenure and allowing tenured members, who disagree with the chairman's recommendation, to file a minority opinion. In addition, chairmen will be required to report the opinions of the Student Advisory Committee on such matters. And, faculty who have been recommended for termination shall have the right to present their own cases in writing to the Advisory Committee and the President before a final decision is made.

Recommended Rotating Chairmen
The report called for a rotating chairmanship of departments where any full time member of a department, regardless of rank or tenure is eligible. The term of each appointment chairmanship made by the President should not exceed three years although a department member may be reappointed.

The report gave the Committee on College Development the power to investigate matters of conflict between the faculty and administration.

The report also recommended the establishment of a Good Office Committee for any student, faculty, or staff member to file a complaint.

The AD Hoc Summer Committee consists of seven members: Michael A. Burlingame, instructor in history, F. Edward Cranz, Rosemary Park professor of history, Philip H. Jordan, Jr., dean of faculty, Mrs. Sabine Jordan, assistant dean of the College, Thomas Havens, associate professor of history, and James WALLIS, assistant professor of French.

OLYMPIC SPORTING GOODS CO.,
116 Bank Street
New London
442-0056
Monday, October 20
Opening of Ski Shop
"SkI Package Deal"
Sport Carpet, Half-Size Stag

Friendly ICE CREAM
SHOPS
171 Broad Street
New London

Deal with a woman's body like a woman.

For a woman, understand pro- blem is not through Trend's the problem of vaginal odor. A problem of understanding a problem, understanding a woman in no matter where you are. That's when she is most acceptable.

Bette Davis once said that women with no intelligently correct to create color or create the colors they use. It is well and good to know how to apply makeup, but it is even more important to know how to understand and control it. So, you can relate to your body's needs, basing it on some body's specific body's needs. You can see the body of a woman's body at any given time, knowing that she has been designed to be a woman. It is a problem in the sense of being a woman. But, if you were to study the skin of a woman's body with a woman's body problem like a woman. Ceremony.

The problem of vaginal odor is a problem that is not usually considered by most people. Many women do not even know they have this problem, thinking that it is just a normal part of being a woman. But, if you were to study the skin of a woman's body with a woman's body problem like a woman. Ceremony.
News Notes

On Thurs., Nov. 13 at 6:45 there will be a meeting of the Yale Ski Club in the Windham living room. Interested students may contact Barbara Bush in Windham, post office box 149.

Hunter College is presenting a Contemporary and Avant-Garde music series on Nov. 9, Feb. 8 and Mar. 22. For further information call 535-5560 or write to Hunter College, 695 Park Avenue, New York.

The NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund was founded to finance legal action against school segregation. The Fund is now badly in need of donations. Contributions may be sent to: The "Committee of 100", P.O. Box 3278, New York, N.Y. 10008.

As a result of offerings donated during Sunday Services at Harkness Chapel, the Chapel was able to donate $108.12 to the Committee of Responsibility, which serves war-injured Vietnamese children, and $52.90 to the American Friends Service Committee.

The Peace Corps now offers an upper division undergraduate education with Peace Corps preparation. Interested students may write to Dr. John Crossdell, Director, Peace Corps/College Degree Program, State University College at Brockport, Brockport, New York, 14420.

R. Havens Concert Characterized By Casual Atmosphere
by Gail Herbert

On October 31st, folk singer and rhythm guitarist, Richie Havens, performed at Philharmonic Hall, in New York City. Mr. Havens has a very distinctive style that can make the familiar songs of the Beatles or Bob Dylan sound original. He has a range of sound and style that ranges from soft, melodic folk to a penetrating and driving blues.

Richie Haven’s voice which is enhanced by a slight lisp, was very pleasing, and it blended quite well with his guitar accompaniment.

Between songs, Havens would philosophize with the audience. His thoughts rambled although he occasionally made a few profound remarks.

At times all he could do was sigh, shake his head and say, “Unbelievable.”

Among the selections he sang was “High Flying Bird”, “Strawberry Fields Forever”, and “Handsome Johnny”. One song that he did extremely well was “Motherless Child”.

Richie Havens was accompanied on some songs by a folk guitarist, an electric guitarist, and a bongo player. These players helped to create the driving rhythm which is the Havens’ specialty.

Although the concert was held in Philharmonic Hall, the atmosphere that was created was one of an intimate living room get together. The audience which was made up of people mostly under the age of 25, responded to Mr. Havens with excitement, and what seemed to be a form of love.

Viget Hoffman’s comment and quote: “I am Curious” is “a landmark likely to permanently shatter many of our last remaining movie conventions,” says William Wolf of Cue Magazine. The Evergreen Film presented by Grove Press stars Lena Nyman. A Sandrews Production. ADMISSION RESTRICTED TO ADULTS.