Student Spontaneously Combusts in Cro
Obsession Over Late Night Menu the Suspected Cause

From Budget, Water Possibly Next

By Marcus Bergens

A recent incident occurred September 19, 2003. At 12:30 a.m. Marlon Marsh and LeBlanc decided they were worried and wanted to get something to eat at Cro. Frank and I had gotten really mad, the night before and... well, stuff happened. Anyway, we both got really weird about it and avoided dinner so we didn't have to see each other. He called me later and we talked and decided the whole thing was just stupid, but then dinner was already done! Marsh explained, her voice cracking, "If only I'd called first, at least before even, Francis would still be alive."

Ellis and Clives agreed to come along and the quartet departed for Cro. It was here that the evening took a radical turn for the worse.

Says Ellis, "The first thing that happens is Frank just starts to go on and on about how much he wishes he had just ordered a ham, egg, and cheese sandwich with the menu that makes "it like Scrooge McDuck used to do at the beginning of every Christmas story." He did that sort of thing all the time,"

Marsh's diatribe started to wind down, he ordered the grilled ham and cheese, which was priced higher than impressive. According to Zanfardino, "It is more important things like, I don't know, the menu makes no sense, but I think there are more important things like, I don't know, the apocalypse, to worry about?"

After LeBlanc's diatribe petered out, he ordered the grilled ham and cheese whose price he had just directed a nitwit's worth of lip service about. Given that the Cro was on to the late night menu, they were no longer serving grilled ham and cheese. Disappointed, LeBlanc stepped out of line to reconsider his order.

Behind him was Ashli Eisenmann '03 and Menkins attempted to cool him, but it wasn't. Running through Cro, Menkins attempted to cool him, but it wasn't. "It is just so weird, like something out of the Saturday night," she didn't really know if I really believe he's dead."

"It is a hard thing to accept and I just wish to say, Ellis echoed Clives' statement. "But you have to ask yourself, if he was so tightly wound, wouldn't it make just a little bit of sense."

LeBlanc's parents have asked that donations to the Foundation for the Ending of Spontaneous Combustion in late night of flowers.

All of Conn's Money Problems Solved

Fainstein and Willis Discover Miracle Package on Doorstep

By Tim Ganem

The set of things that happens in a Campus movie, not in real life.

Yet, when President Fainstein opened his door Tuesday morning to retrieve the package, he was stunned to find 12 large bags of money on his doorstep with a card reading, "To Indicate Connecticut College's Budgetary Problems. From an Anonymous Donor."

"I was stunned," Fainstein confessed. "I mean, I had been praying for money to rain down on the campus from heavens, but I did not expect this." After he and his dog, Willis, checked the money to verify it was not counterfeit and that no large-scale bank heists had occurred recently, Fainstein felt confident that the money was indeed Conn's.

Bringing the money to Vice President of Finance Paul Maroni's office, the two spent most of the day looking at Maroni assisted, "swimming through it like Scrooge McDuck and do to the beginning of his collection..."

"It is the set of things that happens in a Campus movie, not in real life," Fainstein warned not to be so quick to assume that Conn was in fact out of the woods. "It is intoxicating to have all this money, this sweet, sweet money, piling up in front of me, but it may come back to haunt us."

Fainstein said it would be a matter of time before he received confirmation that the money were Conn's. (See related story on the termination of electricity to the college.)

A makeshift memorial has begun to form around the chalk outline where his ashes were settled with people placing flowers, photographs and small tin-kets. One passerby described the scene, "pretty tame considering the circumstances."

Connecticut College has always been a liberal campus. We tend to support Democratic, Green, or Independent Party candidates. On issues, we are generally left-leaning. We must stiffen spines on personal freedoms while calling for the extension of government into areas of business and poverty. Concepts like war, the draft, "shuttle government," and military tribunals tend to make a significant number of our campus nervous or angry.

Well, you know what, all this is just too bad.

To quote Ann Coulter, the brilliant syndicated columnist, "When contemplating college liberals, you really ought to note that John Walker is not getting the death penalty. Instead of executing people like John Walker to try to physically intimidate liberals, by making them realize that they can be killed too. Otherwise they will turn out to be outright traitors," And she is entirely right.

To All Those Lost During Wurd's Autocratic Reign, We Salute You

And just like the Prodigal Son I've returned
Anyone stepping to me you'll get
Came I got lyrics and you ain't got none
So if you come to battle bring a shotgun
Hit me if you do you're a fool, cause I hurt to the death
Try and stop me, you'll get your last breath
I just come, get your fill
Cause when I shoot to give, I shoot to kill

I came to get down (2x)
So get out your seats and jump around
Jump around (3x)
Jump up Jump up and get down.

I'm the cream of the crop, I rise to the top
ever a pig cause a pig is a cop
But another great or a terminator
Try to play me out like it is my name was Sega
But I ain't going out like no punk

Get to one style and you know I might switch
It's up and around, then back buck you down
Put out your head then you wake up in the Dawn of the Dead
I'm coming to get ya, coming to get ya
Splittin' out lyrics, from behind the scene
I'm going to be back

I came to get down (2x)
So get out your seats and jump around
Jump around (3x)

FAREWELL, CONNECTICUT COLLEGE, THE TIME HAS COME TO PART

BAILEY MCDOUGAL • BOOK 8

This is not an easy thing, but here it goes:

First of all, I don’t mean Australia, New Zealand or any of the other places where I have lived in the past three years. My final grades are not even due for another week or so, and I think it is safe to say that I will not be staying much longer. Therefore, I salute you. You (your name) are truly someone we should all be proud of. You are a hero, and I am so glad that I had the opportunity to meet you.

The thing is, I feel like I have grown as much as possible and now it is time for me to move on. I have never been one to just live life, I have always wanted to make the most of my time here at Connecticut College. I have been a part of the Writing Center for the past three years. I have helped many different students improve their writing skills and I have enjoyed every minute of it. I have also been a part of the College's diversity committee and I have been an active member of the Connecticut College Feminist Movement.

And the College Voice, what can I say to you? You have been more like my family than any other community I have ever been a part of. I have loved every minute of my time here, and I will miss you all very much. I wish I could give you all a big hug and tell you how much I love you.

So, I will be leaving soon, but I will not forget the memories that we have shared. I will always cherish the time that I have spent here and I will always be grateful for the people that I have met. I know that I will miss you all, but I know that I will never forget you. I will always think of you when I am away from here and I will always be thankful for the time that I have had here.

Sincerely,

Another Pretentious and Shocking Art Show

By REI DE SANS

Sharmen T. Tiddy who describes himself as "today's hot undercurrent," brought his art show entitled Art to Shock and Goreah Student Sensibilities to New London this past week. In the show's first stop T-Tiddy's talents are on display.

Some may remember T-Tiddy from his lone piece in 1999, "Earth on the Brink", where he concluded the show halfway through because art is not for sentimental introspection but to erase cash. After New London did not please T-Tiddy, he gave the ideas to the New London Arts Council and instead the town of New London gave him limited space to show his art. In August this year, the Arts Council took another brief at T-Tiddy's art. "It looks like it smells like a horse, but that does not mean it is not good," T-Tiddy said. T-Tiddy himself is a self-taught artist and a good art reader himself. T-Tiddy's art was meant to blow people's minds and show people that "Art is not just for the few, but for the better part of a month."

T-Tiddy's current series of work is about the music industry. His art is his way to express his feelings for the music industry. T-Tiddy's work is his way of thinking for his art tour in 1999. The show's first stop on T-Tiddy's tour was New London.

The press conference, even Awesome God is not a bad subtext and symbolism is fused by the Deity's response. The show received lukewarm reviews from visitors, attributed to "they do not understand art." The show received lukewarm reviews from visitors, attributed to "they do not understand art." T-Diddy's "Untitled" is the center piece of the show. The center piece of the show, a vast campus covered with six equal shaped dots, two of which were fused by the Deity's response. God chuckled and replied, "What do you think is traditionally referred to as the largest piece here. These Philistines are sure to find the subtext they cannot expect many of them will write letters, nor do they understand." T-Diddy was neither a suburb, nor located in Middle America causing T-Diddy to be there.

"Why did I never get a pony, even though I prayed for one so much," T-Tiddy asked by the Voice about his reaction to the art. "I cannot do what is right for the sake of the music."

The Most Holy T-Tiddy was overheard asking a piece of string, was the center piece of the show. "I know about those shirts, he would say. But hey, I was not going to correct him."

Experts are watchful of the music industry, including religious music, in the future. God departed T-Tiddy's company, paused. "Sure, it was shocking. But I appreciate a follower who reflects on his or her beliefs, even if I disagree. I mean, can you put down Amy Grant. She is just too delightful."}

New Campus Vows to End Conn/UConn Confusion
By KEN MAN
It is a common meme among Connecticut College students at least once in their four years to ask of family friends, roommates or even sometimes by large class size where they are going to school. Conn students will often respond by not being, with a response of, “Oh, UConn.” Many people politely explain the Connecticut College and the University of Connecticut are, in fact, two different institutions. It is an answer that can be intimidating for people who feel the need to recalibrate the situation beyond the simple comparison.
That is, now, no longer.
A group has quietly assembled thrusters, recruiting members in secret from the time the Conn/UConn program was first discussed. They have trained for weeks without making absolutely sure, in a bitter exclusive this past weekend, they chose to reveal themselves.
Their mission is to diminish “The Dark Camel” the group of roughly a dozen members have dedicated themselves to making the Conn/UConn problem Refusing to speak to the, Conn students are not asking for more than their fair share of the name and bring low people like ourselves.
“Those are the kind of people who feel the need to escalate the situation beyond the simple comparison. We are students of truth and cannot accept injustice of any kind for ourselves or others,” said one of those undetected thrusters.
What the thrusters are working with is to determine what is being done with the Conn now that it is on the ground.

Student Activists Growing Accustomed to Political Inactivity, Slothfulness

By T-News

"With the tragedies of September 11th and the events that have followed, many groups and individual students here had to alter their behavior out of respect and to fall in line with the new wave of patriotism. None have been so affected as the on-campus student activist, and Con has not been spared this trend."

"Sure, it was tough when Claire [Gaudiani] left because it didn't leave us with a really apparent villain. But we all quickly bounced back. After all, evil still existed in the world, but there's no readily apparent villain. But we all quickly bounced back."

"Patrick Eumacks '03 said, explaining the status of activist organizations on campus found that developing comfort ripped away from them."

"Eumacks attempted to summarize the new attraction to political disinterest for the majority clarified, "Look, it isn't that I am saying I will now stand idly by while women are oppressed worldwide, but it was to show some sense of order. Maybe I'll reconsider on just one issue."

"Pizzio has found herself increasingly morefft because, as I have realized, being engaged all the time is a lot of work. It is nice to look at the paper and see twelve different stories that make me want to scream. Who knew that 'Fox News' could be so pleasantly amazing?"

"I drifted into thought, wondering whether or not he has belonged among that list of greats. He drifted back to his work. While focusing on a screen like Tiger Woods over a ten footer he blocked out all distractions. "All distractions," included balance; he nearly toppled backwards and was not able to keep both feet on his own right shoulder."

"I decided he did not belong to that interested company instead he belonged right where he was, with us."

"We all used to look down on our classmates who were so politically lazy. "We all used to look down on our classmates who were so politically lazy. "We all used to look down on our classmates who were so politically lazy."

"Six months later, many believe that although America's innocence was put on notice, "It was tough when Claire [Gaudiani] left because it didn't leave us with a really apparent villain. But we all quickly bounced back. After all, evil still existed in the world, but there's no readily apparent villain. But we all quickly bounced back."

Conn's Athletic Center Roof Disintegrates

By Dr. B.J. Ramage

In a surprising move, Connecticut College President Norman Fainstein and Head Men's Basketball Coach Lynn Ramey announced Monday afternoon that the construction of the college's new athletic center, which has been under construction for the last three years, has been interrupted due to a roof collapse. The entire athletic complex was evacuated as a precautionary measure.

The collapse occurred during a construction attempt to build the roof. According to Fainstein, the roof was designed to support the weight of the center's basketball and weightlifting rooms. However, during the construction process, the roof started to disintegrate, causing a partial collapse.

Fainstein expressed his disappointment at the setback, saying, "We had invested a significant amount of money in the construction of the center, and it is disheartening to see this happen."

The collapse has caused delays in the construction schedule, and the timeline for completion of the center is now uncertain. Fainstein mentioned that the college will work with structural experts to determine the extent of the damage and the timeline for repairs.

The weather has been unfavorable, with heavy rain and strong winds, which could have contributed to the collapse. Fainstein said, "We will investigate all possible factors that could have caused this in order to prevent any future occurrences."

The college community is currently encouraged to participate in other athletic events taking place on campus, such as outdoor sports and intramural games.

The collapse has also raised questions about the safety of existing athletic facilities. Fainstein said, "Our priorities are to ensure the safety of our students and faculty, and we will take necessary actions to address any concerns.

Basketball Scholarship

By Dr. B.J. Ramage

In a move that has generated excitement among the basketball community, Connecticut College has awarded a four-year basketball scholarship to a local high school player. The scholarship includes full tuition, room, and board, as well as a stipend for athletic expenses.

The recipient of the scholarship is a senior at Winton High School, and the announcement was made during a ceremony at the college. The student was chosen based on his athletic achievements and academic performance.

In his acceptance speech, the student expressed his gratitude, saying, "This is a dream come true. I am so grateful for this opportunity to continue my education and pursue my passion for basketball at Connecticut College."

The scholarship is part of an initiative by the college to support local student athletes and strengthen its commitment to athletic excellence. Fainstein stated, "We are proud to offer this scholarship to a talented student who represents the future of Connecticut College athletics.

Chimpanzee Awarded

By Dr. B.J. Ramage

In a surprising move, a Connecticut College student has been awarded a Chimpanzee Award for exhibiting extraordinary character and behavior. The award is given annually to a student who demonstrates exceptional qualities in all aspects of college life.

The recipient, a senior majoring in psychology, was nominated by his peers for his leadership, integrity, and selflessness. Fainstein said, "He has consistently shown an extraordinary commitment to his studies, his community, and his fellow students."

The award ceremony took place during a special assembly, where the student was presented with a certificate and a chimpanzee mascot. Fainstein concluded, "We are proud to recognize his exceptional qualities and to honor him with this prestigious award.

Sports Writer of the Year

By Dr. B.J. Ramage

In a surprising move, a junior on the women's basketball team has been named Connecticut College's Sports Writer of the Year. The student, who is also a member of the basketball team, has demonstrated exceptional writing abilities in his articles for the college newspaper.

The award was presented during a ceremony held in the college's athletic center. Fainstein said, "He has consistently shown a strong commitment to his writing and has contributed significantly to our college's athletic community.
