Putnam Probes Sex Life, Attitudes on Conn

By COLE WARD

For the fifth time in the last five years, four students from the Connecticut College student government and six students from the College's five residential communities participated in the 1991 student attitudes and experiences survey. This year's participants included five male and five female students from both communities. The survey, designed to observe students' attitudes, behaviors and fears surrounding sexuality, was distributed in late February and was conducted by Ernest Proctor, assistant director of the College's Office of Campus Activities and Services.

The survey was distributed to and completed by an estimated 550 students, 100 students from each of the five communities. The survey included questions ranging from students' perceptions of how much other students talked about sex to their attitudes toward masturbation. Students were also asked how comfortable they felt explaining their sexual activities to a sexual partner.

Proctor said the survey was designed to observe students' attitudes, behaviors and fears surrounding sexuality. The survey was distributed to and completed by an estimated 550 students, 100 students from each of the five communities.

Where are the Campus Democrats, Republicans and McCainites?

Where are the Campus Democrats, Republicans and McCainites? A few months ago, the presidential primaries were a forgone conclusion. Texas governor George W. Bush had the Republican nomination wrapped up on the strength of polls showing the front-runner with no serious competition.

But since the California presidential primary race has become a two-man contest, with Senator John McCain’s startling victory in the New Hampshire primary, the fate of the front-runner has been in doubt. The front-runner was Bush, but three weeks before Super Tuesday they should be looking at the possibility of a insurgency. It seems that the large bloc of student registration in the Chinese Cultural Center and other organizations of a similar stripe, it’s all about making money.

Jeffrey Goldfarb is a junior majoring in political science. He is a member of the Campus Democrats and Republicans. This is his first write-up. It is time to make up for lost content and present the Concerned Student. The democratic presidential candidates have modified their agenda accordingly. That means that the large bloc of students registered to vote in the primaries will be necessary to win.

Mensa’s Dream House

To the Presidents of the Campus Democrats and Republicans:

This is an open call for all students who are interested in participating in the upcoming election season. If you are interested in volunteering for either presidential campaign or working on the issues related to the election, please contact the Campus Democrats or Republicans.

Support Bill Bradley. Bill Bradley is the most viable candidate for the presidency. He has the experience and the leadership skills that are necessary to get this country back on track. He is a true statesman and a true democrat. He has the vision and the courage to lead this country out of the mess that we are in. He is the candidate who can unite the country and bring it together.

I am writing to you all because I believe that it is important for us to make our voices heard. We are the future of this country, and we have a responsibility to ensure that our voices are heard. We must stand up for what we believe in and fight for a better future.

The time is now to make a difference. Join Bill Bradley’s campaign and help to build a better future for all Americans. Together we can make a difference.

Sincerely,

Letters to the Editor

The College Voice welcomes letters from all readers. Please keep your letters short and to the point. Letters should be no longer than 300 words. The College Voice reserves the right to edit letters for clarity and length. No unsigned letters can be printed.

To the Editor:

The College Voice is an excellent source of information for the student body. It is a place where students can express their views and opinions on various issues. It is also a place where students can learn about what is happening on campus and in the world.

However, I would like to suggest that the College Voice be more inclusive of a diverse range of voices. Right now, the College Voice seems to primarily represent the opinions of the white, upper-class, mainstream student body. There is a need for voices from different backgrounds and perspectives to be heard.

This is a problem that I believe we can all work together to address. We can do this by encouraging students from different backgrounds to write letters to the editor and by providing a platform for a wider range of voices to be heard.

Thank you for considering my suggestion.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
Valentine's Day: A Long and Lonely History

By BRETCOHEN

It's February and you know what that means, Valentine's Day. The wonderful time of the year when men and women are made even more lonely every time they walk into a store and realize that no one is going to buy them one of those giant heart-shaped boxes of chocolate. Yes, this is the actual, statistically accurate and undeniable fact of the matter. So, love you know how to love.

But in all seriousness, why has Valentine's Day become so integral to our culture? Was it always this way? How did it come to be? These are the questions that this article seeks to answer.

Valentine's Day has expanded into a giant money-making machine, but did it always start this way? It may be surprising to some, but this holiday has its roots in a man named Claudius.

Claudius was the Roman Emperor who ruled from 41 to 54 AD. He was known for his brutality and his desire to see people suffer. Unfortunately, his reign was marked by violence and oppression.

One of the many tales about Claudius is that he was a real bastard bent on defeating everyone who opposed him. He was a tyrant and a sadistic ruler.

Regardless of the reasons behind it, Valentine's Day has become a symbol of love and romance. But did it always start this way? Was it always about the exchange of flowers and chocolates?

It's hard to say for sure, but it's likely that the origins of Valentine's Day can be traced back to the Roman Empire. In fact, there is evidence to suggest that a man named Claudius was associated with this holiday.

Claude, who was a priest in ancient Rome, was the first to be associated with the holiday. According to legend, Claude was a priest who lived during the reign of Emperor Claudius.

It is said that he was a man of great wisdom and he was known for his love of love. Claude was said to have been a great lover of literature and he was known for his ability to express himself in a way that was both poetic and touching.

It is also said that Claude was a man of great compassion and he was known for his ability to console those who were suffering. He was a man who was always willing to listen and who was always willing to offer words of encouragement.

In any case, Valentine's Day has evolved into a holiday that is celebrated around the world. It is a time when people come together to share their feelings and to express their love.

So, the next time you see someone holding a heart-shaped box of chocolates, remember that it all started with a man named Claude. The story of Valentine's Day may be long and lonely, but it is a story that is full of love and hope.

Yugoslav Troupe Brings High Impact Political Theater to Conn

By REBEKAH PAGE

For the action of Dub Teatar, the experimental theater founded in 1991 in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dub Teatar's emphasis is on the development of a performance language based on the experience of the actor's skills and the director's exploration in the creative process. The idea "Theater Laboratory" reflects an intense concentration on research and experimental work in search of questions that will help in developing artistic and individual potential.

The working process of performances, such as "Documents of Time," the good Dub Teatar presented in the Tannill Theater last night, goes on for months. During that period, the actors work on developing their skills and creating materials that gradually form the characters.

"Documents of Time" was created in Belgrade, in May and June 1999, during the NATO bombing of the former Yugoslavia. The group is composed of the members of the company, and represents the Tottenham to capture a tone, in order to work for a record of war.

The performance piece opens with two elderly women, played by Aleksandra Jelic and Nebojsa Popovic, telling their story through several different languages, including excerpts from Jack Forder's "Chicken Soup for the Soul" to the audience who come out of old ladies using the memory of homeland that is reflected in the lives of those struck.

Dub Teatar has evolved into a unique form of creative expression. It is refreshing to see that all is enhanced by the power of words, the emptiness of their situation. The piece combines the stripping away of their native clothing, which had been ripped open and worn, as a symbol of the loss of their identity. Among other things, it gives a sense of the heroism which is their homeland. Overall, by using theater to promote the strength of the human spirit, the troupe went masterfully and performed last week.

A member of the Repulica Theater group, Dub Teatar's goal was to "create a piece of art from time or financial constraints. The troupe's performance that touches its audience, not for Dub Teatar's homeland, but around the world.

The Camels faced an immense challenge during the first half. They were never stopped cutting and beating the opposition to the other side of the floor. Of course, the effort was not in vain, as not a single turnover was gained. The 2-3 zone employed by Wesleyan was not effective, due in part to Conn's lack of height. Conn held Wesleyan to ten points gone in the half and a nineteenth-looked-for Conn three-point, a quick 7-0 game.

The second half saw Conn put forth a solid effort and ishing the season strong. The Lady Camels against the Owl in the Olympic size rink at Southern Connecticut State University. The women picked up two conference wins over the weekend. They took their toll as Wesleyan
