Coeds Susceptible to Superstitions

College women are more superstitious than men, according to Dr. John Broadus Willy, associate professor of psychology at Regis College in Denver. In his current course, superstitious beliefs and their effects are examined.

In an informal poll of 1,300 female students, Dr. Willy found that more than 90% of the students believed in at least one superstition. The most popular superstitions included:

1. Avoiding breaking mirrors.
2. The belief in the number 13 being unlucky.
3. The belief that Friday the 13th is a bad day.
4. The belief that certain colors bring good or bad luck.
5. The belief in the power of the number 7.
6. The belief in the power of the number 4.
7. The belief in the power of the number 11.
8. The belief in the power of the number 23.
9. The belief in the power of the number 31.
10. The belief in the power of the number 34.

Dr. Willy also found that students who believe in superstitions tend to be more anxious and more likely to seek reassurance from others. He believes that superstitions are a way of coping with uncertainty and that they provide a sense of control in a world that is often unpredictable.
Barcarolle Deemed Miss Jacynovicz's Recital Highlight

by Rachel Ohe

Palmer auditorium on Wednesday evening, November 17, was the setting of a piano concert given by Zosia Jacynovicz of the music department. The program was composed of works from the classical, romantic, and impressionistic periods.

The Romanian Folk Dances of the late Hungarian, Bela Bartok, were unusually well done and gave us the opportunity to hear his works which are too infrequently performed in this country. By submitting to the bouncy, folklike character of the dances, Miss Jacynovicz brought out the colorful dissonances and the rustic quality which are indicative of the world of Bartok.

The clean, always accurate technique and the amazing depth and richness of tone Miss Jacynovicz brought to the Fauré in the barcarolle in C minor of Johannes Brahms. Here it was felt that, had the artist, in the middle section especially, allowed herself to slide ever so slightly into a more romantic mood, the total effect would have been improved.

The Chopin group, consisting of the Nocturne in E-flat major, the Nocturne in D-flat major, the Barcarolle Op. 60, and the Tarantelle, Op. 43, was artistically performed. From the standpoint of musicianship, the soulful lyricism of the Nocturne was enhanced by Miss Jacynovicz's feeling for the rubato style that Chopin uses as a kind of tool by which is achieved the emotional in music.

The execution of the Barcarolle was one of the highlights of the evening. Miss Jacynovicz has at her command an exquisite touch by which are created myriad of colors. Her contrasts are not merely the black and white of deep and soft but are the subtle shadings.

The total effect would have been improved.

and When Does He All his Time in the Library

This past Sunday was the final weekend of the semester, and Estelle Markovitz was busy. She and Harold Schwartz were leaving for New Haven and she will commute from there to complete the second semester of her senior year.

Nevertheless, 850 onlookers had to return to our chilly halls Saturday night. The seven o'clock show from New York must have been typical... people sitting on steps in the aisles and crowding the smoked filled cars. Muriette's query was quite apropos as she sat perched on a suitcase clutching two suits and someone's nightingale... "Every one of these trains would be empty with all the 'Yales getting out at New Haven!" The long voyage home was an inkblot over a train that passed Bank street and Danny Stein's bar none... doubt about it, it was New London.

Monday found our eight hundred and sixty and South Sts. still treading across campus wishing to cut those classes. Old Morris Nature had even greeted them with a nice shabby acrostic to celebrate the end of vacation. Up in the dorms they showed up for their ten o'clock on Wednesday at ten twenty five... Mr. Beebe's one-twenty class was still aglow with

The fall season came to a close at the AA coffs on Tuesday, Nov. 23. The meeting had a novel opening when some Council members dictated out a 5a class of 1952—complete with headstones and bloomers, gave their resolution of an old CC athletic song. Sports managers gave their reports and announced the members of the Chse. An official decision as to who the fall champs are will be forthcoming when the remaining games are completed. As it stands now—it's going to be either the juniors or the seniors.

Girls who won their blazers this season are: 1949—Mary Hill Brooks and Louise Brown; 1950—Elsie Blanch, Judy Cohen, Gerry Forrester, Elaine Henson, Barbara Harvey, Diana Hawley, Sue Little, and Mauette Moody; and 1951—Judy Adaskin, Olivia Brock, Allen Puddester, and Manette Moody; and
