Assembly modifies EPC gen ed plan

by Jenevieve L'Yan

Editor in Chief (Magazine)

The Student Government Association Assembly voted last Thursday for its recommendations on the Educational Planning Team's revised general education plan. The Assembly voted on the plan's twelve sections separately, since the faculty will be voting this way, and seven of the twelve aspects of the plan passed.

Kim Roark, chair of academic affairs, brought the EPC plan to the Assembly in the form of a proposal, and led the discussion of the plan with Catherine Lippman, junior class president and EPC member.

Lippman said, "What we vote on tonight will have several years of student and faculty evaluation to fill in the details."

By the academic year 1998-99, all aspects of the adopted general education plan will be in place, Lippman said. Lippman offset discussion with a reference to apparent student apathy over general education and the curriculum. After referring to the poor attendance of all the EPC open meetings on general education, Lippman said, "I didn't receive phone calls [with questions or comments] from any of you [SGA members] over the week."

After discussing each section of the plan separately, the Assembly voted to pass the gen. ed. plan sections: I. The Annual Theme; II. GE Tutorials; VI. Human Difference and Diversity (amended); VIII. Skills: IX. General Education Curriculum; XI. General Education and the Major; XII. Options.

The Assembly voted against: I. Overview of credit hours; IV. Foundation Courses; V. New 4-Division Organization of the Curriculum; VII. Perspectives; X. The Winter Seminar in the Liberal Arts.

At the heart of the discussion were the general issues of the plan's overview, the annual theme, general education tutorials, the human difference and diversity requirement, and the winter seminar in the liberal arts. The plan would increase the number of required general education credits by eight to 156 instead of 128. Assembly members brought to the forefront of discussion the need for students to have the flexibility to experiment and take different courses;XI. General Education and the Major; XII. Options.

The fire, which was "of suspicious origin" according to Chris Cory, director of college relations, is the sixth blaze on campus which the New London Fire department has to extinguish this year. Electrical wires in several buildings were severed during the week prior to the Blaustein fire, and at least two other small fires broke out earlier in the year but were not reported because they were quickly and easily extinguished by campus personnel, according to Catherine Woodbrooks, dean of student life.

"This Blaustein fire appears to be a fire similar to the others. As far as we know, everything worked alright. There were no injuries," said Fire Chief Ronald Samuel.

A student on her way to Knowlton spotted the flames and called campus safety, which then contacted the fire department.

Campus Safety officials rushed into the building and made sure everyone was evacuated before the fire department arrived several minutes later.

Firefighters were able to enter the burning classroom but they were discouraged by the fire's size. They were able to contain the smoke but the fire lasted for over an hour, according to Fire Chief Ronald Samuel.

New London firefighters go to work in yet another battle against the campus arsonist. Suspected fires now total six, since February 22.
CONNTought
SAC responds to complaints

Why are the Floralia bands a secret? Protection and security are #1

Rumors have been flying around this campus since the beginning of the year: Who’s playing at Floralia? As Music Search Director, I have been asked countless times to dispel these rumors: “Why can’t you just tell us?” people have been asking. The purpose of this letter is to explain why it is necessary to keep secret the identity of the performers, until the day of Floralia. The last time I say the words “SAC Executive Board,” this proposal changes the total allocation for this year.) If SAC were to release names now, last Thursday night the SGA Assembly was asked countless times to dispel these rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle the process. In the case of November 18, we many need to acquire a security guard, although I am not a math major, I believe, that we have need to be aware of the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumors, the money to pay for the necessary security to handle this event. We have heard many rumo
Math, science requirements should be stricter

Hey, you! You wld da newspaper. You gotta an opinion? Please submit only opinion pieces to The College Voice office in Cro 213 before 5 p.m. on Thursday. Tell us what's on your mind!

The College Voice (as) The College Voice

O ye, O ye, nine government majors will hear the next case

As undergraduates at Connecticut College, we have had the privilege of an intense academic environment and opportunities for academic exploration over the past four years. This semester, I am a member of a group of nine senior government majors, who have initiated and developed a unique independent study (Gov- ernment 492) under the guidance of Wayne Swanson, professor of government, that breaks new ground in academic pursuit at the college.

Of course, we need a basic and elementary introduction to a math or science discipline; however, this is college; we should be required to go beyond the basic and elementary if we can do it on our own.

Allowing students to explore in this math science loophole is a great disservice to the students. The role of the liberal arts college is to teach students a variety of topics well, with each course having a unique set of goals. It seems that the real world will not require a knowledge of mathematics and science, and this statement would be difficult to argue against. However, it is not so much knowledge incorporated in these courses, much of which is memorization, but the way in which that knowledge is obtained. The method of thinking employed in science and math is unique to these fields. Not even in economics, the humanities, or the social sciences, can one delve into the math and science end of the spectrum truly employ the scientific method or the geometric proof, but only imitations of these pure thinking methods. It is only the politics of feudal Europe, but also the biology of the Black Death that brought it to an end. One gains more of the philosophical and scientific insights of the Newtonian physics and calculus that is the source of these beliefs. The liberal arts student needs to incorporate this knowledge if he or she is to achieve "maxim self discovery and self expression" as the catalogue states.

If the students not willing to challenge themselves to obtain a better education, then it becomes the role of the administration to require it. That, like the mother who forces a fond tuning medicine upon her children, forcing students into challenging math and science courses will produce a lot of whining at first, but in the long run, Connecticut College, and its students will be better off.

Thus, when students graduate from Conn after their four years, they should be prepared to face the liberal arts world, where all previously segregated and hierarchically ranked disciplines will assail them.

The liberal arts student should be prepared to integrate this new information into a cohesive whole, and without a foundation in math and science, in addition to the equally important humanities, Connecticut College graduates will not be prepared to do so.

Alex Cote
Class of 1997

Miller alleges improprieties in presidential election procedure

On Wednesday, April 20th, I lost the Student Government Presidential Election to Mariell Yoders by four votes. That evening some students called me to say that they witnessed election improprieties. On Thursday, April 21st, at the SGA meeting, the Public Relations Director announced that possible violations may have been committed. It was my understanding that SGA was not going to make any decisions until Thursday, April 28th.

I found this unacceptable, and so I sent a letter on Friday, April 22nd, to Saveena Dhill, President of SGA. In it I wrote, in re: the current election, ... members of SGA could have committed violations of the "C" Book....

I trust that you will take swift action to rectify this situation. That evening, I was asked to submit my formal allegations to the Election Board. I complied, under protest, with the Election Board's Saturday, April 23rd, 2 p.m. deadline. I submitted a three page document, that, on April 27th, remains largely ignored. In an interview with April Ondis of The College Voice I explained the situation, and submitted copies of all my letters and documents, including the three page document, to a number of officials, to react to the spirit of "C" Book regulations. In spite of this fact, they decided not to have a re-election. While there are rumors, they are not true, it is the Election Board's meeting was secret, and no effort was made to inform the community. It is true that as of Wednesday, April 27, at the writing of this letter these facts remain ignored. This had been painful situation, for all involved, and this letter serves only to set the record straight. It is my final official action.

If you have any questions, please give me a call at 4637.

Eric Miller
Class of 1995

Only to maintain a sense of humor in the face of a sad, delicate, and unprecedented situation. They are now being used to discredit me. I did notify the administration, faculty, and friends on Friday about the issues surrounding the campaign out of a personal obligation to tell people the truth.

On Sunday, April 24th, the Election Board chose not to respond to some of my allegations. However, they did admit that the accuser is truly a professional, and in violation of the spirit of "C" Book regulations. In spite of this fact, they decided not to have a re-election. While there are rumors, they are not true, it is the Election Board's meeting was secret, and no effort was made to inform the community. It is true that as of Wednesday, April 27, at the writing of this letter these facts remain ignored. This had been painful situation, for all involved, and this letter serves only to set the record straight. It is my final official action.

If you have any questions, please give me a call at 4637.

Eric Miller
Class of 1995
Senior relates dinner with President Gaudiani

This night, Monday April 25, four friends and I had dinner with Claire Gaudiani at Margarita’s in Mystic. The following are my immediate impressions of what transpired and those things which, I, an outgoing senior, would most like to directly express to the rest of the student body concerning the future of Connecticut College. This is not an objective account, for no such thing exists. If you would like other perspectives on the ideas exchanged during the dinner, I advise you to speak with Claire.

I rode in the second car over to the restaurant. During the ride, Jason Sprong and I nervously discussed just what the hell we were going to talk to this woman about for two hours. My prayers were answered when I saw Claire get out of the first car already engaged in a conversation with Matt Leavensworth (who first had the idea to invite Claire to dinner) about his reservations concerning this year’s Fulbright Scholarship selection process.

As you might imagine, the early part of the conversation focused on international programs and how to get different academic departments to work together by way of their common international interests. Jennifer Spencer felt that with improved advising students could figure out earlier whether studying abroad should be part of their academic plans. Though the evening had no real agenda, we hit upon the major issues facing this school. Claire talked about different leadership styles in college and in business and about how her problems in the first years of her presidency.

Claire talked about the formation of gen. ed. and the complications that arise in determining the college budget as Conn. is not a private institution. She talked about her vision for hiring in the academic departments, the reaction to “Respectfully Submitted,” and why student opinion was contraindicated in the trustees’ decision to reinvest in South Africa. As it was explained to me, the justification for the trustees’ action lies in the difference between voice (that’s up, vote (the trustees) and veto (God perhaps?). I vehemently disagree with this concept, knowing that a voice with no vote is a bark with no bite.

Claire also spoke some of the dinner just listening to the other people at the table speak and work out their own vision of Conn. Such a conversation was edited and self-graded. Claire and I had an extended discussion (shouting match) about the value, or lack there of, of a core curriculum or required courses. Various solutions were proposed, all of which I wanted to agree with, but many of which I couldn’t bring myself to.

Something more important than the individual problems and solutions was one issue we all hit on eventually. There is at this school, it was felt, a marked lack of interaction between the world of students and the world of professors. Much more than many of the schools that Conn aspires to emulate, there seems to be a line between student and teacher that is rarely crossed in a social setting.

How many professors go to the Bar? How many professors are invited to the Bar? What would be the reaction of your friends if you suggested that next Friday night, a group of you get together and take you Government professor out to dinner? From my experience, the reaction would be pretty negative. This is not just a social question, it’s an educational one. The teachers at this school are, needless to say, a real resource. Students have a lot to learn from professors, and not much of it can come out of a notebook. The most important educational experiences I’ve ever had happened outside a classroom. I put this issue, not to a campus organization which would most likely form a committee (and several ad hoc committees) to study the problem, but to individual students because I feel you are the people who can act more directly and benefit most immediately from your actions.

If you try to bridge the gap that now seems to exist between student and teacher, you may come to know people who you can learn and grow from. If you learn just one thing in a conversation that you can use in your life, then I think that’s worth 1000 hours spent competing in the Sega-Genesis Ice Hockey Tournament.

During the summer, review how you have gone about educating yourself at Conn. I emphasize the “yourself” because you can only learn what you yourself want to learn. Consider for yourself, of what use are the resources at Conn? What you get out of your time here will, in the end, be of great importance only to you. The only real final exam to be taken in College will be self-scored, self-designed and self-graded.

Class of 1994

Steve Cannon

Student journalists are not punching bags

A Letter to The Voice

I am writing because something about community life on this campus which has been bothering me since freshmen year seems to have jumped into specialty in the past few weeks. And frankly, it makes me really angry, and I think the time has come for someone to speak up about it.

Let me just say that as a college community we are unavoidably somewhat of a utopia - an ivory tower.

We all know that living in an ivory tower has negative connotations, but is it also has a positive side? That is to say that as a society we are in a unique position to be especially sensitive to people's feelings towards certain members of the College Voice Publishing Group, particularly, the copy editors, the editor-in-chief, and the rest of the copy staff.

And I believe that as a community we try to be sensitive about gender issues, race issues - we even generally try to think about and be informed before we speak. And there is a sad lack on this campus, and that is if you are a campus journalist, suddenly it is open season.

Without going into detail let me just say that I have heard of abusiveness behavior bordering on harassment being directed towards certain members of the College Voice Publishing Group recently. And I think there is no excuse for it.

Now, I certainly believe that we all need to be responsible for what we say and do. A journalist is responsible for what the put their name to, and the community has a right to hold them to that responsibility.

But let's be informed people. For one, please keep in mind that a journal is always going to be speaking to, and writing about, people who may not necessarily like what is being written. Well, anyone speaking to a journalist has their own agenda - that's the nature of the beast.

A reporter can be slammed by anyone who doesn't like them to that reporter's own agenda. A campus reporter can be slammed by anyone who doesn't like what is being written. And that is that as a society we are In a unique position to be especially sensitive to people's feelings towards certain members of the College Voice Publishing Group.

I, for one, cannot think of a situation in which a professor would most likely belong to a campus organization which would employ anyone who I believe has the potential to abuse a editor-in-chief with their own agenda.

And I, for one, could never think of any situation in which a professor would be granted the right to date an editor-in-chief with their own agenda, unless perhaps he or she was a relative resource.

As you might imagine, the early part of the conversation focused on international programs and how to get different academic departments to work together by way of their common international interests. Jennifer Spencer felt that with improved advising students could figure out earlier whether studying abroad should be part of their academic plans. Though the evening had no real agenda, we hit upon the major issues facing this school. Claire talked about different leadership styles in college and in business and about how her problems in the first years of her presidency.

Claire talked about the formation of gen. ed. and the complications that arise in determining the college budget as Conn. is not a private institution. She talked about her vision for hiring in the academic departments, the reaction to “Respectfully Submitted,” and why student opinion was contraindicated in the trustees’ decision to reinvest in South Africa. As it was explained to me, the justification for the trustees’ action lies in the difference between voice (that’s up, vote (the trustees) and veto (God perhaps?). I vehemently disagree with this concept, knowing that a voice with no vote is a bark with no bite.

Claire also spoke some of the dinner just listening to the other people at the table speak and work out their own vision of Conn. Such a conversation was edited and self-graded. Claire and I had an extended discussion (shouting match) about the value, or lack there of, of a core curriculum or required courses. Various solutions were proposed, all of which I wanted to agree with, but many of which I couldn’t bring myself to.

Something more important than the individual problems and solutions was one issue we all hit on eventually. There is at this school, it was felt, a marked lack of interaction between the world of students and the world of professors. Much more than many of the schools that Conn aspires to emulate, there seems to be a line between student and teacher that is rarely crossed in a social setting.

How many professors go to the Bar? How many professors are invited to the Bar? What would be the reaction of your friends if you suggested that next Friday night, a group of you get together and take you Government professor out to dinner? From my experience, the reaction would be pretty negative. This is not just a social question, it’s an educational one. The teachers at this school are, needless to say, a real resource. Students have a lot to learn from professors, and not much of it can come out of a notebook. The most important educational experiences I’ve ever had happened outside a classroom. I put this issue, not to a campus organization which would most likely form a committee (and several ad hoc committees) to study the problem, but to individual students because I feel you are the people who can act more directly and benefit most immediately from your actions.

If you try to bridge the gap that now seems to exist between student and teacher, you may come to know people who you can learn and grow from. If you learn just one thing in a conversation that you can use in your life, then I think that’s worth 1000 hours spent competing in the Sega-Genesis Ice Hockey Tournament.

During the summer, review how you have gone about educating yourself at Conn. I emphasize the “yourself” because you can only learn what you yourself want to learn. Consider for yourself, of what use are the resources at Conn? What you get out of your time here will, in the end, be of great importance only to you. The only real final exam to be taken in College will be self-scored, self-designed and self-graded.

Rebecca Flynn
Class of 1994
Community members debate role of community service in liberal arts education

BY NATALIE HILLET
Associate News Editor

Jane Glover, mayor of New London, made a guest appearance at the college last week at the second annual volunteer recognition ceremony and debate sponsored by the Office of Volunteers for Community Service.

Glover read a proclamation declaring Monday, April 18, 1994 National Youth Service Day in the city of New London.

After a speech by Robert Hampt, dean of the college and professor of sociology, a short video made by the National Corporation of Community and National Service was presented which showed student volunteers from the college describing the benefits of service.

College professors and administrators, as well as community program directors, spoke about the long-term impact that volunteering has on all involved. "An hour or two a week really makes a big difference in the lives of these children," said Tracce Reiser, director of the OVCS.

Claire Gaudiani, president of the college, spoke about the issue. "At Connecticut College we see community service as a way of expressing the basic mission of a liberal arts college."

Catherine Woodbridge, dean of student life, also appeared in the video. "Students are asking different questions. 'How can I get involved?' How can I become a responsible citizen? What do we need to do as educators and administrators to bring those students into the circle of leaders," said Woodbridge.

The evening's program concluded with a panel debuting the topic "Preparing students for active citizenship should be part of the college's mission."

The main focus of the debate was whether or not community service should be a graduation requirement, just as the eight academic areas which a student must fulfill in order to graduate.

On the pro side were Curtis Rogers and Heather Gapon, both student volunteers, and Kim Nofsinger, visiting assistant professor of dance.

Donald Peppard, professor of economics, along with volunteers Susanne Donett and Neil Maniar, argued for the cons. Marritstaid Yoders, SGA president-elect, moderated.

"There's a lot of people out there who need support, not just charity or donations, someone to understand them," Rogers argued from experience.

"If you learn something, what is it if you never put it into effect?" asked Gapon.

The con side argued that if students were forced to volunteer, they might be resentful or apathetic toward their work. They worried that the people the students volunteers work with would not receive the same level of service if students were obligated to participate.

"I believe values are best taught and learned when students are presented with opportunity, and not mandated," Peppard professed. "Active citizenship is at its most essential level an individual decision," said Maniar. "We already have the framework to produce active citizens," he said, citing Students Organized Against Racism and the successfulness of OVCS.

Peppard posed the question, "Should this institution be teaching students how to think, or what to think?"

Krissten Smith, a student volunteer and member of the audience, intersected with her own opinion. "I've learned a lot more of how to think, and how to overcome realistic roadblocks that you won't necessarily see in a classroom."

"I think that if they emphasize that [service] is part of the mission of the college without making it mandatory, then they're going to attract people who want to volunteer. So the question of forcing people won't be as big a deal," Smith said.

Nofsinger stressed the importance of volunteering as a means of empowering students and helping them not be overwhelmed. Often, he said, students see the many monumental problems in the world, and feel too small to change anything. Volunteering, said Nofsinger, can let them be "the pebble that starts a ripple in the pond."

Everyone on the panel agreed that service teaches invaluable lessons, and can be an important way for classroom learning to be applied to the real world. With over 400 volunteers, it appears that many members of this community would agree.

--

Election Board responds to Miller's allegations

BY BEN RUSIN
News Editor

The Election Board responded to Sandy's allegations which were made by Eric Miller concerning the recent Student Government Association Executive Board and YAT elections, in which he finished second in the presidency race, losing by four votes.

Miller submitted a list of formal protests to the Election Board on April 23. Tom Just, house senator of Abbey, addressed many of Miller's grievances with the election and investigation process at the last SGA Assembly during remarks he made on the record in Good and Welfare, usually an off the record exchange at the close of Assembly.

Miller complained that Esther Potter, who was the acting public relations director and chair of the Election Board, conducted the investigation of the same elections which she helped to run.

The Board responded by stating, "Because the pr director is responsible for overseeing SGA elections, that person is, logically, responsible for all aspects of those elections, including the investigation of irregularities."

Responding to Miller's protests, the Board clarified that the reason Potter resumed her role as pr director after returning from Salta was that, since Potter ran the elections, she needed to conduct the investigation as well. It was not known that an investigation would be necessary until after Potter had returned her role to Saliba.

Saliba could not be involved in the election investigation because she was a candidate for Young Alumni Trustee, the Board's report read.

Miller wrote in his protest that the "C" Book states that "...the public relations director and the president can only suspend an election, not investigate it."

"The Board answered in its report, "...the Election Board does indeed have 'jurisdiction over all Student Government elections', and therefore has the authority to conduct an investigation if deemed necessary."

The report, which also addressed the allegations that claimed that only members of the Assembly could decide whether or not to invalidate an election, stated according to the "C" Book, "The SGA Assembly, by electing the members of the Election Board, invest in them the 'jurisdiction over all Student Government election'"

The Board's report also commented that the reason that there are only four student-at-large on the Board is because "it was SGA policy that no at-large candidate for a community position came forward. Assembly members were free to run for that position."

The report also stated that Yonne Wakin, house senator of Knowlton, and Savonna Dhall, SGA president, were indeed allowed to inform Miller that he could not distribute pamphlets in front of the door of Cen, since they were acting on behalf of Potter who was unable to contact Miller.

The report stressed that Potter later informed Miller that he could distribute the pamphlets as long as he did not stand directly at the entrance, however Miller responded that he would continue his distribution in the spirit of the election, according to the report.

The report ended by stating, "The Election Board finds no evidence that any actions fundamentally affected the outcome of the SGA Executive Board and Young Alumni Trustee elections."

Further allegations were previously addressed in a report by the Election Board last week.
New general plan may increase number of required credits ferent types of courses. Megan Hughes, house senator of KB, said, "This amount of credit hours for students will limit their creativity in taking courses.

Continued from p.1

Hughes added that some majors have as many as ten required courses, so some students would be limited to taking only their major requirements and general education courses.

In response, Roark said, "The general education requirement would be different. It would not necessarily mean that students would have to take more courses. She said that out of the eight added hours of general education requirements, four would come from a Winter Seminar, two would come from class-free, meeting-free events, and two would come from the advising seminars.

I just think this is an amazing amount of classes to take for general education," said Hughes. Hughes said, "When restructuring the general education courses, the whole point of bringing it up was because students believed general education was too big and too broad as it was..." (now) it's being narrowed and tailored.

Frank Roark, house senator of KB, said that the extra (general education) tutorials, off campus events, and required general education courses may hinder students who have graduated early for financial reasons and academic pursuits. Hughes' mentioned extracurricular activities, "Education extends beyond the classroom."

John Finnimore, senior house senator of KB, said, "I believe the Strategic Planning Team has come up with a tutorial program as part of the academic part of the Strategic Plan which is a much more coherent and interconnected format than this.

Speaking of the complexity of the EPC's proposed plan, Finnimore said, "I think this [general education plan] is doomed to fail."

Sophomore William Lippman expressed concern that students will not be able to predict all the kinds of classes they will have to take by the spring semester of their sophomore year. However, Roark said the plan underclassmen would be responsible for formulating the GE tutorials would basically be a written report of the students' discussions with their tutor, and not a permanent record."

Roark said, "The way I assumed (the amendment) to be was as part of part six (the diversity requirement) but it affected part five [the Four Division Organization of the Curriculum]..."

After a lengthy discussion on the proposed Winter Seminar in the Liberal Arts section, the Assembly decided not to recommend this section of the general education plan. At the heart of the discussion were the facts that students both on and off campus found the time to generate more income, and the logistics difficulties with the program would be too great.

Wes Simmons, junior senator of KB, questioned the practicality of the proposal. Simmons said it may be "logically problematic. With the prerequisite of six "foundation" courses and four gen ed, events, it would be difficult for sophomores to participate, so students would have to take the seminar in either their junior or senior years, which may conflict with internship opportunities, according to McDaniel.

McDaniel addressed the fact that many juniors who study away might not be back in time to participate, so the only time students could take part in the program would be senior year.

McDaniel also said that during the seminar, students would attend class and presentations for three hours daily, yet during the rest of the time during the two week seminar, including weekends, all organized social events would be banned.

"I think that section of the Winter Seminar sucks, frankly," McDaniel said. Many Assembly members were in agreement, however Roark said this ban of social activity was made in order to keep committees from meeting and to eliminate key parties.
1992 graduate Sicher died on Thursday

By April Onis
Editor in Chief

Known for his wit and his unique sense of humor, Mark Sicher, class of 1992, began entertaining audiences when he was twelve years old at a child's birthday party. Unfortunately on Thursday, his audience, including many in this college community, stopped laughing. After being diagnosed last year, Sicher lost his battle with bone cancer.

Sicher became a professional magician as a teen-ager. He performed throughout Japan, Europe, and the United States, including, of course, Connecticut College. He was scheduled to perform in Olivia Hall on April 14 with Tom Mulica. But students who attended that show were unable to experience his energetic performance. Because of his illness, Sicher was unable to perform.

Known for his spontaneity, his audience was often treated to extemporaneous card tricks and other tricks centered around common objects such as twinekis and soap. While a student at Connecticut College, members of the campus community often became a testing ground for his new acts.

Matthew Young, a friend, described Sicher as "the only magician known to humankind with the guts to walk on a stage dressed like a dentist in Mark Sicher. Without a license administer nitrous oxide, Mark perfected his act over the years until the audience became privy to witness the bending of many known physical and comic laws. Mark would surprise friends and strangers alike not only by producing a large bottle of mouthwash from nowhere at the end of his show, but by being funny while doing so.

On Saturday, Brickhouse dedicated their Jam Saturday set to Sicher. Oliver Delano, friend and Brickhouse guitarist, said, "One thing seems common from all the people I have talked to is that Mark left an impression on the audience of how well they know him. From his jokes and his magic in the cafeteria and in the bar and everywhere, he used to do magic for everyone."

Claire Gaudiani, president of the college, said that at a Monday morning meeting plans for Sicher's on-campus memorial would be discussed. Gaudiani added administrators would be in touch with the college community.

A service will be held at Campbell Hall at 11 a.m. on Saturday in New York City.

Reward increased to $22,500 for arson arrest

By Jennifer Lapan
Associate Features Editor

Sophomore Josh Adler spent Friday touring the new Olin Science Center, attending strategic planning meetings, and getting a closer look at college administration. Sound like the typical day of an SGA hack? Not at all. The lucky winner of the raffle sponsored by The College Voice last fall, Adler got to be chairman president of the college for a day.

Accordingly, Adler developed a new perspective on what a president's job entails. "It was definitely a good experience. I have a lot of respect for what [Gaudiani] does and what the people in the office do. They're very professional," Adler noted.

Gaudiani and Adler did not actually switch roles for the day. Rather, they grabbed an early breakfast in Burrick and headed for intermediate economics taught by Professor Peppard. President Gaudiani, now on the other side of the desk, participated in class discussion. "I regularly spend time exchanging intelligent questions and answers with smart people. But, it was really important to be in a classroom in Fanning ... facing the blackboard again ... it brought back memories."

Afterward, the president adjourned to Gaudiani's office in Fanning for a meeting with an architect of the Olin building. There, the interior design for the furnishings and carpeting were finalized. Adler said, "We met with the architect about the final interior plans. Then, I got to check the building out. The view is incredible. You'll be able to see the crew and sailing teams [competing] from the classroom windows. We believed that the tour was the most exciting part of his day."

In the early afternoon, the president visited with Bob Irgalla, director of development, to plan fundraising for the college. After his day concluded, the sophomore president explained, "The planning and vision is not farce ... it's the real thing."

"WeNI91.1

Schmoozing with Josh Adler and Claire: Raffle winner and Gaudiani attend economics class, choose Olin furniture

Rob Summers/Photo Editor

Claire Gaudiani, president of the college, speaks up in economics class. Last Friday Gaudiani switched places with sophomore Josh Adler, winner of The College Voice Publishing Group's "Switch a Day with Claire" raffle.

By Jennifer Lapan
Associate Features Editor

Sophomore Josh Adler spent Friday touring the new Olin Science Center, attending strategic planning meetings, and getting a closer look at college administration. Sound like the typical day of an SGA hack? Not at all. The lucky winner of the raffle sponsored by The College Voice last fall, Adler got to be chairman president of the college for a day.

Accordingly, Adler developed a new perspective on what a president's job entails. "It was definitely a good experience. I have a lot of respect for what [Gaudiani] does and what the people in the office do. They're very professional," Adler noted.

Gaudiani and Adler did not actually switch roles for the day. Rather, they grabbed an early breakfast in Burrick and headed for intermediate economics taught by Professor Peppard. President Gaudiani, now on the other side of the desk, participated in class discussion. "I regularly spend time exchanging intelligent questions and answers with smart people. But, it was really important to be in a classroom in Fanning ... facing the blackboard again ... it brought back memories."

Afterward, the president adjourned to Gaudiani's office in Fanning for a meeting with an architect of the Olin building. There, the interior design for the furnishings and carpeting were finalized. Adler said, "We met with the architect about the final interior plans. Then, I got to check the building out. The view is incredible. You'll be able to see the crew and sailing teams [competing] from the classroom windows. We believed that the tour was the most exciting part of his day."

In the early afternoon, the president visited with Bob Irgalla, director of development, to plan fundraising for the college. After his day concluded, the sophomore president explained, "The planning and vision is not farce ... it's the real thing."

"WeNI91.1

Turn it up!
Alumni affected by HIV and AIDS speak out

In Thailand the disease is still new and the population is completely uninformed about it, explained Wilkins. While perhaps only 200–500 Thai are showing symptoms of AIDS, Wilkins estimated that 500,000–1,000,000 people are HIV positive. Citing several other shocking statistics, Wilkins said that by the year 2000 the World Health Organization estimates that 30–40 million men, women and children worldwide will be infected with HIV.

On a more individual note, Wisotsky expressed anger and concern about the way HIV is being studied in this country. He told the audience that while on campus recently he went to the Office of Student Life to inquire about the number of HIV positive students on campus. He received the response, "I don’t know and I don’t want to know." This kind of attitude is exactly what Wisotsky says he came to combat. Wisotsky explained that he did not come back to Connecticut College to be negative. He returned, like the others, to show that you can do something positive with the disease.

Wisotsky, who lived in St. Louis after graduating from Connecticut College, concluded his talk by painting this scene: "Imagine you have a circle of friends, standing together all holding hands: one by one, people leave the circle until they’re all gone and you are left alone. I had a wonderful group of friends in St. Louis and now they’re all dead.”

Brian Rosenberg, Class of 1987

"AIDS transcends all barriers-economic, racial, and gender. We may not all be infected but we are all affected.”

Wisotsky, a Research Associate for a consulting firm in San Francisco, opened his speech by discussing the homophobia he felt was rampant when he was a student at Connecticut College and which he still sees on campus today. Referring to the college as CCC (Connecticut College Closet), Wisotsky expressed his love and hatred for a campus with wonderful opportunities and yet terribly repressive attitudes toward homosexuality. Wisotsky was frank in discussing his sexual behavior at Connecticut College, explaining that he was a promiscuous and interested in exploring his sexuality. He explained that he had a girlfriend and was planning to get married but that he also experimented with gay sex. "Gay sex does happen at Conn," said Willet.

Paul Wisotsky, class of 1984, took to the podium to begin the panel discussion by speaking about his sexual behavior at Connecticut College. He explained that he is not all positive. Citing several statistics, Wiltsie said that he even had it in the company of heroes. Wisotsky explained that he is frank about his exposure to AIDS. He received the response, "I don’t know and I don’t want to know." This kind of attitude is exactly what Wisotsky says he came to combat. Wisotsky explained that he did not come back to Connecticut College to be negative. He returned, like the others, to show that you can do something positive with the disease.

Wisotsky, who lived in St. Louis after graduating from Connecticut College, concluded his talk by painting this scene: "Imagine you have a circle of friends, standing together all holding hands: one by one, people leave the circle until they’re all gone and you are left alone. I had a wonderful group of friends in St. Louis and now they’re all dead.”

Brian Rosenberg, class of 1987, continued in the openly personal speaking style of Wisotsky as he acknowledged his meningitis. Mary Fisher, whose speech about AIDS in being a Republican National Convention of 1992 inspired him to become involved in AIDS education. Rosenberg, who speaks regularly at schools all over the country, explained to the audience that the things he says to them are not all positive. Citing several statistics, Wiltsie said that he even had it in the company of heroes. Wisotsky explained that he is frank about his exposure to AIDS. He received the response, "I don’t know and I don’t want to know." This kind of attitude is exactly what Wisotsky says he came to combat. Wisotsky explained that he did not come back to Connecticut College to be negative. He returned, like the others, to show that you can do something positive with the disease.

Wisotsky, a Research Associate for a consulting firm in San Francisco, opened his speech by discussing the homophobia he felt was rampant when he was a student at Connecticut College and which he still sees on campus today. Referring to the college as CCC (Connecticut College Closet), Wisotsky expressed his love and hatred for a campus with wonderful opportunities and yet terribly repressive attitudes toward homosexuality. Wisotsky was frank in discussing his sexual behavior at Connecticut College, explaining that he was a promiscuous and interested in exploring his sexuality. He explained that he had a girlfriend and was planning to get married but that he also experimented with gay sex. "Gay sex does happen at Conn," said Willet.

David Bradley, who played a key role in organizing the panel, commented that he was very pleased with the high turnout for the lecture. "I think that the American Council for Contemporary Thought has done a wonderful job of organizing the panel and bringing in experts to talk about this important issue," said Bradley. He also expressed his hope that the panel would serve to raise awareness about AIDS and encourage people to take action to prevent its spread.

"Condoms may help, but fight AIDS is an enormous task for everyone," added Bradley.

L.A. Pizza III

Specials

Free Delivery until 11:00 AM on Friday and Saturday. Midnight Sunday through Thursday

ANY 6

Grinder Small Bag of Chips & Snapple $4.25

Express 5/24/04

Express 5/28/04

$5.00 OFF

ANY 10" PIZZA

Express 5/24/04

Express 5/28/04

SAVE $2.00 ON ANY TWO GRINDERS

Specials

$16.00

Cheese Pizzas for $10.00

Express 5/24/04

Express 5/28/04

SALE $8.00

$10.00

On Any

437-4340

Only 15 minutes from campus.

MYSTIC 536-2424

(Off Rt. 184, 4 Miles East of N. London Bridge)

Other locations in Willford and South Windsor
Vandalist at large:
Instances of graffiti have racial and political overtones

BY DAN TRAUM
The College Voice

The balcony of the College Center and the living room of Lambdin House were the sites of two acts of vandalism last Sunday.

Graffiti was written in both places, although the two incidents may not be connected. Campus Safety officials refused to comment on either of the incidents.

Written on the balcony of Cro outside of the Coffee Grounds were the words, "Burn Those Niggers."

Senior Ernest Montgomery, chairman of the Minority Student Steering Committee, was informed of the graffiti around 1:30 PM by a custodial worker whom he knows. When he arrived at the scene, he met Mark Hoffman, coordinator of student activities and manager of the College Center, along with a Campus Safety officer.

According to Montgomery, the campus safety officer took a picture of the graffiti, discussed with Hoffman the possibility of painting over the message.

Senior Nihato Mokonane, housefellow of Branford, had an interview in the Coffee Grounds at 2:00 PM. "I saw Campus Safety painting over some graffiti, but I didn't know what it was," he said.

By the late afternoon, however, the graffiti could still be seen through the paint. Junior Sara Weythman, who works in the Coffee Ground, noticed the graffiti when she arrived at work.

She purposely set a table in front of it so that it would not be seen. "I don't think people need to see that. There's no reason to give whoever did that more attention," Weythman said.

Two students, who wished to be identified only as "concerned students," read the graffiti and posted a sign on the other side of the balcony, where students entering the College Center could read it. The sign said, "There Is No Racism At Cornell."

They said they made the sign "to drive attention because most people wouldn't see it [the graffiti] up there."

Of concern to Montgomery was the fact that the graffiti was being painted over so quickly, as if the college was trying to hide the fact that it existed.

"If he had not been informed by the custodial worker, he wondered, "Would any students have been told?"

Weythman agreed that the college community should be informed of the incident. "I think that some kind of an announcement should be made," she said.

After her first got to the scene, Montgomery called over two students, junior Ruth Anne Geyer and senior Maisha Yearwood, to ensure that other students saw the graffiti.

After seeing it, the two decided to write a letter to The College Voice in response. "We were afraid, we were scared, we felt vulnerable," said Yearwood. "We had to speak out to the campus community."

At 3 p.m., Montgomery gave a speech at a ceremony commemorating the eightieth anniversary of the Fanning takeover by fifty-four students. Montgomery said that it came as a surprise to many that attended, including college students and administrators, none of whom had been informed of the incident.

In second incident at Lambdin, the words, "Liberal Democracy Breeds Indifference. Stand Up For What You Believe. Make A Stand," were written on a pillar in the Lambdin living room. On another pillar in the living room were the words, "You Don't Find Yourself. You Make Yourself."

Kim Laboy, housefellow of Lambdin, said that Campus Safety officers were not informed in time to report it. There was a party in the living room Saturday night, although Laboy says that she checked the living room around 2:30 a.m. and at that time the graffiti was not there.

A black permanent ink marker was smashed and scattered on the living room floor, apparently the one used for the Lambdin graffiti.

"There is No Racism," said Yearwood. "We had to write a letter to The College Voice to make real the idea that they are one in the same. To do this we need to make that right incentive in order to make diversity." said Roberto Fittl, associate dean of the college. Fittl also restated his belief in the strategic plan as a tool in this diversity.

"I believe that we can make more of an impact with the strategic plan. The current plan demands that more diversity be present."

The commemoration called Narohe Holden, newly elected chair of MSSC, the opportunity to detail some of the things he would like to see happen in the upcoming year. Said Holden, "I would like people to realize that we (too) students of color) have a voice on this campus, and that we should be heard."

Holden also said that MSSC is an "umbrella" for all the clubs of Unity House. He feels that the MSSC should be the political backbone of Unity, and plans a restructuring of the organization in order to create a louder voice in the community. Said Holden, "We all need to be more vocal on this campus. We have a chance for a new beginning."

The commemoration was closed with a prayer by Steve Schloss, chaplain of the college, which asked for more unity amongst the entire campus community. Schloss also said that it will be great when we will no longer have to meet every year. When we will only need to commemorate the 25th, or 50th anniversary of this event. Someday multiculturalism and diversity will be so natural."
News

PPBC Makes Several Amendments to Final Proposed Cuts

The Planning, Parking, and Budget Committee has made changes to the list of proposed additional fees, which will be proposed to the Board of Trustees.

A committee will be formed to examine the work-study jobs which will replace some internships in the Everyday's Center, Unity House, and the Admissions Office, according to Claire Matthews, dean of admissions, vice-president for planning, and PPBC member.

Lynda Brooks, vice-president for finance and PPBC member, said staff members earning less than $35,000 will not be asked to contribute more to their health insurance policy, while faculty and staff earning more than $35,000 will increase their contributions according to their salaries, with people of higher salaries contributing more, so that the average contribution among all employees is approximately 13 percent.

Parking fees will be $50 for students and faculty and staff earning over $35,000.

Brooks said that more money would be saved by cuts which will involve increasing, or cutting, areas such as the Oasis revenue and interests have increased.

Gaudiani addresses community as it searches for answers, adjusts to tighter security in the wake of fires

In response to the latest fire at Blaustein last Monday night, many members of the college community continue to voice their concerns at town meetings held by Claire Gaudiani, president of the college, on Tuesday and Wednesday. The College Ground was overflowing with people who had a lot of questions about the details of the recent suspicious fires.

The Blaustein fire, which gutted a classroom, was the fourth major incident in a rash of suspicious vandalism and arson fires that has plagued the college in recent weeks. "I think it was a more trouble-some moment in the dark with all of those lights and equipment. It was certainly difficult for me," said Gaudiani.

Gaudiani said she sent a notice to parents informing them of the fires on campus.

Because the fires are still under investigation, little information about the investigation has been made public, but Gaudiani assured the crowd of the private investigator's "competency. She has a very high yield rate," Gaudiani said.

The college's insurance company, with the help of individual supporters, is offering a $22,500 reward to anyone who provides information leading to an arrest by midnight on Monday, May 2.

Members of the audience questioned Gaudiani. Senior Lee Rawles said he was concerned about the college's insurance policy. He asked how the college's damage would drive the college's premiums up, and wondered what effect that would have on the college's budget.

Gaudiani said that the insurance policy covers everything, including students' personal belongings. She also said that there would not be any change in what the college pays for insurance. "We have an excellent record in the use of our policy," Gaudiani stated, adding that other schools have been able to deal with similar situations.

Gaudiani addressed the security concerns of members of the Student Government Association Assembly last Thursday night.

Gaudiani said that she met with campus safety officials after the recent fires to make sure there would be a plan in place now for every single building.

"We have to make a broad assumption (that the fires and the vandalism in the library are related)," she said.

She maintained that the ID-check at the library is now necessary because "it is possible otherwise for somebody to get in there and quickly do something."

She added that the library has many secluded areas which make it vulnerable and with the new system, "it gives students a better sense of security.

Lynda Simmons, director of security, said that if damages would drive the college's insurance rates up, the college would need to consider raising tuition rates.

"We have one of the most cost-effective states in the state (investigating the case)," Gaudiani added. However, she explained if a suspect is brought, that does not necessarily mean that the individual who has been arrested is guilty. Gaudiani said there may be an accomplice, and that the college needs to be concerned with copy-cat crimes.

"When and if there is an arrest, we will not be able to lower our guard for a while," Gaudiani said.

Robert Hampton, dean of the college, may be offered a new job.

Last week, The College Voice received a telephone call from a member of a prospective committee at the State University of New York at Geneseo who asked for an editor's perspective on Hampton.

The committee member said that Hampton's name was on the University's list of prospects for the position.

When he was contacted, Hampton said that he was not surprised at the University's call. Hampton said that he knew of SUNY Geneseo's search, however, he denied seeking a new job. "I know they're looking, and I have had a couple of conversations with them," said Hampton. However, Hampton said he will probably not accept a job with SUNY Geneseo.

Hampton said simply, "I have never turned down a job I haven't been offered.

Hampton has been at the college for 26 years, bringing him closer to retirement. He is an assistant dean of campus security. He is an assistant dean of campus security, and will act as interim dean of the college.

Hampton said that he would not rule out the possibility of becoming a provost or president of a college someday.

"We really are seeking opportunities. If there was a match between my abilities and skills and the right institution, and we all agreed on it, then we'd do it," said Hampton.

"But I don't lie awake at night wondering 'what if...?'" said Hampton.

Hampton predicted that, at this time next year, he will still be dean of the college.

"I have the best job on campus," said Hampton.

Gaudiani said that Hampton's name was on the University's list of prospects for the position.

Robert Hampton, dean of the college, may be offered a new job.

This information was compiled from The Chronicle of Higher Education.
SGA approves cosponsorship proposal, SAC restructuring

Students referendum this Wednesday

SGA Approves Cosponsorship Proposal, SAC Restructuring

BY APRIL ONDIS
Editor-in-Chief

SGA overwhelmingly approved a proposal by SAC on Thursday night, putting cosponsorship in the books for next year, and adding two new executive board positions.

The proposal requires one quarter of SAC’s budget to be set aside for the Cosponsorship Fund.

“The purpose of this fund is to facilitate innovative and creative programming on campus by providing dormitories, classes, clubs or other student organizations with a means to supplement previous allocations,” states the Cosponsorship Fund proposal.

Another major facet of the plan restructures the Student Activities Council Executive Board, creating the new positions of Assistant Technical Director, as well as Film Director. In addition, two discretionary positions have been added to SAC’s Exec Board.

“Depending on the year, the challenges that each Exec Board faces are different,” said Jennifer Scott, SAC chair. This year, SCOll said, there wasn't enough money in the budget to use the extra positions.

The restructuring and discretionary positions will be important in the implementation of the cosponsorship plan. Benjamin Tyrrell, next year’s SAC chair, noted that he would like to use the appointed positions a co-sponsorship director, and possibly a club communicator to help in the transition to cosponsorship.

A member of the Exec. Board will be assigned to each of the cosponsorship programs to help facilitate activity between clubs and SAC.

After SGA discussed and passed the proposal, Scott made a motion that it not go to a campus referendum, as is normal procedure for such changes.

Some members raised concerns that the students are not informed enough to make an educated vote on the proposal. “I really felt that at this time of year with very little time left to acclimate the public with the proposal, I felt that the senators could appropriately represent their vote in the decision. Going to a referendum would only make things more confusing, not more clear,” Scott said. “How do we reach enough members of the community to adequately explain what this proposal is all about?”

Other Assembly members said that they felt there is no reason that the school should be left out of the decision. “This is enough of a change that the entire campus should be able to vote, whether or not they know enough,” said Elsa Drum, substitute parliamentarian.

“Tyrrell feels that it will make SAC stronger next year if the students take part in the process. “I think in the end it can turn out better,” Tyrrell said.

The Camel Heard ...

“Let 'em walk in, I don't care any more.”
- Manhattanville goalie Peter Atwood to his defense after Conn scored its 34th goal.

“Then we will go into the lab for sex.”
- Professor Owen during a Botany lecture on pollination.

“It's very awkward getting a condom on these guys.”
- Professor Owen making joking about safe sex for plants in lecture.

“No, our students, Lynne.”
- Claire Gaudiani, president of the college, responding to Lynne Saliba, SGA PR director's assertion that students might be inebriated on Floraalia.
Stop by for the best deals in town!

DRINK RESPONSIBLY NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Grand Spirit Shop
931 Poquonnock Rd.
(Next to TJ Maxx)
Groton Shoppers Mart
445-0598

Grand Spirit Shop II
Groton Square, Rt. 12
(Next to Super Stop & Shop)
445-1044

Prices Valid Thru 5/7/94

12 PACK IMPORT BEER SALE

- Heineken
  12 - 12oz. Cans
  $9.99

- Amstel
  12 - 12oz. Cans
  $9.99

- Moosehead
  12 - 12oz. Cans
  $8.99

- Molson Golden
  12 - 12oz. Cans
  $7.99

12 PACK SALE ON DOMESTIC BEER

- Bud, Light & Dry
  12 - 12oz. Cans
  $6.99

- Miller High Life
  15 - 12oz. Cans
  $5.99

- Miller Lite
  15 - 12oz. Cans
  $4.99

- Michelob & Michelob Lite
  15 - 12oz. Cans
  $3.99

NEW IN CANS!

- Zima
  6pkg cans
  $4.89

- Bacardi Breezers
  4 pkg cans
  $3.99

NON ALCOHOLIC BEER

- Sharps
  12 Pack Cans
  $6.99

- O’Doul’s
  12 Pack Cans
  $3.99

VODKA

- Smirnoff 80
  $15.99

- Popov 80
  $10.99

- Rikalf on 80
  $9.99

- Absolut 80
  $23.99

WHISKEY

- Seagrams 7 Crown
  $12.99

- Bellows Blend $12.99

- Seagrams V.O.
  $18.99

CORDIALS

- Kahlua 750 ML
  $13.99

- McGuire’s Cream 750 ML
  $8.99

- Peaches Peach 750 ML
  $5.99

- Marie Brizard Coconut Passion
  750 ML
  $6.99

GIN

- Seagrams Gin
  $11.99

- Gilbeys Gin
  $12.99

- Gordons Gin
  $13.99

- Gilberts London Dry
  $11.89

SCOTCH

- Clan MacGregor
  $17.99

- Highland Mist
  $15.99

- House of Stuarts
  $15.99

- Dewar’s White Label
  $29.99

RUM

- Bacardi
  $15.99

- Castillo Spiced
  $13.99

- Captain Morgan
  $17.99

- Caribaya
  $12.99

SODA SALE

- 7-UP 12 - Pack Cans
  $3.99

- Diet Coke
  6 - Pack Cans
  $1.99

WELCOME TO THE ICE AGE

- Molson Ice
  $7.99

- Miller Lite Ice
  $6.99

- Ice Draft by Bud
  $6.99

- Labatt’s Ice
  $7.99

Great Liquor Prices On Big 1.75 Liters

- Bacardi
  $23.99

- Captain Morgan
  $29.99

Prices Valid Thru 5/7/94
MOBROC compiles new CD with professional quality

By Dana Myers
The College Voice

A measure or two outside of Cro.
Matt McLeann plugging it between every song Brickhouse played at Earth Day.
This may be all you know about the latest MOBROC compilation disk, and it's time for that exchange.
Titled B.A.R.N., the CD features five campus bands and it's well worth the measly ten dollars that these friendly MOBROC folks are charging.

If (accuracies aren't your thing, be advised that MOBROC is really Musicians Organized for Bands' Rights On Campus and that B.A.R.N.incidentally way of disguising--or rather remembering their new home the zuchinni barn next to the squash courts. Now, to continue...

The disk's initial impression is an extremely professional one. The CD and its case (designed by Mark Pick) look as sophisticated as anything on the shelves of Record World. Luckily, MOBROC remembered that appearance isn't everything and created a CD that sounds as good as it looks. Recorded in Waterloo by John Gray, B.A.R.N. managed to get a clear, crisp sound that rivals the big commercial guys. We already agree that first impressions are important, right? The first seventeen minutes of the CD belong to Griss, a well-known name on the Conn music scene. The frontman of the band, Mark Schriber on bass and Steve Ramondt on drums never falters and Jared Nathson's vocals are confident and clear. "Agressive," an instrumental, is a virtual showcase of the guitar skills of James Johnson and John Grey.
The band comes together best in "War Machine," a song with some mighty interesting bass and some tricky tempo changes.

Following Griss is a four-song set called "Fight." Jed Mort (aka the Brickhouse vocalist) has the idea for the gray lyrics -- you'll hear him singing, "Why start this fight today? Just let her be." Mort and the band have an amazing ability for writing with Andrew Wagner. Their lyrics, "you'll hear him singing, "Why start this fight today? Just let her be." Mort and the band have an amazing ability for writing with Andrew Wagner. Their lyrics

But the fun doesn't stop yet. Next up is about fifteen minutes of Mavis, a band claiming more influence from the other four B.A.R.N. contributors (does any one remember The Dickies?) There's a lot of "Stuckas Over Disneyland" in Maivis. But, Merv along with Brian Ovila on bass and Matt Mcclean, on vocals in driving through songs like "Jesus Syndrome." Luke Cameron takes responsibility for the vocals (B.A.R.N.'s best moment is hearing his voice crack in "Truth is Dog") and shares the guitar work with Andrew Wagner. Their lyrics, if not intensely thought-provoking, are accurate, particularly in their best tune, "Pregnant Yak," which contains the priceless line, "Cause you drink too much, you're a boomer.
But last but not least, Entropy, a band that has since broken up (all the more reason to pick up the disk). The group sounds their best in "Giner and Dennis," a mellow, hupper song than most of the others. Karl Warner croons "Put your man at ease, my little friend," to these talented musicians and you just know you've got your money's worth.

And last but not least is Entropy, a band that has since broken up (all the more reason to pick up the disk). The group sounds their best in "Ginger and Dennis," a mellow, hupper song than most of the others. Karl Warner croons "Put your man at ease, my little friend," to these talented musicians and you just know you've got your money's worth.

The excitement mounts with a [know there's no way that you can pass up an album with a song called "Pregnant Yak"]

Honor your four years at Conn!! Dedicate an ad to your family, a friend, or even an loved one.
Submit your ideas to the College Voice Graduation Issue!!

Honor your four years at Conn!! Dedicate an ad to your family, a friend, or even a loved one.
Submit your ideas to the College Voice Graduation Issue!!

By Tim Devin
The College Voice

Friday, May 6 • 8 pm
$16.50 ($25 Loge)

THEATRE ONE NEW HOME THE ZUCHINNI BARN SEASON OPENING
FRIDAY, MAY 6
"GUNSHOT LOVE"
By D. W. McRae

The play is set in the small and money-strapped apartment belonging to Will and Mel. With Will (played by Darren Coye) in a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photographer who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photographer who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photographer who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photographer who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
grapher who feels her career is running
down her physical disability.
Mel's fears and insecurities are
accerated when she encounters
Darren Coyle as a hypochondricus, and suisse as an excuse for not living. He
both with Mel (played by Mel
McGregor), a professional photog-
Muy3, /994
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
.
DJ Tei “communicated” to the delight of Conn students

Tei still remembers his college years fondly, Said Tei, "When I was in college I never slept. I partied, hung out around friends, and had a great time. Students may not have a lot of money, but they can be happy. You might be rich, but I don’t think you’re any happier or healthier."

Tei said that he has come to Conn to get a feel for the atmosphere. He plans to use that “feeling” on his next project. Said Tei, "I’m trying to get some energy for the next album. This stuff is all about fun. It’s not a job to me, it’s fun."

Tei said that Dee-Lite was unique among other performing groups. Said Tei, "I’ve never seen an electrified audience Saturday night whether he communicated through the music."

Tei was born and raised in Japan, but moved to New York when he was in college. Said Tei, "When I was in college I never slept. I partied, hung out around friends, and had a great time. Students may not have a lot of money, but they can be happy. You might be rich, but I don’t think you’re any happier or healthier."

Tei said that he has come to Conn to get a feel for the atmosphere. He plans to use that “feeling” on his next project. Said Tei, "I’m trying to get some energy for the next album. This stuff is all about fun. It’s not a job to me, it’s fun."

Tei said that Dee-Lite was unique among other performing groups. Said Tei, "I’ve never seen an electrified audience Saturday night whether he communicated through the music."

Tei was born and raised in Japan, but moved to New York when he was in college. Said Tei, "When I was in college I never slept. I partied, hung out around friends, and had a great time. Students may not have a lot of money, but they can be happy. You might be rich, but I don’t think you’re any happier or healthier."
The Real Live Brady Bunch plays out childhood memories

By CARL SCHULTZ and MICHELLE ROMANE

The Concert and Artist Series at Connecticut College brings the college community a vast array of cultural delights throughout the academic year. Orchestras, concerts, even the Vienna Choir Boys. It was only a matter of time before they explored other realms of musical culture besides that of violins and voices...it was only a matter of time before they explored...the Brady Bunch.

On April 25th, Connecticut College was brought back to the fads, the clothes, even the bad intro music, of Sherwood Schwartz's TV series The Brady Bunch with The Live Real Brady Bunch, part of an evening event titled Real Live TV Night that also included The Real Game Show. Before beginning the game show the crew entertained the audience by leading them through the band movements of the ever popular Village People song "YMCA." It was almost like stepping back into the seventies.

The Real Live Game Show was hosted by Dale O'Donnell, who almost like stepping back into the moment, and a celebration of life's magic show, a medieval prince's favoritemusicals—a blazing 1970s circus of clowning and mermaid, and one by one, the Bradys came out to play. The show has been touring the stage. The cast was clearly directed, and while cookie-cutter musicals—Fastrada. Her voice is beautiful. And while "The Flesh." She created engaging dances and interesting tableaux, and the chorus of Players held the work. Closely cooLJessica Ammirati's characterization of the devious Annalise was notable in "War is a Science" and sang "I Guess I'll Miss the Man" as the winner, a sort of spirited folk song. Jorge Vega played the title role more than perfectly, and she had either seen or done Pippin several years ago, and tried to relive the experience in this production. It just looked exactly like every other teenage element. Many performers were great. Yet I got the impression while watching and soldiers. Special mention is a great job as Lewis, especially in his display of swordsmanship. His facial expressions were so subtle and yet so effective. Lex Webster pulled a fine performance as the fiery Fastrada. Her voice is beautiful, and her characterization of the deviuous queen was appropriately and viciously good. Jessica Schoenmaker's Catherine was a very pleasant character, indeed. I liked the fact that she sang "I Guess I'll Miss the Man" as a sort of spirited folk song.

The chorus of Players held the action together, and each filled many roles, playing roles as clowns, lovers, magicians, nobles, peasants, and soldiers. Special mention should be made of Skumin's enthusiasm, energy, and the fact that she was having fun, and that made me happy. It was a fun production to watch, but I expected it to be a kind of ariatic innovation on an old theme. I was hoping there would be more plusses...
Intramural Update:
No Names alone at the top of B-League basketball standings; soccer playoffs near

B-LEAGUE BASKETBALL STANDINGS (through 4/27/94):

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>W</th>
<th>L</th>
<th>Points</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>No Names</td>
<td>6</td>
<td>0</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Magnificent 7</td>
<td>5</td>
<td>1</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alums &amp; Co. 32</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>3</td>
<td></td>
</tr> </tbody>
</table>

Slap 42, Bern's Squad 37
Some Assembly 35,96, Brodmann's Squad 41
The Derby 40, Hookies 33
Lager 60, Defending Champs 51
Boody Snatchers 53, Don't Hurt Us 43
Magentiff 728, Air Load 25

INDOOR SOCCER STANDINGS (through 5/1/94):

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>W</th>
<th>L</th>
<th>Points</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Hart-Kari</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Farhaverguenen</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Team Whamo</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A.C. Longo's</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Mechas</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>1</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Grumble</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>2</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bite the Wax Tadpole</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>0</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zampa</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>0</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Girl's Soccer</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>0</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blue Film</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>0</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

This Week's Scores:
6 & Under 75, Alums & Co. 30
No Names 30, Slap 29
Brodmann's Squad 30, Faculty 35
Some Assembly 34, Supreme Court 33
I & J's 65, Bern's Squad 30
The Dawgs 39, The Derby 30
Lager 28, Boody Snatchers 24
Magentiff 769, Hookies 45
Air Load 54, Don't Hurt Us 34
The Dawgs 65, Faculty 44
No Names 46, Alums & Co. 32

*All information was compiled by the Intramural Office.

Free Delivery to Connecticut College
721 Bank Street New London
Delivery Hours: 11A.M to 9P.M Monday-Thursday
11A.M to 8P.M Sunday

FREE Delivery for orders over $7.50.
$1.00 charge for orders under $7.50.

The ORIGINAL HOME OF ROCK AND BLUES
Lunch Specials Daily
Live Entertainment Every Weekend
Pool Tables
Thursday: Cinco de Mayo Party
Friday: Big Ed & the Esquires
Saturday: Black & White Never a Cover

Young men's tennis team looks to next spring

Continued from p. 20 competition and forced a new doubles team to be created.
In the singles competition, tri-captains Jean-Eric Penicaud, Ed Metzendorf, and Alex Thompson each posted a victory in their first matches, but each fell out of competition in the next round.

Metzendorf was victorious in one of the most thrilling matches of the tournament, beating a player from Bowdoin 5-7, 7-6, 7-6 (overcoming a 5-0 deficit in the third set tiebreaker) in just over three and a half hours.

According to Metzendorf, everybody on the team won at least one match, either in the main brackets or in the consolation round. "Each player on the team made a solid contribution," he said.

"Overall, under the circumstances of the injury, we were not overwhelmed by our performance but we were satisfied," he continued.

Because play was continuing through the weekend, Metzendorf was unsure of the team's finish, but speculated that the team came in either seventh or eighth overall.

Freshman Matt Hyde turned in one of the best performances, progressing to the semi-finals of the consolation bracket. The doubles team of Penicaud and Metzendorf narrowly missed the cut for the consolation round. The team lacks size and stature, and is at a disadvantage when playing larger, more experienced teams. Their strong serve, however, and the support network created by the players helped to alleviate this deficiency, and the team's performance was a marked improvement in its game.

Famous Economists Have Said:

"In the long run, we're all dead!"
John Maynard Keynes, British Economist

"Eat a Recovery Room pizza in the short run" Don Peppard, Conn College Economist

"They tell me there's a pie up in the sky, waiting for me when I die!"
Jimmy Cliff, Famous Reggae Economist

"I want my pie at the Recovery Room!"
Rolf Jensen, another Conn College Economist

THE RECOVERY ROOM

INEXPENSIVE INCOMPARABLE INDECENTLY GOOD
445 Ocean Avenue New London CI
443-2619

The women's rugby team in action on Knowledge Green.
You should see the other guys:
Women's rugby gets tough

by TARA BRASIL
Special to The College Voice

Though it may not be apparent from looking at their 0-2 record, the women's rugby team has had an impressive first season, surviving contests against the bigger and more experienced teams of Vassar College and Mount Holyoke College.

In their first game of the season, the women were defeated by Vassar's A team, a match in which the women suffered several serious injuries caused by rough play. According to senior captain Katherine Hooper, however, since this is their first season of actual competitive play, the women are pleased with their performance as a team. They have been encouraged in their efforts both by the members of the men's team and their coach, David "Duff" Daffle, who also coaches the men's team. Hooper said, "We weren't expected to win at all this season, we were just hoping to get through without too many injuries."

In their first game of the season, according to Mel Zendorf, everything went according to plan. "Overall, under the circumstances of the injury, we were not overwhelmed with our performance but we were satisfied," he continued.

According to Metzendorf, everybody on the team won at least one match, either in the main brackets or in the consolation round. "Each player on the team made a solid contribution," he said.

"Overall, under the circumstances of the injury, we were not overwhelmed with our performance but we were satisfied," he continued.

Because play was continuing through the weekend, Metzendorf was unsure of the team's finish, but speculated that the team came in either seventh or eighth overall.

Freshman Matt Hyde turned in one of the best performances, progressing to the semi-finals of the consolation bracket. The doubles team of Penicaud and Metzendorf narrowly missed the cut for the consolation round. The team lacks size and stature, and is at a disadvantage when playing larger, more experienced teams. Their strong serve, however, and the support network created by the players helped to alleviate this deficiency, and the team's performance was a marked improvement in its game.
Schmoozing with Josh and the Donut:

NBA Finals? Schmoozers foresee Barkley & Co. topping Knicks

BY JOSH LEVINE AND TED HUNTZ
The College Voice

We here at schmoozing love the month of May for three reasons. First, we are out of here on the 28th. Second, Florida is only a week away. Third, the NBA playoffs start. "The second season" for basketball fanatics has begun with many intriguing matchups in the first round. Perhaps most interesting is the Knocks vs. Nets encounter, showcasing two teams with incredible defenses and sensational coaches. We see the Knocks, with too much depth and desire, pulling away from the center-less Nets. In fact, the Knocks should prevail in the East over their nemesis Chicago.

Look for the Indiana Pacers to surprise the Orlando Magic in the first round. Larry Brown has taken a bunch of underachievers and helped them realize their own talent. Adam will certainly fold; their lack of playoff experience and one-dimensional offense will self-destruct. Danny Manning is no Michael Jordan during the post-season.

In the West, Seattle and San Antonio remain the most popular choices to win the division. Seattle’s fabulous depth and suffocating pressure defense has held opponents at bay throughout the year. San Antonio, led by David Robinson’s inspired play and Dennis Adebayo throughout the year, will benefit from Charlotte’s "center-by-committee" and the Nets’ lack of depth. San Antonio, led by Robinson’s inspired play and Adebayo’s consistency, has held opponents at bay throughout the year. San Antonio will benefit from Charlotte’s lack of depth.

For all these involved, the Connecticut College men’s rugby football club is competing in its second international match on Thursday. Coach David Duffie’s squad is facing off against Trinity College, one of the top rugby teams in the country. The Camel will prove to be an interesting contest, pitting a fit, healthy Canuck squad versus a bunch of drunken rejects and social outcasts.

The Camels are currently 3-0, coming off a 70-0 victory over Division II powerhouse Roger Williams. The only score was made by Mar- tin "Don’t call me Jesus on a motorcycle" Land, receiving a pass from Mark "Lyke Lovete" Tidic with about 15 minutes left in the second half. Schmoozing would also like to acknowledge our favorite freshman John "Holyfield" Facenda. Facenda proceeded to brawl for about three rounds during the rugby game, bunting some Rogers Williams goons and showing great heart and fortitude. The game on Thursday is at 7:00; come cheer for your school against their international oppo-Schmoozing can see the light at the end of the tunnel; we should be graduating soon. However, we still need to break ground on the "Big Donut" Box 3747. Send two sample articles with plenty of humor and malice.

SPORTS MOVIE TRIVIA QUESTION

Name the six famous announcers who did play-by-play during the Dodgers-Angels game attended by a very famous Queen.

This week’s winner gets softball lessons from Kristen Hanson and Dana Strong (Pool Hand Luke’s secret offensive weapon).

Sports Shorts:

Club baseball sweeps double-header from Colby-Sawyer

The Connecticut College club baseball team traveled to New London, New Hampshire this weekend for a doubleheader against Colby-Sawyer. The squad swept both games, winning 10-8 in the opener and 8-7 in the second. Forbes Darby picked up the win in the first game, while Walter Schoolmann picking up the save. In the second game, Schoolmann recorded his second victory of the season. Hitting heroes for the Camels included Kevin Head, who hit two home runs, and John Clark, who also had a homer.

Earlier in the week, the team lost to Housatonic Community College 18-4, and dropped a close one to Wesleyan on Wednesday 5-4. At this point in the season, Schoolmann, batting .500, Ben Tripp, .429, and Clark, swinging at .393 clip, are the hitting leaders. Clark and Kevin Cunningham lead the team with nine runs batted in apiece.

The team has five more games this spring, and travels to Johnson & Wales and the University of New Haven this week.

Club Ultimate Frisbee wraps up spring campaign at sectional tournament

Despite having only eight players, the club Ultimate Frisbee team delivered a gutsy performance at the sectional tournament at Yale University this weekend. A variety of excuses—illness, work, golf, sickness—caused the Camels to perform at less than full capacity. The team dropped a 15-3 loss to Yale, a 13-3 loss to UConn, and fell 13-7 to the Yale "B" team.

* Both the men’s and women’s track teams were at Williams College this weekend for the NESCAC championships. The results were not available in time to make this edition.

And you thought you could only afford macaroni and cheese.

Right now you could take home one of the country’s best-selling personal computer for incredibly low monthly payments. By qualifying for the Apple Computer Loan, you can choose from the entire Macintosh line or grab a PoweBook, the most popular notebook computer. They’re all powerful, easy to use and most affordable than ever. It’s that simple. So, stop by your Apple Campus Reader for further information. You’ll be amazed what you can buy on a tight college budget.

Visit the Connecticut College Computer Store
Hamilton House, Lower Level
Ruth Seeley at x2090, Mon.- Fri. 12:00-4:00

*Debitment, 1994 © 1994 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh, Macintosh Quadra and PowerBook are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. All Other trade names are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc.
Sports

College sponsors hoops day for youth

BY YUNG KIM
Features Editor

In an effort to improve relations with the New London Community, the Office of Volunteers for Community Service and Umigasco sponsored a basketball tournament for students from New London High School last Saturday.

Curtis Rogers, co-chair of Umigaco, and Thomas Anderson, the intern at Unity House, organized the event. "We put this tournament together to give some kids a fun experience. We wanted to give them an enjoyable experience at Conn, and hopefully they will come back," said Anderson.

The players were students from New London High School, and the only rule about participation was that no varsity basketball players were allowed to play. The tournament gave students who normally would not have the chance an opportunity to play organized ball.

Sailing places eighth in N.E.

BY TARA BRAZIL
Special to The College Voice

The sailing team was at home this weekend, hosting and participating in the fourth Southern Sectionals, held Saturday and Sunday. The Conn team sailed well, placing eighth out of the sixteen teams which participated in the regatta. Though pleased with their performance, the Conn team's eighth place finish fails to qualify them for the national championships.

According to Tyson, however, qualifying for nationals was considered a "reach" from the outset. Coach Jeff Bresnahan said that the team gave its best shot for a qualifying position and cited exceptional performances by senior Dean Carballal and sophomore Maria Coppola.

Boosted by their solid performances at both regattas this weekend, the sailing team is hopeful for the national championships next weekend at the Coast Guard Academy. If Conn places in the top four teams at this championship, they will qualify for the national team racing championships at the end of the month.

Crew teams ready for New Englands this week

BY IKEN FERNANDO
Publisher in Chief

With the New England Championships just one week away, both the men's and the women's rowing teams turned in impressive performances this weekend that assures them of high seeds next week.

The teams traveled to Worcester for a match-up with in-state rivals Trinity College and Wesleyan University. The women's varsity, junior, and second freshmen boats all finished first, while the first freshmen lost by three seconds to Wesleyan. The men's varsity eight also won, while the only other crew the team brought, the freshmen four, finished second behind Wesleyan.

The women's varsity boat completed the course in 6:49, outpacing Wesleyan by three seconds. The junior varsity and second freshmen each won by lengths of open water.

The men finished in 6:00.7, edging Wesleyan by three seconds. The victory brought the team's record to 2-0 on the year, and places the men in a good position for a top seed at this weekend's regatta.

The women's final regular season stands at 10-1, and team captain Erin Marvin said, "This is definitely one of the strongest seasons Conn has had in years."

The rankings will be released mid-week, and both Marvin and men's captain Igor Serov believe Conn will be ranked in the top two. The goal for both teams is to capture the gold, and a win in the regatta would give the team a chance to do just that. The gold is awarded to the winner of the regatta, and the team with the most points.

The men's team brings some of the strongest returning crews in the nation. The women's varsity eight, junior, and second freshman boats all finished first, while the first freshmen lost by three seconds to Wesleyan. The men's varsity eight also won, while the only other crew the team brought, the freshmen four, finished second behind Wesleyan.

The mistakes and the meat of the schedule is at hand, and the team is looking to end the season strong with a win in the regatta.
Sports

Men’s lax downs Williams for the first time ever; winning streak at 7

BY JON FINNMORE
Publisher ex officio

After a 1-4 start, the men’s lacrosse team has won eight of its last nine games and placed themselves in prime position for a home seed in the ECAC playoffs.

Without a doubt, the highlight of the streak was the 7-6 overtime victory at Williams University on Tuesday afternoon. The game was close all the way, with Conn up 2-1 after one period, Williams (ranked number 17 in the nation) winning 4-3 at halftime, and the teams tied 5-5 going into the fourth quarter.

Just when over one minute off the clock in overtime, Bob Driscoll fed Mark Rooney, who fired the winning shot at the Ephs’ goal to lead the Camels’ first ever win over the NESCAC rivals.

Ron Dunworth and Ben Smith each had two goals in regulation, while John DePeter and Pete Marston added a goal apiece. DePeter and Driscoll each notched two assists, while Marston, Rooney, and Scott Thorsen each had one.

Thursday afternoon, the men wrapped up their NESCAC schedule with a 14-6 victory over Ambrose College. Dunworth (four goals), DePeter (two goals, three assists), Marston (two goals, two assists), and Rooney (two goals, two assists) led the team in scoring.

Tom Hudson had a huge day in goal, turning away 17 Ambrose shots.

On Saturday’s win over Manhattanville, even the scoreboard could not keep up with the Camels. While the scoring table witnessed a monitor that would not keep pace with the time, the score was a 54-35 win.

The scoring leaders for the men included Doug Lange (six goals, three assists), Andrew Margie (five goals, three assists), and Marston (four goals, three assists).

DePeter had two goals, and with his five assists set a new school record for assists in a season with 38.

The winning streak has catapulted the men into excellent position for a good playoff slot. With the Ambrose victory, the men finished with a 6-3 NESCAC record, the same as last year’s team which received a number two seed in the playoffs.

DePeter set an impressive individual mark by breaking the 100 career point mark in the win over Williams and setting the school record for assists in a season. He now ranks in the top ten in the school’s career scoring list, tallying a total of 112 points.

Injury sidelines tennis team at NESCAC finals

BY JON FINNMORE
Publisher ex officio

An excellent spring season by the young men’s tennis team came to a close this weekend with the NESCAC championships at Wesleyan University. The men had high hopes going into the playoffs, buoyed of a 7-4 record and a number of big victories and close losses to the best teams in the division. However, the team was dealt a serious blow when freshman Gian Giordano, the team’s number three player, injured his arm Wednesday night in an intramural basketball game and had to scratch from the tournament. Each player on the team has to move up a spot accordingly, which placed some players in different brackets of the draw.

BY TARA BRADIE
Special to The College Voice

Boasting an undefeated record of 3-0 this season, the men’s rugby club team has improved tremendously upon their fall performance, in which they compiled a mediocre record of 3-2. Thanks to consistent play on the parts of its senior members, as well as the freshman and rookie players, the men’s team looks to close its season on a positive note with a three game winning streak.

In their first game of the season, the men faced Vassar College, to whom they had lost badly the year before. This season saw a different ending to that contest, however, as Conn’s exceptional play and strong defense led them to a 28-14 victory.

Though the players are often smaller than many of the opponents they meet, the men of the Conn team compensate for this size deficiency by polishing their skills, which have proven to be superior to those of each team they have faced so far this season. This was particularly evident in their second game against Wesleyan University, another big rival, in which the team rebounded from a 12-24 deficit to win the contest 20-18. According to the team’s ‘spresident’ Junior Jonzaf, “The team has really come together this season. We’re really a family. Everyone gets along with everyone else and we have become a very close-knit team.” The team’s cohesion and their improved skills can be attributed in part to their coach, David “Duff” Duffie, a former Canadian player who has been coaching the men’s team for the last three seasons.

In their most recent game of the season this past weekend, Conn blanked Division II team Roger Williams College 7-0. Standout players included those of senior Luke Wachtel and sophomore Martin Lund, who scored the try. Senior Tetsu Ishii raised the score to 7-0 with his conversion on a penalty.

BY YASH KARKS
Features Editor

Roaring an undefeated record of 3-0 this season, the men’s rugby club team has improved tremendously upon their fall performance, in which they compiled a mediocre record of 3-2. Thanks to consistent play on the parts of its senior members, as well as the freshman and rookie players, the men’s team looks to close its season on a positive note with a three game winning streak.

Roaring an undefeated record of 3-0 this season, the men’s rugby club team has improved tremendously upon their fall performance, in which they compiled a mediocre record of 3-2. Thanks to consistent play on the parts of its senior members, as well as the freshman and rookie players, the men’s team looks to close its season on a positive note with a three game winning streak.

BY TARA BRADIE
Special to The College Voice

Boasting an undefeated record of 3-0 this season, the men’s rugby club team has improved tremendously upon their fall performance, in which they compiled a mediocre record of 3-2. Thanks to consistent play on the parts of its senior members, as well as the freshman and rookie players, the men’s team looks to close its season on a positive note with a three game winning streak.

Injury sidelines tennis team at NESCAC finals

BY JON FINNMORE
Publisher ex officio

An excellent spring season by the young men’s tennis team came to a close this weekend with the NESCAC championships at Wesleyan University. The men had high hopes going into the playoffs, buoyed of a 7-4 record and a number of big victories and close losses to the best teams in the division. However, the team was dealt a serious blow when freshman Gian Giordano, the team’s number three player, injured his arm Wednesday night in an intramural basketball game and had to scratch from the tournament. Each player on the team has to move up a spot accordingly, which placed some players in different brackets of the draw.

BY JON FINNMORE
Publisher ex officio

An excellent spring season by the young men’s tennis team came to a close this weekend with the NESCAC championships at Wesleyan University. The men had high hopes going into the playoffs, buoyed of a 7-4 record and a number of big victories and close losses to the best teams in the division. However, the team was dealt a serious blow when freshman Gian Giordano, the team’s number three player, injured his arm Wednesday night in an intramural basketball game and had to scratch from the tournament. Each player on the team has to move up a spot accordingly, which placed some players in different brackets of the draw.

BY JON FINNMORE
Publisher ex officio

An excellent spring season by the young men’s tennis team came to a close this weekend with the NESCAC championships at Wesleyan University. The men had high hopes going into the playoffs, buoyed of a 7-4 record and a number of big victories and close losses to the best teams in the division. However, the team was dealt a serious blow when freshman Gian Giordano, the team’s number three player, injured his arm Wednesday night in an intramural basketball game and had to scratch from the tournament. Each player on the team has to move up a spot accordingly, which placed some players in different brackets of the draw.

BY JON FINNMORE
Publisher ex officio

An excellent spring season by the young men’s tennis team came to a close this weekend with the NESCAC championships at Wesleyan University. The men had high hopes going into the playoffs, buoyed of a 7-4 record and a number of big victories and close losses to the best teams in the division. However, the team was dealt a serious blow when freshman Gian Giordano, the team’s number three player, injured his arm Wednesday night in an intramural basketball game and had to scratch from the tournament. Each player on the team has to move up a spot accordingly, which placed some players in different brackets of the draw.

BY JON FINNMORE
Publisher ex officio

An excellent spring season by the young men’s tennis team came to a close this weekend with the NESCAC championships at Wesleyan University. The men had high hopes going into the playoffs, buoyed of a 7-4 record and a number of big victories and close losses to the best teams in the division. However, the team was dealt a serious blow when freshman Gian Giordano, the team’s number three player, injured his arm Wednesday night in an intramural basketball game and had to scratch from the tournament. Each player on the team has to move up a spot accordingly, which placed some players in different brackets of the draw.

BY JON FINNMORE
Publisher ex officio

An excellent spring season by the young men’s tennis team came to a close this weekend with the NESCAC championships at Wesleyan University. The men had high hopes going into the playoffs, buoyed of a 7-4 record and a number of big victories and close losses to the best teams in the division. However, the team was dealt a serious blow when freshman Gian Giordano, the team’s number three player, injured his arm Wednesday night in an intramural basketball game and had to scratch from the tournament. Each player on the team has to move up a spot accordingly, which placed some players in different brackets of the draw.

BY JON FINNMORE
Publisher ex officio

An excellent spring season by the young men’s tennis team came to a close this weekend with the NESCAC championships at Wesleyan University. The men had high hopes going into the playoffs, buoyed of a 7-4 record and a number of big victories and close losses to the best teams in the division. However, the team was dealt a serious blow when freshman Gian Giordano, the team’s number three player, injured his arm Wednesday night in an intramural basketball game and had to scratch from the tournament. Each player on the team has to move up a spot accordingly, which placed some players in different brackets of the draw.