Students of Urban Sociology to Visit The State Prison

Institution At Wethersfield One Of Many Planned To Be Visited

The students of Urban Sociology will go to Wethersfield tomorrow, March 5, to visit the State Prison. In class they have been studying the subject of crime and delinquency—the problems which create them and those which they in turn create. The girls have been shown through the walls of the warden and then will have a discussion with him afterwards. In this way they will get a first-hand insight into the way the state takes care of those members of society who have behaved contrary to social standards.

Robert Frost to Publish Book Of Poetry April 20

A "Further Range" Is The First Publication Since 1928

Robert Frost, pastoral poet of New England and one of America's foremost poets, will publish on April 20th a volume of poems entitled "A Further Range," his first volume of new poems since 1928.

Robert Frost was born in San Antonio, Texas, on March 26, of its picturesque "waterfront" days, the son of the editor of one of the pioneer newspapers. He came to New England, in 1912, to work in his father's retail store. Except for three years spent in pre-war England, New England has been his home. He began writing at the age of fifteen, at that time going through the usual stages of deep admiration for and love for the great masters. Robert Frost, however, has never been a "literary" poet, preferring rather to draw his inspiration from direct contact with the world.

Mrs. Wilmott Tells Of Co-operative School

Mrs. Dorothy Wilmott, who is a member of the central staff of the Cooperative School for Teachers in New York City, was a guest at college on Tuesday, March 8. She lectured and answered questions in the education classes in the morning, and in the afternoon talked to the Education Club at an informal tea at Windham.

The afternoon discussion was concerned primarily with the work of the Cooperative School where specific training in teaching and teaching problems is given to college graduates. The school is experimental in nature, and most of its teachers are sent after a year's course to progressive private schools. Much emphasis is placed on the development of the individual child, and upon Laymon, designer for Chase Copper and Brass Co., Waterbury, spoke to the Art Club Friday night on the designer's job and the opportunities for women in the design field. Although one of the younger designers, Mr. Laymon was well qualified to speak as he designs most of the Chace Specialty Line which brings out over forty new items each year. He is responsible for the present hour of his designs, balls, the spherical salt and pepper shakers, the modern bedroom sets in chromium, and the numerous smoking sets in chromium, copper or brass that we see everywhere. After his talk Mr. Laymon passed around some of his original drawings, working plans, and finished articles.

Strange New Rector Of St. James To Speak Sunday

The Rev. Frank S. Morehouse, newly elected rector of St. James Episcopal Church of this city, will be the guest speaker at the vesper service on Sunday, at 7. The college takes this means of welcoming Mr. Morehouse to the city and in particular to our college community. The Episcopalians have always been one of the largest of the denominational groups in the College, and it is hoped that an adequate representation of Episcopal students and faculty will be on hand Sunday to greet Mr. Morehouse on his first speaking engagement at the College.

After the service, at 8:15, in Windham parlor, there will be an opportunity to meet Rev. and Mrs. Morehouse personally, when coffee will be served. To encourage gathering, all Episcopal students and faculty members are cordially invited.

There are historical books, tracing the development of sculpture from the Orientals to the Italian Renaissance. Julia deWolf Addison has a book on the "Arts and Crafts of the Middle Ages," in which she discusses the progress of work in jewelry, embroidery, inlay and mosaic, and metal work, as well as sculpture. Dr. Wilhelm Lubke's "History of Sculpture" which is accepted as an authority, and Charles Brantow's "Famous Sculptures" are both books worthy of attention.

One of the most valuable of the books in the collection is the beautifully bound edition of Rodin—which contains a series of sixty photogravure plates, hand-printed on handmade paper, of his greatest works. (Continued to Page 3, Col. 1)

Mrs. Woodhouse Is Put On Commission

Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, director of the Institute of Women's Professional Relations and professor of economics at Connecticut college, has been appointed consultant to the Office of the Assistant to the Educational Policy Commission, which was announced at the headquarters of the commission at Washington.

The consultants will receive important materials prepared by the commission and will present the commission by expressing opinions on issues submitted, by raising additional issues to be considered, by disseminating the commission's recommendations, and by reporting the conclusions of important committees of which the consultants are members.

An Amalgamation Meeting For Campus Problems

An Amalgamation meeting was held last Monday evening for the purpose of discussing campus problems. Dean Burdick struck to the point in the statement in a brief address urging the students to take a more active part in the affairs of the school. While the girls were still filled with her inspiration, Margaret McKelvey, President of Student Government, brought up several important matters for discussion. First was the question of quiet hours; judging by the reaction of the students, our present methods of enforcement has met with varying degrees of success. To houses where quiet hours have not been observed, President McKelvey recommended that the girls be more thoughtful of each other's well-being.

For the sake of those who didn't understand how our Student Government operates, the President introduced Haverneke and Cabinet, and explained their functions.

The six rules formulated by Cabinet to help prevent cheating were brought to the attention of the students. After a prolonged discussion, the rules were approved. The majority of the students were also in favor of making a rule that the professor should

Freshmen and Sophomores Sponsor Program For S.A. Fund

On Sunday night, March 7, at 8:15, the Sophomore and Freshman classes will present the Wesleyan Glee Club as their contribution to the Student Alumni Fund. Each year four of the classes are responsible for some entertainment to raise money toward the building of a house that will be used for Alumni and Students. This year the Sophomore and Freshman classes decided to unite in their efforts.

The Glee Club concert will be given at 8:15, and a Concert Dance with the Wesleyan Orchestra playing, at 9:30. If one wishes to attend the concert, the tickets will be $1.50, and for admission to both the charge will be $.75 for stag, and 1.50 for couple.

If there are any girls who wish to meet the members of the Glee Club, the arrangements can be made through Vivian Graham in Winthrop House.

For further information, Constance Leff in Winthrop House, Jane Kellog and Margaret Nelson in Branford House may be consulted.

What do Friendships Mean to Us?

A recent conversation with an alumnus impressed me with one of her enthusiastic remarks, "Oh, those bull sessions! What sport they were." And when we lay aside all reserve and dig in, enthusiastic remarks, "Oh, those bull sessions! What sport they were." And when we lay aside all reserve and dig in,

ATTENTION

Are you interested in architecture? In landscape gardening? In interior architecture and decoration? Then come to hear Miss Louise Land on Tuesday, March 10, at 4 P.M. Miss Land comes to us from the Cambridge School of Architecture and Landscape Architecture, Cambridge, Mass., which is affiliated with Smith College. The personal Bureau is sponsoring this lecture especially for art and botany majors, but all others who are interested are invited to attend. This is an excellent opportunity for freshmen who are considering any of these fields. Miss Land will illustrate her lecture with slides and photographs.

DON'T FORGET—Tuesday, March 10, at 4 P.M., in 609 New London Hall!

Campus Character

A friendly personality and generally easy going disposition characterize this professor. Nothing upsets this calm character, not even the presence of strange people in the classroom. Another thing is that of avoiding on time to a class, but the class is impossibly know that they are to wait indefinitely for said professor, as the latter always arrives sooner or later in that big, light room. Very few people "cut" the classes over which this personality presides, although attendance is rarely taken. The "springing of quizzes" is thoroughly disbelieving in, a point in any instructor's favor. The argument for collecting mimeographed sheets and whenever one goes to this personage's office, one is obliged to wade through a chosen few!

WHAT DO FRIENDSHIPS MEAN TO US?

(Continued from Column 1) of accomplishing what was originally intended as a really constructive goal, have become too hot, too thoughtless, too petty. Beware of anything small that might possibly cause a tension to grow into and in time destroy a once fine relationship.

In the particular person's estimation of us? Are not we representing the priceless quality of generosity? Aren't we shattering whatever respect we might have inspired in other people's estimation of us? Are not we the most critical of ourselves? And if we were any less critical, aren't we weeding out the physically able kids? Aren't we being a little "sadistic," as it were? Have we not agreed that sincerity is the very life of friendships? Perhaps our bull-sessions have never reached the point of cruelty. I have seen too many that, instead of accomplishing what was originally intended as a really constructive goal, have become too hot, too thoughtless, too petty. Beware of anything small that might possibly cause a tension to grow into and in time destroy a once fine relationship.

II feeling is one of the most diffusive and obnoxious of all worldly dents. Friendship is the greatest thing in the world. It has such infinitely wonderful possibilities—don't cut it!

At Carnegie Tech, His Honor, Mayor McNair of Pittsburgh, presented to an open student forum his discussion on the general economic recovery. By popular request, also at hand was Dr. Nathan Miller, ready and able to refute "any of the mayor's statements." Mayor McNair, ardent devotee of the apple a day, expressed that his apples were all in the fruit. The argument was widely billed as "Apples vs. Textbooks." No report has yet been received as to who won and why.

This is supplemented by a critical, historical analysis by Louise Bene-dite, director of the Luxembourg and the Rodin Museums, who gives an understanding account of Rodin’s life and work. “La Femme Impop-ic,” a life-size statue, and one of Rodin’s best, is one of the plates on exhibit.

A German book on Donatello of the Italian Renaissance by Ulfred Gotthold Meyer contains plates of the famous doors at the Sacristy of San Lorenzo in Florence. More about Donatello may be found in Maud Cruftbell’s book, Donatello, also on exhibit. She devotes a whole chapter to the Sacristy of S. Lorenzo, the Burial Chapel of the Medici, which contains many of Donatello’s best works.

Some interesting work of the 16th Century Florentine, Vincenzo Den-ti, is described in Waters’ Italian Sculpture. A relief which is said to be his masterpiece, is illustrated in one of the plates.

Because the exhibit is on for a limited time, only, students should make an effort to see it as soon as possible. It is distinctly worthwhile.

Dr. Charles G. Chakerian, member of the Social Science Department of Connecticut College and Secretary and Consultant of the State Commission to study the Poor Laws, addressed a meeting of the Connecticut League of Municipal Executives at Waterbury on Wednesday, March 11.

Dr. Chakerian pointed out that dependency has now become a Part.

1. The settlement law dilemma.
2. Cities claim that they are not state assisted for the unemployed.
3. The majority of patients in the almshouses will not be eligible for old age assistance and so they will still be a burden on the state and local communities.

OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

All kinds of people choose Luckies, each for reasons of his own. But everyone agrees that Luckies are a Light Smoke of rich, ripe-bodied tobacco.

It is a rather surprising fact that the leaves of the same tobacco plant may vary far more than the leaves from plants of quite different types. Chemical analysis shows that the top leaves contain excess alkalies which tend to give a harsh, alkaline taste. The bottom leaves tend to acidity in the smoke. It is only the center leaves which approach in nature the most palatable, acid-alkaline balance. In Lucky Strike Cigarettes, the center leaves are used.

Lucky Strike Cigarettes are less acid

Recent chemical tests show that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from $31 to 100%.

years later his grandfather bought him a farm in Derry, N. H. Mr. Frost lived there for twelve years farming, writing, and teaching. There followed a brief sojourn in England, after which he returned to New Hampshire to find his reputation as a poet made by that publication of the volume, "North of Boston". From that time on Mr. Frost has taught, lectured, farmed, and written poetry.

The only true bucolic poetry being written in America today, it is the consensus of opinion, is that of Robert Frost. His poems are extremely realistic. They are true pastorals of the hill country in the poetry of Robert Frost. His gentle understanding, sympathy, quiet power of emotion, and forceful technique have never been equalled by any of his contemporaries.

The explanation of Mr. Frost's force and power is, I believe, revealed to a certain extent by his own words, "The living poem begins with a lump in the throat; it is a reaching out toward expression; an effort to find fulfillment. A complete poem is one in which an emotion has found its thought and the thought has found the words."

Some of Mr. Frost's better known volumes are the following: "A Boy's Will", 1913; "North of Boston", 1914; "Mountain Interval", 1917; "New Hampshire", 1923; "West Running Brook", 1929 and "Collected Poems", 1930.

on interesting him in various activities. The students who attend the Cooperative School are sent as teachers to several experimental schools in New York, for practice work, and over week-ends, attend seminars and discussion groups at the Cooperative School. The age groups dealt with are from two to thirteen—the must interesting ages to teach, according to Mrs. Wilmott, because of the importance of early child training, and because it is a "growing field", one distinctly adaptable to experimentation.

The afternoon tea, at which Mary Griffin, '36, president of Education Club, acted as hostess, was well attended. Miss Ramsay, head of the Personnel Department, introduced Mrs. Wilmott, who extended an invitation to any students who are interested to visit the Cooperative School in New York, and to see what sort of work is being done there. A catalogue may be obtained from Miss Ramsay.
