The American Experience

"Science and Politics" will be the theme of this year's Annual Conference on Public Affairs, Friday and Saturday, December 2 and 3, sponsored by the Connecticut College Department of Government.

The conference will emphasize topics such as the relationship between scientific procedures and the world of politics, scientists in government, and the implications of scientific civilization for the problems of the human community.

Noted Speakers

Supported by the Edith and Maurice J. Bernstein Fund in Political Science, the conference will feature three guest speakers, all authorities in the field of science, politics and public policy. Dr. John Ripple, professor of political science at the State University of New York at Stony Brook. Dr. Harvey Brooks, Gordon McKay, professor of applied physics and Dean of the Division of Engineering and Applied Physics at Harvard University, and Dr. Bruce Smith, a member of the department of public law and government and of the Institute for the Study of Human Affairs at Columbia University.

Breakdown of Melodrama Costs

By Kathy Riley

Richard S. Lewis, treasurer and controller of the College, said last week that the two major reasons for the $300 increase in college fees are the general inflationary trend of the national economy and an increase in faculty salaries.

The inflationary trend has caused a rise in prices and faculty salaries, necessary to maintain the quality of the faculty.

Just as the bulk of the college's operating budget is used for faculty salaries, Mr. Lewis stated, so the bulk of the increase will go for the same purpose.

Detailed Breakdown

He said that a detailed breakdown of the specific uses of the increase is impossible because the college budget is constantly adjusted to meet changing needs.

The doubling of the operating budget came from three main sources: tuition and fees, gifts, and endowment income. He also said that the money will be taken out of the class treasury and endowment income, he explained.

Gordon McKay, professor of applied science and Dean of the Division of Engineering and Applied Physics at Harvard University, stated:

"There was no trace of the usual press for publicity, no publicity for the press. All was sensitive, civilized and polite. The performances were mellifluous, low in sound and manner, and the effects projected with unpretending overstatement."

Food For Thought

Thanksgiving vacation is a long-standing tradition of Connecticut College. In view of its crucial significance to members of the faculty and academic community, we think it worth while to consider some serious reflection what were the origins of the custom or tradition.

"The pederogues' mouth watered, as he looked upon this sumptuous promise of luxurious winter fare. In his devouring mind he pictured to himself every roasting pig running about his leg like a hog and as it spun in his mouth, the pigeons were snugly put to bed in a comfortable pie, and juicy relishing ham; not a turkey but he beheld daintily trussed and the pigeons were snugly put to bed in a comfortable pie, and juicy relishing ham; not a turkey but he beheld daintily trussed and the porkers he saw carved out the future sleek side of bacon, and tucked their own gravy; and the ducks pairing cosily in dishes, like snug cases of gingham."

"Mike ruffed the heart king, drew two rounds of trump, led a spade to dummy, then led the heart queen, Mike knew his partner's count, and then led the heart queen."

"If you have yet been specified, we will probably not see these plans enacted in a few more years--certainly not until the conflict in Vietnam is settled. But within 10 years, we may find ourselves engaged in a world war, this seems remote to us."

Letters to the Editor

Flood in Florence

To the Editor:

The recent floods in Florence have made us realize our obligation as students supposedly interested in art, architecture and literature to contribute to the preservation of many centuries of artistic achievement. Million of dollars are needed to prevent permanent damage to or loss of priceless masterpieces. We urges everyone to give individually, if possible, in an organized fund which we are trying to establish. It seems to us that the urgency and importance of this matter cannot and should not be neglected.

"When East followed small, Mike picked his small club and--clamplined the rest of the tricks!"

"When West followed small, Mike picked his small club and--clammed the rest of the tricks!"

"When East followed small, Mike picked his small club and--clammed the rest of the tricks!

Here's another one of those "bricky" (no pun intended) end play situations. At first glance, the 12th trick appears to depend upon the club queen finesse."

"Mike led the heart king, drew two rounds of trump, led a spade to dummy, and then led a red card, declarer will be able to throw his dummy while denying club queen finesse."

"The lesson: don't go down by frowning when you can clinch on an end play!"

Wendy Peter ’68 is appointed AISEC African Coordinator.

Associated Students of Economic and Commerce (AISEC) Foundation in New Haven.

Wendy obtained her position with a grant from AISEC to pursue a summer job with the organization, which contains 72 full and part-time members at universities throughout the United States. Wendy acts as the chief advisor to the National Committee in New York City.

This past summer, AISEC sent her to Accra, Ghana, where she worked as a press officer for the State Distilleries Corporation. In addition, she travelled in Togo and Nigeria by various means of transportation from hitchhiking to flying.

She apparently got the better end of hitchhiking, because the people she met offered her room and board at their homes.

Suggests Improvements

Wendy described her job in Accra as that of an “efficiency consultant,” in which she surveyed the organization’s activities and gave suggestions for improvements.

She explained that she knew very little about efficiency in the industry before she was assigned to Accra, but that within a few weeks, she was contributing a lot to the organization.

Wendy said her interest in Africa began in the summer of 1964. During her junior year, she worked in an AISEC trainee in an intern position.

During her job this past summer, she lived at the University of Ghana in Legon, where she was particularly impressed by the campus and its activities.

Travel Experiences

As for her travelling experiences, a veterinarian picked her up while she was hitchhiking to Kum’Uami. And she ended up staying in her new home.

Gia McHendrie, Anne Harvey, and Mona Brahler, Carol Hermann, Libby,, and Margaret Marshall, Katherine Rainville, and Miriam Morley, Park House.

Miriam Monody of Park House describes her function of housefellow as being a liaison between students and administrators.

In addition, you get a suite to yourself, and the opportunity to look after the kitchen, maid service, wall-to-wall carpeting, and a fireplace.

Seven seniors at Amherst have received an invitation to stay in their home also.

She has been an active contributor to the community over the last three years.

To Lecture Monday

Mayor Richard Lee

L. Alice Ramsay, Connecticut College’s faculty advisor to the National Committee of the African Student Education Club (AISEC), has been granted a one-semester furlough leave of absence before her re-election to a fifth year term on the college’s Board of Directors.

Ramsay, who spent her childhood in Providence, Rhode Island, was appointed Connecticut College A.B. in 1919 as a freshman from Easthampton, Mass. Only four years after the college’s founding in 1919, Ramsay graduated four years later, a member of the fifth class in 1923.

SECURITY GUARDS: from left: Jacqueline Easton, Connecticut College has no "Pinkies." This nickname is totally incorrect, and the Security Guards do not wear the pinkies more properly called, no longer have any association with the Pinkerton Detective Agency.

L. Donovan, head of the Security Guard Agency, assured the Monthly that Pinkies were retired in 1959 by a contract with the Pinkerton Agency, which lasted until 1962.

In 1962 President Charles E. Shain and Business Manager Corbin C. Lyman incorporated the guards into the college itself and dropped their affiliations with the Agency.

The force of seven guards are "all sworn in with the same powers of arrest as the policemen of New London," explained Lieutenant Donovan.

The campus is thoroughly covered.

The campus is thoroughly covered between 5:30 P.M. and 4 A.M. on weekdays, and 24 hours a day on weekends. The college is on the line.

"The Security Guards' office possesses a 24-hour telephone service on the campus. One man answers the phone from midnight until six in the morning."

"This is the second year we have been on duty. Our new, two-way radio set, which allows communication over as much as a mile, has eliminated the 'chuckle switchboard,' and the patrol car," said Lieutenant Donovan.

"It is important that both these men are back up by the patrol car." (Continued on page 14)

"The increase will not be used for any capital expansion project, including the Music and Arts building," he said. "This increase is intended to maintain and improve our present facilities and services and faculty."

At present all alunoe contributions are used for scholarships. This amount is augmented by funds from the operating budget and independent scholarship programs.

In connection with the opening of the university's observatory, the university has appointed a committee to study the structure of the universe and the space program, with the hope of coordinating the curriculum of the university with the program of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The committee has been authorized to study the possibility of establishing an observatory on campus and to investigate the possibility of establishing a degree program in astronomy.
