Henry G. Gennert and Miss Dorothy Henkle Co-operate In Directing "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray"

Henry G. Gennert, Jr., the well-known New York theatrical producer is co-operating with Miss Dorothy L. Henkle of New London in the directing of Misses' The Second Mrs. Tanqueray which the Wig and Candle, the Connecticut College dramatic club, will present as its spring play Saturday evening, May 18. Miss Henkle has general charge of the production and Mr. Gennert is making several special trips to New London as guest director.

Mr. Gennert was connected with the production of the very successful long-run plays质量问题 and After-School. He is now contracted with the Radio Keith Orpheum, which stages Shakespeare productions, and with the Capital Theatre Tournament, for which theater companies from all over the world come to New York. Mr. Gennert is also assistant to the general stage director for Prohm.

Miss Henkle, who was graduated from Connecticut College in the class of 1921, showed outstanding dramatic talent in campus plays, and has since had a great deal of experience in acting and coaching plays in this country. While at the Sorbonne in Paris a few years ago, she studied diction and coaching plays in this country. "While at the Sorbonne in Paris she studied diction and coaching plays in this country."

For the spring play, the Wig and Candle has contracted not only an excellent director, but also new facilities for scenery and lighting. Two cycloramas have been purchased, one to be used to represent any indoor scene, and the other to show any outdoor scene. The stage is planned for a helpful play of lights, varied and unusual effects and costumes from the cycloramas. This type of apparatus is installed in the leading professional theaters of Europe and this country. The cycloramas for indoor sets will be employed for The Second Mrs. Tanqueray. Under the direction of Mr. Gennert and Miss Henkle, the scenery committee will probably also experiment with the use of curtains, unusual lighting effects, etc., for some of the scenes.

Freshmen Busy With Pageant

Class of '32 Acting Mysteriously

What's the matter with the Freshmen Class? Never in their short collegiate career has such a very, very slow pace been known from every countenance—Why it's Paganism, of course, and, equality of course the laggard of secretaries. You can't say a single word to any of them about it; for they will go scurrying away in very much of a hurry with something blue under one arm and in knickers at the other. Oh, it's mystery. And everyone of course the rocks manfully from toe to tip and emits (Continued on page 2, column 2).

POEMS

It’s the busiest season.
With reason for being
The busiest season.
The telephone’s busy
With is he or isn’t he.
The doorbell is dizzy
With is he or isn’t he.
And everyone’s buzzing
And buzzing and humming
And hearing the seventh
Who cares about prom anyway?

DEAR DAISY

Dear Daisy,

To say that some big whopping in coming our way and do we is on the hilltop. Juniors are developing gray hairs and wrinkled and the very sight of generous handful of talents among of Junior masquerade in a number of terrific states of One far-seenfamiliar member of the class who is ready revealed the peace of mind of future Junior classes, and the mere hint that they be, to say the least. Men are as strong as A's in the English language. Their alliteration count the campus lamp-lights. They write boastfully, from their collegiate institutions, the most unassuming as being car Clara Bow on a visit to Princeton then the witty platitudes—Damn and say, to seem to surpass C. C. synomous, they just "say of write all." It is a time of year when every even the most rational females begin to feel a craving for creatures masculine and man, indeed, is master of our fate—it is Junior Prom.

In Freshmen circles, the pagentry the big idea and even those least pugnantly inclined must walk the straight and narrow path of events gym-ward or along the dusty tracts Bullewood where no white shoe has a chance. For, from the women who, rebellious at the cruciality of being a Freshman in spirit that is all the path of duty, the whole sum of centrality is exacted in tennis and it wears, its form of two colony seats at the Crown—the business of a day or a night out —the glory lusciousness of two Fudge Cake Specials—or if she be scholastically inclined, the harmonic birth screening a brand new theme tablets. What Freshman exists without enough original Scotch to prefer blire-ters to foregoing those attractions?
And sometimes, the Scotchmen who wore kilts because trousers give at the knees?

Devotedly,

DAPHNE

WOWS OF WISDOM FROM OUR PRECEDESESSORS

Oh Hum!

Oh Hum! I'm blue as can be,
That's the trouble with me, I don't have a secret, you are good for me, you are a genius,
Has never replied?
Oh Hum!—26

FROM GIRL'S STORY

My man at Dartmouth had a quiz,
My man at Yale, on track;
My man at Penn I adored, Heaven knows he'd lack,
My man from Brown was all too short,
Men from Tufts, too stout;
My man from Tech was not so good,
He dancing did I doubt?

My Harvard man was too blind
From reading censored books!
Oh, Junior Prom was not for Me.

But then a friend supplied my need,
It! And how the light
When dazed my blind arrived—(I dare not say from where)
It was only from the window
High and sunk in dark despair.

In checkered suit, scarred-four feet
A perfect fifty-four;
I had a tooth of four gold teeth,
When I went to the door.

My indignation rose to wrath,
That friend should be paid!
Then I was in halting explained
Here.

But all things come to him who waits,
My Prom blind came quite late.

Tall, dark, poetic, Stu, who He was a perfect date!

The Campfire Girls had decided to go to Prom, and the excited plus daring girls there with them (the Campfire Girls at Connecticut) and did not know what to expect. The boys, namely, the alert and intelligent young acquaintances to ask to escort them. They fully realized that the smart and high-spirited gentlemen whom they knew would probably be waiting for them, but those girls, the bright and blushing ones, asked for fear that the boys might think that they were too stupid and not a bit attractive (ladies) were running after them (a thing they would not dream of doing). Finally, it was decided (since they could with no danger ask the ladies by giving them in every sense of the word) and did so with dispatch. They were divided into various groups, they were rooming with his two brothers at college, play football, track and swimming, and, (who said) to the other two that he was sure they would have a good time. The Campfire Girls were always perfect ladies, and he would write post-cards to inform these girls, the whole-some girls (who were more than usually friendly and witty), that they would and would arrange to be there on the night of the gala evening (giving a holiday on that afternoon) — otherwise they would not have been able to get up and would have stayed in their single classes and justly proud of the fact. BISHOP ACHESON SPEAKS AT VESPERS

On Sunday, April 28th, the Right Reverend Bishop Acheson of Middletown, spoke at Vespers. Reading a section from the Hebrews the blessing of the false Jacob by his dying father, Bishop Acheson took his subject from it. He said that his real aim was to familiarize the students with the Scriptures, for he felt that few people were well acquainted with them.
