Edwin Reischauer To Deliver Fiftieth Commencement Address

Edwin O. Reischauer, United States Ambassador to Japan from 1961 to 1966, will deliver the fiftieth commencement address at the College on Sunday morning, June 7.

The Wilson-distinguished, now one of seven University Professors at Harvard, is respected as one of the most realistic and responsible voices speaking today on Vietnam and the American dilemma. His most recent analysis of our Asian policy, Beyond Vietnam: The United States and Asia, was published earlier this year. Saturday review called it "required reading for every well-educated American." New York Times said, "Mr. Reischauer has a learned man's objectivity and a diplomat's experience." The Ambassador's vocation is one that has long been in East Asia affairs. He was born in Peking, the capital, living there until he enrolled at Oberlin College where he earned his Ph.D. degree. While preparing for A.M. and Ph.D. degrees, he was a visiting fellow of the Harvard-Yenching Institute and at the University of Tokyo, Kyoto Imperial University, University of Tokyo and University of Chicago. He returned to Harvard to become professor of Japanese history and director of the Center for East Asian Studies.

Mr. Reischauer encouraged the Lecture做梦 to Japan-Korea Secretariat. He also was a member of the Army department's post-war advisory committee and the Japan-U.S. Education and Social Science Mission to Japan.

Among his books are Japan Past and Present, United States and Japan: Toward a New Far Eastern Policy, and Watanabe: An Asian Policy.

To the Editor:
I wish to convey my thanks to all those who participated in the Wallingford Connecticut Census. We had hoped to find more active student support in this matter, but our efforts were limited by time and the nature of the activity. It was a great help to me in my role as President to have the opportunity to talk with so many students and faculty members.
For the future, we should consider having a more active role in planning and implementing student activities. I believe that participation in student life is vital to the success of the college and that it should be encouraged at every level.
Sincerely yours,
Peter O. Adams
Conn. Citizens Form Counselling Service

New London is the headquarters of a newly formed counselling service. Citizens for Draft Education of Southeastern Connecticut is a group of citizens from the area who are interested in providing guidance young men as to their rights and privileges under the existing draft laws. The non-profit organization was originally located in a parish house, but was transferred when the parish trustees decided their activities weren't proper to be carried on church property. They are now housed in the YWCA.

For many Draft Education, which has only been in existence for a month, hopes to reach a draft-exempt category which can be drafted, but he is not asked to bear arms. Mr. Desiderato continued that since a 1965 Supreme Court decision, the conditions that are necessary to obtain a C.O. status have changed. Before this time, the grounds had to be religious, however, if the opposition to the war is moral, the reasons must be grounds to apply for C.O. status. Mr. Desiderato admitted, however, that "it is easier for a man to get C.O. status if he is a number of such a mass that he has taken a position against violence." While it is still difficult to obtain a C.O. or a 1-o classification, Mr. Desiderato stressed the fact that the services of a draft counselling service such as the one now in New London may help considerably by clarifying points of law for individuals and by preparing them for hearings before draft boards. Any contributions are welcome and can be sent to Ernest Schen-inger, Box 156.

Although I am one of the thirteen professed disciples of the 1967 Cabinet, this letter is a response to the moral demands against Cabinet in the editorial "An Oreo Flavored..." to the printing of that type of editorial itself. I will make an attempt to reflect the moral condition of Cabinet, nor will I attempt to illustrate to which each Cabinet member is a flaring (black or white) liberal, I am concerned rather with the mode of unrealistic editorializing upon which Conn has lately disinterested. If I make successful use of the aesthetic vocabulary of the recent Conn. Counsel in my de-scription of the editorial, then perhaps this letter will serve a useful purpose. I am sure the campus is beginning to develop a high degree of autonomy by an exchange with a men's school is desirable. Mr. Janssen stated. Conn could have a repartition of the educational departments and a program exchange for classes. Under this plan, he explained, Conn would remain a separate institution while enjoy- ing the benefits of co-education. He stated that Conn has "everything to gain and nothing to lose" with such a program. Janssen insisted that co-education is "theirs and theirs alone."

21 Sr. Government Majors Establish $130 Book Fund

Government majors of the class of 1968 have paid high tribute to a distinguished teacher and scholar, Dr. Marjorie R. Dilley, by establishing a Book Fund in her honor.

Majors Contribute
This year's 21 senior government majors have contributed approximately $130 for books for the Marjorie R. Dilley Seminar Room, which is to be part of the proposed addition to the college's Falster Library. The seminar room is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Joel J. Barton of New York City in recognition of Professor Dilley's outstanding contributions to students.

Miss Dilley, chairman of the government department since 1946, received a scroll announcing the Book Fund by which the seniors, Patricia Albahlo, made the presentation of the scroll and a plaque, which will be placed in the completed seminar room. The fund for the books, which may be selected by Miss Dilley or the government department, will be supplemented in the following years by annual gifts from these students.

African Authority
Professor Dilley is one of this country's earliest Africans whose book, British Policy in Kenya Colony has become a classic study of Great Britain's colonial policy. The book first appeared in 1937 and was republished in 1966 by Frank Cass of London. Dr. Dilley has been a member of the Connecticut College faculty since 1935.

Universities Intend To Readmit Drafted

WASHINGTON (CPS) - A number of universities, most of them in the Ivy League, are planning to readmit graduate students who are drafted out of school next year.

Some of the schools have also decided to readmit graduate students who go to jail for resisting the draft, a position urged by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Beginning in June there will be no deferments for any graduate students, except those in the second or further years of study and in medical and dental fields.

Hartford, Columbia, Yale, Princeton and Duke Universities will admit students who are drafted or go to jail. The Universities of Chicago and Rochester will readmit students who are drafted but have made no statement as to whether they are drafted.

The University of Iowa will give partial credit to students who are drafted in mid-semester.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology has asked for occupational deferments for its teaching and research assistants.

The Federal Interagency Committee on Education has also announced that Federal fellow scholarships to students who are drafted, or go to jail, will be supplemented in the following years by annual gifts from the students.

The awards of these students, except those in the second or further years of study, will be selected by Miss Dilley or the government department.

Selected by the college's government department, the five students will be readmitted to the university's graduate school in the completed seminar room, which is to be part of the proposed addition to the college's Falster Library.

The seminar room is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Joel J. Barton of New York City in recognition of Professor Dilley's outstanding contributions to students.

Five Jr s. Chosen To Serve As Interns In Washington

GOVERNMENT INTERNS 5 (to 6) Helen Harasimowicz, Tina Baldoni, Anne Bonsell, Jan MacDonald, Claire Eldridge.

Five Cson juniors, Tina Baldoni, Anne Bonsell, Claire Eldridge, Helen Harasimowicz and Jan MacDonald, will join the political activity in Washington, D.C. this summer by serving internships in various federal agencies.

Selected by the college's government department, the five ungraduate students will spend 12 weeks in the nation's capital as participants in a joint internship program sponsored by Mount Holyoke, Wheaton, and Connecticut Colleges.

The internships, which begin this year on June 10, were arranged for Cson students by Dr. Marjorie R. Dilley, professor and chairman of the government department. The program provides students with an opportunity to gain first-hand experience and training in governmental processes.

In addition to their assigned duties, the students will be able to participate in seminars for interns, sponsored by federal agencies and other collegiate intern programs.

This, a government major from Brookline, Massachusetts, will serve as an aide to Rep. Margaret Heckler (R-Mass.).

Anne, who is a history major from Putney, Vermont, will work for the Banking and Finance Committee of the House of Representatives.

Also a government major, Jan, who is from Winter Park, Indiana, will work in the national head-quarters of the Peace Corps.

Two girls will work for the Agency for International Development. Claire, a history major from Ithaca, New York, will join the Office of Management and Budget.

Helen, a government major from Gardner, Massachusetts, will work for the Departmental Personnel Division of AID.

Johs awarded to the interns do not provide salaries; however, the students will receive some financial assistance in meeting their living expenses in Washington from the government department's two privately endowed funds, the Henry B. Plant Memorial Fund for summer intern opportunities, and the Edith and Maurice J. Bernstein Fund for political science.
School's out.
And you chanted the schoolyard's freedom song.
What a relief it was. June. A million days of summer ahead. All for you.
But not for all.
Because not too long ago, there were no pencils, no books and "homework" never ended for many children.
Take a good look at that child above. He's a very real child on his way home from a very real day's work. Photographer Lewis Hine took the picture some sixty years ago. That boy, and thousands like him, worked alongside men and women in factories all over the country in some plants, the long workday wasn't enough. Men, women and children were given homework. That's what the boy is carrying. Child labor didn't just go away one day. Most of it is gone because unions like ours, the International Ladies' Garment Workers', believed the only homework a child should do was the "three R's."
Today, the 450,000 members of the ILGWU are proud of the progress we have made; proud of our union which helped eliminate child labor and the sweatshop; which helped win fair wages and decent working conditions. Our signature is the union label sewn into women's and children's garments. It is a symbol of progress made; and more progress to come.
To our children, and to children everywhere: have a wonderful vacation.

"No more pencils.
No more books.
No more..."
NEWS NOTES

President Charles E. Shain has succeeded President James I. Armstrong of Middlebury College as president of The New England Colleges Fund, Inc., an association which jointly seeks financial support for higher education from business and industry.

Members of the Class of 1970 who are interested in being on the Conn-Quest Committee, please come to the meeting Thurs., May 16, at 4:30 p.m. in the student lounge.

The “Million for McCarthy” drive ended their three-week money-making effort on campus with a car wash last Wed. Approximately 30 girls washed faculty and student cars. There was overwhelming response from the faculty, but the students didn’t exhibit equal support — in fact, four students and one graduate student brought their cars.

The car wash netted $62, and the total proceeds from the drive were $375, which will be sent to the Boston headquarters.

Celebrate one of the last days of classes by attending a song fest, Mon., May 6, featuring the Wesleyan Cardinals and the Boston headquarters.
