"Laws," the employee who was caught spying on students while they showered, has been terminated from appointment at Connecticut College. According to one student, the employee was walking around the campus and from students to administration to casual workers knew the laws of trust that it was a result of the incidents that occurred earlier this month.

This concern stems from the belief that Laws did not act according. According to an unnamed source, many more individuals could be involved. "We were told that others are involved and he might not be the only one," the source continued. "There is a good chance he was the only one drifting homes." With homes mostly spotted in Wright and Knowles, all students are reminded to exercise caution.

Laws, reportedly a former employee of Providence College, held a comparable job and left on undisclosed terms to a member of the Providence College Human Resources Department.

The administration is attempting to control the problem through an internal investigation, held by Dean of Student Life David Milione. "Both Campus Safety and the New London Police Department are looking into the situation," a report said filed with the New London Police to alert them to this investigation. Charges are being filed, however, according to a concerned legal source. "It was clear that students were not totally in favor of the new policy while the majority of students favored the existing one. It was clear that students were not totally in favor of the new policy but not in favor of the existing one," said Christler, reflecting the sentiment of Professor Bruce Kirmmse's Conversation Speech in August. Kirmmse spoke on the need for students to ask questions and express their opinions.

The winter break was a cut week shorter than it has been in past years, beginning at the conclusion of finals on December 10th and ending on January 5th.

The reason, Professor Christler said, was due to a request made from the Board of Trustees to begin graduation earlier in order to give graduates an edge in competing for jobs in May. In order to balance Connecticut College's academic standard of 70 class days, an early graduation would result in the need to cut into a college recess. Administration Makes Right Decision on Smoking Policy

The final choice of the administration to modify the smoking policy by banning smoking in some dorms while allowing others within the current policy limits brings the middle road to reality. This is likely to please the largest number of students while giving them some control over their environment. It is also a wise decision given the current health climate. The administration had to navigate conflicting pressures and create a policy that stood to do the most good for the maximum number of people. They have succeeded.

Administration Makes Right Decision on Smoking Policy

To the editors:

As a resident of one of the dorms where the problems were found in the shower, I found this week's editorial to be not only thoughtless of the student body and is willing to follow through with that trust. It is refreshing to see the promise of shared governance so truly being fulfilled on an issue where the administration could have never bothered to involve all students in dorm decisionmaking.

If we are to ignore all this noise as they have made absolutely the right decision for this situation.

Let us change our weekend schedule and leave for Boston on Saturday.

Many students, therefore, have not blame to shoulder in this scenario. Once again, we apologize for the editorial and we hope all those affected or justified discomfort and anger on the part of several readers could have been averted. We think we all realized we had been a little too naive.

GOLD COMPOSES MAGICAL DEBUT

By Shona Sequeira

ASSOCIATE STAFF WRITER

The world of film is a competitive one, and often one that features the most talented of actors. With such a high level of competition, it is rare that a new face can make its debut and immediately capture the world's attention. However, that is exactly what happened with Greta's new film, "The Magician's Return". The film, which opens nationwide this Friday, has already received critical acclaim for its stunning visuals and captivating story. And, the performance of the lead actress, Greta, has been nothing short of breathtaking. She delivers a portrayal that is both nuanced and powerful, successfully capturing the essence of her character and drawing the audience into her world. The film follows the story of a young illusionist who, after a series of misadventures, is stranded in a small town. There, he learns the true meaning of magic and discovers the power of love. Throughout the film, Greta's character navigates a complex web of emotions, from joy to despair, and always manages to come out on top. Her performance is a testament to her talent as an actress, and she truly shines in this role. The film has already earned several awards and accolades, including Best Actress at the recent Cannes Film Festival. With this debut, Greta has solidified her place in the industry and has earned the respect of her peers. It is clear that she is a star in the making, and we are excited to see what she will do next. The film opens in theaters nationwide this Friday, so be sure to catch it in time. It is definitely worth your time and money!

The defaced poster will be found on the floor in the back on Tuesday. It is unclear who is responsible for the incident.

A statement with a graphic depiction was found written on the hallway between Jacobus and Mathews shortly after SOUL's awareness week. It was later confirmed that this was an unprovoked and inappropriate joke aimed at the person. The person involved asked that the specific statement be not included here.

In a "building a community" poster created for each dorm that outlines what residents wish to see inside their dorms, an unknown student added "white people" to the outside.

"Spic" was found written on students' message boards.

A threatening voice message was left for an admissions office staff member. It is unknown whether the caller was a member of the campus community or not. This incident is under investigation.

Uruguay's poster for Black History Month was found defaced in the hall between Park and Marshall with "Black History Month" circling it. In its place was placed "Nigger Martin," which was in black ink above it.

The SGA distributed signs reading "We Support Diversity." It has received many student donations. In late November over 300 students marched into the 1941 Room to protest SGA action in handling issues of diversity and race.

Currently there are no plans to take collective action within the community.

past September there have been several incidents of poster defacement, derogatory graffiti and race-related vandalism.

The first incident, which also involved poster defacement, occurred in KB on September 26th. Two weeks later, someone wrote racist slurs on the walls of the KB basement and fourth floor. This Sunday's incident is the first reported from the floor.

Currently there is no evidence linking any of the incidents to an individual or group, nor is there evidence to suggest that the perpetrator was a student or employee. "We haven't had any issues in our dorm," Belluscio said proudly.

"We have a great community here." The SGA and administrators are proposing several strategies to address these anonymous attacks. A new task force, headed by the Office of Student Life, Campus Safety and the Cultural Diversity Commission, will serve as a central location for identifying evidence, noting patterns of incidents and maximizing community awareness of racial discrimination or attacks.

Several methods have been proposed to increase campus-wide involvement in upholding values pertaining to diversity on our campus. Stay posted to the importance of upholding diversity as an institutional value. We are working to raise awareness around these issues and we encourage your help in maintaining a safe and supportive environment for all members of our community.

Nation Braces for Potential Terror Attack
BY RON FOURS

The nation braced for a potential terror attack with heightened alert status.

In Washington, U.S. counterterrorism officials said they were reviewing a transcript of the tape, but could not verify its authenticity. Officials could not immediately confirm that.

Ordinarily, vaccines do their job by provoking the immune system to clone out antibodies that recognize an invading germ and kill it before it ever establishes an infection.

Even though the body already makes antibodies against HIV, they aren't very potent; a thick coat of sugar that covers the virus' surface. However, new studies suggest it is possible to coax antibodies that actually do kill HIV, and studies are under way to find ways to trigger their production.

Vaccine scientists say that the vaccine would be the least of bin Laden's worries. Cataldo, the FBI special agent who reviews a transcript of the tape, said the officials did not believe it was bin Laden's voice. "There are many voices that sound like bin Laden's, and it is possible that we will never be able to be certain whether or not it was him." The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss the case with reporters.

The relationship between Connecticut College and the Coast Guard Academy is a source of mutual pride for this spring semester, wrote President F. Wayne Capers in a January 3 Letter to parents.

With a mix of a Coast Guard Academy class and Connecticut College students in each of the three classes, I feel confident that our students will benefit from new opportunities to interact with students who have chosen a very different education and career path.

Commander Joseph Vojvuch, an Associate Professor of International Relations at the Coast Guard Academy, is teaching a course on Toleration at the Academy, Assistant Dean, Broyer, Secretary of the College and General Counsel, is teaching a course there on Constitutional Law.

We've always had exchanges with the Coast Guard in a variety of ways, said Assistant Registrar Anne Vorbach. "There are group-cruise events at the Academy for management, accounting, and other business-related courses not offered at CC. Cadets also take elective courses at CC. In both cases, there are usually few if any students who come to our campus.

Larry Vogel's philosophy course has asbestos students from Conn. and students from four other colleges. Each section of Commander Vojvuch's drug policy course has about twelve Conn. students and ten cadets.

In 'Tolerance, Freedom, and the Irreducible,' Professor Vogel's students explore the limits of liberty in a liberal society. The philosophical grounding of the course is based on Locke and Mill, but it focuses on the contemporary issues. Differences in CC and CGA student backgrounds and lifestyles have made the course 'a very interesting cultural experience,' Vogel said.

"I think that the joint classes between Conn. and the Coast Guard are very worthwhile for everyone involved," said Dan Hartnett, a Conn. student who has attended Vojvuch's joint courses. "We've been treated very politely and received the treatment we would at Conn. than they are different," said Christa. Vogel's class. "I think with the joint courses, we expect people to respect the policy more."

"It is saying don't go smoke free."

"If you don't smoke free dorms will be reprimanded according to the policy."

"Different dorms will be reprimanded according to the policy."

"We're going to have prospective rights to receive student opinion and input," added Anthony Campbell, the chair of the SGA and the Residential Life subcommittee. "I think the decision we have reached has taken student voices into consideration."

"We think the decision we have reached has taken student voices into consideration, " affirmed Milstone, "much with the help of the College and General Counsel, is one to..." continued from page 1

Back-to-Back Games

By CAnuN CALIAGnAN

Too little, too late” was the theme for the Camels’ (12-5-3) this weekend as they lost two road games versus NESCAC opponent Hamilton (12-7-2). The Camels played well in a 1-2 loss Saturday night and a 4-3 loss Sunday afternoon.

The Camels came out strong Saturday, holding Hamilton scoreless for the entire first period. But Hamilton hung onto a 0-1 lead for the remainder of the game. Forward Caley Boyd ’03 had three points, including a goal, but Hamilton was not able to capitalize on scoring opportunities. Hamilton scored in the second period and the game ended 1-0. The Camels are now 9-10 in back-to-back games.

“We went out with more intensity and determination in this game,” commented McMahon.

Boyd added, “The second match was a lot tougher to lose, because we dominated most of the game. We had opportunities but we did not capitalize on them. We played harder and we deserved to win.”

The Camels look forward to upcoming matches versus NESCAC rival Williams this Saturday and Sunday.

Defenceman Laura Gosnell ’06 noted that the ankle and Boyd has a supply of soap. Boyd “have a couple games, but they should all be finished up by this weekend.”

McKenzie commented, “We have a tough set of games this weekend, but we know we can play up to our [Williams] level. We are ready to give them a good match. I think we may surprise them.”

balanced production. Danny had his best game of the season, and Bob had one of his best in recent memory, not to mention the effort from everyone on the team. Reid, true to his word, will be looking forward to this weekend’s game.

The boys really want to come out on top, “We win one game in nine, but win two in nine, is okay, this means something.”

said Reid.

“Realistically, we’re not supposed to win at all, but we can’t just say we can’t win. People just don’t think we can, but when we get hot and we execute, we can take anyone.”

And to give all of us fans just that much more confidence in the squad, Melzer let us know how it is: “I know no matter the outcome no matter what happens we’re going to leave everything out on the floor. We’re going to leave it with no regrets because we have worked hard so hard to get where we are.”

So here’s hoping for some good spirit, play good and luck this weekend. And no matter what, I know that our game at large, that day looked good, Real it was good. It was a good game.

Conn Falls to Bates in Swimming and Diving

Bates was the final men in both teams’ selection region. The men finished with a 5-5 record, while the women’s record is 10-5.

The Swimming and Diving Camels are now looking forward to their championship season. The first championship for both team is the NESCAC championship which will be held this weekend. The women will be at Tufts, while the men will be at Williams.

When asked about his predictions regarding NESCAC, boys commented “We are doing so much better in NESCAC than we have ever done before. Typically we fall at the bottom of the pack, but this year we are going to be different. We already beat some of those NESCAC schools that we usually beat behind.”

Whether both teams place nationally high or not, the final NESCAC ranking will be determined this weekend. However, regardless of how they rank against other schools, the men, women, and coaches of the Connecticut College swimming and diving team can be content that they have had one of the best seasons in the recent history of the program.

Committee Reports

Evan Southworth reported that the 15 committee had met. They said that they would look into having the library open twenty-four hours a day during finals. She also reported that the now-peer printer system has been very effective in reducing paper waste and that so far there have been no problems with printing services.

She also informed everyone that the Environmental Modeling Committee is currently in the process of petitioning for the award of the environmental communication position for next year. She will bring more information concerning this meeting. Kate loves the idea of the peer printing system because you’re not wasting paper, and reported that they are ticketing aggressively through campus. Hilary Garrison-Botsford reported that the computer lab has met with the students and discussed student dating during Miner Hall’s daily event on Sunday nights instead of Friday nights. Also added that she thinks of Dating Services would like to add a SQA meeting, but first that needs a junior.

Rich Groeger noted that ABC had not and were comparing SQA’s coffee deal with that of schools including Brandeis, Colby Institute of New York and other that are not effective and will not work.
