by Carin Gordon

The seventh president of Connecticut College will be Oaks Ames, a professor of physics and chairman of that department and former assistant to the president and academic vice president at the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Mr. Ames, a specialist in experimental nuclear physics, atomic beams and astrophysics, stated in an interview with this reporter that one of his main goals will be "to make the College an exciting place to study as well as a rewarding place to live."

The presidential selection committee comprised of trustees, faculty, students and alumni, chaired by the W.E.S. Griswold, chairman of the Board of Trustees, who worked for five months to find a new president, announced the resignation to be effective June 30.

Mr. Ames was introduced to the College at an all campus meeting yesterday. He formally takes office July 1.

"Despite the fact that it will be a tight year financially," he added, "I have no reason to doubt there will be enough money to cover all my time fund raising, but will spend my time on campus trying to get the very best out of all who make up this campus. After all, the best salesmen are alumni."

Mr. Ames was impressed with the "sense of community and shared purpose" on this campus, and this was one of his main reasons for coming here.

The first thing the new president, according to Mr. Ames, is to "learn as much as possible about the College as quickly as possible."

A graduate of Milton Academy and Harvard, where he rowed on the varsity lightweight crew, he received his doctorate in physics from The Johns Hopkins University in 1966, he taught at Princeton University for six years.

Mr. Ames views the role of president as that of a teacher "teaching a form of communication. He hopes to be able to teach one course here, as well as perform his administrative duties.

Though committed to the ideals of a liberal arts college, Mr. Ames believes "the College's programs must be flexible to changing demands of the world."

A native of Boston, Mr. Ames is the son of late President J.C. Ames, a former chairman of the board of the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts and a professor of Philosophy, and grandson of the late Oakes Ames, a renowned economics-botanist professor at Harvard.

The new president is married and has three young sons and a daughter.

Oakes Ames

Staff cuts threaten nine current courses

By Sally Abrams

Nine courses may not be taught next year, due to the termination of teachers' positions. In some of these cases, no replacement is being considered for their jobs.

According to Argy P. Rice, chairman of thevarious studies department, all graduate courses have been dropped from the catalogue in that department.

Antonio Morillo, assistant professor of Hispanic Studies, has not been rehired.

Presently Mr. Morillo is teaching two undergraduate courses, Spanish-American Civilization and Spanish Composition, and one graduate course, Contemporary Spanish Theatre. Ms. Rice attributes his termination to "a question of cause and effect. She said that since the language requirement has been dropped, not that fewer students wishing to take Hispanic studies.

"Fewer students means fewer classes means fewer professors," Ms. Rice explained. She added that in the Hispanic Studies department there are four graduate courses, but there are no new graduate students. She emphasized there is a graduate program, but the department is no longer teaching certain graduate courses which make up the department special.

The graduate students will now be encouraged to take some undergraduate courses. Ms. Rice said, "we will be hiring one new person to teach Mr. Morillo's position. She said regretfully, "we are heading in a monolingual culture."

The English department will also be losing one faculty member in the fall. Camille S. Jordan, an English instructor, is leaving the College this year. She is teaching Literature Themes: Form and Problems, Myth and Archetypes. Presently she is teaching Teaching Theory, Ms. Jordan announced she will also be teaching "in all probability they won't be taught."

Barbara J. Macklin, chairperson of the sociology and anthropology department, said that they are looking for someone to fill Frances J. Jacobs' position as assistant professor of sociology and anthropology. Presently Ms. Jacobs teaches Social Problems as well as The Family.

Mr. Macklin said that those courses which Ms. Jacobs will teach, but she added, "the specialty of the person hired may vary the courses a bit."}

Allen A. Zimmerman, instructor in Chinese studies, has also had his position terminated for the fall. This semester he teaches a survey of Chinese literature, T'ang and Sung Poetry, and Classical Chinese Prose. Charles J. Chu, chairperson of the Chinese department, said they are looking for someone with background in comparative literature, classical Chinese, and the person's specialty.

Mr. Chu said, "we all love Allen dearly, including the students. It was nothing personal." Mr. Chu attributed his termination to the fact that he did not have a Ph.D. "The financial reason is secondary," but he is looking for someone trained in the Chinese situation of the department.

Although they are looking for someone, Mr. Zimmerman, Mr. Chu said there is no budget to pay the new person. He added, "we are proceeding very cautiously and steadily with an optimistic feeling that someone will be here," but he added, "it is hard to say.

He joked, "I may have to sell my house." Mr. Chu commented, "with two members in the department we may drop from exhaustion."

Special JB elections called

Due to the resignations of the two senior representatives on the Judiciary Board, a special election will be held to replace them on Friday, March 3 and Monday, March 6.

The following students have campaigned themselves: Fraz Axelrad, Jim Berries, Anita De Frantz, Katie Paline, Roy Taylor and Jeff Walters.

Voting will be held in the dorms. David Shuman and Shannon Stock resigned because they did not have enough time to devote to the Board.
Second thoughts on campus skating rink

Pundit, February 28, 1972, page 2

The proposed ice rink would eventually create better relations with the New London community. The rink would be a drawing card for incoming freshmen and would offer an essential and pleasurable diversion for the majority of the college community. There is no doubt that if the rink were to be built, would bring large and needed revenues to the college. But will these pleasures and profits come pure and simple, or will they be tinged with trouble?

Pundit believes the rink brings with it varied problems, among which are security, campus ecology, beer and wine, traffic. Pundit also believes that the college is setting a dangerous precedent by encouraging and/or supporting developers and entrepreneurs who want to build a profit-making organization.

According to President Charles E. Shain, the developer of the rink, Dr. Ross Pierpont, is said to have intended the Coast Guard Academy, the submarine base and the New London community in using the facility. The sub base alone has asked for three hours ice time. Many of these skaters will eventually find their way onto the rest of the campus for one reason or another. Security is difficult to maintain as it is without this added invasion. Students have already expressed their desire to keep Conn's social events closed to outsiders. Pundit believes that all campus parties allow entry only with a Conn I.D. Dr. Pierpont does not believe that security will be a problem.

Just how much say will the college community have in the physical appearance of the rink? Will it be a splendid addition or an eyesore? The College Development Committee will study the question of the rink and its proposed site between the Physical Plant Building and the south tennis courts. Pundit hopes it is not too late for Mr. Shain and the trustees to listen to the committee. According to Mr. Shain, though, a letter of intent, expressing a serious desire to go ahead with the rink, will soon be sent to Dr. Pierpont. Pundit is critical of Mr. Shain's handling of the rink issue. He should have consulted with the entire college community before going ahead with a letter of intent.

"There aren't any trees of value in that area, like an ancient oak," stated Dr. Pierpont. Think of all those trees to be cut down to build the rink and of course there must be a parking lot. The south lot near Cummings is not large enough to accommodate of Conn's and the Williams School's cars as well as parking for the rink. The North lot accommodates 360 cars. The rink will have a minimum seating capacity of 1,500. Where will all the cars go?

Two hours of free ice time a day as probable payment for building the lands with which the rink will be built is not really worth it. At what strange hours will the ice time be given? Will Conn students get a discount at other times? The college will gradually gain control and own the rink over a twenty-year period, according to Mr. Shain. Eventually Conn will have to contend with the entire rink issue.

If it is so terrible for the college to own a profit-making organization, will Conn turn over other parts of the college to money-making ventures, such as the Bookshop, the snackshop or the dining rooms? Pundit believes the college is taking a first step filled with irrevocable complications and implications.

Dr. Pierpont has the support of the mayor of New London and other city officials who are agreed with the prospect of the rink because it would be taxpaying property. If city officials, the community at large and neighboring institutions, schools and colleges have expressed such a great desire to have the rink, let Dr. Pierpont stay away from Conn and build if elsewhere in New London.

Library fund figure incorrect

The library fund has until June 30 to raise $2 million, if it is to be eligible for a $350,000 challenge grant from the George Gund Foundation. Pundit incorrectly reported the grant to be $2 million.

Letters to the editor

To the Editor:

The Department of Hispanic Studies has always enjoyed a very cordial relationship with all of its Student Advisor Committee members. Since no question regarding our staffing recommendations has ever been raised, we were surprised and disappointed to read of the Committee's public criticism in Pundit. I should think it would have been evident to all students at the College that the elimination of the language requirement would have crucial adverse effects on both students and faculty. Indeed, we explicitly stated to our Committee that a decrease in student enrollment would result in fewer classes and, consequently, the necessity to reduce the number of faculty members.

Sincerely,

Arygyl Pryce Rice, Department of Hispanic Studies

Pundit, February 28, 1972, page 2

To the Editor:

I find I must disagree with the observation made following my Pundit, February 22, column. The observation was that the author of the letter "wisecracks true identity to be withheld." I believe that the language used in the case, in which I signed the letter, "Yakov ben Chaim," is, in the language, an acceptable means of expressing my true identity; it is my own given Jewish name. Indeed, it is the name used by my Bar Mitzvah ceremony. Since the naming of the Bar Mitzvah was one of the issues in my letter and the article upon which it was commenting, it seemed quite appropriate to reveal to myself with the name used at my own Bar Mitzvah. The letter is written in Hebrew and my true identity is better captured by the name Yakov ben Chaim or by that of Jerry Winter is a most obvious question for any modern Jew. Perhaps somebody should discuss it with Karen Alcindor (née: Lew Alcindor) or Muhammad Ali (née: Cassius Clay).

In the meantime.

Shalom,

Yakov ben Chaim (more commonly known as Jerry Winter)

To the Editor:

In the Pundit article on the non-renewal of faculty appointments, reference was made to excellence of faculty. I believe the excellence of faculty carries peremptory connotation which is not of all of these cases were not applicable. Mr. Shain's statements implied.

This is the time that the terminations of appointments must be made, and I wonder if the advantages (making public the plight of some students in departments making students aware of future staffing plans) outweigh the disadvantages. The book is up to its stipulated minimum in regard to his students and the student-teacher relationship could quite conceivably be composed against.

The professor himself should have the right to choose whether to publicize his non renewal of appointment. I suspect that in many cases he would choose not to do so. I urge that in the future the instructor be given that choice.

The intention of the article was, I think, to alert the College community to the overall reduction of staff at the College, but this idea did not come through in the read.

James H. Williston

Pundit conducts writing seminar

Pundit is conducting a basic journalism seminar Monday 4 p.m. in the Pundit newsroom, second floor Cro.

Students interested in writing for Pundit are encouraged to attend this session, which will be led by Pundit editors Berna Zelitch, Lynn Cola and Sue Haugan. All competency test may be taken before the session breaks for dinner.

To the Editor:

I find I must disagree with the observation made following my column, February 22, which was that my Pundit column was not raised. The observation was that the author of the letter "wisecracks true identity to be withheld." I believe that the language used in the case, in which I signed the letter, "Yakov ben Chaim," is, in the language, an acceptable means of expressing my true identity; it is my own given Jewish name. Indeed, it is the name used during my Bar Mitzvah ceremony. Since the naming of the Bar Mitzvah was one of the issues in my letter and the article upon which it was commenting, it seemed quite appropriate to reveal to myself with the name used at my own Bar Mitzvah. The letter is written in Hebrew and my true identity is better captured by the name Yakov ben Chaim or by that of Jerry Winter is a most obvious question for any modern Jew. Perhaps somebody should discuss it with Karen Alcindor (née: Lew Alcindor) or Muhammad Ali (née: Cassius Clay).

In the meantime.

Shalom,

Yakov ben Chaim (more commonly known as Jerry Winter)

To the Editor:

I find I must disagree with the observation made following my column, February 22, which was that my Pundit column was not raised. The observation was that the author of the letter "wisecracks true identity to be withheld." I believe that the language used in the case, in which I signed the letter, "Yakov ben Chaim," is, in the language, an acceptable means of expressing my true identity; it is my own given Jewish name. Indeed, it is the name used during my Bar Mitzvah ceremony. Since the naming of the Bar Mitzvah was one of the issues in my letter and the article upon which it was commenting, it seemed quite appropriate to reveal to myself with the name used at my own Bar Mitzvah. The letter is written in Hebrew and my true identity is better captured by the name Yakov ben Chaim or by that of Jerry Winter is a most obvious question for any modern Jew. Perhaps somebody should discuss it with Karen Alcindor (née: Lew Alcindor) or Muhammad Ali (née: Cassius Clay).

In the meantime.

Shalom,

Yakov ben Chaim (more commonly known as Jerry Winter)

To the Editor:

I find I must disagree with the observation made following my column, February 22, which was that my Pundit column was not raised. The observation was that the author of the letter "wisecracks true identity to be withheld." I believe that the language used in the case, in which I signed the letter, "Yakov ben Chaim," is, in the language, an acceptable means of expressing my true identity; it is my own given Jewish name. Indeed, it is the name used during my Bar Mitzvah ceremony. Since the naming of the Bar Mitzvah was one of the issues in my letter and the article upon which it was commenting, it seemed quite appropriate to reveal to myself with the name used at my own Bar Mitzvah. The letter is written in Hebrew and my true identity is better captured by the name Yakov ben Chaim or by that of Jerry Winter is a most obvious question for any modern Jew. Perhaps somebody should discuss it with Karen Alcindor (née: Lew Alcindor) or Muhammad Ali (née: Cassius Clay).

In the meantime.

Shalom,

Yakov ben Chaim (more commonly known as Jerry Winter)
Rink builder needs ‘breaks’ for opening

by Bernice Zelitch

Dr. Ross Pierpont, the Baltimore-based general surgeon and entrepreneur who has received the go-ahead to plan an ice rink on the sixth campus, told Fuld that with “some breaks,” the structure will be operable by the fall.

Interviewed in his office by phone Friday, the part-owner of the Baltimore Clippers hockey franchise and a U.S. senatorial candidate also said he had no plans to establish a security system, except for having between 1500 and 1600 seats and that the facility may be open as much as 24 hours a day, 72 months a year.

Dr. Pierpont assessed the chances of a fall opening by saying, “We believe we can do it if everybody functions the way they should... But we have to have some breaks.” He added that although design have not yet come from an architect, the interior of the ice rink is standard and the only “uncertainty” is the exterior.

Dr. Pierpont said he expected

Complaint prompts dorm meal additions

Full continental breakfast will be served in Smith-Burdick and Knowlton on weekends at the suggestion of several students, according to Eleanor H. Voorhees, director of residence.

Nina M. George, Donna G. Diamond and Letha McPhee spoke with Ms. Voorhees last week about eating conditions in Harris on weekends.

“Students and staff alike are dissatisfied with eating in Harris on weekends and we wanted to make our feelings known to the Residence Department,” said Ms. George about her interview with the head of the residence department.

“We circulated a petition to students on the first floor of the campus and got an overwhelming response against the weekend program,” Mr. George explained. “However, before we submitted the petition we thought

Next budget allows greater staff raises

Salary raises of up to 7 per cent highlight this year’s preliminary budget which was passed recently by the Board of Trustees.

A seven page abbreviated version of the anticipated expenditures—which at $13,215,000 is $41,000 more than will probably be spent this year—is available in the library reading room. The final budget becomes effective at the end of the fiscal year, June 30. According to the College treasurer’s office, the budget will be revised in October.

President Charles E. Shinn this week said, “After a careful review, the salaries added for faculty appointments are made in relation to enrollments and after we know the price of oil, there is a very serious revision of the budget.”

Salary increases in the past usually have been 4 per cent.

The Junior Class is sponsoring “Casablanca” with Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman and “The Misfits” with Clark Gable and Marilyn Monroe. They will be shown Saturday, March 9, 9:00 p.m. in Palm Auditorium, admission $1. A drawing will be held during intermission for a $25 gift certificate for the Cro Bar.

Ugliest couple on campus party will be held Saturday, March 27 at 8:30 p.m. in Park living room. There will be music and “cold’lations.” Admission will be a $1 donation to the local center. The five ugliest couples will be the winners and will be announced at the last home basketball game on March 5, 7:30. The event is being co-sponsored by the Social Board and the College.

Halt rink progress, say student leaders

Laure J. Leazer and Richard A. Lichtenstein, president and vice-president of Student Government, this week called for a halt in the ice rink planning until the Administration discusses the situation with the students. In a release received Monday, the student leaders said, “We respectfully request that all plans for the construction of the ice rink on south campus be delayed until there is an opportunity for further and more complete discussions about the ramifications with the student body.”

We therefore cordially invite them and interested students to attend the Student Assembly at 6:30 p.m. on March 13, and the College Council at 5 p.m. on March 14. Mr. Knight is out of town for several days and Mr. Shinn said he most likely will be unable to attend today’s College Council meeting.

Gerald R. Viaggio, assistant professor of political science and a member of the board of studies, has given a $5,000 research grant by the U.S. Department of Commerce, Office of Submarine Fisheries Service, to prepare an 18-month study of “The Economics of Handicapping, Handling, and Marketing Mixed Catches in Southern New England.”

Mr. Viaggio will prepare an economic assessment of the costs associated with alternative forms of management for discard red and white hake, ocean perch, and alewife catches. The research will strengthen the potential for domestic and foreign market outlets for these species.

"no profit intended"

Course infosales lose $865

"We got a letter thanking us for our concern," said Mrs. Voorhees. "The College has a tradition of good employee relations," said Mrs. Voorhees. "Working conditions should be a concern of students," she added.

Ms. George said that her committee will fund the improvements and premature cancellations are made before further action is taken.

"In an answer to our question about staff working conditions Ms. Voorhees said, "The College has a tradition of good employee relations," said Mrs. Voorhees. "Working conditions should be a concern of students," she added.

Ms. George said that her committee will fund the improvements and premature cancellations are made before further action is taken.

"In an answer to our question about staff working conditions Ms. Voorhees said, "The College has a tradition of good employee relations," said Mrs. Voorhees. "Working conditions should be a concern of students," she added.

Ms. George said that her committee will fund the improvements and premature cancellations are made before further action is taken.

"In an answer to our question about staff working conditions Ms. Voorhees said, "The College has a tradition of good employee relations," said Mrs. Voorhees. "Working conditions should be a concern of students," she added.

Ms. George said that her committee will fund the improvements and premature cancellations are made before further action is taken.

"In an answer to our question about staff working conditions Ms. Voorhees said, "The College has a tradition of good employee relations," said Mrs. Voorhees. "Working conditions should be a concern of students," she added.

Ms. George said that her committee will fund the improvements and premature cancellations are made before further action is taken.
School picks up rug damage tab

by Jane Blonder

Student pressure has encouraged the Administration to pay the cleaning bills for the rugs of the Laramie floor. In the latest chapter of what might well be remembered as the "Waterpipe Affair" the College, however, has refused to pay for other damages that resulted from the burst pipe that flooded Laramie basement over vacation. Eleanor V. Voorhees, head of residence policy,Spaces pat the damage cause in the Cuck book which says in part, "the College assumes no responsibility, pay the damage of student property at any time."

The Resistance Department has sent rugs out to be cleaned without giving students notice. Some students feel that the College should take responsibility for all losses. Victim Robert R. Shriftin said that in refusing to pay for damages the College assumed the atitude that a student is "shelpfully unwilling to take responsibility for its simple-minded inactivity."

Mr. Shriftin says that though the College has maintained that the burst was an accident, the damage was not caused by casual negligence. Eleanor Voorhees regards the school's policy in this matter as reasonable, a part of a landlord-tenant situation. She says that in both cases the occupants must rely on individual insurance policies in the event of personal property loss or damage.

Some students questioned the Administration's covering up the facts behind the matter, and as Mr. Shriftin claims theAdministration is "turning things around, an inside source at Physical Plant told him that the heat had been turned off. "Any fifth grader knows that pipes will freeze and burst when the temperature falls below 32 degrees," Mr. Shriftin declared.

Robert N. Gould, another victim also maintains that "the College does not want to pay the consequences for their negligent actions." He says that a defective pump that contributed to the burst did its job as "making weird noises, clanking and rattling all semester." Mr. Gould suggests that the Administration should have kept a better eye on its pumps.

Richard W. Ingersoll Sr., director of physical plant said it is nearly impossible to get to and inspect the impeller, the section of the pump that failed and allowed the water to flow back into Laramie.

Voorhees regards the school's policy in this matter as reasonable, a part of a landlord-tenant situation. She says that in both cases the occupants must rely on individual insurance policies in the event of personal property loss or damage. Some students questioned the Administration's covering up the facts behind the matter, and as Mr. Shriftin claims the Administration is "turning things around, an inside source at Physical Plant told him that the heat had been turned off. "Any fifth grader knows that pipes will freeze and burst when the temperature falls below 32 degrees," Mr. Shriftin declared. Robert N. Gould, another victim also maintains that "the College does not want to pay the consequences for their negligent actions." He says that a defective pump that contributed to the burst did its job as "making weird noises, clanking and rattling all semester." Mr. Gould suggests that the Administration should have kept a better eye on its pumps.

Richard W. Ingersoll Sr., director of physical plant said it is nearly impossible to get to and inspect the impeller, the section of the pump that failed and allowed the water to flow back into Laramie.

Voorhees regards the school's policy in this matter as reasonable, a part of a landlord-tenant situation. She says that in both cases the occupants must rely on individual insurance policies in the event of personal property loss or damage. Some students questioned the Administration's covering up the facts behind the matter, and as Mr. Shriftin claims the Administration is "turning things around, an inside source at Physical Plant told him that the heat had been turned off. "Any fifth grader knows that pipes will freeze and burst when the temperature falls below 32 degrees," Mr. Shriftin declared.

Robert N. Gould, another victim also maintains that "the College does not want to pay the consequences for their negligent actions." He says that a defective pump that contributed to the burst did its job as "making weird noises, clanking and rattling all semester." Mr. Gould suggests that the Administration should have kept a better eye on its pumps.

Richard W. Ingersoll Sr., director of physical plant said it is nearly impossible to get to and inspect the impeller, the section of the pump that failed and allowed the water to flow back into Laramie.
The Church is psychologically, and politically not seen for its moral continued. "Medieval Church, Brecht has damped said. "For a woman to be scene, which nematic power by producing regarded as playing the "1be meaning of the 'eminine' d rock, "The Next co u e':.t. told the chapel Reuther. ~
An lentas the play is, it is theology al Howard University and male and aoclally projected all,."The Rise and the Image the
"The best song on the side, "In And Out of the Chakras We Go (formerly: Shaft Goes to Outer Space)," "Don't You Ever Learn!" and "Songs of 1984," are somewhat uneven. "Songs of 1984" is Todd's election pitch for the 1986 presidential campaign. The recording is live and in helped along by a chorus from a New York performance and over-dubbed by another audience in Vancouver. It's a big Mama Thornton - Oh Happy Day - production and it moves.
Taken as a whole, the album is experimental. It's strange, it's weird, it's lazy, it's deep, it's crazy. "Todd" is a fresh, in new creative activity that hopefully will bring him the attention and credibility that he deserves, but in 1984, we'll need all the credibility we can get.

"Everybody's Going to Heaven - Kid Kong Reggae." A song with sharp-edged duality, it laments a cruel existence and God and god-like figures to Kid Kong. "Watch the big money to the Kid Kong reggae.
The best song on the side, "Izat Love?", is an infectious tune snacking of top forty and containing high, soaring choruses and a few surprises.
The three cuts on side four, "In And Out of the Chakras We Go (formerly: Shaft Goes to Outer Space)," "Don't You Ever Learn!" and "Songs of 1984," are somewhat uneven. "Songs of 1984" is Todd's election pitch for the 1986 presidential campaign. The recording is live and in helped along by a chorus from a New York performance and over-dubbed by another audience in Vancouver. It's a big Mama Thornton - Oh Happy Day - production and it moves.
Taken as a whole, the album is experimental. It's strange, it's weird, it's lazy, it's deep, it's crazy. "Todd" is a fresh, in new creative activity that hopefully will bring him the attention and credibility that he deserves, but in 1984, we'll need all the credibility we can get.

"Everybody's Going to Heaven - Kid Kong Reggae." A song with sharp-edged duality, it laments a cruel existence and God and god-like figures to Kid Kong. "Watch the big money to the Kid Kong reggae.
The best song on the side, "Izat Love?", is an infectious tune snacking of top forty and containing high, soaring choruses and a few surprises.
The three cuts on side four, "In And Out of the Chakras We Go (formerly: Shaft Goes to Outer Space)," "Don't You Ever Learn!" and "Songs of 1984," are somewhat uneven. "Songs of 1984" is Todd's election pitch for the 1986 presidential campaign. The recording is live and in helped along by a chorus from a New York performance and over-dubbed by another audience in Vancouver. It's a big Mama Thornton - Oh Happy Day - production and it moves.
Taken as a whole, the album is experimental. It's strange, it's weird, it's lazy, it's deep, it's crazy. "Todd" is a fresh, in new creative activity that hopefully will bring him the attention and credibility that he deserves, but in 1984, we'll need all the credibility we can get.

"Everybody's Going to Heaven - Kid Kong Reggae." A song with sharp-edged duality, it laments a cruel existence and God and god-like figures to Kid Kong. "Watch the big money to the Kid Kong reggae.
The best song on the side, "Izat Love?", is an infectious tune snacking of top forty and containing high, soaring choruses and a few surprises.
The three cuts on side four, "In And Out of the Chakras We Go (formerly: Shaft Goes to Outer Space)," "Don't You Ever Learn!" and "Songs of 1984," are somewhat uneven. "Songs of 1984" is Todd's election pitch for the 1986 presidential campaign. The recording is live and in helped along by a chorus from a New York performance and over-dubbed by another audience in Vancouver. It's a big Mama Thornton - Oh Happy Day - production and it moves.
Taken as a whole, the album is experimental. It's strange, it's weird, it's lazy, it's deep, it's crazy. "Todd" is a fresh, in new creative activity that hopefully will bring him the attention and credibility that he deserves, but in 1984, we'll need all the credibility we can get.

"Everybody's Going to Heaven - Kid Kong Reggae." A song with sharp-edged duality, it laments a cruel existence and God and god-like figures to Kid Kong. "Watch the big money to the Kid Kong reggae.
The best song on the side, "Izat Love?", is an infectious tune snacking of top forty and containing high, soaring choruses and a few surprises.
The three cuts on side four, "In And Out of the Chakras We Go (formerly: Shaft Goes to Outer Space)," "Don't You Ever Learn!" and "Songs of 1984," are somewhat uneven. "Songs of 1984" is Todd's election pitch for the 1986 presidential campaign. The recording is live and in helped along by a chorus from a New York performance and over-dubbed by another audience in Vancouver. It's a big Mama Thornton - Oh Happy Day - production and it moves.
Taken as a whole, the album is experimental. It's strange, it's weird, it's lazy, it's deep, it's crazy. "Todd" is a fresh, in new creative activity that hopefully will bring him the attention and credibility that he deserves, but in 1984, we'll need all the credibility we can get.
Woman's Group decries 'lax' security attitude

The Woman's Group Monday responded to the "lax attitude towards security" shown in response to the recent rape.

In a release sent to Pundit, the group said, "Despite the warning given us by one rapist, the members of the College Community continue in our lax attitude towards security. The woman's group, alarmed at the indifference of both students and administrators towards the well-being of women students, faculty, and employees, notes that the grounds remain unsafe, but no preventative measures have been taken to ensure the further intrusions of these intruders."

The Woman's Group intends to bring up the matter of rape prevention at the College Council meeting this afternoon, according to Women's Group spokesperson, Victoria A. Bowen. In the release the group also said:

The one rape of last semester was only a manifestation of a dangerously ever-present situation. We, the Larambe women dorm alone reported in one week three separate incidents of unknown males on their corridors attempting entrance to bedrooms. On being challenged, none of these three men could give satisfactory explanations. Could these too have been isolated incidents which are better forgotten?

Until the first steps of administrative action are taken, such as immediate restoration of paid door and telephone duty, and installation of an identification card and key system, we implore all students for our mutual safety to co-operate with the minimal security measures now available. Even if you are just going to Cro or visiting a nearby dormitory, be sure the door is locked behind you. If you want an escort to any part of campus, call security guarduse. Moreover, don't hesitate to challenge strangers on your corridors. Larambe women found that three to zero they don't belong there. It is up to us as a community to halt the attitude which allows the perpetuation of our actual physical vulnerability to attack."

Radical Study Group meets Sunday

The first meeting of the Radical Study Group will be held Sunday, March 6, 3:30 p.m. in the Chapel Library. The discussion is open to anyone interested in radical perspectives.

Students and the labor market

What's left?

by Nina George and Donna Diamond

With Reconstruction (1865-70's) came the growth and expansion of industrialization and an extended free labor force in the U.S. At the same time there was a systematization of public education and installation of an identification card and key system, we implore all students for our mutual safety to co-operate with the minimal security measures now available. Even if you are just going to Cro or visiting a nearby dormitory, be sure the door is locked behind you. If you want an escort to any part of campus, call security guarduse. Moreover, don't hesitate to challenge strangers on your corridors. Larambe women found that three to zero they don't belong there. It is up to us as a community to halt the attitude which allows the perpetuation of our actual physical vulnerability to attack."

Students have been consistently trained to adopt a competitive attitude toward their peers while forced to remain passive toward "superiors."

As industrialization became more complex, vocational education was instituted to meet the demand for skilled labor. This merely served to force more workers into the labor market at an earlier age, furthering the rapid progress of capitalism. As employers demanded different kinds of workers it became advantageous to parents and children to lobby for different types of education that would re-inforce the needs of the capitalist class. This helps to account for the failure of free-school methods in working class neighborhoods.

In recent years the liberalization of education (greater choice in colleges, proliferation of educational foundations) has appeared to contradict the relationship between education and the demands of capitalism. It seems that students are freer to pursue education for its own sake, with no bearing on their economic destiny. However, the free-market-place of ideas is in fact a vehicle for the development of better capitalist ideas and techniques.

Students continue to enter profitable professions regardless of whether these fields provide needed, beneficial or ecologically sound services and products. Thus, despite liberalized schooling the dynamic of constant economic growth (leading to overproduction and economic instability) prevents students from acquiring an education not determined by the needs of a capitalist economy.

Until the present system is radically altered, students will have imposed upon them working class discipline and curricula relating to jobs which will perpetuate capitalist profiteering, to the detriment of their class interests. The authors wish to thank Herb Ghita and Sam Bowles for their theories of Education in the U.S. which inspired this article.
New co-ed basketball catching on here

by Sue Maudens

Conn’s intramural basketball team has always been dripping with enthusiasm, a dribble of spectators — until this season. Fortunately, that era is fast becoming as passe as “Co-CofWo,” because intramural basketball is now as “for women” as Conn College is “for men.”

Yes fans, co-ed basketball is Conn’s newest and most attended sport this season. Not all dorms have recruited female members for their teams since Jeffrey J. Zimmerman, coordinator of men’s athletics, decided in early December to allow co-ed intramural basketball teams.

However, there has been a considerable showing of female “strength” in the south dorms, especially J.A. and Hardness.

Despite the published schedule’s title “Men’s Intramural Basketball” and the astonished looks of the male players, any woman is now eligible to play on her dorm’s co-ed team.

From the record book’s rosters, Harkness appears to feature nine co-eds on their two teams and there are four of these sweet-nurtured (or pajama-clad, if you please) women on the J.A. team.

“Girls aren’t good enough for men’s intramurals;” you say? In the Harkness versus Day Students game, Sharon Collins and Cathy Poitier both scored, while Margaret Kame added six points to make the female contribution of 15 of the 24 points scored by Harkness. In the J.A. versus Hardness game, the co-eds for both teams totaled eight players — sometimes leaving the courts with few or no men representing their teams.

Mr. Zimmerman voiced his concern about women being on the court “because the games weren’t very skilled, they might be a little too easy.” However, the additional dorm spirit, the increased player participation and the larger spectator crowds indicate that neither facts nor actions confirm Mr. Zimmerman’s worry. Instead, co-ed teammates and fans alike seem to be supporting the December ruling with increasing fervor.

Last Wednesday night, S.U.N.Y. came to town to play the Camels. Every member of their team had to duck coming into the gym. It looked like they were going to have an easy game. Each had a foot and a half on everybody but Steve Burnett. They had three feet on him. However, they turned out to be a teamful of hackers.

Hungry Burnett, using his size to perfection, managed to get swatted to the ground at least five times and to foul out half the opposition. With Hungry and Jim Cawley leading the way, the Camels took a 4 point lead into the locker room. Unfortunately, they left it there.

S.U.N.Y. came out steamin’ in the second half and rapidly started working on the Camels. They were up by 9 with 4 minutes remaining when Jim Cawley re-entered the game. Jim hit for 4 quick ones but then fouled out.

After that is was all over. Two meaningless baskets with seconds to go pulled the Camels to within 3, but the game ended with the team on the short end of an 81-78 score. Steve Burnett with 22 points and Jim Cawley with 17 led the Camels. This loss dropped their record to 5-6.

Pundit classified ads

Would anyone with a sincere interest in meditation like to get together once or twice a week for a one-hour group meditation? Contact me soon if interested. Paul, box 538, 445-6632.

For sale: Used Yamaha 12-string guitar. Good condition. $50. Price negotiable. Contact Mark Heitler, Burdick or P.O. Box 55.

FOR SALE

UNION Lane

FOR SALE

ON SALE

426 Williams St.

WHO LIKES SCHOOL

We’re a newly formed public interest foundation, dedicated to fundamental social change especially through public, school education. We hope to contribute to a viable, self-sufficient, self-conscious and self-sustaining society, subject to the development of more interpersonal and interhuman values. Our independent long term funding enables us to develop and initiate projects in non-traditional human development areas, and to deal with values and issues of a significant social relevance.

Individuals, faculty, concerned individuals who are very interested, intelligent, sensitive, alert, articulate, intelligent, involved, imaginative and creative.

Let us know what you think; let us know your thoughts. We hope to fill an idealistic void.

IF YOU IDENTIFY WITH OUR OBJECTIVES CONTACT US AT:

S.E.R. Foundation

1711 17th St. NW rm. 1

Washington, D.C. 20009

302-787-6829

You can specialize in:

- Corporations
- Estates, Trusts and Wills
- Litigation
- Real Estate and Mortgages

Enrollment on campus

Monday, March 10th

Director of Career Counseling and Placement

Research uncovers 'how Conn got its hump'

by Lawrence Roberts

It is true that the basketball team could really go for over a week without a drink? Or that the soccer team could beat the Saudi Arabian National Team on its home field.

If linguists are correct when they say that by naming something we have placed conceptual limits upon it, then the answers to both of the above questions is a resounding yes.

The Camels could do it.

However, the chances are they won't even if the Cow bar closed down and King Faisal suddenly announced a new era of U.S.-Arabian détente. For there seems to be more to a name than meets the eye, however enlightened the eye might be.

Most colleges have derived material does one have to do to get a real crowd? But no prize.

Mr. Gullong conceded that after the grand prize was awarded, the University of Waterford.

tenacity or aggressiveness: Lions, Bruts, Mustangs, and Huskies.

In tracing the genealogy of the Dromedary, one does not have to descend into the recesses of the Paleolithic Period nor, for that matter, does one have to look back further than the inception of selecting names. Amherst College derives its nickname, the Lord Jeffs, from the fact that its founder, Lord Jeffrey Amherst, had a mappit style. Similarly, Williams College received its sobriquet, the Ephemere, because its founder, Ephraim Williams, had an odd first name. Mindful of this, then, where does Conn College fit in? Sir Nathaniel Conn.

In tracing the genealogy of the Dromedary, one does not have to descend into the recesses of the Paleolithic Period nor, for that matter, does one have to look back further than the inception of selecting names. Amherst College derives its nickname, the Lord Jeffs, from the fact that its founder, Lord Jeffrey Amherst, had a mappit style. Similarly, Williams College received its sobriquet, the Ephemere, because its founder, Ephraim Williams, had an odd first name. Mindful of this, then, where does Conn College fit in? Sir Nathaniel Conn.

In tracing the genealogy of the Dromedary, one does not have to descend into the recesses of the Paleolithic Period nor, for that matter, does one have to look back further than the inception of selecting names. Amherst College derives its nickname, the Lord Jeffs, from the fact that its founder, Lord Jeffrey Amherst, had a mappit style. Similarly, Williams College received its sobriquet, the Ephemere, because its founder, Ephraim Williams, had an odd first name. Mindful of this, then, where does Conn College fit in? Sir Nathaniel Conn.