Connecticut College Visited By Lifeless' Bloodless Bimbo
by Rita Hurst

Last year at this time Lifeless' Bloodless Bimbo took a unique approach to publicity at the college. This year the group went one step further and actually published a flyer advertising the group.

The flyer, known as the "Lifeless Bloodless Bimbo Manual," was passed out to the students and faculty alike, with the aim of drawing attention to the group's presence on campus.

The flyer included a brief description of the group's history, their past performances, and their upcoming events. It also featured a list of the group's members, along with their contact information.

The flyer was distributed in various locations on campus, including the student union, the library, and the campus green. It was also posted on the college's bulletin boards and on the group's website.

In addition to the flyer, the group also had a booth set up in the student union during lunchtime, where they handed out pamphlets and answered questions from interested students.

The group's approach to publicity was received positively by the students, who found the group's methods refreshing and innovative. The flyer and booth were well-received, and the group received a positive response from the administration as well.

Overall, the group's approach to publicity was a success, and it helped to increase awareness of their presence on campus. The group continued to perform throughout the year, and their popularity grew as a result of their innovative publicity efforts.
Summer Jobs Are Educational

An Editorial

As the remaining days of classes tick off, it is time to consider summer plans. The manpower shortage continues, and high pay attracts many college girls toward summer jobs during the war years, and they find these summers more interesting and valuable. Educators and businessmen also found this to be a valuable period of activity to aid in summer work experience for college students.

Vacation jobs are an opportunity for discovering the world. When the student spends a summer in a field that will bring to light his hidden points at the same time that it allows the student to note the plans of the job have been experienced a student can better evaluate his choice of a career. Students are introduced to various personalities with which one must work in later jobs. A summer's trial of the beginner and other employees becomes a reality. The college girl can be given an actual and a method of situations which arise in working positions.

Practical knowledge which can be employed in later college courses is often obtained in summer work. The theories, principles, education, and sciences become meaningful when applied to everyday situations. Practices obtained in work during the summers of college are ranked high by future employers, whatever the job is the same and one of an entirely different type. Puntnctuality is demanded and girls learn that they are not wanted on jobs if they lack this habit. Responsibilities must also be accepted and fulfilled in the business world. Both of these are learned to some extent in college, but there are constant experiences in the summer job.

There are many opportunities in summer jobs this year. Excellent positions are available as camp leaders and in various railroad and in various railroad and janitorial work. Many are paid well, and the student can develop his student work experience very well.

Free Speech

Dear Editor,

The Marysik institute has sent us 235 Ex Libris plates which were placed in the text books which Connecticut College girls were assigned to Charles uni.

Sincerely,

Eleanor Roberts '48

What do you think of holding house dances, considering the facilities available?

Jean Stannard '47: I think it's a wonderful idea! It would be fun to have some such activity to attend instead of going downtown all the time. Grace Smith and East and Thanes would be the logical houses to hold such dances and those living elsewhere could also use the facilities. The Masaryk institute has sent us 205 Ex Libris plates from Prague, Czechoslovakia. Many thanks to Mrs. Acheson.

Gerry Dean '49: I think that organized house dances, like after- noon tea dances, would be a great idea. It would take advantage of big weekend. When the refreshments and decorations were well-planned the whole house helped to put the dance over, the plan could be very successful.

Art Hand '48: I think a plan for house dances should include a recreation hall on campus. The recreation or living rooms are too small for good dances. For houses with small living rooms like Vital or those in the north quad, the plan would be impossible. Also, I don't care for the idea because it causes too much segregation and clique-ishness among the various houses. It would be better to have dances from other houses and classes.

Sincerely,

Lucy Keating '48, Kitty Wile '47, Jennifer Metzer '49, Clare Willard '49, Betty Leslie '49, Norma Johnson '49, Martha O'Neil '49, Laura Allen '49, Nancy Yeager '47, Frances O'Neil '49, Marjorie Byck '49, Helene Suzer '48, Jean Hemmerly '47, Bettsey McKey '47.

British Loan Will Stimulate World Trade and Prosperity

by Julia Cooper

At this writing the three and three-quarter billion dollar credit to Great Britain, authorized by the United States government, lies unobtrusively on the table of the War Department. It has been negotiated with the United States government and the Bank of England, as a result of the negotiations between the United States and Great Britain, concerning war supplies and the financing of war needs. The United States government has offered to lend Great Britain the sum of three and three-quarter billion dollars, with the understanding that Great Britain will repay the loan in the future. However, it is not yet apparent whether Great Britain will be able to repay the loan, or whether the United States government will be able to repay the loan.

The proposed loan is a direct gift from the United States government to Great Britain, with the understanding that Great Britain will repay the loan in the future. However, it is not yet apparent whether Great Britain will be able to repay the loan, or whether the United States government will be able to repay the loan.

Hearings on the bill are ready to begin in the House Banking and Currency Committee, but it will be some weeks before action will be taken. During this time, the committee will be hearing evidence that the loan is essential to the war effort.

The loan is essential to the war effort, because it is necessary to ship large amounts of goods to Great Britain, and the loan will provide the means for shipping these goods. The loan will also provide the means for shipping goods to other countries that are in need of war supplies.

The twelfth annual Father’s Day at Connecticut College was celebrated on Saturday, May 15. Out-of-town licenses, or "concealed weapons" was the obvious sign of the times, as CC enjoyed a day of outdoor fun.

As early as 12 on Saturday morning, the dads and mothers trooped into the chapel for the start of the service. Following the morning service the fathers attended an assembly in the old gymnasium, the event being called "a picnic in the morning." President Blunt reviewed the history of Father’s Day indulgently, stating that the tradition first started in 1910, and that the first celebration had been held on this day. After this the disk spoke to the assembly, starting the tradition for the participation of the dads in the events of the day.

As the disk spoke to the assembly, the disk talked about the traditions of the day and the significance of the fathers in the lives of their daughters. He also alluded to the importance of the fathers in the college community, and the role they play in the lives of their daughters.

Caught on Campus

Last weekend was a busy one for three CC girls whose engagements were announced within the past few days. First on the list is Denise Austin '46, Fred Silverman, an ex-lieutenant in the Sig- nal Corps, is the lucky man. Denise and Fred have made no definite wedding plans because Fred is on his way back to N. Y. U. to complete his course in civil engineering.

The second engaged couple is Sue Hunt '47 and Doug Howard, whose engagement wasn't be made until June but the ring is already on Sue's finger. Sue met Doug in her freshman year while Doug was in the Navy.
