"Wig and Candle" Presents Finished Production

"Arms and the Man" Well Received

"Arms and the Man" by Bernard Shaw, presented in the gymnasium on May 19th, under the direction of Miss Virginia Eggleston, was an unusually finished production from the standpoint of both setting and action. A picturesque, humorous play in itself, it was acted throughout in really professional style. Each member of the cast gave an excellent performance. Elizabeth Gallup showed even more than her usual talent in her sympathetic interpretation of the character of the hero, Captain Bluntschli, and Madeline Thune as Raina, gave a charming and delicate performance in a part which seemed made for her. Ann Heilpern, with her usual finished acting, made a picturesque, passionate Louka that we will not soon forget, while Dorothy Bayley played the part of the handsome Serguis with ability and understanding. The other characterizations, while perhaps less finished, were excellent. Dorothy Pasknik acted the humorous role of Katherine very well, although with a tendency toward exaggeration. Nikola and Major Petkoff were admirably played by Edna Kelley and Esther Beach. Barbara Ward, in a minor part, made a dashing officer.

The setting of the play, in charge of Jane Kinney and Elizabeth McLaughlin, furnished a really beautiful background for the action. More elaborate than the setting usually required for the semi-annual plays, it carried out the Bulgarian atmosphere to the smallest detail. The first scene was especially effective, with the huge canopied bed, the wavering candles, and the dim light coming through the cracks of the closed shutters. In the last scene the white tiled stove was the keynote of the foreign effect. The period costumes procured by a committee under Helen Reynolds were quaint and lovely.

The choice of the play was especially fortunate, in view of the fact that the other plays given in the last two years have been modern and of the same type. "Arms and the Man", although of the light, humorous nature that is always popular with an audience, did not conform to that type and thus seemed different and more interesting. The director, Miss Eggleston, the excellent cast, and all chairmen of committees deserve a great deal of praise for the finished way in which it was presented.

SILVER BAY

Silver Bay, Lake George, will be the meeting place next month of more than five hundred college girls. The Conference this year if judged by the time and careful thought spent in planning for it will be one of the most successful ever held. From June 19 to June 28 there will be the opportunity of hearing the foremost thinkers of the day on religious, economic, and political questions which bear directly upon our lives. Dr. Henry Tweedy of Yale and Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, Chairman of the Interracial Commission in Detroit will be among the prominent leaders. Mary

"BEHOLD THAT DREAMER" TEXT OF VESPERS SERMON

Rev. P. M. Kerridge Speaks

At Vespers on Sunday, May 22, the Reverend P. M. Kerridge, pastor of the St. James Episcopal Church, New London, spoke. His sermon was very short but he stressed the fact that Dreamers, whom we usually consider idlers, bring all the constructive beauty into the world. Mr. Kerridge used as his text "Behold That Dreamer". Using as examples, the dreamer who visualized the tube under the Hudson river, and the Russian dreamer who, at the last assembly of the League of Nations proposed the first practical plan of peace. Mr. Kerridge proved that "the world would be a miserable place without dreamers." He said, "The Deamer is near the practical idealism of Jesus."

However, Mr. Kerridge went on to say, the dreamer has little chance in this work-a-day world where men see God only as the image of themselves and call upon him only in need. Religion is the net result of dreamers, and the real dream of God begins in improving ourselves, that we may dare to look at Him.

The Dreamer's dreams, continued Mr. Kerridge, are Man's only hope. The Spirit of Truth, which is God, teaches us that dreaming makes for preservation of truth, and beauty, and hope in the world.

Saying that poetry alone could bring home the significance of the Dreamer, Mr. Kerridge read Arthur William Edgar O'Shaughnessy's poem, "We are the music-makers. . ."

ANNUAL A. A. BANQUET TO BE HELD MONDAY

Faculty To Serve

The Annual Spring Banquet of the Athletic Association is to be held on the evening of Monday, May twenty-eighth. The President and Mrs. Marshall, Dean Nye, Dean Benedict and Dr. and Mrs. Bates will be present as guests of honor. The Tennis Cup, given by President Marshall, will be presented to the winner of the Tennis Tournament, as well as all the awards for points won during the year. The speakers of the evening will probably be the President, Dean Benedict, Miss Stanwood, and Elizabeth Spiers '28, president of the Athletic Association. An interesting addition to the evening's festivities will be found in the service of the members of the faculty and their wives as waiters and waitresses!

RIDING MEET PROVES SPECTACULAR SUCCESS

The spring riding meet proved to be one of the most successful events of the season. The presence of a band provided by Mr. Chaney lent much to the atmosphere of the occasion—their red jackets providing a note of color and gaiety. A great many people attended the meet, and those who did not, wished they had when they heard about it. It seems almost incredible that so much could be accomplished in the very few weeks that the girls have been riding. They owe a great deal to Mr. Chaney for his skillful instruction.

The most spectacular events on the program were the trick riding by Emmy Lou Dickey and Betty Gordon, and the roping by Mr. Chaney and Mr. Hadlai Hull. It was enough to make the audience gasp when the girls rode standing on the horses' backs, or lay across the horses' backs with only one foot in the stirrup. The clever handling of the rope by both Mr. Chaney and Mr. Hull excited a

SENIORS WIN CUP IN COMPETITIVE SING

Judges' Decision Unanimous

To the Senior class went the cup for first place in the annual competitive step sing held on Monday, May 21. The Juniors whose formation was particularly commendable, won second place. Because of the rain on Friday afternoon the sing had to be postponed until Monday. The four classes in turn marched to their positions on the steps, to a marching song which was chosen to be sung in all competitive sings by all four classes, composed by Roberta Bitgood '28. Each class marched up on to the library steps and there sang a school song followed by a class song. Judging of merits of the four classes was based first on percentage of the class membership in attendance; second on material, and third on presentation, including both marching and formation as well as singing. At the close of the sing, President Marshall announced that the judges had unanimously awarded first place to the Seniors, and then presented the silver cup which he donated to Rhoda Booth, Senior song leader. The judges were Mrs. Percie G. Huddle, instructor in music of the New London schools; Miss Roach, and Dr. Erb.

Dr. Gerard E. Jensen

To say "goodbye" is always a difficult and trying thing to do, and this year farewells will be even more painful than usual. We are losing not only the graduating class, the Seniors whom we have loved and admired for three years, but also the man who has represented to us the highest of ideals and aims throughout our college life. The fact that President Marshall is leaving will mean to many of us a deep personal loss, and to the college as a whole a vacancy that even through the years can never be completely filled. To him we extend our thanks in appreciation of all that he has meant to us—and always will mean to us—and what he has stood for as President of Connecticut College. He has won our admiration and devotion, and we long for an opportunity to show him that he has pointed out a pathway that we hope to follow in the years to come. Our best wishes go to him, now, and always. It is difficult to express our faith and trust, but it is a feeling that is predominantly present—among undergraduates, and alumnae. Our pledge to President Marshall is that whatever we do, we shall try to do beautifully.

great deal of admiration and applause. They provided a real cowboy atmosphere with their western hats and trappings.

To a very enthusiastic and admiring audience, Mr. Warren Reynolds exhibited Mr. Chaney's five-gaited Kentucky show horse, "Little John Smith". This was one of the most out-standing occurrences of the meet for everyone was more than interested, fascinated rather, by the beauty and daintiness of this show horse.

The quadrille was another interesting performance. To people who know very little about horses, it was amazing to see them go through the figures of the dance. Here, as in every event, indeed, the music added greatly.

The first event on the program was the Grand Entry and Drill in which the following girls took part: D. Davenport '28, M. Ferris '28, J. Fitch '31, T. Foote '28, E. Gordon '28, J. Hamlet '29, M. Kimball '31, M. Nichols '30, J. Williams '31, R. Barry '30, G. MacFarren '31, S. Vogel '29, E. Dickey '28, E. Mann '28, A. Van Natta '31, H. Boyd '30, E. Simonton '29.

The second event was "form". The participants were: E. Dickey, J. Fitch, E. Gordon, E. Mann, A. Van Natta, J. Williams. In this, first place went to E. Dickey, second to E. Gordon, and third to J. Fitch. In the third event which was stake turning, first place went to M. Kamball who showed marked ability in the manner in which she handled her horse. Second place went to J. Fitch, and third to E. Simonton. During the intermission "Little John Smith" was shown, followed by the fourth event which was bare back riding. E. Simonton took first place in this with E. Dickey second and Mary Ferris third. After this came the interesting quadrille with J. Fitch, E. Gordon, M. Kimball, A. Van Natta, E. Mann, and V. Mead participating. After the trick riding came the last event which was a relay race. The gray team was composed of E. Dickey, E. Mann, M. Nichols. The members of the sorrel team were J. Fitch, M. Kamball, E. Simonton, and the bay team, E. Moise, A. Van Natta, J. Williams. The sorrel team won the race and first place went to M. Kimball.

The judges in the meet were Mr. A. C. Pratt, Deep River, Conn., and Mr. Warren Reynolds, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Mr. Morgan R. Chaney is the instructor and Elizabeth Gordon was manger.

its gift to the college, with appropriate ceremonies. The Alumnae will march to the Quadrangle, preceding the Juniors who will bear the laurel chain. After the class day exercises, President Marshall's reception will be held in Knowlton House, from four to six o'clock.

Monday evening will be campus night, when all the campus will be brightly lighted. There will be a band concert in the quadrangle from eight to ten p. m., followed at ten o'clock by the Senior Sing on the library steps.

On Tuesday, June twelfth, the commencement exercises will be held in the quadrangle, at 10 a. m., or if the weather is not good, in the gymnasium. The academic year formally ends at noon on June twelfth.

The committee in charge of commencement is: Chairman, Margaret Howard; Eleanor Wood, class president, member ex-officio; banquet, Jeanette Bradley; prom, Margaret Bell; class day, Merle Hawley; class gift, Margaret Merriam; programs and announcements, Katherine Sterritt.

Dearest Family: My mood may have been light and airy in the past but there is a funeral mein today. I would like to write on paper with a deep black border but that would be an artificial aid to composition and in my present dejected condition I need no assistance. My eloquence is perfectly able to get along nicely without any help. In a less critical cause I might not be able to struggle along and put my point across. I might have to place a microscopic organ inside the envelope that would start playing "She was too young to die" when you opened the letter. I think it's a great idea for future use but in this case, as I said before, it would be superfluous.

You see it's this way. About four months ago, as you will recall, you put me on a dress allowance. This was a very clever move on your part. I am discovering just how clever, each day now. I have considered this carefully, and have come to the conclusion that the allowance is perfectly adequate for everything except dresses, and even you will admit that this is quite a serious drawback in a dress allowance. I can buy stockings, a book now and then, I can get a shampoo, I can get a manicure, I can send my friends engagement presents, I can send flowers on Mothers' Day, I can have my laundry done, I can get stationery, I can even buy a special delivery stamp, I can keep myself in Victrola records, I can go to the movies. But, says she wildly tearing her hair, I cannot buy a dress.

Here I am reminded of several jokes on the same subject. Not the same subject that I am talking about, but the jokes are all about the same thing and can be readily applied. I'll tell the jokes to introduce a little comedy interest, and then will continue in the relentless manner which I am pursuing.

The first joke was part of a curtain in the Greenwich Village Follies several years ago. The curtain showed a street in Greenwich Village. One store was a bookstore and the sign over the door read: "Mac's Bookstore; Our Motto—'Every Family Should Have a Book'."

The second joke was a subtitle in a Reginald Denny movie. He was a professor trying to write a book during a summer vacation. One of his friends was trying to get him to go out on a party and Reginald Denny murmured piteously, "But I have to write a book" and his friend answered, "You don't have to write a book. Somebody else wrote a book. I'll buy you a book."

The third and last was printed in College Humor or an equally worthy magazine. There was a picture of two dumb-looking girls in front of a bookstore. One said, "Let's get him a book for graduation." And the other said, "He doesn't need a book, he has a book."

This is the sentence for you to write me, "You don't need a dress, you have a dress." The reasoning is sound I'll admit, but there's a catch in it. I have a dress, you are perfectly right, but it's not a school dress. I did have a school dress but it died last week.

That was a sad story. It was a green dress with a pleated skirt and it was the worst looking dress I ever saw, but I loved it with a mother's love because it was six inches too big for me. I pinned it with a large safety pin and arranged the belt so that the safety pin would always show. This was satisfactory for two years but last week something happened to an elbow and now there is no cloth, but only air where the cloth should be. I fell in a faint on the floor when

A. A. U. W. BRIDGE HELD IN KNOWLTON HOUSE

The New London Chapter of the Association of University Women held a bridge in Knowlton Salon on the twenty-fifth of May from three to five o'clock. The bridge is held for the purpose of raising money for the Graduate Scholarship and International Fellowship Funds of the American Association of University Women. This Association is cooperating with the International Federation of University Women in a campaign to raise a fund of one million dollars, the interest of which is to furnish funds for a number of fellowships. These are to be awarded to the most outstanding women for study and research in countries other than their own. Miss Helen Whiton of the New London Chapter is Chairman of the Committee for the bridge.

I discovered it. I stayed in my room for three days to hide my sorrow. Then funeral services were conducted.

I have afternoon dresses and an evening dress or maybe even two but my sport clothes are non-existent. I think I will sew together a few bath towels. It's awful being the daughter of a wholesale drygoods man and having nothing to wear. Nearly as bad as being a grocer's daughter and starving.

I could wear evening dresses to school, I suppose, but mother has always been so excited about raising us simply like the Spartans, leaving their children on mountain tops to be eaten by eagles that I'm sure she'd revolt at the idea of my attending psych. or ec. in a gold lace get-up. Dear Beatrice, what shall I do?

BASEBALL SEASON ENDED

The three remaining baseball games of the season have been played off with great rapidity by the four classes. On Saturday two games were played, one between the Juniors and Seniors, and one between the Sophomores and Freshmen. The Seniors won out in the first instance with a score of 9-6, while the score for the Sophomore-Freshman game was a tie. The latter game was conspicuous for its unusual number of "struck outs" on either side.

The final game was played on the Tuesday following, between the Seniors and Freshmen. In this too the Seniors were successful with a score of 10-9. The game was close as the score indicates.
