Apathy Delegitimizes Student Elections and Shared Governance

Last Sunday, the final day of the SGA Executive Board self-nomination period, a message that announced the availability of a slate of governing positions went out to the entire campus. Several hours before midnight, there was at least one position without any candidates for each class. Not one senior had signed up to run for any of the seven senior class positions, vice-president, secretary, or B.I.C. rep.

An even greater problem was the lack of interest in SGA executive board elections. Presiding of SGA, the most powerful student position on campus, was an unopposed cakewalk for current VP Eddie Slade. SAC Chair (Christian Clansky), Diversity Chair (Colleen White), and Chair of Residential Life and House (Whitney Longworth) also ran unopposed.

For a school that prides its policies of shared governance and as an active student body when it comes to debating issues, students don’t seem particularly interested in leadership. Every student is directly affected by the work of Res. Life Chair. Why does no one want to take the reins and continue to work on the pressures experienced by the many students living in their houses. Most of their jobs extremely well and without faultful or external recognition. As a general rule, Students don’t have to be perfect, popular, charming, and reliable community leaders. They are needed.

The following is a phone opt-out. (with a C.C. extension or phone) that speaks to our purpose in observing Houselessow Appreciation Week:

1 Forget to say Thanks
2 Forget to see the other way
3 Forget to be the one other will get the job done. In this case, what’s the point of shared governance?

As students who have the privilege of cooperating with the administration, we need to hold ourselves accountable as individuals, capable of leading Ibis community forward, constantly improving. Who cares if someone else

Houselessow Appreciation Week

Week

Dear Editor,

We are proud and pleased to invite the campus community to join the Office of Student Life in appreciating the dedication of those community members and students working on our campus. This week has been designated Houselessow Appreciation Week, a time for Houselessow to be recognized for all of their hard work throughout the year.

Many people often forget that Houselessow are full-time students with full academic and curricular schedules. They experience the same pressures as other students to achieve academically, yet are asked to pay attention to the pressures experienced by the many students living in their houses. Most of their jobs are extremely well and without faultful or external recognition. As a general rule, Houselessow are height, popular, charming, and reliable community leaders. The following is a phone opt-out. (with a C.C. extension or phone) that speaks to our purpose in observing Houselessow Appreciation Week:

Art & Entertainment

The college community is looking forward to another annual event: NITE. Featuring a delicious variety of finger foods from all over the world, entertainment, decorations, and a fun atmosphere, ATLAS will be bringing its annual spring event to the Connecticut College's Nest on Friday, April 29th, from 6:00 PM to 8:00 PM. NITE will be a reception style evening over a fantastic multi-cultural evening.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

It’s time to celebrate the international diversity of Connecticut College! On Friday, April 29th, ATLAS (International Student Association) will present the multi-cultural event of the semester: NITE. Join us for the annual event featuring finger foods from all over the world and cultural performances! ATLAS is thrilled to announce that we will have at least a few new performances this year, and we are working in collaboration with the Language and Cultural Centers to make sure that we have an even more diverse event this year. The event will be held in the Nest on April 29th, from 6:00 PM to 8:00 PM. Make sure to get there early to grab your spot at this exciting event.

How are you surviving college?

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

How are you surviving college? It can be a tough challenge, but it’s definitely possible. I’ve been surviving college for a while now, and I’ve learned a few tips along the way. Here are some of my top survival tips:

1. Stay organized: Make a schedule and stick to it. This will help you stay on track and make sure you have time for everything.
2. Get involved: Join clubs, organizations, or extracurricular activities. This will help you meet new people and stay connected.
3. Take care of your health: Eat well, exercise regularly, and get enough sleep. This will help you stay healthy and energetic.
4. Don’t be afraid to ask for help: If you’re struggling, don’t be afraid to reach out for help. There are resources available to you.

NITE: ATLAS’s Comeback Event is Full of International Flavor

Art & Entertainment

In a sense, NITE serves as a wonderful backdrop for this many-cultured event of the year, with all its exuberant displays and decorations. Students will be able to see a variety of traditional performances from different cultures, all under one roof. NITE is a celebration of the diversity that makes our college community unique.

Many students look forward to NITE every year, as it’s a great opportunity to explore different cultures and meet new people. ATLAS has been working hard to make this event even more exciting and inclusive this year, and we hope that everyone will enjoy the experience.

Student body rallies: a peak into a student rally during a semester in Harvard's annual event as part of the inauguration for NITE, which will take place next Friday. (Negrete)

Artistic Rights:

BY PARI DRAKE

A little more than a year ago, before the new semester had even started, Paul Dryden, associate A&E editor, set out to edit the first chapter of his book, “The College Voice.” He wanted to create a book that could help students through the transition to college and may be in dire need of some suggestions. He knew that being away from home is a hard adjustment, and he wanted to provide students with practical advice to help them survive college life. Each page is plain white with no more than two or three sentences of text, perfectly matches its simple aphorism of “Making it in College, Mr. Adams, but practical.”

So what can you expect to enjoy at NITE? There will be food, games, and entertainment throughout the evening. One of the highlights of the evening will be the performing artists. ATLAS has invited a variety of talent to perform, including music, dance, and theater. There will also be a reception style evening over a fantastic multi-cultural environment.

The first chapter, “Getting ready to go to college,” covers a lot of general information about the college experience. Persistence is the key, as it has been throughout your life. It’s all about what you do and how you approach it. At times, we just tuned out the crowd almost and had this mentality that we’re not let them get us down. Darker times were here, and we know the darkness will come again. We just have to remember that after the darkness, there will be light.

At first, I was nervous to take the stage, and I was怕 of not being able to do it and making a total fool of myself. So I just went out there and did it. It was a lot better than I thought it would be. I got a lot of support from the crowd, and I’m glad I did it. I think I’ll do it again next year. The whole experience was really good. I learned a lot. I’m glad I did it.

One of the best things about college is that you can do anything you want. You can be as creative as you want. You can be as free as you want. You can be as independent as you want. You can be as adventurous as you want. You can be as lazy as you want. You can be as laid back as you want. You can be as hard working as you want. You can be as ambitious as you want.

LEO: Anti-Israel academia is a disquieting phenomenon. It consists of a small, but elite, group of academics who have set as their goal to discredit, disqualify, and demonize the state of Israel and to intimidate, threaten, and ostracize those who speak or write in support of Israel.

Reality: The average Conn student drinks 2-3 times a month*

To bring you this survey, I spoke with many different students, and I concluded that there are three main reasons why students drink.

The first reason is that students drink because they want to get away from reality. They want to escape from the stresses of school and life in general. They want to forget about their problems and just have a good time. Some students also drink because they want to relieve the stress of exams and deadlines.

The second reason is that students drink because they want to fit in. They want to be part of the crowd and be accepted by their peers. They want to be accepted for who they are, and they want to be accepted for what they do. Some students also drink because they want to make new friends and meet people who share their interests.

The third reason is that students drink because they want to celebrate. They want to celebrate their successes, whether they are academic or personal. They want to celebrate their milestones, whether they are academic or personal. They want to celebrate their achievements, whether they are academic or personal.

The reality is that students drink for a variety of reasons. They drink because they want to get away from reality, they drink because they want to fit in, and they drink because they want to celebrate. But no matter the reason, it is important to remember that drinking is a choice, and that students should make informed decisions about their alcohol use.

The average Conn student drinks 2-3 times a month.

Erika Berlinghof '05 is currently serving as the Chair of Academic Affairs, and the most important role for this position is to oversee all Student Advisories Boards on campus. Another crucial aspect of the Chair of Academic Affairs job is to look out for and voice student interests to the faculty and administration on issues such as Self-Scheduled Exams. In order to accomplish this, the Chair of AA sits on the Academic Planning Committee, the Academic Affairs Committee (AAC), and the Educational Planning Committee (EPC).

Similarly, Jay Karpen '06 will resume the position of Judicial Board Chair, on which he served during the fall semester as well. In his absence, Emily Chamberlin '05 is serving as J-Board Chair this spring. The J-Board Chair has jurisdiction over matters involving possible infractions of the College Honor Code, and his or her responsibilities include overseeing the coordination of all judicial hearings.

Whitney Longworth '07, current member of the Residential Life and Housing Advisory Committee, who ran unopposed, was elected to the position of Chair of Residential Affairs. This position leads the Board of Governors, co-chairs the Student Life Committee with Shelly Metivier, and acts as the SGA liaison to the residential component of the Office of Student Life. Additionally, the position is responsible for the coordination of dormitory House Councils. Upon assuming the position in the fall, Longworth hopes to "improve residential life on this campus in all of its aspects," particularly issues around economy and priority, as well as physical improvements to the residential halls.

Colleen White '06 was elected without opposition to the Chair of Diversity and Equity (D&E), currently held by Krystle Guillory '05. The overlying job of the Chair of D&E is to represent the needs and concerns of the students on campus in terms of issues dealing with diversity and multiculturalism. The Chair of D&E also chairs the Cultural Diversity Committee, which is composed of students from SGA and Unity Clubs.

Finally, the position of the Chair of the Student Activities Council was won by Christian Clansky '06, who also ran unopposed, Jessica Mellen '05 is the exiting SAC Chair. As a branch of the Student Government Association, SAC coordinates the social life of the College and has jurisdiction over all matters involving entertainment on the campus, including Floralia. Clansky's new job entails supervising the SAC executive board and all the subcommittees under it, as well as acting as the liaison between SGA and SAC.

Women's Tennis Slams Competition

Deb Remak

As the tennis season comes to a close, the Women's tennis team wants solidly their place in the NESCAC with a decisive victory over Colby College. This victory brings the team to a 10-6 record, as a strong showing of senior singles players continued to rack up big wins. Amanda Poe '06 and Brett Fallows '05 took their usual spots at the one and two singles positions during this match.

Following her lead, Amanda Poe (1, 6-4, 6-1) and Brett Fallows (5, 6-0, 6-1) cruised to a victory. The one singles player helped her lead the team through a season that was marred by the many tense moments during this season. Following her lead, Amanda Poe (1, 6-4, 6-1) and Brett Fallows (5, 6-0, 6-1) were key in propelling Conn to a victory.

The final result was essential towards the team's success as they move towards the tough path of the NESCAC tournament. The team's success will be tested against the tough teams of the region. Only Tufts remains as the team that can push Conn in the Region tournament. It is a big match for us. If we work hard and we all do our best, we'll see what we can do well. The only way we can measure us is by how we do it. The match should be a great one.

Women's Tennis Offers Some of the Most Competitive Play

With the tennis season now winding down, the team seems stronger than before. Although they played in some of the tight games this season, the team does reflect the image of a team that, as a relatively young team, they have grown strong. The Derby is over, but the trouble isn't. In Europe and the US, fans are still trying to figure out what went wrong. Despite the disaster, there are still a few positives to take away from the event.

In Europe, the Derby was marred by chaos and confusion. Fans were left stranded in the stands, and security was inadequate to handle the crowds. The race was marred by accidents and injuries, and the weather was恶劣. The event was ultimately abandoned, and the organizers are facing a massive backlash.

In the US, the trouble started with the timing of the race. The event was scheduled for the same weekend as a major college football game, and many fans were disappointed that they couldn't attend both events.

The week-end was marked by violence and disorder, with reports of fans attacking each other and even the police. The derby was marred by chaos and confusion, and the organizers are facing a massive backlash.

Questions Of Derby Safety
In Europe, US

Last week's scenes at the San Siro in Milan shocked the entire football world. The collapse of Della Torre and the knife-wielding fan who caused injuries that left one man dead and three injured have put football on high alert. The Italian government has announced strict security measures for the upcoming derby match between Milan and Inter. In Europe, the scenes have also raised concerns about the safety of football matches.

In this fixture too this was not the case, and its fans. Tensions between rival fans are not extremely emotional and confrontational. Therefore, when we look at last week's scenes, we can see that they were not totally unexpected. The media uses this type of incidents as a reminder of the potential risks that come with attending matches and the importance of being aware of the possible dangers.

Those Damn Yankees

There is nothing like the blo of a New York Yankee who can be counted on to pitch for the Yankees. But this year, the team is independent and has the possibility of getting paid a significant amount of money, but in reality they live in a different world. The Yankees are again in the Mazzoleni era. Alex Rodriguez and Randy Johnson. On the field, they play by the same rules, and technically they have their usual game of achieving the ultimate goal of winning the World Series, but in reality they have an advantage over the other teams in the division.

Camel's tough match ups of the season, the team has remained enthusiastic towards their games. Although chances at NCAA tourney are slim, the team remains optimistic, and the games on the 19th of April. The game was eagerly awaited by the fans, and the crowd in the stands was enthusiastic.
