Trustee Returns From Recent United Nations Trip To South Vietnam

Miss Anna Lord Struass, Connecticut College trustee and a member of the United Nations Delegation to the United Nations, recently returned from a week-long visit to South Vietnam at the request of President Johnson.

Miss Strauss was accompanied by Mrs. Eugene M. Anderson, former ambassador to Norway and the United States representative on the United Nations Trusteeship Council, and Mrs. Norman Chandler, a Los Angeles Civic leader and an executive of the Los Angeles Times.

President Johnson asked the three women to visit Vietnam "to observe the situation, to learn first-hand what the developments are," according to a New York Times news story, Pres. Johnson stated: "I hope when they [the delegates] return they can report what they have seen.

Before the group left, Mrs. Anderson spoke for the women: "We're going to try to see as much as we can," she said. "There's no substitute for direct, first-hand experience and we believe that we should get out of (Continued on Page 6, Coll. 3)

Peace Corps Reps To Speak Dec. 7, 8

Two special Peace Corps recruiters will be on campus Thurs., Dec. 7 and Fri., Dec. 8, to interview and speak to Connecticut College students interested in the Peace Corps. Following a dinner in Katharine Wiist House, the two recruiters, Mary-Anne Tirone, who works in Cameroon, and Barbara Rice, who works in India, will show a film and lead a discussion of the work of Peace Corps at 7:00 p.m. Thurs., Dec. 7 in the Student Lounge in Crozier-Williams.

A coffee-hour with them will be held Friday afternoon in the Snack Shop. Students who are interested in either Peace Corps are requested to meet in Crozier-Williams.

The Connecticut College Art Series will present The Renaissance Quartet on Wed., Dec. 6, at 8:30 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium. The ensemble quality of the programs is brought about by integrating instrumental works with works for voice and instruments.

Their program will include Music of Spain, Instrumental Dances, English Part Songs, Troubadour Songs of the 12 Century, German Part Music and Music of Shakespeare's England.

Petition Formulated Against C.I.A. Campus Recruitment

A recruiting agent will be on campus Tues., Dec. 12, from the Central Intelligence Agency to talk to seniors interested in jobs with the agency after graduation. A sign-up sheet has been posted in the Career Counseling and Placement Office in Crozier-Williams.

The recruiting agent, Mr. Weeks, will hold 30-minute appointments with students in the placement office between 9:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. Tuesday night, a meeting of those "concerned" about the C.I.A. recruitment will be held in Crozier-Williams Student Lounge. Approximately 25 students and faculty members attended. As a result of that meeting a petition is being circulated among the students and faculty protesting the upcoming recruitment to be presented to President Shain later this week.

The petition reads as follows: "The Connecticut College Career Counseling and Placement Office has granted permission to representatives of the Central Intelligence Agency to recruit on this campus, December 12. "The CIA has a right to ask for seats on other recruiting agencies for the College—represented by the President—has a right to answer the use or non-use of the building. "To grant the CIA permission to recruit on campus is the wrong decision. For in allowing them to use our facilities we cooperate with their activities. "The CIA has raised, supplied and trained agents, field agents, military conscripts, stuffed ballot boxes, bribed officials and infiltrated government offices, all for the sake of one political entity.

Campus Life Proposes Rathskeller And Beer

Plans are underway in the Campus Life Committee for the establishment of a rathskeller on campus.

The subcommittee appointed to research the matter is composed of Nancy Gilbert, president of the sophomore class, Amabel Morgan, chair of the freshmen class, Mr. Sally Tripp, dean of Student Activities, and James Asherman, assistant professor of religion.

Nancy said a "fact-finding" letter has been sent to Corbin Lyman, director of the administrative services, Joseph McLaughlin, director of the physical plant, and Miss Eleanor Voorhees, director of residence. They have been asked to supply information concerning construction, legal and financial necessities.

A detailed report which Nancy said must be "as specific as possible," will be submitted to Pres. Shain in the near future. One of the main problems involves the question of whether or not beer may be served in the proposed rathskeller. Sale of beer would be limited to persons 21 or over, in compliance with state laws. But since there is no minimum age limit, it is believed that the rathskeller can be a part of the life of the campus.

"Hopefully, it will make the campus more attractive for dates and will keep more people here on weekends," said Nancy.

The committee hopes that the rathskeller will be the "last” of the be-abandoned power house behind the post office. The power house has been relocated to a new site, at the South end of campus and the old site will be available in January.

However, Nancy explained, there are other reasons for the use of the power house area, and "the rathskeller is not the only plan under consideration.

The Committee is also considering the possibility of setting up some kind of coffee shop, if the rathskeller and beer idea cannot be worked out. Nancy said that the Committee thinks some kind of a snack bar would be beneficial, whether or not beer can be served.

Nancy stressed all these plans are tentative, and are dependent on approval of the initial proposal.

"Holly Days," Winter Weekend, will be held Fri. and Sat., Dec. 8 and 9. Special events will include a holiday candlelight dinner and entertainment by Kinky Jacobs and the Mighty Soul Rockers. Tickets for the supper and dance will be offered only during the advance ticket sale now in progress. Dinner tickets are $5.50 and dance tickets are $4.50.

Prof's Plot... by Barbara Kesten

Harrah! At last but our faculty spies have confided confidential information on the event that all Conn students have been eagerly anticipating. The event of the year! Nay, the event of our college quadrangle! It's the faculty quaffing.

The show, which is tentatively scheduled for Feb. 9 and Feb. 19, promises to be the most lively, comic show ever produced on the Conn campus, with the possible exception of the annual Christmas Carol service from the Coast Guard Academy Choir.

The show is under the able and experienced direction of Mr. Robert Hale (he directed the last faculty fiasco). Directing the musical end of the play will be Mr. James (Oh, what Soul) Armstrong, and choreography will be done by Mrs. Martha (Twistelot) Moyer.

A committee, working under the direction of Miss Frances Brett, is writing an original script for the occasion.

Conn-Coast '88, entitled "America the Beautiful: The End of a Myth," will host the following speakers: Jonathan Kozol, author of "Death at an Early Age." Maurice Stein, chairmen of the Sociology department at Brandeis University and Benjamin Richardson, a Chicago social worker. Dick Gregory will provide the entertainment.

Sunday afternoon entertainment for the Conn-Coast weekend: Feb. 23-25.
Miss Anna Lord Straus, a trustee of Connec-tuous College, recently traveled to South Vietnam on a week-long visit at the request of President Johnson. She and two other promiinent American women went to “observe the situation to learn first-hand what the developments are.”

In an attempt to determine the demand for a course at Connecticut College, Teacher Brooke Johnson Sauter, chairman of the critique committee, has circulated a “critique questionnaire.” On this questionnaire are the four questions which are to be asked for the Critique itself, plus an additional question: “Will you commit yourself to the following questions concerning the courses in which you are now enrolled?” If Brooke receives a substantial positive response to this preliminary questionnaire, she will proceed with the critique project. The students need only deposit the circular in a box in the calendar.

A Special Request

Dear Reader:

Right now, urban renewal is one of the biggest things going in the United States. Urban renewal is seen as part of a cure for poverty, racial discrimination, and crime. It is an important, exciting, and it is going on in New London today.

We therefore hope that Miss Straus will speak to the College Community about her experiences in South Vietnam in the near future.

We urge you, do not indicate interest in a course critique—unless you believe not only in the idea of the critique but also in the specific type of information to be gained from these will be more valuable than, for instance, statistical data.

But if you sincerely believe a Course dion allowing the G.I.A. to recruit on campus.

The G.I.A. has made a practice of exploiting the academic com-nunity in order to aid in its program of intervention and opposition in underdeveloped countries. The G.I.A. has subsidized university publications, and instigated and undertaken legal studies. It trained the Vietnamese police force on the Michigan State campus. And it has instituted a National Student Association whose purpose is to prevent the C.I.A. from developing a foothold on private uncontrolled campuses.

This is the first time Connecticut

College has been asked to allow a negative influence of this type in its area, and it is obvious that the decision allowing the C.I.A. to recruit on campus means an admission of the CIA into the academic community.

The G.I.A. is not being honest to students, or even to the College. It is misleading the students and it is an admission of a lack of integrity on the part of the College.

The C.I.A. uses the in-ends. Connecticut College believes that the individual is an

Morrison Internship
Applications Available

Applications for the Mary Faulke Internship Program will now be obtained from chairmen of each academic department in the college.

Sponsored by the Connecticut League of Women Voters, the Internship is granted annually to a junior in good standing, and extends over a period of approximately eight weeks during the summer.

Applicants will be interviewed on January 10, 1968, at the College and selection will be made about February 1.

The purpose of the program is to provide the experience of work and training in the operations of the League of Women Voters.
The Intern will work without pay; appropriate financing will be provided to cover travel, living, and incidental expenses during the term of the Internship.

The format of the Internship involves three stages, the first two of which are preparation for the third. In the third month before her arrival in Washington, the Intern will become acquainted with local League activities through attendance at League meetings, and informative materials from state and local branches.

Secondly, she will receive materials from the national office to acquaint her with the national League and the nature of League work in Women's Service and in organizational procedures.

Finally, the Intern will work in the Washington office, attending hearings before congressional committees in relation to her project of preparation for practical work.

The Intern will also work with the Overseas Education Commission and the League of Women Voters Education Fund, which is concerned with voter education programs, and with non-partisan work in organizational procedures.

The Intern will be assigned to work with an experienced League member, and will have an internship experience that will be mutually beneficial.

Applications for the Morrison Internship can

Proposed Urban Renewal To Revitalize New London

Sweeping Changes More Than Physical

"Urban renewal" is fast becoming everyday, household word. Yet this distinctly American phenomenon should not be taken for granted. The decision of an urban community to transform itself, to radically change patterns of life which have existed for decades, is a momentous one.

Such a decision denotes community recognition of the fact that something is drastically wrong with its city. It also denotes community determination to meet the challenge of necessary, sweeping changes.

The citizens of New London made the decision to change the face and the atmosphere of their city. Fifteen years from now a returning Conn student will not recognize New London. Where predatory renewal is completed New London will be transformed into a vital, modern city. A pedestrian mall will be built, making possible the development of the Shaw Cove area into a park.

In addition, massive clearance of shum housing and extensive rebuilding will take place, with the result that 90 per cent of the housing now designated as "blighted" will be eliminated. And these changes are but a fraction of those proposed.

People As Well

Yet physical changes are only half of the story. A community is not only buildings--it's people. By destroying old neighborhoods, old ways, and old ties, redevelopment creates a total and totally new environment for residents. Redevelopment stirs up forces that are hard to think in different terms, and prompts them into action.

It is significant that in New London citizens affected by proposed changes are not just consulted, are speaking up, are expressing their views and are creative to make needed improvements.

Therefore, another goal of redevelopment is to provide safe, decent and sanitary dwellings which are both within the economic range of low-income residents, and economically feasible to the community.

Shum clearance necessarily includes relocation of residents in the area to be cleared. The redevelopment Agency considers it also a challenge then to change the orientation from the shopping center to the downtown area.

Hard Core Poverty

This is not the only problem redevelopment must deal with, however. Underdeveloped areas, resulting from hard core poverty exist throughout the city.

The shum housing is the most expensive section of real estate in the city, as far as the community is concerned, for in the decade prior to redevelopment, the tons collected from such deplorable areas did not nearly cover the cost of city services rendered to the area. Such garbage collection, public health services and street cleaning are paid for by the average taxpayer.

Shums are also costly for their inhabitants who pay as much as 50 percent of their income to come for rent, yet still live in crowded, unhealthy conditions. And shum landlords, because of the large number of tenants, receive high returns for dilapidated buildings, and thus have no incentives to make any improvements.

The above diagram illustrates the three phases of redevelopment in New London. Area A is the Winthrop Renewal Area. This is the area presently undergoing redevelopment; structures represent several situations seen to be in or already constructed. Number 1--Winthrop Apartments; number 2--site of future garden apartments and town houses; number 3--site of future commercial and parking facility; number 4--site of newly developed light industry. These are but a few of the structures to be built. Area B is the General Neighborhood Renewal Area, last phase of redevelopment. Area C is the Shaw Cove Renewal Area, a subsection of the GNRA; plans for this area are now being made, and include number 5, a proposed lake.

Under the supervision of Marita Pellegrini, news editor, and Kathy Riley, assistant news editor, Conn Census undertook a thorough study of Urban Renewal in New London. Educational contacts were established with members of the community involved in the various aspects of the redevelopment project.

For their invaluable cooperation in providing information and resources for this study, Conn Census is especially indebted to William Klatsky, executive director of the New London Redevelopment Agency, John Peters, social worker for the Agency, John Kosharnsky, director of Loaned House, the Rev. Norman McLeod, pastor of the Second Congregational Church in New London, and Paul Keplin, of the New London Day News Department.

Official plans and sketches for Winthrop-area renewal were supplied by the New London Redevelopment Agency, and color photographs were supplied by the New London Day News Department.

Conn Census staff reporters involved in the project were Linda Rosenzweig, Bt Duglsh, Peggy Joy, and Robert Sabo. The story was organized, synthesized and edited by Marita Pellegrini and Kathy Riley.
Community Organizes To Discuss Human Elements

Shaw Cove Neighborhood Meets
To Discuss Problems of Renewal

Suppose you read in the newspaper that the area you live in, perhaps that you've lived in all your life, is scheduled for redevelopment. You know that this means the demolition of a great deal of your neighborhood, probably your own dwelling.

On Thursday, November 18, an open meeting was held for the residents of the Shaw Cove area to give them an opportunity for their first direct confrontation with Mr. William Klatsky, director of the Redevelopment Agency. These people had read that the Shaw Cove area had been designated as the next to undergo renewal, that plans were being made for changes in their physical environment.

In a short preliminary speech, Mr. Klatsky explained that the Agency is presently applying for a federal grant which will provide for a two-year study of the area. After this study definite plans will be made for the redevelopment of the Shaw Cove area, with these plans going into execution about three years from now.

To the residents of the Shaw Cove area present, three years does not seem like a very long time. The first question was direct and of obvious importance to the audience: "Are the residents of the Shaw area going to have anything to say about redevelopment plans?"

Mr. Klatsky replied, "It is an undertaking as large as redevelopment, often the specialists in charge proceed with the plans without consulting the people who will be most affected by the proposed changes."

The residents of this area will elect three delegates to the newly-formed New London Resources Commission, a group of citizens who will deal with the human elements of redevelopment. This committee will function as a liaison between people themselves and redevelopment officials; it will be an outlet through which the individual citizen can communicate his ideas, feelings and "gripes" about redevelopment. It will also handle the allocation of federal poverty funds.

A mother of eleven asked the next question: "What kind of housing accommodations will be available for a family like mine? Will I be able to own a single family dwelling as I do now?"

Mr. Klatsky replied: "Tentative plans for the Shaw Cove area include the development of a public and other recreational facilities and a compact commercial area. This of course will leave less space for housing. Plans include two and three story apartment dwellings, but no single family, privately-owned homes."

The audience was obviously not pleased with the answer. Another man raised his hand and asked, "Since it is obvious that my house will be demolished, how will I be relocated?"

Mr. Klatsky explained that relocation will be accomplished by a phasing process, that is, housing units will be relocated in the locations presently commercial or vacant; residents of an area of housing will be moved in, and then their old housing will be demolished and redeveloped.

These were just a few of the questions, and the answers did not satisfy everybody. But the residents were no longer just reading about plans in the newspaper—they were finally confronting redevelopment themselves.
Two Services Scheduled
For Christmas Vespers

Conn Orchestra
To Play At Yule

The Connecticut College Orchestra for the first time will take over the afternoon Christmas Vespers, Dec. 10, at 4:00 p.m. in the Chapel.

Under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Wiles, the orchestra will perform "Allegro from Sym- phonie No. 12" "Christmas Can- tatas" by Lubeck will be per- formed by Karen Nielsen '70, and Ellenie Karlson '70.

Accompaniment will be pro- vided by violinists Maria Lewis '69 and Kristina Nilsen '71, cellist Barbara Boyd '70, and organist Chandler Gregg. Mrs. Adele F. Bursch, instructor in music, will direct this work.

Violin soloist Kristina Nilsen will perform "Romanze in C Major" by Beethoven. Accompanied by Karen Nielsen 70, and Ellenie Karlson '71. The Chorus along with the congregation will sing familiar carols then Chandler Gregg, the college's organist, will perform Christmas organ music.

The prelude for the service will be Handel's "Prelude and Fugue" which will be played by the Connecticut College Or- chestra under the direction of Mrs. Margaret Wiles.

Chamber Chorus
To Sing Carols

The Connecticut College Chamber Chorus will make its first appearance at the tradi- tional evening Christmas Vespers to be conducted by the Reverend J. Barrie Robinson. Dec. 16, at 7 p.m. in the Chapel.

The Chamber Chorus, a newly formed organization with 45 members chosen from the Conn College Chorus, will concentrate primarily on contemporary choral music, according to Mr. James Armstrong, conductor.

For the service the Chamber Chorus will sing a set of four Old English Carols which are 15th Century English poems which were set to music by

MATHEMATICIANS:
What Do You Know About nsa?

The National Security Agency is a scientific and technical community unique in the United States, perhaps in the world. It is the NSA agency responsible for de- veloping "secure" communica- tions systems and EDP devices to transmit and receive information.

YOU AND NSA

As a mathematician at NSA, you will de- fine, formulate and solve communications-related problems, most of major national significance. Statistical math- ematics, matrix algebra, finite field, probability, combinatorial analysis, program- ming and symbolic logic are but a few of the tools applied by Agency mathematicians. They enjoy the full sup- port of NSA's completely equipped computer laboratories whenever they become involved in both the hardware and software advanced computing systems. Theoretically based mathematics is also critical at NSA, owing to the fact that the relationship of your discipline to understanding in certain fields of mathematics is not sufficiently advanced to satisfy NSA re- quirements.

SALARIES AND BENEFITS

Starting salaries, depending on educa- tion and experience, range from $7,779 to $12,873, and increases follow as you assume additional responsibility. Poli- cies relating to vacations, insurance and retirement are liberal, and you enjoy the advantages of Federal employment with- out the necessity of Civil Service certifi- cation.

Continuing your education, the NSA offers educational assistance, one-half the cost of tuition at any accredited institution, and all academic costs are borne by NSA, the value to NSA will increase, as will your responsibility.

Continuing your Education

NSA's graduate study program may per- mit you to pursue two areas of full- time graduate study at full salary. Nearly all academic costs are borne by NSA, whose proximity to seven universities is an additional asset.

IMAGINATION . . .
A REAL REQUIREMENT

Mathematical problems at NSA will sel- dom be formulated and handed to you, the mathematician, for solution. Instead, you will help define the problem by ob- serving its origin and characteristics and the trends of data associated with it. You will then determine whether the data are susceptible to mathematical treatment and, if so, how. As you grow in your appreciation of this approach to mathematician work, you will see the relationship of your discipline to non-mathematical subject matter, both your personal satisfaction and your contribution to NSA will increase, as will your responsibility.

Check with the Placement Office now to arrange an interview with NSA representa- tives on campus. The Placement Office also has further information about NSA, or you may write: Director, Placement Office, National Security Agency, Ft. George G. Meade, Md. 20370.
French Professor To Give Lecture

Professor Daniel Poirion, visiting professor at Yale University, will speak on "The Sense of Existence in the Works of Charles d'Orrloma and Villon," Thursday, Dec. 7, at 4:30 p.m. in the main lounge of Crozier.

Professor Poirion served as Assistant de Litterature Francaise in Sorbonne from 1953 to 1957. Presently, Professor of French Literature of the Middle Ages at the University of Compiègne, France, Mr. Poirion has, in addition, published several works on Charles d'Orrloma.

Pianist, Violinist To Present Recital

Ann Bylands, violinist, and Barbara Scoof, pianist, both from Yale University, will present a Sonata Recital Thursday, Dec. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in Hildreth Hall.

Both performers are married to musicians. Ann Bylands is the wife of Allen Burney, Professor of Music at Yale. Barbara Scoof is the wife of Scoof, the composer.

The program will consist of four selections: sonatas by Janecek, the "second Sonata" by Beethoven and "Sonata in A" by Brahms.

FOUR SPEAKERS DISCUSS ASPECTS OF HALLUCINOGENS AND NARCOTICS

by Nora Lally

"Hallucinogenen," a symposium sponsored by the Sociology and Psychology clubs Nov. 29 presented opinions on the use of drugs including the points of view of a psychologist, lawyer and sociologist.

Speakers included Dr. Malcolm Bower, assistant professor of psychology at Yale, Richard Kossan, lawyer and director of Liberal Religious Youth in Boston, Dr. Dianc Dandfield, professor of sociology at the University of Connecticut; and Bruce Elwell.

Dr. Bower discussed the medical aspects of drugs, particularly the hallucinogens LSD and marijuana. According to him, marijuana can produce disruption in the law. With LSD, these sensations are intensified, and the "trip" is a more dangerous experience.

Dr. Bower outlined some of the possible casualties of taking acid. The "acute reaction difficulty" causes anxiety and acute disruption during the trip, and recurrence of these effects later. He stated that other delayed reactions of the marijuana psychosis episodes and/or psychosocial withdrawal.

However, Dr. Bower emphasized that most LSD users do not experience these psychosocial casualties, and that they rarely result from marijuana smoking. Referring to possible physiological and/or neurological damage as a result of LSD usage, Dr. Bower explained that there was no conclusive evidence supporting this view. "It is still an open question," he concluded.

Critique Committee Seeks Response

According to Brooke Johnson Salt, chairman of the Course Critique Committee, preliminary questionnaires were distributed Monday through campus mail. Brooke issued the questionnaire to find out if students are willing to commit themselves to answering her 4-part questionnaire concerning courses offered the first semester. This questionnaire contains the same questions that were asked for last Spring's Critique—a project which was suspended because of poor response. Nevertheless, Brooke said that she believes these questions will provide the best critique of courses.

"If people want to know whether a course is hard or easy, how many papers there are, and how much Reserve Room reading is required, . . . then they should plan questions directed toward that type of information she said. This week's preliminary questionnaire also asked for volunteers to help in the compilation of results. She hopes to find 25 to 30 girls who will be willing to put in "several hours of work for several weeks," in March. Brooke pointed out that the editing of the Critique will involve some concentrated work. She added that there is no point in designing the project if there is little enthusiasm either for answering the questions or for preparing the final critique. In order to go ahead with the project, Brooke said she would need a positive response from 600 to 1000 students, because she expects many more to reply to the preliminary questionnaire than to the final critique questionnaire.

If the response is adequate, then, the Critique questionnaire will be distributed during Reading Week. Results will be compiled and edited and released early in second semester.

The Crafts Fair scheduled for Dec. 5 and 6 has been cancelled. Cancellation was due to the fact that during the Christmas season many area craftsmen are committed to other annual fairs, and would not be free to attend Conn's fair. C.I.A. Recruiting

To The Editor:

The C.I.A. is coming to campus to recruit young women to work for its vast organization. Good jobs are available. Why should anyone care?

Two years ago the C.I.A. infiltrated the National Student Organization and created a situation where only those students screened and funded by the C.I.A. could represent student opinion at home and abroad. Many of the students so chosen and supported didn't even know they had been used in this manner.

Four years ago the C.I.A. infiltrated a project run by American anthropologists in Latin America, called Project Camelot. The anthropologists-without knowing it—acted as spies, being utilized to gather data on radical movements in Latin America.

And, last year, the C.I.A. used an entire staff of Social Science professors from Michigan State University as propagandists and organizationists for American activities in Vietnam. The professors did not know they were being funded, utilized and observed by the C.I.A.

I, myself, was on a project whose funds were mysteriously cut and whose results were not published. Two months later, one of the informants on the project—a Latin American Priest—was murdered—shot down in the streets—for alleged left-wing activities.

The C.I.A. has grown too powerful. It is not merely an external espionage agency. It is controlling and perverting professors and students. Threating academic freedom. Making "founds" out of universities.

Surely we should not invite them to a college saying, "Take our young women, they are good workers."

Tradition of the Goat

To The Editor:

Yes, I will have to admit that on Senior Day several members of the Class of 1969 succeeded in getting my goat.

I am glad to hear that Conn Cenus got the exclusive story on the tradition of the goat, because I did not—until the whole business was over—have heard about the goat when a senior who had seen it in Blackstone called it to my attention, and, thinking it would add to the show, I had it written into the plot.

If someone had let us in on this past tradition, we might have known to expect it to be gone—or even to hide it. However, we were taken unaware and enjoyed the afternoon of the performance.

The band of conspirators obviously knew little about putting on a show or pulling off a practical joke. To bring back the goat ten minutes after the performance had begun shows their lack of information in these two fields. It was rude, disruptive and unduly trying on the performers, who had enough trouble just dodging rice and popcorn.

Also, as far as jokers go, these kids were real palins. With a stunt of this magnitude and wide campus coverage, the plot should have been taken on by the whole junior class, the tradition revealed, rumors noted sent, and a grand entrance down the center aisle of Palmer at 7:55 with a large parade of juniors.

As it was, for a handful to run in with one sign and run out again was very small time.

Next time you want to play games class to class, think big. Get everybody in on it and play it up. Small times manage to focus mindlessness into being a big plan in the goat.
