Dean Mathews Of Chicago To Speak At Vesper Services

Author Of Many Books

Interested In Showing Relations Between Christianity—Science

The speaker at the 7 o'clock vesper service on Sunday will be Dr. Shailer Mathews, dean-emeritus of the Divinity school of the university of Chicago, having held the position of dean for twenty-five years. He has also in this institution been professor of systematic theology, professor of New testament history and interpretation, and of historical and comparative theology. Dr. Mathews may be considered as one of the deans of American liberal Christianity, being one of the pioneers in the movement to reinterpret Christianity in terms of contemporary life and to show the relation between Christian and scientific concepts.

A native of Maine, Dean Mathews has taught at Colby college and since 1906 at the university of Chicago. It has received honorary degrees of D.D. and LL.D. from various American institutions as well as from those abroad. His familiarity with hisology and political economy (sub-jects which he has also taught) and world affairs in general, combine to make him the foremost liberal theologians. For 9 years he was editor of the World Today, and for 8 years of the Biblical World. He has been active in the promotion of Christian missions and of religious education. From 1912 to 1916 he was president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, and from 1911 to 1919 of the Western Economic Society. He has been director of religious work of the Chautauqua Institution since 1912. In 1915 he travelled in Japan with Dr. Sidney Gillick as representative of the churches of American. He has been lecturer on various college and university foundations for a number of years, only last year returning from a tour of the Orient and India where he delivered the Barrows lectures. He is the author of over a score of books on various phases of Christian activity and thought.

Wig And Candle Represented At Dramatic Conf

Held At Yale

Gain Many Ideas For Improving Present Organization

Wig and Candle was represented at the Intercolligate Dramatic Clubs conference held at Yale, on Wednesday and Thursday, March 6th and 7th. The representatives were Jill Albree '35, Letitia Wil- liams '35, Gertrude Park '37, Paul Thomas '36, and Charlotte Calwell '37. This conference was the first of its kind among the colleges of the East, and was formed for the pur-pose of exchanging various ideas on reperatory, production, and business management. The success of the conference will enable further coop-eration among Eastern colleges in their dramatic work.

We found ourselves at this meet-ing a comparatively young club in need of more definite organization. All the colleges represented at the conference felt that their success of campus was largely due to the fact that they had very definite member-ship. A student should be required to prove his ability to either acting or staging before she can become a member of the club. This system would not bar any student from trying out for a part in the play. President Blunt Discusses Child Labor Situation

Today's child labor situation, the subject of President Blunt's chapel talk of March 12, was chosen to coin-cide with the hearing of the proposed amendment in Hartford. Dr. Blunt, anxious to make the Presso Gluck, Air from Orpheus Beethoven Mozart Mozart in D-minor Allegro Andante Menuetto It was with great surprise that we learned that awards may be made to students who live in Connecticut, while out of state they are not of voting age can have as much weight as a vote itself. Names of the chairman of the state child labor committee can be obtained from Press. An expression of opinion even in a state which has already ratified the amendment, has its in-terest and importance for, though ratification by 24 states out of 48 is hopeful, it is not certain. All lacking is needed to encourage each state to take action. The child labor amendment is a general statement permitting Com-

I am your Lucky Strike

I give you the mildest, best-tasting smoke—because I am made of center leaves only. The top leaves are unripe, bitter, biting. The bottom leaves are coarse, sandy, harsh. The center leaves are the choice leaves. They are mildest, mellowest, yet richest in fine tobacco flavor. And I offer you the fragrant, expensive center leaves exclusively. I do not irritate your throat. That's why I dare to say, "I'm your best friend."

A friend of ours, whose veracity we had hitherto had no reason to doubt, came to us with the following the other day, swearing it had actually happened. We suspect that we were being kidded, because it's much too perfect, but we decided to pass it on to you anyway. "I'll tell you the fourth end!"

At the conference, we found that Connecticut College Wig and Candle works under far easier circumstances than any other college. We have no financial worries; we have a director on the campus, and, consequently, should be able to make the entire student body interested in dramatics. The conference has given impetus to us and helped us plan for better organization.

Realizing the need of a more closely organized club, it has sponsored both speakers and reading groups. By teaching the student body the fundamental methods of production, it enables those girls particularly interested in taking part in its activities to recognize their aptitudes and create a more closely knit, more efficient organization.

The club eight is led and both East and West are hopelessly squeezed. West must protect spades and hearts and East spades and diamonds. In the play, we were told, West dropped the spade six and East the spade nine, whereupon South took the spade finesse, cashed the ace of spades, and his last spade held for the thirteenth trick.

We expect the same contributor to come to us soon with a hand containing at least thirteen of a suit.

A small heart was led to the king, East dropping the diamond, West dropping the heart four, and another diamond back to the king, West dropping the spade three, leaving the following situation:

W 10 9 8
H 10 9 4
D 9 5 4
C 5 3

West opened a club, and South began to run his six club tricks. On the third club East shifted a heart and West a diamond, and South decided that neither the heart finesse nor the diamond finesse would work. The fourth and fifth club tricks were cashed. East dropping two more hearts and West two more diamonds. A small heart was led to the king, East dropping the diamond six, and another heart back to the ace, East dropping the spade eight. A small diamond was led to the ace, West dropping the heart four, and another diamond back to the king, West dropping the spade three, leaving the following situation:

Demonstration of Dances by Students
Sponsored By A. A. To Show Influences On Modern Dance

The purpose of the Dance Demonstration sponsored by A. A. on Friday, March 15, was to show the influence that the dances of the past have on our modern dance. It was realized how the dances from the primitive through the ages are the foundation for those of today. The various interpretations of the dance are interesting. In the center of the stage, towards the back there was a large, modernistic frame, triangular in shape. The background was white, and one in white stood on the blue side. These figures took the characteristic pose of each dance. The dancers on a low level 10 in front of the frame did their dances. This is one of the first of the big productions that A. A. has put on for several years.

TO THE SENIORS:
Each Senior will receive, during the course of a week, a questionnaire form to be checked for "The New York Sun". This form is simple and will take but a few moments of your time. Just follow the directions given, and deposit the detached card in the campus mail box. Thank you, in advance, for your prompt attention to this matter.

Sixth Supplement
To Manual by Dr. Wells to be Printed
Manual Is Standard Encyclopedia and Bibliography For Middle English Language and Literature

The Connecticut Academy of Arts and Sciences has just announced its intention to publish next December through the University Presses of Yale and Oxford, the "Sixth Supplement" to "A Manual of the Writings in Middle English, 1050-1400" by Dr. John Edwin Wells, Chairman of the Department of English in Connecticut College. This book will be the seventh volume of Dr. Wells' manual which is the stand and Encyclopedia and Bibliography for the Middle English language and literature, and the basis for all graduate study and scholarly investigation of the subject.

The basic volume, issued by the Connecticut Academy in 1916, has been frequently reprinted as it has been included in the five supplementary volumes published regularly by the Academy at intervals of three years, making accessible the materials of all new editions and critical books, dissertations, and articles in the field covered, and presenting their conclusions. The compass of the work is indicated by the fact that the bibliographical entries in the six volumes already issued include 75,000 items, and the indexes of topics and titles of the Middle English works that are subjects occupy about 150 columns, with some 9,000 allusions to the text of the book. A recent extensive bibliography listing the extent bibliographies dealing with any phase of English literature from the earliest times to the present, gives an approximate one-twentieth of its entries to the Manual and its first three Supplements.

Call For Nation-Wide Strike Issued
Students Are Asked To Strike Against War and Fascism

A call for a nation-wide strike of students against war and fascism at 11 a.m. on April 12th, was issued by the National Council of Methodist Youth, Inter-Seminary Movement (Middle Atlantic Division), the Student League for Industrial Democracy, National Student League, and the American Youth Congress. Student leaders of the strikes estimated that at least 100,000 students from high schools and colleges would respond to their strike call. Last year, 25,000 students left their classrooms at Vassar, Harvard, Amherst, Johns Hopkins, Smith, Los Angeles Junior College, U. of Denver, Van V. of Calif., L. A., U. of Minnesota. Student conferences at Oberlin College, with representatives from many Ohio colleges, the Minnesota Youth Congress, held at St. Paul, and the Student League of Chicago, endorsed the call for the strike. The Board of Education in Detroit, Michigan, granted permission to the Detroit Youth Congress to address classes during the strike hour.

The immediate incentives to the strike this year, the leaders of the strike declared, are the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court upholding compulsory draft, the Heart case, the liberal and radical students and, professors, and the various student loyalty bills that have been introduced into the state legislatures, such as the Numan-Denny Student Loyalty Oath Bill in New York, and the Assembly Bill 105 in the California state legislature.

Stressing the need for student action against militarism in this country, and the present, given approximately one-twentieth of its entries to the Manual and its first three Supplements.

NEW SUCCESS FORMULA
Atlantic City, N. J. — A new formula for success for women graduates of the colleges and universities in the United States was advanced here recently by Miss Shepard, a New York personnel director.

And the reason most college women find it difficult to obtain jobs after graduation is because they neglect style consciousness for intellectual pursuits, said the speaker, in her address which was called "To succeed in Business." She declared that "the average college girl must give more attention to her appearance, and that means more than being well dressed. College women find it difficult to obtain jobs after graduation is because they neglect style consciousness for intellectual pursuits, she declared. I merely wish to emphasize the conclusions of the committee. First, the creation of a permanent court of International Criminal Justice in order to suppress criminal acts directed against persons or property and constituting terrorist action with a political object. Second, the suppression of terrorist activities by means of improving treaties, by excluding assassination in the category of non-extraditable political offenses. Lastly, by insisting that signatories suppress these activities within their own borders... the Yugoslav government wishes to give its whole hearted support to this convention.

Gerhart Honored

Connecticut College had the signal honor of having the head of its delegation, Betty Gerhart, elected to the powerful Agenda Committee. This committee is chosen by the president of the Assembly and has as its function, the outlining of the general procedure and details for the entire session. The success of the Connecticut delegation can be attributed, in no small degree, to the general background, hind Branford House "The Light That Failed," a song by Martha Louise Cook, a reading from Celina, and Elise Thompson. All the delegates were Elsie Randall, Ethel Feingold, Elise Neischlag, and Betty Gerhart. All the delegates, however, showed their knowledge of the general background, their ability to express themselves on the attitude of their countries, and their general grasp of the specific details of their respective countries— all the result of weeks of careful preparation.

Among those who attended the conference unofficially were: Marion Warren, Kaye Cartwright, Agatha Zimmerman, Elisabeth Dutch, Barbara Hervey, Margaret Erwin, Jean Rothfield, Rhoda Perl, Gloria Bolash, Margaret Waterman.

When two chapters of Phi Delta Kappa, one from Bluffton, Ind., and one from Colma, O., played a basketball game in 1919, the score was 138 to 0, in favor of the former team.
