Various Subjects Discussed at Stu. Gov't. Meeting

Amendment Concerning Election of Officers, Proposed and Carried

Project For Training Officers Presented

An amalgamation meeting was held Monday night at 7:00 in the Gym. There were several topics brought up in the course of the meeting, one of which was the adoption of a new system to elect the student officers. The term was to be changed from the present term of one year to four years. The new system was to be put into effect immediately. The students were asked to vote on the amendment and to vote for their new officers.

Dean Nye Speaks Of Exchange Fellowships From Other Countries

Dean Nye spoke on the exchange fellowships at Connecticut College. In 1915 when this college was established, two women's colleges were opened in Connecticut. For a time we exchanged our News with their literary productions. Connecticut interest in women students in other lands, and other foreign countries, was increasing. From this category the name of "assistantships" enabled her to send students to Canada, Peru, England, and other foreign countries. Maltes Berg, one of the first foreign graduates, is now on the faculty in the Division of English. Student Friendship War Fund was raised as a part of a national drive to relieve the suffering of teachers and students abroad.

Caravan Players Present "Taming Of The Shrew"

On Saturday evening, Nov. 17, the Caravan Players gave the school the opportunity of seeing The Taming Of The Shrew, presented by the Caravan Players. The play was directed by Arthur L. Elliott of Harvard University, in the words of Stephen Leacock who said of Don Quixote that "he mount his horse, and rode off rapidly in every direction." Prof. Elliott, convocation speaker in his lecture entitled "Economic Prospects of the New Deal," pointed out the tendencies of the New Deal. Like the colored doctor who mixed all his medications together to find the basic medicene and then succeeded in killing off his patients, New Deal methods have tried every remedy. Tendencies were mainly, although not constantly inflationist. In the beginning, it was clear that improved methods were the order of the day, as was seen by the change in the prices of goods. The offer of a universalized program which followed a general outline of responsibility and control, centralized in Washington. This centralizing control was an effort to save a system aiming at bankruptcy. The theory of government expenditure to make credit available for public spending has the defect that it frightens people who do not feel that their money was safe in investments. The result of the devaluation of the dollar to 59 cents is to make credit available for public spending. The gold purchasing policy was a warning that the government intended to keep foreign prices up and domestic prices down. Britain and the United States are on the sterling level. There is strong pressure on France to modify or leave the gold standard. Here was a problem for the New Deal. The United States is on the gold standard, and the gold price is fixed at 69 cents. Roosevelt devaluated the dollar to 59 cents in order to get a price rise. At the same time, Roosevelt took over some "very curious theories" of the N. R. A. capitalist system under the influence of Gen. Johnson. The metal cartels raised a new problem of a new capitalism. General Johnson put the government behind the cartels to raise the prices. The economic theory behind this was to insure capitalism to insure labor.

William Elliott Of Harvard Speaks On The New Deal

Convocation Speaker Discusses Activities And Present Trends

The activities of the New Deal were characterized by William Y. Vinal had a scavenger hunt and someone got Mr. Laubenstein’s "signature of a man’s daughter." Some mistake, no doubt.

A senior confessed that some of those talkative politicians who "trust the people" so much should open up a few grocery stores.

One math student to another—"Could you tell me about 'locus'?"

The other—"Well, I just know that the singing noise is made by rubbing their wings together."

OFF CAMPUS NOTES

Just how many girls in Denver write to the same party in Sharon, Penn.?—

It seems that certain Moscietes officiously christened a yacht with a bottle of catnap and then hoisted the colors.

How did the Coast Guard, who was always on the lookout for antiquated Club functions as a matter-of-course? Can any of us possess any singing ability and yet not help in any of the musical production which we all so welcome to enjoy? Can we as a whole read the various literary publications year after year and not try our hand at writing once during this period? If, in thinking these over, we answer in the affirmative, then there should be a real change on our part as well as our actions. The argument that outside activities "take time" is a very weak excuse for not giving a little of our personality to the college that exists exclusive of academic pursuits. Are we not interested or completely disinterested? In either case, shouldn't we "take" the time to develop ability in various fields and simultaneously create a spirit of competition in these organizations—a spirit that would undoubtedly raise the level of their achievements? No limited group can produce the most desirable results if it hasn't a wide range of contributors from which to choose. For our own enlightenment and broadening as well as for that of the activities, let us discard the spectator habit.

Chapter still welcomes us at its Tuesday meetings—Once a week—at the Biltmore Cocktail Shoppe. These C. C. meetings are open to students and alumnae of C. C., and to their friends.

This same New York Chapter recently had a showing of movies of the college, which was lent by Col. A. R. Lambdin.

Dear Editor:

The Editors of the News do not hold themselves responsible for the opinions expressed in this column, (the editor must know the names of contributors.)

Many of us dislike the many inconveniences that would result from the carrying out of such a proposal. In the first place, it has ever occurred to us that the library staff might enjoy and even look forward to those extra hours which winks to the delight of the late church service. Secondly, has it ever occurred to us that librarians as well as students take an occasional week-end? If a revised schedule of library hours is put into effect, it means that staff members must forego the above-mentioned pleasures.

We may say that these inconveniences can be avoided by assigning student assistants to the hours in question. This could be done, but it does not eliminate the necessity of having a regular staff member on duty. Because problems of many varieties crop up from time to time, students who work in the library from six to twelve hours per week could not solve them. Thus, the presence of a staff member is indispensable.

Up to now the criticism offered has been of a destructive rather than a constructive nature. My suggestion would be along the following lines. Have the various departments include in their annual budgets appropriations to buy additional copies of books put on reserve for a year or two. These books could be kept in the classrooms used by the different departments. It might even be possible to secure a room in either Fanning or New London Halls for the sole purpose of setting aside a small "reserve" of books. These students could be appointed to take care of the room, and might even be possible to secure a room in either Fanning or New London Halls for the sale purpose of setting aside a small "reserve" of books. These students could be appointed to take charge of the room, and might ultimately be possible to secure a room in either Fanning or New London Halls for the sale purpose of setting aside a small "reserve" of books. These students could be appointed to take charge of the room, and might ultimately be possible to secure a room in either Fanning or New London Halls for the exercise of library circulation. It is seldom the case that we have a great deal of time to spare, but it is possible to do a great deal of reading in the library during the time of the week when the classrooms are not in use.

Why not try an experiment of this nature? There is nothing to lose, but a great deal to gain.

CLUBS

Italian Club

The Italian Club held its first meeting of the year in Windham living room on Friday night, Nov. 16. Miss Marian Anderson, President of the club, introduced the guest speaker, Professor Guido Ferrando of Vassar College, who spoke on "Florence and Its Place in the Cultural Life of Italy." Signor Ferrando is a Roman by birth but he studied in Florence and that city has become the "city of his soul." Florence has given Italy most of her great men, especially in the fields of literature and art. During the Renaissance we find Dante, Petrarch, and Boccaccio coming to the fore in literature and Michelangelo and Leonardo Da Vinci, in art. In the fields of politics and science Florentines have also been outstanding. The present age has made its contributions with the advent of Fausto Cattaneo, well known for his "Life of Christ," and Prezolini, now professor and director of the Casa Italiana at Columbia University.

Before and after the address Rossa's String Quartet of New London played many beautiful selections from famous Italian operas. Re- freshments were served following the meeting.

Science Club

At each meeting the science club attempts to bring to the fore the important news concerning scientific current events. The next gathering of the club will be on Wednesday, Dec. 12, for a Christmas party.

French Club

French Club held its first meeting of the year on Thursday, Nov. 22, at 7:30 in Windham living room. Monsieur Philippe Saupéault, who is now on a lecture tour of the country, was the guest speaker. His subject (Continued to Page 4 – Col. 2) stage business was there and in addition many original touches which added greatly to the interest of the play. The grouping in most instances was unusual, and as the scenery and costumes were done under the supervision of Mr. Roberts, the director, and executed by the cast, they were pleasing in both color and lines. The costumes of the rich, soft velvets and satins were unusually fresh-hued and in striking contrast to the bedraggled garments of the ordinary traveling company. Mr. Roberts made an excellent Petruchio, having the dash, adroitness, spirit, and charm associated with that delightful character. Miss Dowling was not as fortunate as Katharine; in not a single instance did she reveal the lovable, well-born lady of Padua. The sudden contrast from very gentle tones to shrieks was somewhat startling. She was at her best in her cries of rage, and it was with much pleasure that the audience admired the conquering of the little vixen. Grumio, who is so usually overreacted, true to form, but even so, his makeup and his antics made him an enjoyable foil.

All of the other characters were very good with the exception of Bianca. In a misguided attempt at originality, she changed the lady from a sweet, modest and lovable girl to a forward, worldly vampish flirt. Once having decided upon that interpretation however, she made her character consistent throughout the play.

Mr. Dawson had the small part of Sugarsop, in which he did such readings given by a group of Freshmen, in which he did such readings given by a group of Freshmen.

The amount received each year has diminished to about $900, which means that the college can have a foreign student here about every two years. Connecticut College wants to continue this fund and the committee in charge hopes that President Blunt can announce a 100% contribution on the part of faculty and students. Let's give something whether good or small!

Dr. Leib Urges Realization of Own Responsibility

"Stand on your own feet. Don’t whine about difficulties but face the problem," exhorted Dr. Leib in chapel on Wednesday, November 21st.

Taking his topic from Ezekiel, he read several verses of the great prophet, later interpreting them in a modern manner, thus: Don’t mind if people do not seem to listen to you or of they do not applaud you. Be the kind of person whom people will later say, “He walked a prophet in the midst.”

Study thoroughly. Learn from great people’s writings and from their experience. Live among people, so that you may learn their ways, thoughts and manners. You do not seem to listen to people or of they do not applaud you. Be the kind of person whom people will later say, “He walked a prophet in the midst.”

STUDY OF COLLEGE GIRLS’ TIME MADE

A recent time study has been made by a group of representative students in women’s colleges. It was found that the average girl had forty-five and one-half hours of free time each week. Nineteen of those she used fairly intelligently and the other twenty-six were divided between tea rooms, the moving pictures, dancing, and playing bridge. Four hours vanished so completely that no girl could account for them. These figures have been published, and like many others “go untold.” The person with too much to do tightens up on his few necessary hours free relaxation, the person with too little to do “just hasn’t the time” to be troubled with such reading material.

However, in becoming aware of the things which we unconsciously ignore, it might be helpful to mention the fact that Disraeli wrote a book in eighteen months. He finished it in nine months, and that Macaulay wrote “The Lays of Ancient Rome” outside of his working hours. On the other hand, the modern college girl has her knitting, crocheting, scrap book, magazines or even the daily paper to occupy her odd moments. The rest of the time is “wasted.”

Yes, but is it an art to waste time? Few people consider this. The ambitious intellectual person finds himself embarrassed with a guilty feeling that he should be aiming to do something more constructive rather than idly lounging in a smoking or dormitory. College is filled with what he deems worthless chatter. Yet, herein lies his failure. He does not understand his contemporaries and can play in harmony with them. Can it be that, despite all the pains on the back which he receives, that he is wrong? —Skidmore News

Lyman Allyn Museum
Now Open To Public

At Present, Exhibit of Modern Painting Is Shown
Are For Sale

The Lyman Allyn Museum, given by Mrs. Harriet Allyn in memory of her husband, is open to students and others interested in art and desiring to broaden their knowledge and appreciation in that great field.

The museum was designed by Charles Platt of New York and is an adaptation of the Greek Styles of architecture. Large sculpture is not displayed as frequently as drawings, prints, and objects of industrial art such as wood-work, metal cloth, glass pottery and choice textiles. The textiles come from Europe, Asia and America, and have patterns both ancient and modern.

The exhibition space, though not large, is changed once a month and the gallery floor is such, that any subject will be of greatest advantage in any room.

Yale University has a great percentage of their editions of the century furniture, and a collection of choice silver pieces, for which the staff are greatly indebted.

The town student and college people are urged to participate in the enjoyment of this building and its exhibitions and will be cordially welcomed with the Wesleyan University Parish Committee before the 20th, or at the Information Bureau, upon arrival at Wesleyan University.

Among others who have agreed to participate in the parade are Norman Thomas and Harry W. Laddie, who will speak on Socialism; the Hon. John Dickinson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, speaking on the New Deal; Max Eastman, author and editor, Scott Nearing, member of the Communist Party, who will speak on Communism; Seward Collins, Editor of the American Review, speaking on Fascism; and Hamilton Fish and Stanley Baldwin, who will speak on Rugged Individualism.

Photographs Of Various Exhibits In Library

Have you seen the picture exhibition over in the library? If not, it would be well worth your time to glance at some photographs from many colleges and universities throughout the East. This exhibition was lent by Mr. Karl Maynard, and it contains photographs of colleges, universities, and other schools from the Maynard Workshop in Waban, Massachusetts. There are interesting studies of chapels, dormitories, libraries and academical buildings from Brown, Wheaton, Bennington, New York University, Raddish, Harvard, Amherst, Wellesley and many other colleges. Our own college is represented by photographs of the manuscripts of the bookshop, a view of Blackstone, New London Hall and the Palmer Library. These pictures are for sale, and they will be exhibited until the beginning of next month. Why not browse through them?

He Talks on James Joyce and Connection with French Literature

The French Club listened to a lecture given by Philippe Soupalet in Windham Hall on Thursday, November 22nd. The subject of Mr. Soupalet’s talk was “James Joyce: What he owes to French Literature and what French Literature owes to him.”

The speaker, a poet and novelist, is among the most popular writers of France today. For the past ten years he has been the guest of most of the countries of Europe and has several times visited America. Mr. Soupalet returned to the Connecticut campus for his third visit.

Mr. Soupalet arrived Wednesday, and was entertained at a dinner party given by Miss Ernst, prior to a reception, later that evening. On Thursday at eleven, the lecturer talked informally with students of French Literature, whom he had already met two nights earlier.

Yale University To Send Students To Washington

New Haven, Conn. (NSFA)—Yale University will send a selected group of juniors and seniors to Washington during the spring reading period for the purpose of studying the Federal Government in action at short range under the auspices of the National Institution of Public Affairs. The bulk of the expenses of those selected students will be paid by the University from the funds of the Block Foundation and the work done in Washington will count as an important part of the students' honors or course work for the year.

It is planned to include in the study visits to Congress, the Supreme Court and the principal executive and administrative agencies, in addition to the press bureaus and the headquarters of important lobbying organizations. Preliminary reading will be assigned and done in advance so as to insure the maximum benefit for the short time available for the field work. After the Washington study each student will write a paper dealing with some phase of the week's activities, and former member of the University debate team. Of these only the latter, a member of a National Student League Club, is connected with communism.

However, protests against the action are not concerned with communism or any other political cult. They are based on the inherent right of free thought and speech which has been denied students supporting an open forum for the discussion of economic and social questions as well as political. This forum was open to enemies as well as apologists of communism but even so was a violation of the University regulation which prohibits the public discussion of communism on the campus.

This rule and many more like it have been brought to bear in the recent California "redhating" campaign. Every liberally inclined organization in the country should join the student protest against the enforcement of such suppressing, unAmerican regulations, in an attempt to force the hand of California University's administrators.

INTER-CAMPUS CUTS

Haverford, Pa. (NSFA) — At Haverford College a century back "when a student obtains liberty to extend his walk beyond the prescribed limits, it is to be distinctly understood that he is not to enter or even go to any house whatever, unless he shall have obtained permission for that purpose."

Undergraduates were forbidden to enter the kitchen because of ice-box trouble experienced by the administration. They were also asked not to engage in "unnecessary conversation with each other." Smoking and chewing were definitely banned.
