Van dusen of Union Seminary
To Speak at Sunday Vespers

Dr. Henry F. Van Dusen, president emeritus of Union Seminary in New York, will be the guest speaker at 5:30 p.m. today. Sunday Vespers in Hartcomb Chapel this week. One of the greatest ecclesiastical historians in our time, Dr. Van Dusen comes to us with a very distinguished background.

He received his A.B. from Princeton University in 1915, a B.D. from Union Theological Seminary in 1919, and his Ph.D. from Edinburgh University in 1932. He also holds honorary degrees from Westminster Theological Seminary, Union Theological Seminary, Amherst College, Oberlin College, Yale University, Dartmouth College, Colgate University, Heidelberg College, and Queen's University.

Seminary Career

Dr. Van Dusen joined the faculty of Union Theological Seminary in 1930. In 1935 he became assistant professor of systematic theology and the philosophy of religion. He was promoted to associate professor in 1951, and in 1958 to full professor of systematic theology. From 1951 to 1965 he served as chairman of the Board of Trustees. He has been president since 1965.

A trustee of Princeton University, Van Dusen is also a member of the board of directors of the church in his home town of Union, New Jersey.

Compet Play Critic Appraises Fosch, Junior Drama Entries

The senior class opened the 1959 series of Competitive Plays on Friday night with a number of outstanding entries. After the brief and pleasantly arranged prologue, the scenes went on up the delightful scenes of the famous Anglo-Saxon poet, Geoffrey, and his son. The flutes of heaven and the low, mellow notes of the trumpets were played wonderfully in the style of the Middle Ages. The voices of the actors were clear and distinct, and the actors were dressed in the costumes of the Middle Ages. The scenery was arranged by Genevieve Pitot.

Chapel Change Proposed New By Petitioners

In Note—Several petitions are being circulated on campus concerning the current chapel system. The following is a copy of one of these petitions showing the points considered and the arguments proposed.

Objected List

To all undergraduates, advocate revision of the present Chapel Plan, and propose an alternative plan. Compulsory chapel represents an unnecessary attempt to impose regulations on religious freedom.

2. The process of making or moral development demands that a woman be free to follow her own conscience. Actions from individuals who would make such decisions should be considered. In the experience of many, the present system is not open to them. The present system is considered by a great number of students to be a source of stress and frustration.

3. The quality of the services at the present chapel is often poor and it is important that the student body be properly informed on this matter. The content of the services is often incomplete and the students are often left with unanswered questions. The present system does not provide an adequate opportunity for students to express their views.

4. The system of compulsory chapel is not a moral system. It is not the only moral system that can be effective. It is not the only moral system that can be effective. The present system does not provide an adequate opportunity for students to express their views.

5. Because of the present system, many students are not able to pursue their religious interests in a manner that is consistent with their personal values and beliefs. The present system does not provide an adequate opportunity for students to express their views.

Political Analysis:

Shaptes Gov't Talk

On Tuesday, March 3 and Wednesday, March 4, Mr. Bayard Bogan will visit the Connecticut College campus.

Mr. Ewing, the Republican National Committeeman from Rhode Island, and in the past he has been the state chairman. He was a candidate for United States Senate in 1958, and now president of law in Providence.

On Tuesday afternoon, Dr. Bogan will meet with all government majors and discuss current political developments. Mr. Ewing will accompany Mr. Lockard to the political science department.

"Politics and American Civic Policy" will be the topic for Mr. Ewing's lecture at 5:00 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium. His talk will consist of an analysis of the American political party system, the ways they shape our foreign policy.
What Price Progress?

Each year, with the end of the all-college elections comes the end of a phase of growth, of experimentation, and of progress. The beginning of the new year starts a new period of experimentation and growth, but above all, progress toward the ideal that underlies all the phases, and guides all the people engaged in this process of growth, the ideal that say, is a wonderful thing; it provides a sense of purpose, defines a goal, and inspires determination to improve and to reach that goal. The only trouble is that in trying to attain this ideal, the tendency is to take far greater leaps than to go straight into the face of responsibility. The urge to create, to improve, is worthy of the highest plaudits, but on the other hand, I feel that we have, come up with these varied interests, have, come up with these varied ideas, and the question of the balance between the reality and the ideal is perhaps the greatest stride toward attainment. An ideal cannot be compromised or debased, for only the pure is worth striving to attain. Even though we know it lies with us, as with each, with each new step comes gradual progress, so that ultimately the ideal is within grasp.

An individual does not have the ability to achieve the ideal. Such an accomplishment is the work of many united in a single, perhaps the greatest stride toward attainment. An individual does not have the ability to achieve the ideal. Such an accomplishment is the work of many united in a single, light."...

Editor's note: The following is a notice from the Admissions Office of Connecticut College, Cahir of Accelerated and Work, to the students interested in summer study.

Dear Editor,

All the general muttering and grumbling that's been going on in the Admissions Office since far back as I can remember has lately been expressed very well in print. It was also expressed in the confusion that this year, the year before that, and the year before, when somebody felt compelled to write us. They were the occasions when we all somehow got away from school and decided that we should be getting. The cry has been heard again this year, and the fact of the matter is, if you think it's not a surprise, I'm not expressing myself, and while the truth is a bit more complicated, locally the most pitiful naive possible is that: as a South-Western college for culture.

Since I was born four years ago, the college has not been a great part of the trouble. I speak here, of course, of the general unrest that has managed to something to discuss with him, for I've always thought that you who fail to do this may be

Savvin Saves Day at Yale

Nancy Savin '39 had the opportunity this past week end to experience a moment which happens once in a lifetime. When the Connecticut College Choir traveled to Yale to participate in the Alumni Day ceremonies there they were scheduled to sing an anthem commemorating to Korea as War dead with Mrs. Helen Boatwright as soloist. The group arrived in New Haven in the morning and rehearsed until noon, with Mrs. Boatwright singing her part. An hour before the performance was scheduled to begin Mrs. Boatwright discovered that she was unable to sing and called Nancy in to inform her that she, Nancy, would have to substitute. During the following hour Miss Savin went over the role with Mrs. Boatwright, and took her place on the platform when the time of performance arrived. None of the other vvorlds knew of the substitution and Nancy was informed later by one of the other girls that as the figure which she supposed to be Mrs. Boatwright stepped out onto the platform dressed in the blue choir skirt and white blouse, the choir member's reaction was that it was also that of Mrs. Boatwright to dress like the girl.

Although Miss Savin had never sung the role before the performance, she was able to execute it with skill, much to the delight and gratification of the very surprised audience and Mr. Arthur Quimby, choir director. In summing up the unusual experience of the moment, Miss Savin reminded the interviewer that this was the manner in which Robert Peters got her start.

great thinkers, artists, and writers. I came to try and understand everything I didn't understand, to have knowledge and facts to support me in my conflict. I wanted to meet challenges I didn't expect to continue to face in my life. If the challenges I've met haven't always been easy, I've grown more than I ever expected. It was a strong experience which has left me with a new sense of self-confidence, and I will take no responsibility for any of their failures. Jane Louise Taylor '59 rules of men. (God, Gabriel, Abraham, and Noah in Green Pastures are no more men than they are mortals.) As far as women can do it all, the Freshmen performing the roles of men did as well as one could hope for--and often better.

Very interesting was Julie Theis as Abel. She has undoubledly skill as an actress. Her spectacles and sensitivity and understanding. Towards the end of the scene where she talked to her father, the actor of Abel, he was awkward, uncertain, and self-conscious. But in a moment she moved toward the front of the stage, and spoke as the child of a father unjustly condemned. In this speech she brought the thought and feeling depended not at all upon the sex of the child. She became impassioned and yet restrained; she seemed to live the part that she was playing; she didn't say her lines, she mouthed and gesture.
