Four Help McCarthy With N.H. Campaign

I "think the reason we went to New Hampshire to campaign for McCarthy is a pretty plain one: our support of his anti-Vietnam war stand. "McCarthy wants the U.S. to get out of Vietnam and concentrate on the urgent domestic problems facing us. This is the course he advocates," said Ann Kabling '70.

"We want to see McCarthy elected. That's why we went to campaign for him," said Ann Kibling '70.

As a reporter and feature editor, Shirley Jan. 26 was the kickoff for the seven state primaries, the first of which was on March 12, which will determine, to a large extent, how the N.H. Democratic candidates will fare in the June 6 primary, according to the predictions of the six editors of the six college newspapers.

The four worked with about 75 other students from the New England area: students from Smith, Yale, Amherst and other colleges.

Offers An Alternative

Eugene McCarthy (D-Minn.) is offering an alternative to the Johnson candidacy. The girls worked towards a McCarthy victory in the New Hampshire primary on March 12, which will determine, to a large extent, how he will proceed in his aspirations to the presidency. The first of the seven state primaries, the N.H. elections are tantamount to an "elimination run," said Ann.

Kabling's appearance in New Hampshire Jan. 26 was the kickoff for her campaign for McCarthy, which will continue through to Concord Feb. 6. She will spend 15 out of the next 40 days there.

Earle and Pellegrini Assume Editorship

Jacqueline Earle and Maria Pellegrini will serve as Conn Censor Co-Editors for the 1968-69 school year. In addition to their duties with the present issue, Earle will serve as assistant editor of the editorial section of "The Modern Interpretation," the college yearbook. Earle has worked summers as a city news reporter for the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Earle and Pellegrini will serve as Earle and Pellegrini Assistant Editor

Maria, a junior chemistry major, has worked on Conn Censor since 1966, having served as a reporter and news editor. She has served as editor of her high school newspaper.

Kathy Riley, a junior government major, will serve as arts and letters editor, and Chris Sanborn, a sophomore English history major, will be feature editor. Additional new members of the editorial staff include Pat Adams, copy editor; Linda Wilkins, makeup; Susan Stockham and Maurice Brown, advertising; Anne Louise Gitterman, business manager; Myra Chandler, circulation; Jane Raffel, exchanges; Shirley Mills, photography.

Respect For His Politics

"My conviction is that McCarthy's stand on Vietnam is an expression of morality in politics. I don't feel that the war in Vietnam can be continued," said Earle. "McCarthy is one of the few candidates offering an end to the war," she said.

"I admire his work as Senator; he actively supports the restrictions on the sale of arms abroad, and a de-emphasis on the militarization of the U.S. He emphasizes dealing with the problems of civil rights, poverty, and the other essentials," said Earle.

Work, Work, Work . . .

When the girls arrived in Concord Wed., Jan. 24, they did a lot of the necessary clerical work for the political campaign. Typing mailing lists and labels, filing, and answering phones occupied them during their first two days.

Ann spent all day painting a big "McCarthey for President" sign to put in front of the headquarters "which was all we could afford," she said.

Then, when McCarthy himself arrived at Nashua, in southern New Hampshire, at 8:30 p.m. Friday the girls began active campaign work, accompanying him on his walking tours of Nashua; they spoke to the people and introduced them to the Senator.

The Senator Wants to Meet You

"We would go up to a group, tell him that Senator McCarthy was coming soon would like to meet him," said Ann. "We distributed handbills and pamphlets and took down the names of the people for our mailing lists." This work gave the girls firsthand experience with the political process: how a candidate meets the people, how they report the issue; how he handles the press and how the day to day work of campaigning really operates, they agreed.

"This was especially valuable and exciting for me," said Earle. (Continued on Page 3, Col. 1)

Conn Census Recruits

When: TODAY, 4:30 p.m.

Where: Conn Census office in C-9

Whom: ANYONE—writers, artists, photographers and comedians

Opportunities for advancement!

Six Clubs To Sponsor Delligoner On Campus

Chairman of the National Mobilization to End the War in Vietnam, David Delligoner, will speak in Palmer Auditorium at Conn Quest weekend, Fri., Feb. 23 at 8 p.m.

Delligoner last October, Delligoner was a 32-year-old Yale graduate, class of '63.

Lubasz to Lecture for History Series

"Revolution and the Modern State", a new series of lectures sponsored by the History Department, will commence Feb. 13 when Professor Heinz Lubasz will speak on "The Bourgeois Revolution" at 4:30 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium.

The general topic of the series is intended to cut across the three concentrations—American, Asian, and European—with the history major, and thus the series will be used both as public lectures and as part of the history honors program.

Subsequent Lectures

Professor Lubasz, chairman of the History of Ideas Program at Brandeis University, will deliver the first two lectures in the series. The second lecture, to be given Feb. 27, will be "The Totalitarian Revolutions".

Professor Lubasz, chairman of the History of Ideas Program at Brandeis University, will deliver the first two lectures in the series. The second lecture, to be given Feb. 27, will be "The Totalitarian Revolutions".

David Delligoner

Originally invited to speak by the Conn Quest Committee, he was later asked to enlarge his appearance in New Haven because he was in North Vietnam.

Speakers to Appeal for Urban Reforms

The explosive and complex urban situation challenges us to act. But what kind of action should we take—to do what already exists, or should we rework, raising the old and starting anew.

Father Daniel Berrigan, S.J., and Professor William Mauldin, two men immersed in the urban crisis, will address themselves to the problem of how to respond to the urban crisis Sat., Feb. 10-11 during the Religious Fellowship Colloquium, "Methods of Change: Reform or Revolution".

Father Berrigan, a noted Jesuit poet, has been active in civil rights efforts, was arrested this fall for his participation in the Washington Peace March and is presently associate director for Service for Central United Religious Work.

Dr. Mauldin is past state chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, and as a New Haven city alderman has worked for improvement of civil rights ordinances and establishment of an Equal Rights Commission in Connecticut.

The two speakers will present their views on the problem during a panel discussion, moderated by J. Barrie Shepherd. In addition, "A TIME FOR BURNING," a provocative, disturbing movie about race relations in a typical American town, Omaha, Nebraska, will be shown. Ample discussion will follow. (Continued on Page 5, Col. 1)

Conn Censor Jan. 26 was the kickoff for the seven state primaries, the first of which was on March 12, which will determine, to a large extent, how the N.H. Democratic candidates will fare in the June 6 primary, according to the predictions of the six editors of the six college newspapers.

The four worked with about 75 other students from the New England area: students from Smith, Yale, Amherst and other colleges.

Earle and Pellegrini will serve as Conn Censor Co-Editors for the 1968-69 school year. They assume their duties with the present issue.

Earle is a junior political science major, serving previously as a reporter and feature editor. She has worked summers as a city news reporter for the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Pellegrini is a junior chemistry major, who has worked on Conn Censor since 1966, having served as a reporter and news editor. She is editor of her high school newspaper.

Kathy Riley, a junior government major, will serve as arts and letters editor, and Chris Sanborn, a sophomore English history major, will be feature editor. Additional new members of the editorial staff include Pat Adams, copy editor; Linda Wilkins, makeup; Susan Stockham and Maurice Brown, advertising; Anne Louise Gitterman, business manager; Myra Chandler, circulation; Jane Raffel, exchanges; Shirley Mills, photography.

"McCarthy's stand on Vietnam is an expression of morality in politics. I don't feel that the war in Vietnam can be continued," said Earle. "McCarthy is one of the few candidates offering an end to the war," she said.

Kabling's appearance in New Hampshire Jan. 26 was the kickoff for her campaign for McCarthy, which will continue through to Concord Feb. 6. She will spend 15 out of the next 40 days there.

"We would go up to a group, tell him that Senator McCarthy was coming soon would like to meet him," said Ann. "We distributed handbills and pamphlets and took down the names of the people for our mailing lists." This work gave the girls firsthand experience with the political process: how a candidate meets the people, how they report the issue; how he handles the press and how the day to day work of campaigning really operates, they agreed.

"This was especially valuable and exciting for me," said Earle. (Continued on Page 3, Col. 1)

"Revolution and the Modern State", a new series of lectures sponsored by the History Department, will commence Feb. 13 when Professor Heinz Lubasz will speak on "The Bourgeois Revolution" at 4:30 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium.

The general topic of the series is intended to cut across the three concentrations—American, Asian, and European—with the history major, and thus the series will be used both as public lectures and as part of the history honors program.

Professor Lubasz, chairman of the History of Ideas Program at Brandeis University, will deliver the first two lectures in the series. The second lecture, to be given Feb. 27, will be "The Totalitarian Revolutions".

Father Daniel Berrigan, S.J., and Professor William Mauldin, two men immersed in the urban crisis, will address themselves to the problem of how to respond to the urban crisis Sat., Feb. 10-11 during the Religious Fellowship Colloquium, "Methods of Change: Reform or Revolution".

Father Berrigan, a noted Jesuit poet, has been active in civil rights efforts, was arrested this fall for his participation in the Washington Peace March and is presently associate director for Service for Central United Religious Work.

Dr. Mauldin is past state chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, and as a New Haven city alderman has worked for improvement of civil rights ordinances and establishment of an Equal Rights Commission in Connecticut.

The two speakers will present their views on the problem during a panel discussion, moderated by J. Barrie Shepherd. In addition, "A TIME FOR BURNING," a provocative, disturbing movie about race relations in a typical American town, Omaha, Nebraska, will be shown. Ample discussion will follow. (Continued on Page 5, Col. 1)

In 1969, in addition to "Theological Seminar" in New York, he did "a study of the teaching of Karl Marx." At the beginning of his second year, he was invited for a second year.

Delligoner was born in Wakefield, Mass. on Aug. 27, 1920. His father, Bernvlief, a political activist, was a graduate of the Yale Law School in 1911.

He and his wife, who met in jail sentences, made their home in Glen Gardner, N.J.

Filling of intentions for student government offices—president, vice-president, secretary, and chief judge of Honor Court, may be filled in the office of the office of the Student Body on Feb. 9 from 8-4.30 p.m. on Feb. 9 and Mon., Feb. 19. Each candidate must submit a picture. For further questions, contact Dana Phillips.

NEW EDITORS: Maria Pellegrini and Jacqueline Earle
Editorial... AN OPEN FORUM

In its short existence of less than four years, the Academic Committee has been instrumental in helping to bring new and innovative ideas to the community. This has been its foremost function. A number of students on campus believe that the minutes of the committee meeting should be published in some form. Many of us think we have a right to know "what's going on." The publication of the activities of the Committee is numerous. For example, Committee debate on certain changes in student body, considered out of context, and easily misunderstood by a group of over-enthusiastic students.

The faculty, who make the final decisions concerning academic and institutional issues, and in more terms of long range effects, whereas students seem to be less concerned with final results.

Students who want to improve an institution regard open discussion, student participation as most important in working changes. Faculty members, however, do not consider a proposal under discussion. The Committee meeting should be published in some way. The implications of such a proposal, the number of years I have watched the decoration plans and gifts become more elaborate and extensive. The time has come for institutional involvement and the Community is faced with new and unprecedented social problems; and the college's policy on student privacy. Before eruption ever began, there was a barrage of criticism from students who did not particularly like the idea of having their rooms, sleeping in their dormitories.

The Administration's reply was that the rooms and beds themselves were college property and thus they had the right to utilize them as they saw fit. Such an attitude seems much like taking all the trouble of locking everything in the college.

The four course system was to provide for a liberal arts education, to call sufficient enough to accept responsibilities, but at what expense?

Which had never before been anticipated to be rushed. The only one, to prevent a student from making? Who cares about student Government? We must be self-sufficient enough to accept responsibilities, but at what expense?

The course system is complex problems which shall

This five or six years, the Academic Committee has been instrumental in helping to bring new and innovative ideas to the community. This has been its foremost function. A number of students on campus believe that the minutes of the committee meeting should be published in some form. Many of us think we have a right to know "what's going on." The publication of the activities of the Committee is numerous. For example, Committee debate on certain changes in student body, considered out of context, and easily misunderstood by a group of over-enthusiastic students.

The faculty, who make the final decisions concerning academic and institutional issues, and in more terms of long range effects, whereas students seem to be less concerned with final results.

Students who want to improve an institution regard open discussion, student participation as most important in working changes. Faculty members, however, do not consider a proposal under discussion. The Committee meeting should be published in some way. The implications of such a proposal, the number of years I have watched the decoration plans and gifts become more elaborate and extensive. The time has come for institutional involvement and the Community is faced with new and unprecedented social problems; and the college's policy on student privacy. Before eruption ever began, there was a barrage of criticism from students who did not particularly like the idea of having their rooms, sleeping in their dormitories.

The Administration's reply was that the rooms and beds themselves were college property and thus they had the right to utilize them as they saw fit. Such an attitude seems much like taking all the trouble of locking everything in the college.

The four course system was to provide for a liberal arts education, to call sufficient enough to accept responsibilities, but at what expense?

Which had never before been anticipated to be rushed. The only one, to prevent a student from making? Who cares about student Government? We must be self-sufficient enough to accept responsibilities, but at what expense?

The course system is complex problems which shall
Six New Instructors Join Conn Faculty

The Connecticut College faculty has expanded to include six new instructors or lecturers. The internationally eminent child psychologist, Dr. Mary Ellis, will be visiting professor of child development during second semester. She received her A.B. from Vassar College and her M.A. and Ph.D. from Columbia.

Assistant Professor Robert De- rove has been named a permanent member of the zoology department. The invertebrate zoology specialist was awarded his B.A. from Tufts University and his P.D. from Columbia.

The author of numerous publications, Dr. John A. Small was appointed visiting professor of botany. Dr. Small will be guest in both his M.Sc. and Ph.D. by Rutgers University.

Dr. Schu Pfeifferberger will be visiting lecturer in the art department. She received her M.A. from Yale University, her B.A. from Bryn Mawr College.

Mr. Jerman Bodine has been appointed part-time visiting lecturer in the religi9n department. He received his B.A. from St. John's College, and his B.D. from the Hartford Seminary Foundation.

Mrs. Nan Y. Stalshaker, who taught at Yale University the past two years, will be visiting instructor in the philosophy department. She was granted her M.A. by Yale University in 1965.

In addition to the six faculty members Dr. John B. Schoonmaker has been appointed College Professor. He received his B.A. from Yale University and his M.D. from Albany Medical College in 1961.

Faculty To Pursue Postgraduate Studies

Mr. Desorciate: “Come with me to the Carabash, you ravishing, delectable dish.”

Mrs. Raby Morris: “You must! I don’t go anywhere with you.”

Mr. Desorciate: “My heart pines for you. You are the sun, the moon, and the stars for me. I cannot live without you.”

Mrs. Morris: “Oh no! Mercurial Minerva save me!”

Would you believe this is the Quest For Zest? Surely you must! Have the members of our faculty really surrendered from the quests for such worthy and noble ideals as education, wisdom, truth, light, and the Holy Grail, in order to pursue a quest for Zest?

And what is this Zest? A quality of enhancement, you say. Or perhaps it is a frenzied flight down crowded, hazardous, yet even mysterious grocery store aisles in search of a much needed bar of soap.

Curious? The two showdowns of “The Quest For Zest,” Thurs., Fri., Feb. 8-9:30 in Palmer Auditorium, directed by Mr. Robert Hale, will benefit the Student Development Committee. We will go toward the purchase of equipment for the new Music and Arts Center.

Tickets are a mere $1.50, and all seats are reserved. Tickets will be sold Thurs., Thurs., and Fri. in Fanning from 9:30-10:30 a.m. and 1:00-3:30 p.m. as well as in Cro from 11:30-12:30 p.m.

LETTERS TO ED (Continued from Page 2, Col. 5)

three became increasingly special. Why not allow us to extend our enthusiasm for this new dimension when our interests range far and wide? Particularly at this time, students desire courses in breadth, depth, and diversity.

Why not make “Conn” commensurate to its name? To encourage students to be more independent and hopefully self-sufficient, why not assist us to choose from broader areas those requirements which we believe will benefit us? I have suggested what I hope will be considered a constructive change because I would like Connecticut College to realize its vast potential.

Carol Shields ’70

McCarthy As a Man

After his speech, he was acclaimed by reporters of not being “political” enough, of not having political个性，of not having the public eye. The Senator answered “I show myself as the intelligent, complex.”

To this the Senator answered “I show myself as the intelligent, complex.”

Many people are looking for a personality makes him rare.

When Senator McCarthy is in New Hampshire Feb. 6-8.

McCarthy on Tour in New Hampshire; Ann Kibling in white

College Takes 36 For Early Decision

Connecticut College has accepted 36 high school seniors for enrollment in the Class of 1972 under the Early Decision Plan. These students come from one foreign country, Great Britain, and 10 states including Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island.

Under the Early Decision Plan, the college admits well-qualified students early in their senior year based on their high school record for three years.

Conn Purchase EM for Research

Connecticut College finally has its electron microscope. It is located in New London Hall. The college is now renting the scope from the same company from which it imported the microscope last spring and part of this money is being credited toward purchase of the scope.

Conn was unable to purchase the Zet microscope at that time. Last spring the college applied for a National Science Foundation Grant for the purchase of the scope and the special equipment that must accompany it. However, neither the grant nor general college funds were available.

Dr. John Kent, professor of zoology, stated that Conn can use a pioneer instead of a follower in the area of student development research. The scope is presently accommodating three student honors projects as well as various faculty research. It is hoped that student research will ultimately take up 40 per cent of the total (Continued on Page 4, Col. 2)

Millworkers Too

After Friday, the girls went to Manchester with McCarthy when they greeted the millworkers as they left their factories. They went to about 18 different locations at various campaign headquarters.

Friday night was the highlight of their work. Karen, Naomi, Ann and Lee heard and watched McCarthy as he delivered a Jean speech at St. Anselm's College in Manchester, and held a press conference afterward.

According to Lee, his speech gave them a real insight into his political ideas and his character as a man.

The Senator stressed that the U.S. must change its policy of multination and must halt its "retailing," his term for the mass "must change its policy u.s. giving them a real insight into his ideas and what he stood for around me as a person.

He was relaxed and personable, "Ve're looking for interested girls to help," said aney. "Every student in our college admits well-qualified students early in their senior year based on their high school record for three years.

Conn Purchase EM for Research

Connecticut College finally has its electron microscope. It is located in New London Hall. The college is now renting the scope from the same company from which it imported the microscope last spring and part of this money is being credited toward purchase of the scope.

Conn was unable to purchase the Zet microscope at that time. Last spring the college applied for a National Science Foundation Grant for the purchase of the scope and the special equipment that must accompany it. However, neither the grant nor general college funds were available.

Dr. John Kent, professor of zoology, stated that Conn can use a pioneer instead of a follower in the area of student development research. The scope is presently accommodating three student honors projects as well as various faculty research. It is hoped that student research will ultimately take up 40 per cent of the total

(Continued on Page 4, Col. 2)
Beyond the Wall
by Janie Rafal

The January 5 issue of the New England Universities Referendum on Vietnam administered to 454 students at Wesleyan were to be furnished to the周恩来... to revolve... IPAC... makes the going great

Hippies will come to Union to express dis-

He also said that the U.S. and Hanoi are in

The telephone line from New Haven will cost $900.00. This cost will be met by broadcasters from the New London area.

Students Release Tensions on Walls

Yale, Conn Radio Clubs Plan Valentine Merger

by Barh Kraksh

The air waves are buzzing about Conn's and Yale's latest plans for peaceful coexistence. WCNI, Conn's radio station, and Yale's WYBC are planning to affiliate in the near future—probably, sigh, as Valentine's Day. Donna Johnson '68, president of WCNI Radio Station, is optimistic about the possibilities of this cooperative endeavor. She said that, with Campus Life's grant of $900.00 in addition to the standard allotment of $400.00, the station will be able to purchase eight new transistors. This will insure the station 100 per cent campus coverage. WCNI will broadcast daily on campus for about 4-5 hours in the early afternoon. When they sign off, Yale's WYBC will be transmitted from New Haven via direct telephone line. WYBC, broadcasting from 7-9 a.m. and 2 p.m.-4 a.m., devotes its program exclusively to rock. WCNI will mix rock with jazz, classical, popular, and folk.

New Feature

Another new feature of the station will be short commercials. The telephone line from New Haven will cost $800.00 per month. This cost will be met by advertisers from the New London area.

Donna stressed the unlimited possibilities for the station, "It's all very exciting. The administration gave us a few pieces of equipment to play with—and now we're really going to do something!"

The plans for WCNI programming include: news analysis, interviews with campus personalities, foreign language shows, and play readings. Faculty, as well, students will eventually participate on the shows.

Yale's "heel," or membership drive, is under way. Members of both stations are planning to go to an old storage room in the northeast corner of the student union. It's a "hostility room," where students release their hostilities (and entertain themselves and others) by writing on the paper-covered walls.

Lighted with red and blue lights, the room is even furnished with a step ladder so every bit of available space can be used. And by the end of the day, the walls are filled with student complaints and congratulations.

It was the first step in a student government project to improve communication with the student body.

WCNI could go to New Haven, and broadcasters from WYBC could come to Conn. Donna said that, with just a little more effort, the radio station can be a valuable service organization to the college community.

GRADUATING SENIORS!

Want in with a going concern?

Pan American Stewardess Interviews Feb. 15

Career Counseling & Placement Office

Pan Am makes the going great
WASHINGTON (CPS) - The Peace Corps, once the Mecca of many student idealists, is on the threshold of what could be the most crucial period in its seven-year history.

Few will deny that the Peace Corps has been one of the most successful and popular of the New Frontier programs initiated during the Kennedy Administration. But the Peace Corps now faces many new and delicate problems, most of them a direct result of the war in Vietnam.

Can it survive?

The tachnicalities with which these problems are solved will determine whether or not the Peace Corps can survive on a large scale, and if it can, how effective it will be in accomplishing its original mission.

Peace Corps officials—who in the past have had hiatus trouble convincing young people to give up two years of their life to work in an undeveloped country—find themselves on the defensive for the first time. The major problem is the Peace Corps' close association with the federal government at a time when the government is unpopular among young people.

Peace Corps officials, including Agency Director Jack Vaughn, are not ready to admit the Corps high-ranking government officials have confirmed privately that the Corps may be in trouble.

Peace Corps officials—who in the past have had hiatus trouble convincing young people to give up two years of their life to work in an undeveloped country—find themselves on the defensive for the first time. The major problem is the Peace Corps' close association with the federal government at a time when the government is unpopular among young people.

Peace Corps officials, including Agency Director Jack Vaughn, are not ready to admit the Corps high-ranking government officials have confirmed privately that the Corps may be in trouble.

Peace Corps officials—who in the past have had hiatus trouble convincing young people to give up two years of their life to work in an undeveloped country—find themselves on the defensive for the first time. The major problem is the Peace Corps' close association with the federal government at a time when the government is unpopular among young people.

Peace Corps officials, including Agency Director Jack Vaughn, are not ready to admit the Corps high-ranking government officials have confirmed privately that the Corps may be in trouble.

Peace Corps officials—who in the past have had hiatus trouble convincing young people to give up two years of their life to work in an undeveloped country—find themselves on the defensive for the first time. The major problem is the Peace Corps' close association with the federal government at a time when the government is unpopular among young people.

Peace Corps officials, including Agency Director Jack Vaughn, are not ready to admit the Corps high-ranking government officials have confirmed privately that the Corps may be in trouble.

Peace Corps officials—who in the past have had hiatus trouble convincing young people to give up two years of their life to work in an undeveloped country—find themselves on the defensive for the first time. The major problem is the Peace Corps' close association with the federal government at a time when the government is unpopular among young people.

Peace Corps officials, including Agency Director Jack Vaughn, are not ready to admit the Corps high-ranking government officials have confirmed privately that the Corps may be in trouble.

Peace Corps officials—who in the past have had hiatus trouble convincing young people to give up two years of their life to work in an undeveloped country—find themselves on the defensive for the first time. The major problem is the Peace Corps' close association with the federal government at a time when the government is unpopular among young people.

Peace Corps officials, including Agency Director Jack Vaughn, are not ready to admit the Corps high-ranking government officials have confirmed privately that the Corps may be in trouble.

Peace Corps officials—who in the past have had hiatus trouble convincing young people to give up two years of their life to work in an undeveloped country—find themselves on the defensive for the first time. The major problem is the Peace Corps' close association with the federal government at a time when the government is unpopular among young people.

Peace Corps officials, including Agency Director Jack Vaughn, are not ready to admit the Corps high-ranking government officials have confirmed privately that the Corps may be in trouble.
Firm Warns Against Fatal Student Fad

A recent report issued by the Chemical Specialties Manufactur- ers Association, Inc., warns students of the dangers of inhaling the aerosol cans. The practice of inhaling con- centrated aerosol vapors has become a fad among students aged 16 to 21, according to the report. Thus, in searching for a new method of intoxication, seven stu- dents died from asphyxiation last year.

Fatal Consequences

The report is actually an ap- peal to changes to make known the fatal consequences of inhaling the fluorocarbons used in aerosol cans. Such gases are non-toxic and safe for use in the cans.

The report states: "This (is an) appeal to you, the students that this gross misuse .. has caused death."

"The tragedy of a death is sufficient justification for the [chemical] industry to ask cooperation in helping to avoid the exposure of unknowing stu- dents to these possibly serious consequences."

Report Confirmed

Articles printed in Time Maga- zine, Oct. 12, and Newsweek, Oct. 16, confirm the chemical manufacturers' statements. In each case are cited in which teenagers inhaled Freon 12, an odorless, colorless, cryogenic gas, from cocktail-type chiller sprays.

In each case death was im- mediate, and, according to med- ical reports, was caused by asphyxiation — freezing of the larynx with resulting paralysis of the respiratory system.

Firm Warns Against Fatal Student Fad

A recent report issued by the Chemical Specialties Manufactur- ers Association, Inc., warns students of the dangers of inhaling the aerosol cans. The practice of inhaling con- centrated aerosol vapors has become a fad among students aged 16 to 21, according to the report. Thus, in searching for a new method of intoxication, seven stu- dents died from asphyxiation last year.

Fatal Consequences

The report is actually an ap- peal to changes to make known the fatal consequences of inhaling the fluorocarbons used in aerosol cans. Such gases are non-toxic and safe for use in the cans.

The report states: "This (is an) appeal to you, the students that this gross misuse .. has caused death."

"The tragedy of a death is sufficient justification for the [chemical] industry to ask cooperation in helping to avoid the exposure of unknowing stu- dents to these possibly serious consequences."

Report Confirmed

Articles printed in Time Maga- zine, Oct. 12, and Newsweek, Oct. 16, confirm the chemical manufacturers' statements. In each case are cited in which teenagers inhaled Freon 12, an odorless, colorless, cryogenic gas, from cocktail-type chiller sprays.

In each case death was im- mediate, and, according to med- ical reports, was caused by asphyxiation — freezing of the larynx with resulting paralysis of the respiratory system.