The Modern World. The collegesness, College and Your Life represented by Doctor Leib, Doctor Antoinette Cannon, and Doctor Adie of the Welfare of the Welfare Association of America, for work in this country. Dr. Antoinette Cannon was responsible for the organizing of the first hospital social work.

Dr. Antoinette Cannon, a native of Scotland, and his profession of Social Welfare, State of Public Welfare. Dr. Adie's a Public Welfare of Cologne, Germany. Due largely to the study of religion, one of these motives is of great importance, and the effect of religion upon man's life is itself not the essence of religion. One of these aspects, the study of religion, which combined makes the essence of religion. One of these phases relates to the place of worship. Throughout the centuries, this has always been an important consideration. The United States, today, needs to improve the better planned places of worship. Connecticut College needs an adequate place where students may worship. However, such a place is itself not the essence of religion.

The second aspect relates to the worship of God through prayers, hymns and the reading of scriptures. The great hymns of the church express the deepening feeling of man. Reading the Bible, gives renewed strength to meet all difficulties. We need to improve the better planned places of worship. In this respect, we must guard against spending an hour of “ritual emotion” and then returning to worldly pleasures and pursuits, forgetful of that same religious feeling.

The third aspect is of studying and knowing Christ's life. Knowledge of the Bible is a means to an end. We need to have houses of worship, prayers, hymns and (Continued on page 5, column 2)

A DRIVE FOR STUDENT SCHOLARSHIP FUND IS BEING HELD ON THURS. Students Are Urged to Join in the Activities as Much as They are Able

THREE-FOLD PROGRAM HAS BEEN PLANNED BY COMMITTEE IN CHARGE

On Thursday, May 3, a drive for the Student Scholarship Fund will be held. Last year, money was raised during the home house canvas, each student giving as much as she could. This year, the plan for raising money is three-fold. A tag day will be conducted, beginning the evening before and continuing throughout Thursday. Student "Taggers" will be around Campus during the day. It is hoped each student will give whatever she feels she can afford. Thursday evening, there will be a depression dinner in all the college dining-halls. Directly following dinner, moving pictures of campus activities (come and see for yourself) including last year's "Tagging" and its result, will be shown in the college gymnasium. Admission will be fifteen cents.

In one other way, we may show our interest and appreciation. That way is to give suggestions as to speakers and music. For next year, we will tell what we enjoyed the most, as much as we, the students, are immediately concerned. Certainly, outside visitors are a part of our education.

STUDENTS TAKE STAND

FOR PEACE

Reel McFarland, a junior at Connecticut College, New Brunswick, N. J. (NSFA) -Simultaneous protests against the erection of an armory on the campus of Rutgers University were sent last week to Robert Clarkson Cholter, president of Rutgers University, and to the New Jersey senator and representatives in Congress by students at mass meetings held at the Recruiters' Armory, New York City and at the New Jersey College for Women. The students also expressed their disapproval of the Vinson Naval Appropriations Bill which has recently passed the Senate.

Student opinion has been expressed from time to time on the campus and by President Cholter's request that Rutgers be the recipient of one of the twenty-five armories proposed for land-grant colleges by Congress. Both of the meetings attracted many students who took advantage of the opportunity to express opinions on the general subject of War and Peace.

"We feel that an armory is not in keeping with the movement toward peace which we are fostering," said the protest to President Cholter, signed by the Students of Rutgers University and of New Jersey College for Women.

"We understand that an armory could be used to improve the indoor facilities for physical education, now offered, the main and avowed purpose is military training. The militaristic aspect overshadows any incidental good. We as students of the university for which the armory has been proposed earnestly plead with you to reconsider your request.

In a letter to President Roosevelt expressing disapproval of the Vinson Appropriations Bill, students said: "We, students of Rutgers University and of the New Jersey College for Women in New Brunswick, New Jersey, night when they collided with an old lady in a flannel nightie and bathroom about twelve o'clock in the Graduating Class banquet, assured them that C. C. C.'s not troubled with sleep-walkers—but play re-hearsal was the night! ... We even heard tell of that gal food ready on the cold mornings and then flunked rest hour!"

The C. G. A. put up a charming sign a few days ago to the effect that those stalwart youths in the coming years relied on the necessity of shaving for a week. They were all set to sprout a few beard whiskers but, alas, why does the Academy have to have a formal?

ARMORY ON RUTGERS CAMPUS PROTESTED

C. C. C.

The New Members of the C. C. C. O. Board were chosen last week. They are as follows: Margaret Harris '36, Polly Spooner '35, Sally Kimball '36, Emma Moore '37, Ginny Deuel '37, Vera War- hasse '35, and Jean Vanderbilt '36.

On Sunday, April 29, they had supper out in Bolleswood. The picnic was well attended. Ginny Deuel and Emma Moore had charge of the food.

C. C. C. O. is sponsoring many interesting and pleasurable trips, which should provide much fun for all who attend. Their program for the rest of the year appears to be varied, and ought to encourage many people to join their outings on Sundays. Be among this group or miss a good time at any of the following: a Mother's Island Boat Trip, Ocean Beach Trip, Over Night Hike (starting Saturday night) and the Hare and Hound Hunt with the Facul-tions scruples, he added. They were shocked they said, by the willingness of older people in positions of power to accept as necessary, inevitable and praiseworthy the shoultering of arms by the youth of the nation.

They attended the meeting, they said, because they share the growing conviction among students that young people are the ones who will have to take the lead in combating out-of-date policies which lead toward war.

"Students at the R. O. T. C. Conference, who stressed the necessity of military training to protect young men should they go to war, show that they have no real grasp of what modern war means. A life time of rifle-carrying can't protect a soldier from bombs and poison gas," one of them stated.

The Peace Action Group of American University, one of many throughout the country which is working on a plan to block war, is sponsored by the Youth Movement for World Recovery. This organization, which maintains national Headquarters in Washington, D. C., bases its plan of action on the conviction that voters and near-voters must use their power to influence Representatives, Senators, and the President in the interest of peace.

"The Administration and Congress must be made to see," said
Paul Harris, Jr., Director of the Youth Movement, in commenting on the R. O. T. C. dispute, "that young people are on the side of Peace. They must be shown that Youth demands policies which will lead us toward peace and not toward war."

Judges Give 1st Place in the Competitive Plays to Senior

Hence I am prompted to launch my views with a word of commendation to all the groups of the various classes, acknowledging the fact that it is not an easy task to produce a play with flawless technique under the restrictive rules of the play competition. But if my opinions are of any value, let them be aired. My first is that the Sophomores placed a definite handicap upon themselves in their selection of The Bathroom Door. As a comedy it is weak, for it lacks the body of wit which sound comedy requires to carry it, and the suspense is lost with the average audience because the outcome is so obvious. The characters were fairly well chosen, but the action on the stage was too stereotyped. One player would step forward to act her momentary part, and fall back into a position that seemed to the audience to be quite fixed. The actors at many times would step forward to act their part, and hear the players at many times, would step forward to act her part, and fall back again to act her part, and from my place in the audience. I couldn't see just what it was that the Sophomores had in mind when they selected this play. When again, if it were the jailer's room, it lacked the body of wit which is not easily dramatized. The characters were fairly well chosen. Their acting was fairly well done. Their acting was fairly well done. When the play opened there was an exceptionally good bit of acting on the part of Virginia Dewell and Elizabeth Ayer. Miss Dewell played quite the best part of the evening in my judgment. The play lasted better than it ended. The acting at the last seemed to drag, and the characters seemed to be a bit too "stagy" even considering the outcome of the play. I would like to commend the Juniors for their over-ambitious attempt in The Minuet. I find a great divergence of feeling among members of the audience with whom I have discussed it. But in my opinion it was quite well done considering the difficulties of staging a "French" play, the stilted meter of which is not easily dramatized. I would criticize the setting of the play if it would be likely that a cell would have been decorated and furnished quite so elaborately by the proletarian mob to suit the fastness of a hated aristocrat. One answer given to this was that the cell was supposed to have been the jailer's room. Does it imply that the room is the jailer's personal lodging if the Marquis refers to it as the jailer's room? Any room in the prison is in charge of the jailer and might be referred to in this manner by a prisoner. And again, if it were the jailer's room, whence comes this crude jailer's taste for orderly decoration? And what of the Seniors? Well, they were awarded the palm, were they not? Or was it a cup? I couldn't see just what it was from my place in the audience. At any rate they were honored. Their acting was fairly well done. Miss Russ was exceptionally good in the role of Hilda. I had the impression of missed cues in a few places . . . but the Seniors may be able to tell you about that.

Mr. Colin Buell Shows Need for Cooperation Among Faculty and Pupils

Tuesday morning at Chapel, in the absence of President Blunt, Mr. Colin S. Buell, Secretary of the Board of Trustees of Connecticut College, spoke on the administration of that college in connection with its intellectual life.

It is hard for us to understand the difficulties with which the administration must cope in order to make coordination possible in all fields and to unify the entire institution. A small college requires a leader who is able to survey the problem of college life as a whole. In President Blunt we have a leader who is interested in the physical welfare of the school, who possesses calmness of judgment, sincerity of purpose, and who looks not only at the present but into the future.

The faculty, in collaboration with the president, combine wisdom with understanding, to solve the problems which necessarily arise in such a community. The free-lancers who are receiving an education in a time of rapid change, during which the general outlook is constantly broadening and the universe is every expanding.

A free-lance is a "pretty play-thing" which, if used as a weapon, may prove to be not only interfering but dangerous. If the students combine, they can either make ore ruin whatever they attempt. In all our problems, therefore, we must cooperate with the administrators in wisdom, understanding, and an outlook of completeness and sincerity.

RACE FOR SEX EQUALITY ENDS IN VICTORY TO WOMEN, SAYS HUNT

At Wednesday chapel, Dr. Hunt declared that the old war between man and woman for sex equality is ended. Woman has won and man does not begrudge her the average man of today fully realizes that woman is his equal.

If there is still a war, it rests among the women themselves, or more specifically, between the progressive and the conservative women. It is the woman with a career against the woman who thinks that the females' place is in the home. Some females continue to imagine that women are still treated as inferiors. They are really assuming a complex to cover up their own timidity or laziness in making their way. Having won her battle, it is up to the woman to exercise her power. Although she is weighted with a victor's responsibilities, she must exhibit an enthusiastic enjoyment of her position.

Definite Modifications of League of Nations are Suggested for Peace

War. Nevertheless, the present uncoordinated nationalisms make the world thoroughly unsafe for civilization. And a modified League is the next logical step toward the restraint and pacification of these rampant nationalisms. Among the League modifications suggested are: (1) that it no longer guarantee the post-war treaties; (2) that it postpone its efforts at coercion; and (3) that it make a more generous bid for universality.

The United States, by participating on its own terms, can best aid in preventing the wars that would ultimately involve the whole world, including the United States, in ruin. Our participation might well include pressure on the victors for adequate concessions to the vanquished, and pressure on the rebels not merely by the concessions but also by the evidence of the League's new moral integrity.

Against the urgent advice of William Randolph Hearst, we are thus recommending action, faith, and hope, to replace inaction, distrust, and despair.
