Barthianism To Be Expounded Sunday
By G. W. Richards

Third Speaker In Inter-
Doctrinal Debates Will Tell
Of Important Movement

The third speaker in Interfaith Month Services to be held Sunday morning will be George W. Richards, pro-president of the theological semin-yary of the Reformen church in the United States, at Lancaster, Pa. President
Richards has studied at the Universities of Berlin, Erlangen, Edinburgh and received the degree of Ph.D. from the University of Heidelberg. After serving a pastorate in Allentown, Pa., he was appointed professor of church hisory in the Reformed Theological Seminary, and soon after became its head. He has also been lecturer in the Biblical Seminary in New York.

Richards has for many years been prominent in the religious life of America and particularly in the work of the International Ecumenical Union, which has served as the president of the American society of church history, of the American Society of church history, and of the American Theological Association. He is the author of Historical and Doctrinal Literature and Mennonite Motives in America; other works are Fundamentalism and Modernism, which reveals him as one of the outstanding interpreters in America of the thought of Karl Barth, the famous Swiss theologian, whose preaching and writing have had such a tremendous influence in Europe today, and an influence making felt in the English speaking world. President Richards is well known for this vitally contemporary trend within Christen-endom.

The service will be at 7:30 p.m. in the college gymnasium.

Basketball Season Opens March 1

March 1 will herald the first of the annual inter-class basketball games with the Juniors defending the honor of their class against the Freshmen. Class songs and yells, old and new will ring again in the rafters of the gym. The Freshmen will introduce the mascot they have chosen to the college-at-large, and sometime during the course of the evening, the Junior class will throw another mascot cue to the Sopho-

This will be the first in the annual spring basketball series. The man-ers of the teams are the following: Freshman Class, Then Dutcher Sophomore Class, Lucia Dick and Junior Class, Margaret Robinson.

WESLEYAN GLEE CLUB
Concert and Dance
From concert to 8, or to 9
From 9 to 12

WESLEYAN MUSICIANS
For Concert and
Dance Saturday
Group Will Be Enterta-
ing As Guests Of College

Wesleyan Glee Club is giving a concert Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the gymnasium, and immediately afterwards the whole audience will be requested to come downstairs and dancing to the music of the Wes-eyan Serenaders. The tickets, seventy-six cents a couple and a forty-cents stag, are to be presented at both the concert and the dance; so students are cautioned against losing them. From dinner on, the entire group of musicians, men and women will be guests of the college. The whole entertainment is sponsored by Sen-

President Speaks On Fire Caution

Miss Brett Issues Instructions In Case Of Fire; Demonstrates Fire Extinguisher

President Smith, in her chapel yesterday morning, said that an excellent job had been done by both fire chiefs and students in the fire drills. "We recognize the necessity of fire drills even in the fire proof building," she continued. "The fire alarm at China Addams last week was handled not badly by any such cases, but, if we should, I hope that the students will do as well again." Non-combustible Waste Baskets Miss Brett stated that students will be asked to have only metal waste baskets after this. Baskets should be backed before the week ends. "Asbestos and all combustible items are condemned at that time. Students were asked to keep basket away from curtains and also to be careful of dropping hot matches into them.

She concluded by saying that there was a sense of reaasurance through the behavior of students when there was a fire, and with a wish that, in the future, we shall make much more.

Miss Brett Gives Directions

Miss Brett gave the directions for procedure when a fire is discovered as follows:

I. If one person discovers the fire, he should take the responsibility of it by:

A. Having someone stay with the fire.
B. Having the fire gong run.
C. Calling the fire department, if necessary, on the phone since the fire gongs ring only in the dormitories.

II. Procedure for person staying with the fire:

A. Smother it with a rug or blanket.
B. Send someone for the nearest fire extinguisher if the smothering does not work.

III. If one person discovers the fire she should:

A. First try to smother it.
B. Use a fire extinguisher if the smothering is inadequate.
C. If that is not enough she should ring the fire gong and then call the fire department.

I. R. C. Will Sponsor Panel Discussion

The second annual panel discussion with Yale and Wesleyan, sponsored by the International Relations Club will hold its first session on March 1, in Windham living-room. The subject under discussion is American Foreign Policy in the Far East. Connecticut will present the side of the League of Nations and the American, "Frankie and Johnnie and,
Vice-Pres. Arthur C. Conlea, will champion collective security, while Wesleyan will defend the position of isolation.

The second session will be held on March 19, while the third session will be broadcast over the radio, from a New York studio. This innovation was hailed with enthusiasm, and it is hoped that attendance will boom again this year.

English By French to Arabs Is Task of '37 Alumnae

Miss Alexandra Korsmeyer, just prior to her graduation from Connecticut College for Women last June, learned an open of the American School for Girls in Damascus, Lebusan, Syria. A young college graduate was wanted to take the place of Miss Korsmeyer, who learned a few words of French to girls whose native language is Arabic.

A few paragraphs from her letters to her family follow. They give

Alexandria Korsmeyer

A glimpse of her environment and of the school.

"The air is heavy with the sweet smell of Eastern jasmine from a couple of gauldians which two small girls made and very shyly gave me. They speak no English, but some French I have met some of my pupils, and they seem very charmin-girls. One has been in a French convent. There are 120 in our school. Most of the girls are Christian. There are seven American teachers, plus the sheik who comes every week of the week.

"I am the only American teacher here. There are not more than a handful of English-speaking natives in the city. But most of the storekeepers and merchants speak French.

"The school is going to move into another building which used to be the home of the president of Syria. It is in the old Moslem quarter, and huge. There is a beautiful inner court with a pool and flowering trees. Jasmine grows in every here, all over the place. It is the custom to put a handful of the sweet blossoms in your suitcase. Everyone who you go to call, too, the people who have gardens bring a bunch of flowers to you to take away with you.

"The heat is terrific from about ten in the morning onwards. There after that it cools off for the night. The air is heavy with the smell of persymmetric men wear dark glasses or carry white umbrellas. Flies and mosquitoes are wicked pests; there are so many that you must be sure to smoke as much as possible.

(Continued to Page 6, Column 1)
Choosing---An Important Phase of Living

Do you have a happy faculty of choosing the right thing to do at the right time? Or perhaps you blunder blindly by your way, acting entirely on impulse without much thought of possible complications, letting your bump of judgment and choice go undeveloped.

Choosing is a tremendous factor in our development during our formative years. Obviously, our choice of courses or of our major is extremely important and we are other far-reaching decisions which we must make.

Many of us go extremes in our Freshman year. Many of us take courses in which we have no particular interest, in which our choice of courses from all possible activities or skipping them entirely. It's probably better to get a little taste of everything than of nothing at all; but eventually we must choose to what activities we will devote our time.

And in choosing with good judgment we determine to a large extent what our own personal gains will be as well as what we will contribute to campus life.

We have all gone to extremes in our Freshman year. Many of us have taken courses in which we have the greatest interest, in which we have done our best work. Many of us have taken courses in which we have done only our very best work, because that is all we could do, and that was the most accurate way of testing our knowledge.

Now, as I have said, this book was written for children, but it had a quite unintended effect on the adult world as well. I first met the book last spring and, now, so soon, we have our new national hero. But not only have we this addition to the annals of our country, but also we have a new book that threatens to become a children's classic and a serious threat to the gravity and dignity of the adult population.

Speaking with more gravity for just a moment, aside from the very clever humor of the drawings, the drawings are superb and very appealing to those who were not interested in the book as a whole. Both Mr. Leaf and Mr. Lawson deserve credit for an entertaining and amusing account, if it was an accident.

Only those who get joy out of their work know what real happiness is.

Inter-Faith Vespers

A new movement has been started! This new movement is far better than better understanding and better realization of the different religions. It makes for a united front of religion. It brings the different religions in a harmonious relationship with one another.

Not only College has started these inter-religious vespers, but other colleges in the United States. At the present moment, we have had two Vespers speakers this month, one representing the Jewish faith, and one, the Catholic. These inter-Faith Vespers will last for the rest of this month.

And what can we, as students, do to help this movement? Naturally, the first thing we can do is attend Vespers. But will attendance alone assist this movement? No! We must face the whole situation with an unbiased attitude, and (Continued to Page 4, Column 4)

Choosing---An Important Phase of Living

Do you have a happy faculty of choosing the right thing to do at the right time? Or perhaps you blunder blindly by your way, acting entirely on impulse without much thought of possible complications, letting your bump of judgment and choice go undeveloped.

Choosing is a tremendous factor in our development during our formative years. Obviously, our choice of courses or of our major is extremely important and we are other far-reaching decisions which we must make.

Many of us go extremes in our Freshman year. Many of us take courses in which we have no particular interest, in which our choice of courses from all possible activities or skipping them entirely. It's probably better to get a little taste of everything than of nothing at all; but eventually we must choose to what activities we will devote our time.

And in choosing with good judgment we determine to a large extent what our own personal gains will be as well as what we will contribute to campus life.

We have all gone to extremes in our Freshman year. Many of us have taken courses in which we have the greatest interest, in which we have done our best work. Many of us have taken courses in which we have done only our very best work, because that is all we could do, and that was the most accurate way of testing our knowledge.

Now, as I have said, this book was written for children, but it had a quite unintended effect on the adult world as well. I first met the book last spring and, now, so soon, we have our new national hero. But not only have we this addition to the annals of our country, but also we have a new book that threatens to become a children's classic and a serious threat to the gravity and dignity of the adult population.

Speaking with more gravity for just a moment, aside from the very clever humor of the drawings, the drawings are superb and very appealing to those who were not interested in the book as a whole. Both Mr. Leaf and Mr. Lawson deserve credit for an entertaining and amusing account, if it was an accident.

Only those who get joy out of their work know what real happiness is.

Inter-Faith Vespers

A new movement has been started! This new movement is far better than better understanding and better realization of the different religions. It makes for a united front of religion. It brings the different religions in a harmonious relationship with one another.

Not only College has started these inter-religious vespers, but other colleges in the United States. At the present moment, we have had two Vespers speakers this month, one representing the Jewish faith, and one, the Catholic. These inter-Faith Vespers will last for the rest of this month.

And what can we, as students, do to help this movement? Naturally, the first thing we can do is attend Vespers. But will attendance alone assist this movement? No! We must face the whole situation with an unbiased attitude, and (Continued to Page 4, Column 4)

Choosing---An Important Phase of Living

Do you have a happy faculty of choosing the right thing to do at the right time? Or perhaps you blunder blindly by your way, acting entirely on impulse without much thought of possible complications, letting your bump of judgment and choice go undeveloped.

Choosing is a tremendous factor in our development during our formative years. Obviously, our choice of courses or of our major is extremely important and we are other far-reaching decisions which we must make.

Many of us go extremes in our Freshman year. Many of us take courses in which we have no particular interest, in which our choice of courses from all possible activities or skipping them entirely. It's probably better to get a little taste of everything than of nothing at all; but eventually we must choose to what activities we will devote our time.

And in choosing with good judgment we determine to a large extent what our own personal gains will be as well as what we will contribute to campus life.

We have all gone to extremes in our Freshman year. Many of us have taken courses in which we have the greatest interest, in which we have done our best work. Many of us have taken courses in which we have done only our very best work, because that is all we could do, and that was the most accurate way of testing our knowledge.

Now, as I have said, this book was written for children, but it had a quite unintended effect on the adult world as well. I first met the book last spring and, now, so soon, we have our new national hero. But not only have we this addition to the annals of our country, but also we have a new book that threatens to become a children's classic and a serious threat to the gravity and dignity of the adult population.

Speaking with more gravity for just a moment, aside from the very clever humor of the drawings, the drawings are superb and very appealing to those who were not interested in the book as a whole. Both Mr. Leaf and Mr. Lawson deserve credit for an entertaining and amusing account, if it was an accident.

Only those who get joy out of their work know what real happiness is.

Inter-Faith Vespers

A new movement has been started! This new movement is far better than better understanding and better realization of the different religions. It makes for a united front of religion. It brings the different religions in a harmonious relationship with one another.

Not only College has started these inter-religious vespers, but other colleges in the United States. At the present moment, we have had two Vespers speakers this month, one representing the Jewish faith, and one, the Catholic. These inter-Faith Vespers will last for the rest of this month.

And what can we, as students, do to help this movement? Naturally, the first thing we can do is attend Vespers. But will attendance alone assist this movement? No! We must face the whole situation with an unbiased attitude, and (Continued to Page 4, Column 4)

Choosing---An Important Phase of Living

Do you have a happy faculty of choosing the right thing to do at the right time? Or perhaps you blunder blindly by your way, acting entirely on impulse without much thought of possible complications, letting your bump of judgment and choice go undeveloped.

Choosing is a tremendous factor in our development during our formative years. Obviously, our choice of courses or of our major is extremely important and we are other far-reaching decisions which we must make.

Many of us go extremes in our Freshman year. Many of us take courses in which we have no particular interest, in which our choice of courses from all possible activities or skipping them entirely. It's probably better to get a little taste of everything than of nothing at all; but eventually we must choose to what activities we will devote our time.

And in choosing with good judgment we determine to a large extent what our own personal gains will be as well as what we will contribute to campus life.

We have all gone to extremes in our Freshman year. Many of us have taken courses in which we have the greatest interest, in which we have done our best work. Many of us have taken courses in which we have done only our very best work, because that is all we could do, and that was the most accurate way of testing our knowledge.

Now, as I have said, this book was written for children, but it had a quite unintended effect on the adult world as well. I first met the book last spring and, now, so soon, we have our new national hero. But not only have we this addition to the annals of our country, but also we have a new book that threatens to become a children's classic and a serious threat to the gravity and dignity of the adult population.

Speaking with more gravity for just a moment, aside from the very clever humor of the drawings, the drawings are superb and very appealing to those who were not interested in the book as a whole. Both Mr. Leaf and Mr. Lawson deserve credit for an entertaining and amusing account, if it was an accident.

Only those who get joy out of their work know what real happiness is.
Aspects of Spain Seen at Lectures
Professor Salinas of Wellesley, a Spanish guitarist, after expressing an enormous appreciation of the music of Spain, presented to us "Michele Mouse", and the four Marx Brothers at dinner, spoke last Friday evening.

Castille Is One Element
The first aspect of Spain on which Salinas commented was its geography, a bare, dry and austere land, and the masculine element of Spain. Centrally located in the peninsula, it is, as its name implies, a land of castles, built as a protection from invaders, and always one finds small towns built about these castles, and besides the old stonework of church spires, for Castille is a land of castles and a part of Spain's capital Madrid, selected for its position on the map, thus its tradi tions are not only a part of modern city, but fifty miles away on hot plains, and on small farms, people are still farming their land. The sun is the earth, and many years of hot days, but there are no grapes or olives.

Talent for Writing Plays To Be Given Opportunity
A first prize of $200.00 is being offered by the Religious Drama Council for the best one-act play on the subject of life and death. The reason for this is, of course, because of peace, just as there are causes of war; there is a cost of life, just as there is a cost of death.

College Life Shown In Colored Photos
Last week a large gathering in the gym attended the world premiere of the colored photos of life on the Connecticut Campus. The photos were taken last fall by Charles Carbone, a junior. The variety of activities covered by the roaming photographer give the outsider a glimpse into the class and dormitory life of the ordinary Connecticut student. One of the most fascinating parts of the remarkable photography of Mr. Carbone is the way in which he catches things at an unusual angle. The color effects alone would go far in inducing students to see the campus.

Betsy Parezels, president of the Junior class, was attending that under no conditions, in the rules of the mascot hunt, are members of the Sophomore class to be considered through faculty papers and desks during the hunt. President Hunt has very kindly consented to the use of Fannn for the hunt this year and should any libertines be taken in the consequences would be no worse than in that building after this year.

"Of course," says Betsy, "It will not be hidden in any such place so the Sophomores feel that they are missing something!"

The Juniors have tried to make it interesting, but since the contest officially began on Tuesday, February 15, many students have got a little bored. One rainy day while idly flipping through the columns, Betsy said, "There was a big 'rumpus' in the 1957 Dormitory when a crow of the class of 40 invaded the Juniors' peace and quiet which the Black Horse's idlers feel that their Pomeranians' committee is certainly functioning all right.

Morgan Mooney Explains Labor Department
Tuesday afternoon, February 15, Fanning Hall was filled with students, lectured to the Social Science classes on the functions of the labor department. Professor Morgan Mooney is the Deputy Commissioner of Labor and therefore presented first hand information of the duties of his department.

The labor department is composed of three main divisions, each with a definite function. The first is the factory inspection, which enforces the laws protecting the health and safety of workers. Many of the laws of the state are inadequate and old fashioned, said Mr. Mooney, but there are many effective ones. For example, there is a law prohibiting industrial work in private homes. Such evils are unregulated hours and low wages, sometimes as low as two cents an hour, were the effects of such industry.

Another division of the department is composed of a board to investigate labor disputes, and to settle them if possible, whereas they are necessary. The third main division is a committee to which is appointed in Connecticut. This committee provides rules which, if followed, will keep you from getting caught by the roaming photographer.

Talent for Writing Plays To Be Given Opportunity
A first prize of $200.00 is being offered by the Religious Drama Council for the best one-act play on the subject of life and death. The reason for this is, of course, because of peace, just as there are causes of war; there is a cost of life, just as there is a cost of death.

College Life Shown In Colored Photos
Last week a large gathering in the gym attended the world premiere of the colored photos of life on the Connecticut Campus. The photos were taken last fall by Charles Carbone, a junior. The variety of activities covered by the roaming photographer give the outsider a glimpse into the class and dormitory life of the ordinary Connecticut student. One of the most fascinating parts of the remarkable photography of Mr. Carbone is the way in which he catches things at an unusual angle. The color effects alone would go far in inducing students to see the campus.

Find your way to the amusement of the music. To this reviewer with her extremely limited knowledge of the guitar, the recital was reminiscent of the music of a Russian Balalaika ensemble giving the impression of several plucked instruments. Under the guidance of Salinas, the instrument is capable of many moods and feelings, the change from viola to the harp and the pizzicato is striking.

The familiar Albeniz compositions were enthusiastically received as was Siera's "Children's Dances," and Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and arrangement of Turrega's Spanish National Airs called for several encores.

The novelty of the instrument as a vehicle for the music of the masters and the effectiveness of Mr. Ouyang's handling of it made the recital one of the best of the current concert series.

Center Theatre Set For New Play
Mid-winter play, Clarence Dane's Bill of Divorcement is to be produced the latter part of March. The presentations of the Center Theatre. In case you have not heard of the Center Theatre, the Center Theatre is situated on this campus, we will tell you. The stage occupies a small room in the center of the Knoll Hall. You spectroctor will set out on four plays a year, and will be able to view the play from all angles. There are junk, empty vases, and machinery in the center of the stage, so that it will be necessary to give two performances. Therefore tickets will be issued for the certain nights. The idea is a new one here at Connecticut, although it has been tried before on western stages. The actors will make their entrances through the main door.

Dr. A. H. Maslow Will Give Psych. Lecture
The Psychology Club is sponsoring a lecture tonight on "The Psychology of Domination," to be given by Dr. A. H. Maslow of Brooklyn College, New York. In addition to teaching, Dr. Masslow has done clinical work with both apes and human beings. The lecture will be given in the Winthrop Living Room at seven o'clock.

There is a new ice cream eating contest planned for next week.

He climbed the title for the championship by putting away 24 dishes of Rocky Road, and a sundae of particular venom. Though guitar recitals are enthusiastically received throughout the country, this province has never experienced one. Crossing the room, the auditor saw a great crowd of people standing in front of the doors, and the wind became stronger. On leaving the room they were always allowed to remain within hearing distance, and all was "strictly on the up and up." And a parting word from the Junior class, "Juniors--Juniors, Banquet is only two weeks from Saturday night, but a lot can happen in two weeks--if you make it!"

Betsy says that though things were slow in getting started lately, the Sophomores feel that they are moving ahead.

Flower Show Now Being Planned
Plans are now under way for the annual flower show sponsored by the Botany department and to be given this year March 26 and 27 in New London Hall. The committee in charge is made up of twenty majors headed by Priscilla Pasco and Catherine Morgan.

Neighboring estates have been in- volved to exhibit their flowers and there will be many demonstrations to show visitors the many flowers in environment such as sunlight, shade, and light, and what plants develop the horticulture class will present the result of their attempts to propagate some of the beautiful shrubs about the campus and experiments will be made on several "seed" or red light or blue light.

Besides the girls now actively en- gaged in the scientific work of the elementary botany classes will participate in the presentation of their material and several of the students in the Botany department will be there to give a talk on the material that was given earlier this year in order to prevent conflict with other events and to spread the fad of the spring season with the idea that a flower show is more interesting in the winter or early spring when there are actually few flowers about.
CONNECTICUT COLLEGE NEWS

Mid-Winter Formal
Now A Pleasant Memory

February 19th—Mid-Winter Formal—Thanks for the Memories!—The March weather. This is the way all of the Connecticott party girls are thinking of the past week-end with gals dancing—for many the grandest occasion of the year. On this eventful evening about all of C. C. and the better part of Yale, Harvard, Dartmouth, Amherst and Wesleyan swarmed through Knowlton’s hospitable doors to spread the jam’ with Ken Reeves and his orchestra. The saxophone played the tune so College students have come to enjoy at just such a festive fashion as was expected.

The gay picture of the brilliance and jollity of the Saloon was counterbalanced by decorations painstakingly put there by Mildred Wetlethoff and her committee. This smooth waitsress in her bright, cleaver costumes added little flavor of a “doo” in the drop-program. The punch and cookies served in the dining-room revived the tired limbs and chilled spirits they could again “truck on down.” Thus “on with the dance” until that fatal stroke of twelve, when the light-hearted collegians trooped out of Knowlton’s dining room to return at 1:30, because—ob, it was a very special occasion!

St. Thomas’ Influence
Today Is Shown

The second speaker of Inter-faith month was Father Vincent C. Donovan, O. F. P. of New York City, who lectured at Vespres last Sunday night. The subject of the talk was “St. Thomas in the Modern World.”

The great popularity of St. Thomas today is based on the fact that he goes directly to the fine point of a question, and answers the “why” of life in a way that is as clear today as it was several centuries back. St. Thomas has harmonized that faith and religion in the miraculous way that only a saint can.

Father Donovan illustrated this quality of exaltation with St. Thomas’ definition of “being” as the formal object of intellect, as color is the formal object of vision.”

The second speaker was then divined to believe that science is reason, and religion is only faith with no reason, said Father Donovan. Man cannot deny that he exists, because in reasoning out this denial, he proves his existence. Father Donovan described theology as being the science of the causes and principal things, and therefore it is the “sciences of sciences.”

What the modern world needs is someone to tell the truth, said Father Donovan, and that someone will be in the form of a saint, like St. Thomas. Truth is everywhere and may be covered up or distorted, and without truth there can be no error.

Father Donovan closed his lecture by saying, “St. Thomas is the man of the hour, because his fundamental teachings are based on life, and life is eternal.”

'39 Banquet Plans
Are Underway

The class of 1939 is fortunate to have as speakers at the Junior banquet President Blount, Dean Ryder, Dr. Jenne, and Dr. Suyker. Betty Ferris, class president, looks, too, at an unexpected guest who, although unknown by most of the class, will be welcomed by them.

Since the banquet is a vice-presidential duty, Katherine Eikeh is planning the flowers, menu, and decorations. As usual the Freshman class will provide an entertainment but this year it will last only about ten minutes; the Sophomores will stay for the unveiling of the masque.

It is said that one of the speakers may talk on the masked itself. Juniors are signing in groups on the house bulletin boards where the names of the people in charge of collecting for the banquet are also posted. As usual it will be held at the Mahican Hotel; the date, Saturday, March 5th.

The gay picture of the brilliance and jollity of the Saloon was counterbalanced by decorations painstakingly put there by Mildred Wetlethoff and her committee. This smooth waitsress in her bright, clever costumes added little flavor of a “doo” in the drop-program. The punch and cookies served in the dining-room revived the tired limbs and chilled spirits they could again “truck on down.” Thus “on with the dance” until that fatal stroke of twelve, when the light-hearted collegians trooped out of Knowlton’s dining room to return at 1:30, because—ob, it was a very special occasion!

The second speaker of Inter-faith month was Father Vincent C. Donovan, O. F. P. of New York City, who lectured at Vespres last Sunday night. The subject of the talk was “St. Thomas in the Modern World.”

The great popularity of St. Thomas today is based on the fact that he goes directly to the fine point of a question, and answers the “why” of life in a way that is as clear today as it was several centuries back. St. Thomas has harmonized that faith and religion in the miraculous way that only a saint can.

Father Donovan illustrated this quality of exaltation with St. Thomas’ definition of “being” as the formal object of intellect, as color is the formal object of vision.”

The second speaker was then divined to believe that science is reason, and religion is only faith with no reason, said Father Donovan. Man cannot deny that he exists, because in reasoning out this denial, he proves his existence. Father Donovan described theology as being the science of the causes and principal things, and therefore it is the “sciences of sciences.”

What the modern world needs is someone to tell the truth, said Father Donovan, and that someone will be in the form of a saint, like St. Thomas. Truth is everywhere and may be covered up or distorted, and without truth there can be no error.

Father Donovan closed his lecture by saying, “St. Thomas is the man of the hour, because his fundamental teachings are based on life, and life is eternal.”

'39 Banquet Plans Are Underway

The class of 1939 is fortunate to have as speakers at the Junior banquet President Blount, Dean Ryder, Dr. Jenne, and Dr. Suyker. Betty Ferris, class president, looks, too, at an unexpected guest who, although unknown by most of the class, will be welcomed by them.

Since the banquet is a vice-presidential duty, Katherine Eikeh is planning the flowers, menu, and decorations. As usual the Freshman class will provide an entertainment but this year it will last only about ten minutes; the Sophomores will stay for the unveiling of the masque.

It is said that one of the speakers may talk on the masked itself. Juniors are signing in groups on the house bulletin boards where the names of the people in charge of collecting for the banquet are also posted. As usual it will be held at the Mahican Hotel; the date, Saturday, March 5th.

The gay picture of the brilliance and jollity of the Saloon was counterbalanced by decorations painstakingly put there by Mildred Wetlethoff and her committee. This smooth waitsress in her bright, clever costumes added little flavor of a “doo” in the drop-program. The punch and cookies served in the dining-room revived the tired limbs and chilled spirits they could again “truck on down.” Thus “on with the dance” until that fatal stroke of twelve, when the light-hearted collegians trooped out of Knowlton’s dining room to return at 1:30, because—ob, it was a very special occasion!

The second speaker of Inter-faith month was Father Vincent C. Donovan, O. F. P. of New York City, who lectured at Vespres last Sunday night. The subject of the talk was “St. Thomas in the Modern World.”

The great popularity of St. Thomas today is based on the fact that he goes directly to the fine point of a question, and answers the “why” of life in a way that is as clear today as it was several centuries back. St. Thomas has harmonized that faith and religion in the miraculous way that only a saint can.

Father Donovan illustrated this quality of exaltation with St. Thomas’ definition of “being” as the formal object of intellect, as color is the formal object of vision.”

The second speaker was then divined to believe that science is reason, and religion is only faith with no reason, said Father Donovan. Man cannot deny that he exists, because in reasoning out this denial, he proves his existence. Father Donovan described theology as being the science of the causes and principal things, and therefore it is the “sciences of sciences.”

What the modern world needs is someone to tell the truth, said Father Donovan, and that someone will be in the form of a saint, like St. Thomas. Truth is everywhere and may be covered up or distorted, and without truth there can be no error.

Father Donovan closed his lecture by saying, “St. Thomas is the man of the hour, because his fundamental teachings are based on life, and life is eternal.”

'39 Banquet Plans
Are Underway

The class of 1939 is fortunate to have as speakers at the Junior banquet President Blount, Dean Ryder, Dr. Jenne, and Dr. Suyker. Betty Ferris, class president, looks, too, at an unexpected guest who, although unknown by most of the class, will be welcomed by them.

Since the banquet is a vice-presidential duty, Katherine Eikeh is planning the flowers, menu, and decorations. As usual the Freshman class will provide an entertainment but this year it will last only about ten minutes; the Sophomores will stay for the unveiling of the masque.

It is said that one of the speakers may talk on the masked itself. Juniors are signing in groups on the house bulletin boards where the names of the people in charge of collecting for the banquet are also posted. As usual it will be held at the Mahican Hotel; the date, Saturday, March 5th.

The gay picture of the brilliance and jollity of the Saloon was counterbalanced by decorations painstakingly put there by Mildred Wetlethoff and her committee. This smooth waitsress in her bright, clever costumes added little flavor of a “doo” in the drop-program. The punch and cookies served in the dining-room revived the tired limbs and chilled spirits they could again “truck on down.” Thus “on with the dance” until that fatal stroke of twelve, when the light-hearted collegians trooped out of Knowlton’s dining room to return at 1:30, because—ob, it was a very special occasion!

The second speaker of Inter-faith month was Father Vincent C. Donovan, O. F. P. of New York City, who lectured at Vespres last Sunday night. The subject of the talk was “St. Thomas in the Modern World.”

The great popularity of St. Thomas today is based on the fact that he goes directly to the fine point of a question, and answers the “why” of life in a way that is as clear today as it was several centuries back. St. Thomas has harmonized that faith and religion in the miraculous way that only a saint can.

Father Donovan illustrated this quality of exaltation with St. Thomas’ definition of “being” as the formal object of intellect, as color is the formal object of vision.”

The second speaker was then divined to believe that science is reason, and religion is only faith with no reason, said Father Donovan. Man cannot deny that he exists, because in reasoning out this denial, he proves his existence. Father Donovan described theology as being the science of the causes and principal things, and therefore it is the “sciences of sciences.”

What the modern world needs is someone to tell the truth, said Father Donovan, and that someone will be in the form of a saint, like St. Thomas. Truth is everywhere and may be covered up or distorted, and without truth there can be no error.

Father Donovan closed his lecture by saying, “St. Thomas is the man of the hour, because his fundamental teachings are based on life, and life is eternal.”

'39 Banquet Plans
Are Underway

The class of 1939 is fortunate to have as speakers at the Junior banquet President Blount, Dean Ryder, Dr. Jenne, and Dr. Suyker. Betty Ferris, class president, looks, too, at an unexpected guest who, although unknown by most of the class, will be welcomed by them.

Since the banquet is a vice-presidential duty, Katherine Eikeh is planning the flowers, menu, and decorations. As usual the Freshman class will provide an entertainment but this year it will last only about ten minutes; the Sophomores will stay for the unveiling of the masque.

It is said that one of the speakers may talk on the masked itself. Juniors are signing in groups on the house bulletin boards where the names of the people in charge of collecting for the banquet are also posted. As usual it will be held at the Mahican Hotel; the date, Saturday, March 5th.
The Tower Times has a few pieces of advice to offer:

Do right and fear no man.

Don't write home.

A good way to find a girl out—call when she's not there.

Breadmindsness is being able to smile when you suddenly find that your roommate and your best girl are not on the dance floor.

If you can't read the handwriting on the wall, you get another chance.

I knocked on the door and peeped through a crack.

He: Don't mention it, the pres—
She: Thanks for the hug.

The habit of the staff of the University of Colorado's weekly publication, the Caedmon, of leaving its copy on the doorstep of an inn neighbor gave it some big moments last week when the copy disappeared from its customary place.

If a while for as if while there would be no newspaper.

The sudden copy was, however, dumped into a mailbox and returned in the nick of time—all but the editorials and letters to the Caedmon Forum. Because these were found in the gopher staff members think the culprits must be students.

The following tidbits come from the Carolinaian:

Weary of heart I climb the stair All 60 of my old disdain The top at last was reached—to hear one say

There will be no class today.

(To be appreciated by those having classes on fourth floor New London Hall)

She: Thanks for the hug.
He: Don't mention it, the pressure was all mine.

This is the way we feel, too, after exams:

Returning yesterday from a room I didn't find myself at home.

I knocked on the door and peeped through a crack.

Then sat on the steps till I got back.

President Speaks On Fire Caution

(Continued from Page 1, Column 2)

The director of residence, Miss Harris, should be called and notified of the fire immediately afterward.

She: I moved.

I knocked on the door and peeped through a crack.

I waited all day and then all night

And now I believe that all is not right.

Maybe I moved, maybe I'm ill,

There is no one to tell, so I'm waiting still.

Oh all is not as it ought to be,

I can't tell what's become of me.

The delusions have to offer

Perpetual motion: A cow drinking a pail of milk.

Mary had a little cow

And, oh, how it did stutter.

In place of every quart of milk

It gave a pound of butter.

"Do you know what a suicide blonde is?"

"No, what?"

"Dyed by her own hand."

"Where shall we have dinner?"

"Let's eat up the street."

"Oh, let's, I don't care for asphalt."

"Students and faculty," said the professor, "before I begin my address I have something that I want to say." Prof.

Can you tell me anything about great chemists of the 17th century?

Bright Student: They're all dead.

Prof: Can you tell me anything about great chemists of the 17th century?

Bright Student: They're all dead.

"If love is intoxicating, then marriage must be a hangover."

A gum-chewing girl and a cud-chewing boy.

They look the same.

If an optical illusion: "I think I see a letter in my box."

The Taller asks "A fellow is a fool to marry, but what else can we poor girls marry?"

Prisoner: The judge sent me here for the rest of my life.

Guard: Well, what's the complaint?

Prisoner: Do you call breaking rocks with a hammer a rest?

Once I had a little bird.

His song was the sweetest ever heard.

He's gone.

Some cat got him.

Once I had a sweetie beau.

Lots of coin to spend, you know.

Some cat got him.

A good way to find a girl out—call when she's not there.

Breadmindsness is being able to smile when you suddenly find that your roommate and your best girl are not on the dance floor.

If you can't read the handwriting on the wall, you get another chance.

I knocked on the door and peeped through a crack.

He: Don't mention it, the pres—
She: Thanks for the hug.

The habit of the staff of the University of Colorado's weekly publication, the Caedmon, of leaving its copy on the doorstep of an inn neighbor gave it some big moments last week when the copy disappeared from its customary place.

If a while for as if while there would be no newspaper.

The sudden copy was, however, dumped into a mailbox and returned in the nick of time—all but the editorials and letters to the Caedmon Forum. Because these were found in the gopher staff members think the culprits must be students.

The following tidbits come from the Carolinaian:

Weary of heart I climb the stair All 60 of my old disdain The top at last was reached—to hear one say

There will be no class today.

(To be appreciated by those having classes on fourth floor New London Hall)

She: Thanks for the hug.
He: Don't mention it, the pressure was all mine.

This is the way we feel, too, after exams:

Returning yesterday from a room I didn't find myself at home.

I knocked on the door and peeped through a crack.

Then sat on the steps till I got back.
English By French To Arabs Is Task of '39 Alumnae (Continued from Page 1, Column 5)

•

Page 6 Connecticut College News

"You ask about the news service here. There really is none as we knew it. I imagine that New York papers today carried a full account of the incident yesterday at Beirut. The two French papers here reported it, but as yet have not seen it. I tried counting the different headdresses once, but gave up. Everything from red turbans to pale blue "coffee-colored turbans and lamb-skin caps with varying colors and stripes. Last night I saw some Spaniards from French Morocco. They seem to wear the regular khaki topped by tremendous red woolen caps with hoods floating behind as they swing along.

"Another colorful effect is in the big markets they all wear hanging at their sides, which ought to have knives in them. However, I haven't gotten to know any one of them well enough to ask him to flash it for me, since just as well as myself.

"I've had lumps a lot for days to every night but four since I came. The fruit is wonderful and I eat a lot of it. Also lots of pumpkin and watermelon seeds, dried and salted —good, once you learn the trick of cracking them open.

"I am more glad than I can tell you this. I came. In spite of the unthinkable things that you have sure up with, there is something about it all. "Hamid Allah malka," which means "Thank God I am happy."

"I am sure Americana is there is through the letters you wrote me that you want to us. But it is Sprowl, president of the University of California, thinks that 85 per cent of the students in junior colleges are not of college caliber and should not go on to higher education.

"Civilization has advanced, in my opinion, not because of any improvement of mental quality in the masses but rather because the realization of the material advantages to be gained from the toleration of genius has slowly penetrated into the minds of the majority of our species." Dr. Earnest A. Hooton, professor of anthropology and curator of Peabody Museum at Harvard, argues that social, material and intellectual progress are always the result of the effort of the gifted individuals.

"One rarely finds a European college student working his way through school. Even if we should get a job, it is very probable we would not get money for it. Our pay would be the valuable experience we received from the job."

Robert Forster, foreign exchange student from Switzerland at Ohio State University, praises the initiative of American students who work their way through school.

More marriages are wrecked by college-trained girls not working and having too much time on their hands, than by their working." Dr. James McGonaghy, president of Wesleyan University, thinks that it is unfair to force a young wife who could earn some money for herself, to beg her husband for spending money.

"Indifference to human personality constitutes a much more serious aspect of undergraduate life than sex. An article in the Harvard Advocate, student monthly, maintains that sex is a "minor" problem and laid most cases of maladjustment at Harvard to this indifference.

"The periodic nature of migraine headaches attacks is one of the most remarkable and interesting things in the whole of internal medicine. Tending to affect especially those in high places, it might even change the destiny of the world, were an attack to occur at a vital moment in the life of a dictator." Dr. Thomas Hunt of London believes such a headache could change the course of history.