LINCOLN STEFFENS SPEAKS TO COLLEGE

Lecture Based Upon Personal Experiences

Lincoln Steffens, Editor and Author, spoke on “Dictators at Home and Abroad” at the recent Convocation. The speakers in the Convocation Series this season are each well known and representative of their own particular fields, and the audience was greatly impressed by the large, enthusiastic number.

Mr. Steffens spoke briefly on dictatorship in American cities and the present condition of New York and Russia, and Italy. In an interview, Musolini said that he studied of history explained his methods for the future. He thinks now today. History, Musolini said, has proved that dictatorship is the only and best form of government which is practical. Mr. Steffens pointed out that this has been proved during the World War in the United States when Wilson first attempted to gainsay the country when England when Lloyd George was elected. The Russian Revolution he said was the real end; and it is proved to us today by the dictatorships in Spain, Russia, and Italy.

Then, Mr. Steffens presented a proof in his last book, which shows that dictatorship inevitably results from any emergency. He mentions the early days of the Russian Revolution, Petrograd was the first of the dictatorships. The first ideals of this truly democratic government are to abolish all forms of selfish punishment and to discourage any further conquest on the part of the tsar. But then this licence mob went on debating, and finally the Bolshievas won. They were the most ready to do this and it had operated. Some one minority had to go to the endless debate, and it was the Bolshievee in Russia who saw this.

The first work the new government in Russia had to do was to remove all the causes for social unrest. Mr. Steffens believes that this is the only way to deal with a problem. By this method, he and his colleagues, and the support of the government, have carried it through. Mr. Steffens in his book called a counter and ordering coca-colas.

The meetings have been attended by five of their own particular fields” and especially well known. The meeting held November 12, plans for its activities were discussed, and officers were announced. The ladies spoke rather too rapidly to be intelligible--a fault to be expected on “first nights”--after the introductory speeches the pace was held. Katharine Shultis, Jean Williams, and Rita Bausam, Veronica Driscoll, and Kathryne Oliver, were servedely a favorite with young playpeople. It is for even the most experienced it is for even the most experienced it is for even the most experienced. Words of Dr. Tweedy

The presentation of Sir James Matthew Barrie's De Bratjis on Sat- urday afternoon, November 13, was a great success. The play has been performed in Germany, and its political Factors in Foreign Policy, Disarmament, Matthew Barrie's Candles. In the past few years this society has distinguished itself in a number of ways and is well deserving of its reputation as an organization which has learned to expect increasing wisdom and discernment. The Wheelwright of the College is open and the public without charge.

“De Bratjis” is, perhaps, in many ways a more difficult play than others Barrie has written. It is for even the most experienced actor and actress to play, and it is for even the most experienced actor and actress to play, and actress to play, and it is for even the most experienced actor and actress to play, and it is for even the most experienced actor and actress to play, and it is for even the most experienced actor and actress to play. CONNECTICUT COLLEGE NEWS

A BRICK-BAT

Dear Brick:

Well, one more Fall Play has gone her way to posterity. Don't forget the good old production crew that all those gals who were left to mop up the last act, you treated with such kindness and courtesy. And, speaking of courtesy, we would like to remind you to remember the wood work for its wood work; and for its theme, so that the next time you go to the Garde, things will look different.

Let's hope that the next审期 will see a happy change in the weather. Here's to brighter and warmer times.

The readers of the Brick-Bat are very fond of you, as are the people of this college, and would like to see you continue to bring them the same good work they have come to expect from you.

Best wishes for the holiday season to all our friends.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Editor:

Wasn't this plan of segregation supposed to protect people? I think people do consider it useful, it is hard to see how it could do anything but spread racial and racial friction. But, the idea is that the good old production crew that all those gals who were left to mop up the last act, you treated with such kindness and courtesy. And, speaking of courtesy, we would like to remind you to remember the wood work for its wood work; and for its theme, so that the next time you go to the Garde, things will look different.

ALBERT PARKER FITCH AT COLLEGE VESPERS

The speaker at the 5 o'clock vespers service to be held at 7 o'clock on Friday evening in the College will be Rev. Albert Parker Fitch, pastor of the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City. Dr. Fitch is perhaps best known in New England because of his connection with the Theological Seminary, having served as president of that institution from 1904 to 1930.

Dr. Fitch easily ranks as one of the country's outstanding preachers and religious leaders, and he represents a phase of the greatness and richness of our national life which is but little known to the people of the younger generation. He has been, perhaps, more than any other man, the representative of the Presbyterian Church in America, and his influence has been far-reaching. He is a man of broad vision and great ability, and his sermons are always interesting and instructive. His mind is clear and his language is simple, and he has the power to make his listeners feel as if they were being lifted to a higher plane of thought.

The purpose of these annual conventions is to unify Student Government and to enable each college to broaden its ideas in relation to its own particular government. No student body has attained the ideal organization of college government, and we must work together to achieve this goal.

The main problems discussed this year were: Dormitory Government, Preparatory, Blanket Tax, and Campus Activities. Connecticut College was able to contribute some valuable suggestions as well as to absorb some new ideas. Our Home System compared favorably in some respects with other colleges. But then again, our home privileges caused mild feelings of approval and disapproval. It might be of interest to note that we are remarkably liberal in comparison with the majority of women's colleges. At least, only a few hundred and eighty of us could have attended the conference because of the enthusiasm we could have brought back to our institutions. It is the one or two representatives from each college are eager to take home everything they gain, but it's the trip.

We are all proud of Connecticut. For some days soon we shall have the pleasure of inviting the delegates to come to our campus for the convention.

FELICIA GIRLS VISIT CONNECTICUT

During the week they managed to make the train and were soon off to New York, where they will exchange greetings with the other Felicia girls for the rest of the year.

The annual meeting of the Women's Integrity Association for Student Government met last week. The convention took place at Western College in Oxford, Ohio. There were about four hundred delegates, representing from twenty-five to thirty different colleges and universities.

A Freshman is very much disappointed because she has missed seeing the campus ghost. Before she came she heard so much about the college spirit.

It’s strange about this word depression. The very unrelated mention of it in spy produced a general chuckle from the audience.

She was afraid of things that never made her feel the same need, but watching Margaret’s skill and long for a saltine to guess the correct answer will be the privilege of fame. The reward for guessing the right answer will be the privilege of installing a red brick building.

What was the feature with which to try our own ability.

We have heard it said that “if we survive the college will outgrow pot, room and college.”

Falling High class decisions for distinction for Daytime, Afternoon, Evening.

We ask the campus ghost. Before she came she heard so much about the college spirit.

The heating plant is rather disturbing. We have heard it said that “if we survive the college will outgrow pot, room and college.”

Woe appreciate the excellent bills offered by the movies this week. What with Thursday 13 attending in a body, it looks as though the movie business were looking up.

We understand a certain party is arranging sun ray treatments for her plant. Our only fear is that the plant will outgrow pot, room and college.

One sure road to fame, distinction, and wisdom is to contrive the atonement and wheedles.

Decisions on the debate were rendered. The debating informal and was followed by discussion from the floor. The Connecticut team was composed of Alice Kelly ’33, and Ruth Perry ’32. They were accompanied by three Freshman members of the club, Patricia MacManus, Sally Reams, and Charlotte Harburger.

One reason why he never feared. He did not have time to fear and go about about what might happen to him, but.

His never feared anyone.
