Comedy Friday Eve Play

The Clandestine Marriage will be presented by the Clandestine Marriage, directed by Mr. J. Rockford, at 8:00 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium. This 18th-century comedy of manner is given by the Play Production Class.

The plot involves a secret marriage, which takes place in a castle in France. The characters are the Duke of Orleans, the Queen, and the Duke's father, the King. The King is in love with the Queen, and the Duke is in love with a commoner, a peasant girl named Fanny. Also adding to the overall confusion of the play is the presence of a mysterious person, called "the Informer," who is trying to prevent the wedding of the Duke and Fanny.

The set of the 18th-century par-ple in Palmer Auditorium. This hilarious production will be given a variety of settings, including a forest, a castle, and a ballroom.

Question of the Week

At this time of the semester, students are anticipating Reading Week, and the opinions of members of the various classes differ as to the value, function, and successes of this week. The purpose of Reading Week is to give students a chance to do some reading in areas which are pertinent to the studies used in the classroom and textbooks. There are, however, many members of the student body who believe that reading for the week is not an effective use of time. Too many of the girls are pressed to rush through their reading because it comes so close to pre-exam time. I think it would be better if there were more choice in the assignments, perhaps a choice of three topics or books for each course. In this way, you could pursue further the particular field of the course that interests you most.

Jean Michaels '56: It provides an excellent opportunity to get a practical view of what has been learned in the classroom, in many cases, in current authors and articles. It is an expansion of classroom knowledge, as seen from texts and discussions. I believe it is essential to have a week during the semester, because if given the chance to do extra reading, and the student profited by breaking the pre-exam tension. You could read outside of class, and could be more successful in understanding and applying what you read. This advantage is not present if the reading is not done outside of class.

Ellen Wexner's '56: The idea is basically good. Too many students, however, misunderstand its aim. Also, the proximity to exams adds undue tension. I don't think this week would be successful, however, during the middle of the semester.

Barbara Wasserman '57: I think Reading Week is a good idea. I agree that it gives a variety of subjects a chance to be read. Although, the entire week is not always devoted to the reading of this week, because sometimes you have to read for other courses. This project would be more successful if it were not so rushed through.

Anne Browning '56: I am in favor of Reading Week as it gives you a chance to further your interests in various fields you have been studying. It is a break from the day to day assignments, and in many classes, beneficial to health if the students keep a regular schedule during the week. But too many of the girls are pressured to rush through their reading because it comes so close to pre-exam time. I think it would be better if they were more choice in the assignments, perhaps a choice of three topics or books for each course. The rain has finally stopped. The sun is again shining! Ah, joyous day, what shall we do to enjoy our day? We might as well go to the sporting party, of course! Nothing better way to be there to get rid of the ashes, pain, and aching weight that accumulates during Reading Week. AA has decided to make this party a success, so be sure to come. The first day during Reading Week that the ice is thick enough will be the day. The hour will be from 7-10. Be sure to watch the bulletin board for directions to the party. The day will be fun. A blank date for Suzy Johnston ’56 and Bill Granger started a romance and left them engaged just in time to meet this Christmas. In October of this year they will go to Yale University, where Bill will be a junior and Suzy a sophomore. The couple both used to live in San Marino, California, but didn’t date during their time there. On Tuesday, October 25, Suzy’s freshman year, she will graduate from V.C.L.A. while Bill goes to the Med. School.

Just seeing each other made them both happy. On December 24—Christmas Eve—a fence in Rockville Centre, New York, completely separated their lives. Mary and Jack are both editor of the Wesleyan Ar- tice at Wesleyan University in New York City. It was arranged by the Wesleyan Art- tice and was a surprise to both of them. They have been dating ever since.

Yale Univ. Raises

Requirements For

Dean's Honor List

New Haven, Conn.—(L.P.)—Because today's students are getting higher marks than those of earlier generations, Yale University authorities have felt compelled to raise the requirements for being named to the Dean's Honor List. Purposes of the revised regulations is to preserve the prestige of the Dean's List, which in the past 10 years has grown to the point where it contains the names of almost half the undergraduates in Yale College.

Before World War II, about 30 per cent of the undergraduates in

Yale College were on the Dean's List. Expansion of the Dean's List at Yale and other colleges first became apparent in the immediate post-war years. At that time it was attributed to the influx of veterans who, it was believed, were more mature and harder working than students without war experience. It was generally expected that as the ranks of veterans dwindled, the size of the Dean's List would return to initial proportions.

But such expectations did not materialize. The number of veterans declined, and the size of the Dean's List continued to grow at Yale and at other colleges. The reasons for this phenomenon, according to Richard C. Carroll, Associate Dean of Yale College, are two-fold.

First, competition for admission to Yale in particular and college in general is harder than ever before because of the sharp increase in the number of students applying to Yale and other colleges.

Second, Yale College is more selective than other colleges. As a result, admission to Yale is more competitive.
