Ames releases report

President Ames has released a "working paper" on the goals and direction of the College to the faculty and the administration. The full text is printed on pages four and five. The President emphasized both in the report and in an interview that this report is solely a "starting point."

He explained that the question he raises in the report will be considered by the entire community for the formulation of a statement of Conn.'s purpose and role.

He stated that the problem will be considered by the academic policy committee or a special ad-hoc committee, in order to obtain input from all campus constituencies.

According to Ames, the matter is "now up to a planning group. I've raised the types of questions we should address."

---

SGA resolves conflict
Over property damage

by Anne Robillard

The conflict between the Judiciary Board and physical plant over the billing procedure for property damage was resolved at a recent Student Government Association meeting.

Leroy Knight, treasurer of the college, attended the meeting and when questioned by JB Chairman, Leslie Margolin, he explained the change in billing policy. The new policy satisfies the Judiciary Board's previous complaints.

The problem arose when the Judiciary Board questioned physical plant's standard billing procedure which billed students for replacement materials and labor costs without making a distinction between vandalism and accidental damage.

The Judiciary Board determines when a student should be billed but they wanted to make the distinction between deliberate and accidental damage in billing the student.

In an interview, Mr. Knight as the reasoning behind it. He explained that physical plant has now "established a working agreement with the Judiciary Board and accounting which is that we recognize that the cost of labor with respect to repairs is legitimate."

He explained that by keeping better records "we've discovered that we are generating enough hours in the repair of vandalism for the hiring of a full time person, about 366 hours per month."

Since these repairs take away from maintenance Mr. Knight believes "vandalism is a proper thing to charge." When vandalism is clear the bill will include both costs of labor and materials.

Knight says that he recognizes the fact that we all have accidents and this is why students who are billed for accidental damage will only be charged for the materials. Knight explained that the money generated through these payments is kept aside for "use exclusively" in the repair of vandalism.

Elimination of SGA exec. branch
Suggested at all student forum

The elimination of the executive branch of the Student Government Association, as suggested by Ken Cerrar ('77) at the all student forum on March 31, met with some support from others attending. The faction supporting this suggestion voiced their belief that the needs of students were not being met by the SGA in its present form.

The proposal suggested the elimination of all SGA branches except what were termed "the essential workings." These proposals, as stated by the Social Board, and the House Councils were the functions considered to be essential.

The Judiciary Board and Social Board were generally considered to be successful in meeting student needs.

The forum was called by President of SGA, Rick Allen to discuss the increase in vandalism and student apathy. He explained why he believed the SGA is an important organization needed by the students.

He pointed out that though it was a farce of a forum which allowed students to participate on faculty committees, it is through the SGA that the mechanisms of elections for students take place. Because of this committee participation students have some say in policy decisions.

In contrast to Allen's viewpoint, the faction supporting the elimination of executive board felt that it was not effective in contributing to the policy-making process.

Two week suspension reinstituted
By J. B. for repeated offenders

by Anne Robillard

The Judiciary Board is reinstituting a policy of recommending a two week suspension as a punitive measure. The decision was made at a Judiciary Board meeting Sunday night.

This move is in attempt to deal with those students who are repeated minor offenders. Leslie Margolin, Judiciary Board Chairman, explained the motives behind these and other JB policy changes. "There is a seeming lack of respect on the part of some students, and we can't change the situation here, we're responsible to see the system work."

According to Margolin the two week suspension had, for the most part, been done away with in favor of semester suspensions. However, since suspension for a semester is such an extreme measure it was applied only in the most serious cases. The Judiciary Board used censure, which Margolin termed, "slaps on the wrist" as a disciplinary measure.

The punitive two week suspension is also being considered as a standard punishment for students who fail to pay property damages. According to Margolin only one student who was billed last semester paid by the due date - the last month and there are bills outstanding from spring semester of last year.

These students are not supposed to be allowed to register but this has not been the case. With the removal of the need to check in at the accounting table, registration these students passed through registration without challenge. The Board is asking the Registrar through President Ames for cooperation in the enforcement of this policy.

Students who have bills outstanding are being given the chance to contest the bill or pay it. Failure to do so will result in a recommendation by JB of a two week suspension.

The Board also considered a number of other problems. Margolin stated that "JB is looking into the possibility of dealing with students who are residential problems." Under this policy students who are chronic dorm problems could be faced with the necessity of moving out of campus for a period of time at the request of JB.

---

Margaret Watson, Dean of Student Affairs states, "I'm supportive of the idea. It would not be taking away their chance at an education but would be denying them a privilege." She believes that up till now "there has not been a clear understanding that there are some people who can't live in dormitories because of antisocial or intolerable behavior."

Dean Watson continued, "This is a chance to think of the hardship these students are imposing on other students. Students must be concerned about their neighbors, if they're not their cases must be heard and judged by their peers."

The Board is also considering pressing charges against students for a breach of contract - noncompliance with Judiciary Board procedure or the Honor Code. Margolin notes "Though it would be hard to prove it would concern continued on page sixteen.

---

Spencer Collier awarded 1976 Watson fellowships

by Dudley Flaxe

Carol Ann Spencer and Michael Collier are the two Connecticut College students chosen as recipients for the 1976 Thomas J. Watson Fellowship Awards.

Carol Ann Spencer, a senior from Princeton, New Jersey, is a political and visual Sociology major. She plans to pursue a career in photojournalism, and will use the fellowship to do a photo-essay in Haiti on the socio-economic conditions of that country. The title of her written proposal was "Photojournalism and Socio-Economic Conditions."

Michael Collier, a senior from Phoenix, Arizona, has concentrated in Interdisciplinary major, as did Ms. Spencer. Called Literature: Its Theory and Practice. The title of his proposal was "The Role of Small Magazines and Presses in National Literary History - England and Ireland." He plans to use his award to do literary work in England and Ireland next year.

The two seniors were nominated by a selection committee consisting of three students, Julie Buchwalter, Alan Spose, and Barbara Green, one professor, Mr. Seng, and the Dean of the College, Dean Cobb. To be considered for the Fellowships, interested students were asked to submit written proposals of their plans for the awards. These proposals were then reviewed by the committee, and personal interviews were also required to enable the applicants to elaborate on their proposals.

Applicants were evaluated on the significance, imagination, and practicality of their proposals. The applicants were then graded on a 1-5 point scale with each member of the committee casting one vote.

The four applicants with the highest point average were then chosen to be interviewed in one-hour sessions by a representative of the Thomas J. Watson Foundation. The two finalists were then chosen to be interviewed by the Fellows.

The two Fellows will be expected to maintain contact with the Foundation during their period abroad and must submit to the Foundation within one month of the Fellowship's completion an evaluation of their fellowship year together with an accounting of the expenditure of fellowship funds.

George Pilch, author of Paper Lion and The Bogey Man, will be the scheduled speaker for the 1976 commencement exercises.
It's time for answers

This college is suffering from three major problems:
1) lack of money, 2) lack of direction, and 3) lack of leadership. These problems are not only obvious but were repeatedly emphasized by the faculty in a recent Pundit poll. The president's "working paper" is a manifestation of our problems. It does not provide leadership, direction, or answers.

Pundit recognizes the need for a statement of the goals and direction of the college and has-in the past asked that such a statement be formulated.

The statement released by President Ames is a "working paper," described as a starting point, raising numerous questions. A statement on the direction and goals of the College was suggested by Barnes and Roche over a year ago. That statement has still not been formulated.

How can academic cuts be justified when we don't have a clear direction? Valid academic cuts can only be made as part of a coherent and cohesive curriculum.

Pundit believes the President is sidestepping his responsibility to the College. Seeking input is a legitimate process but ultimately the direction of the College must be decided by the President.

The working paper was right for an earlier time. The time for the President to ask questions and turn over the process to a committee for discussion has long since passed. He should now be taking the lead in forming a statement of what our direction is, not posing questions about what it might be. Only then can cutbacks be made and development funds sought with a true sense of purpose.

---

Student Government Elections
Tuesday, April 13 and Wednesday April 14
All day in the post office
Amalgro for candidates speeches and questions Monday April 12

IMPORTANT

Letters to the editor—

Thanks

To The Editors:

We would like to thank everyone involved in the library benefit ball. About 360 people attended and all proceeds for the new library total $44,000. Faculty members, administrators, and many students worked hard on planning the dance, and making sure it ran smoothly that night. Their hard work and success should be recognized. Thanks go to all the bartenders, waitresses, ticket sellers, the Shwiffs, and those who cleaned up afterwards.

We hope the college community enjoyed the dance and that we will participate in another fundraising event.

Thanks to all who helped.
Ted Hathaway and
Ann Rumage

No joke

To the Editor:

It is unfortunate to see students on this campus frequently not respond to a fire alarm whether it be false or not. Students have to take a more responsible attitude towards fire alarms and get out of the dorm and to safety as quickly as possible. Hopefully no major fires will occur at Conn. but there is no way to foresee the future. Also the emptying of fire extinguishers as a joke should stop, because your life may depend upon them at some point during your stay here. Please act responsibly!

Peter Belofant
Mark Banchik

The Housing Committee has completed the housing arrangements for the coming year. The lottery card packets must be picked up from Dean Watson's office on Monday, April 12, by the present Housefellows.

Please hold compulsory house meetings at 10:00 p.m. on Tuesday, April 13, for all students in your house who plan to participate in the lottery. The completed lottery cards must be returned to Dean Watson by noon Friday, April 16, 1976. All students are reminded that their $100.00 reservation fee was due March 15. If this fee has not been paid the student will find there is no card in your packet from them. All financial arrangements must be made with the Accounting Office. It is our hope that by following the time schedule the Committee has established, students will have their dormitory assignments by April 27, 1976, and will have signed into specific rooms by Tuesday, May 4, 1976.

Tentative dormitory quotas and floor plan arrangements will be posted in Crozier-Williams. The dormitory computer assignment list will also be posted in the main lobby of Crozier-Williams.
Election '76

No real winners in New York, Wisconsin

by Michael J. Ganley

The results of Tuesday's primaries in New York and Wisconsin did not provide any of the three major candidates still seeking the Democratic nomination with the decisive victories they had predicted. Although it had been forecast that the two primaries were likely to have determined once and for all, the chances of eventual victory for the three candidates, the future is still unclear.

Jimmy Carter, Henry Jackson and Morris Udall had all declared New York and Wisconsin as being crucial to their candidacies and they all had clearly defined objectives in those states. None of the candidates, however, managed to accomplish, what they said they needed to do, and as a result, all of them will go for broke in the upcoming primary in Pennsylvania on April 27.

Jimmy Carter hoped to win big in Wisconsin and run a strong second in New York. Most political analysts agreed that such a performance by Carter would have made him virtually unstoppable by anyone, including Hubert Humphrey. Carter had watched Carter's string of primary victories with increasing concern.

In Wisconsin, however, Carter edged Udall by a mere 7,000 votes and a percentage point, and finished third in New York with 33 delegates. Although disappointed by this diminished momentum, Carter can still clinch the nomination with a clear-cut victory in Penn. over Jackson and Udall.

Jackson, on the other hand, ignored Wisconsin and had predicted a landslide victory in New York. Although he was able to finish first with 100 of New York's 774 convention delegates, he failed to receive the majority he had claimed.

Morris Udall campaigned vigorously in both states and hoped to win in Wisconsin and finish close behind Jackson in New York. He did finish second in New York with 68 delegates, yet by being narrowly beaten by Carter in Wisconsin, Udall has not come up with a primary victory. The Arizona Democrat claimed partial success, however, and contended that he has stopped the Carter bandwagon.

What Udall may have really accomplished, however, was to keep Humphrey's foot in the door by slowing up Carter's seemingly ever-increasing momentum. Humphrey, who is hoping to receive the nomination in a brokered convention, is deeply distressed by Carter's impressive performance thus far, and is now being urged to enter some of the primaries in the near future, particularly New Jersey.

Many political analysts also believe that the issues will play a greater role in such highly personalized states as Penn., with a high unemployment rate, thereby further complicating the race.

The final assessment of the Wisconsin and New York primaries is that there were many survivors and no real winners. As Walter Cronkite remarked, "We still have a race."

Vegetarians cite concern for health, Religion among reasons for practice

by Janet Neyes

Defining vegetarianism is like defining religion. There are as many different definitions as there are vegetarians, and just as there is no religion without god, there is more to vegetarianism than avoiding meat.

Basically, a vegetarian avoids eating the flesh of any animal, including meat, poultry, fish, and seafood, and any food derived from the body of an animal. (Including cheese made with rennet, sappings of an animal's internal organs, Dactilo-vegetarian uses dairy products and or eggs. Other vegetarians eat fruits, eggs, and or avoid eggs. "Pure" or "total" vegetarians avoid any food served from animal sources, (including dairy products, eggs, honey, gelatin . . .) and eat only plant foods of plant origin, such as grains, legumes, nuts, and seeds. The vegan is a total vegetarian who also avoids eggs and dairy products for clothing and household uses. This means no leather shoes, no gut tennis racket strings, or violin bow strings, and the list goes on. Some vegetarians use no white sugar or refined flour, and as few processed foods as possible. By their very way of expressing a reverence for life,

Others come to vegetarianism out of concern for the environment and the world population. Realizing that the natural resources are growing population on the same high level of energy and resource consumption, and practicing, leading human ecologists such as Frances Shae have advocated switching from a meat centered diet to a grain centered diet.

Many vegetarians find that their diet is the best way to keep the body healthy and they believe it gives them. Heart disease and cancer, have been shown to be tied to the high levels of cholesterol, carcinogens and saturated fats found in animal foods. The animal diseases Salmonellosis and Trichinosis are absent from plant foods. Rachel Carson pointed out over a decade ago, in her book Silent Spring that chemicals such as DDT build up in the food chain and are stored in animal fat. Recent reports by such consumer ad- vocacy organizations as the Center for Science in the continued on page 10

Former Soviet psychiatrist speaks against harsh treatment of dissidents

by Michael Harvey

Leningrad. The Kazan Hospital is surrounded by barbed wire and dissidents share cells with political criminals who murder. Dissidents are treated with drugs that induce body disorders, disrupt their thinking. The guards, many of whom are convicted criminals, give malicious beatings to the patients.

Patients are denied books, newspapers or trips to the bathroom, and are at the guards' mercy for a cigarette. Teenage dissidents have been subjected to this treatment which is regulated by a police commissar, but that no one in Soviet society escapes the demands of the totalitarian, hierarchical state and, therefore, many doctors are indirectly pressured by the KGB to recommend commitment to mental hospitals regardless of medical findings.

This method for dealing with dissidents has several other advantages. By their very nature, says Doctor Segal, psychiatrists are reluctant to certify that anyone is mentally disturbed. This reluctance, coupled with hierarchical pressure for commitment, makes it easier to do so.

An attempt to prosecute dissidents in civil courts failed, because of scandalous 'international publicity,' Mr. Segal said. Soviet mental hospitals were co-opted into systems for silencing dissent. Dr. Segal said in 1969, "The State has expanded the statutes defining mentally unbalanced persons to include anyone who might present a potential danger to society or who may display socially dangerous tendencies." These definitions were hopelessly broad and allowed people in power to commit those they considered dissidents.

The KGB continues to use mental hospitals as their weapon for controlling political dissidents because, in the eyes of the West, the fate of a dissenter appears to be removed from police hands and placed under the jurisdiction of "respectable doctors." In international protest against KGB mistreatment of dissidents, we may now be accused as bourgeois propagandists.

Doctor Segal points out, however, that no one in Soviet society escapes the demands of the totalitarian, hierarchical state and, therefore, many doctors are indirectly pressured by the KGB to recommend commitment to mental hospitals regardless of medical findings.

This method for dealing with dissidents has several other advantages. By their very nature, says Doctor Segal, psychiatrists are reluctant to certify that anyone is mentally disturbed. This reluctance, coupled with hierarchical pressure for commitment, makes it easier to do so. The guards, many of whom are convicted criminals, give malicious beatings to the patients.

Patients are denied books, newspapers or trips to the bathroom, and are at the guards' mercy for a cigarette. Teenage dissidents have been subjected to this treatment which is regulated by a police commissar, but that no one in Soviet society escapes the demands of the totalitarian, hierarchical state and, therefore, many doctors are indirectly pressured by the KGB to recommend commitment to mental hospitals regardless of medical findings.

This method for dealing with dissidents has several other advantages. By their very nature, says Doctor Segal, psychiatrists are reluctant to certify that anyone is mentally disturbed. This reluctance, coupled with hierarchical pressure for commitment, makes it easier to do so.

An attempt to prosecute dissidents in civil courts failed, because of scandalous 'international publicity,' Mr. Segal said. Soviet mental hospitals were co-opted into systems for silencing dissent. Dr. Segal said in 1969, "The State has expanded the statutes defining mentally unbalanced persons to include anyone who might present a potential danger to society or who may display socially dangerous tendencies." These definitions were hopelessly broad and allowed people in power to commit those they considered dissidents. The KGB continues to use mental hospitals as their weapon for controlling political dissidents because, in the eyes of the West, the fate of a dissenter appears to be removed from police hands and placed under the jurisdiction of "respectable doctors." In international protest against KGB mistreatment of dissidents, we may now be accused as bourgeois propagandists.

Doctor Segal points out, however, that no one in Soviet society escapes the demands of the totalitarian, hierarchical state and, therefore, many doctors are indirectly pressured by the KGB to recommend commitment to mental hospitals regardless of medical findings.

This method for dealing with dissidents has several other advantages. By their very nature, says Doctor Segal, psychiatrists are reluctant to certify that anyone is mentally disturbed. This reluctance, coupled with hierarchical pressure for commitment, makes it easier to do so.

An attempt to prosecute dissidents in civil courts failed, because of scandalous 'international publicity,' Mr. Segal said. Soviet mental hospitals were co-opted into systems for silencing dissent. Dr. Segal said in 1969, "The State has expanded the statutes defining mentally unbalanced persons to include anyone who might present a potential danger to society or who may display socially dangerous tendencies." These definitions were hopelessly broad and allowed people in power to commit those they considered dissidents.

The KGB continues to use mental hospitals as their weapon for controlling political dissidents because, in the eyes of the West, the fate of a dissenter appears to be removed from police hands and placed under the jurisdiction of "respectable doctors." In international protest against KGB mistreatment of dissidents, we may now be accused as bourgeois propagandists.

Doctor Segal points out, however, that no one in Soviet society escapes the demands of the totalitarian, hierarchical state and, therefore, many doctors are indirectly pressured by the KGB to recommend commitment to mental hospitals regardless of medical findings.
Connecticut College—It’s mission and it’s future: The attached paper also prepared with two purposes in mind: to share my views about the College’s mission and to provide the starting point for the preparation of a new development plan.

With the help of the Development Committee and the Academic Policy Committee, I am confident that this spring we can make some significant progress in moving forward in drawing up a comprehensive plan for the College, a task which must be achieved over the next several months in view of the new governance structure in the fall.

After a period of great confidence and growth in higher education, it seems to me that confusion today about its mission and its value. Some critics would measure the worth of a college education almost solely by how much it improves one’s earning capacity. Others would ask whether the humanistic studies have much utility in terms of helping to solve the formidable problems that confront the world today. These are no times for a failure of nerve. We should reaffirm the basic values of liberal education while seeking new approaches that will make it more vital and beneficial to society.

First and foremost, the liberal education is necessary for any academic discipline where they are analyzed, weighed, and compared, and where new perceptions are gained. This process enables students to acquire a breadth of outlook and encourages the disciplined and informed thinking that will stand them in good stead in whatever careers they may undertake. We seek to offer a humanistic education that strongholds students’ understanding of themselves, of others and of society. The curriculum and the manner in which courses are taught are aimed not simply at conveying knowledge—but at enabling students to sharpen their powers of analysis, judgment and expression. We want our students to become independent thinkers, for whom the process of questioning becomes a habit of mind.

To a degree it is appropriate to evaluate education by how well it provides the skills that will be required in their careers. But no less valuable is the other aspect of learning which should be prized simply because of their capacity to enrich our lives. Consider the study of natural science; it may lead some to technical careers, but everyone gains appreciation and enjoyment of nature from a fuller understanding of its laws.

Or take the arts; we may enjoy a painting or a piece of music, but for the artist uses a particular medium to express feeling. Former President Rosemary Park aptly stated that "our primary goal of liberal education is to free one from parochialism.

This broadening of vision constitutes an important step in the acquisition of a sense of values; it is a process which helps us to order the incidents with specific thoughts in ways that will serve as a guide to action and commitment. Those studies which encourage some of the best that mankind has thought and written in and which we come to appreciate his greatest achievements, whether they be in art, in science, or in the world of political affairs, supply us with standards and examples which can improve our efforts. The study of the values of society, of the questions about how we should live with relation to one another, must be at the heart of a liberal education. Its great potential for contributing to the welfare of society is its capacity to heighten a person’s moral and ethical awareness.

When one considers the goals of a liberal education in the context of the problems facing society, there can be little doubt that the College’s role is at least as important today as it ever was in the past. Yet, if we are to retain our vitality we will also have to be more alert to change than we ever were in the past.

The world in which our students will be giving their talents and energies will be far different from the one in which we, the administrators and faculty, were educated, and in which we developed our values and educational beliefs. It is hard to see far into the crystal ball, but some areas that will require special attention are clear enough.

In all likelihood, an increasing number of our students will elect to continue their education after college, some in graduate school but probably mostly in the professional schools. We must regularly review the kind of preparation and pre-professional advising the College is providing so that our students need not be using the campus in the morning. They have been locked into the buildings in the morning, Abbey, continued on page eleven

Don’t knock it until you’ve tried it; Purdidi did

By gauzy Feldstein In an attempt to obtain first-hand knowledge of the doings for the Conn. College community, a Purdidi reporter spent five hours on campus Saturday, April 3. The following account overlaps two shifts; 8 p.m.—1 a.m.

"If we report there, (at the gatehouse) we’re checking the car," stated Roy Eaton, Jr., who is in his 6th year with the college. The son of Sgt. Roy Eaton, is a graduate student at Conn., and stressed the fact that often cars are waved by because he recognizes the students.

In response to campus complaints that cars were being checked at the gatehouse, Eaton explained that cars don’t need a sticker, because there is an ID card on a person on duty recognizes a student, he’ll let them go through; if he doesn’t, he’ll ask an ID card only. All cars, however, are checked.

Several members of security criticized the lack of upkeep of the gatehouse, citing the difficulty of being on the passenger side. They believe the island across from Fanning would be an ideal location. Also, the gatehouse has been undersupervised.

That night, two cars sped by the gatehouse without stopping. The driving unit caught with one and gave the student a warning, but the other car was not found after the campus was circled twice.

The majority of the evening was spent driving around with the driving unit, referred to as Unit One. There were two men in the unit, Dick Whitlam, 29, who has been with the force for 3 months. He usually works the midnight shift (12A), but since the force was short two people in the building the night of the latter part of the evening shift, as well.

At 8 p.m., the unit shed off the lights and locked the Post Office. It then proceeded to patrol the campus. "This is the only lull period we have," stated Whitlam. He explained that the earlier force, was especially busy, since they were short on men.

One problem that takes up a lot of security’s time is a student being locked out of a room. "If we get the call, we do it immediately," said Whitlam. "We have to drop everything and go." There were three lockouts in dormitories that night, which is low, according to Whitlam. A student also left his coat in the computer room in Hill, which had to be unzipped.

As the car patrolled the campus, Wiesniewski elaborated on the midnight shift (12A). The midnight shift (12A) turns the lights on and unlocks the buildings in the morning. They check the entire campus, Abbey, continued on page eleven interaction between departments will enable us to achieve some consolidation while maintaining and improving the quality of our instruction.

The College’s strength depends upon the intellectual stimulation and intellectual challenge provided by the faculty. At Connecticut this means outstanding performance in the lecture sections and in the laboratories, and more. Our faculty, committed primarily to understanding our students, must guide them to use much time working with students outside regular classroom hours. Students come to know faculty members at the College more closely than they would at the larger university and have the opportunity to learn far more as a result.

Valuable as this mode of instruction is, it cannot crowd out the time for faculty to engage in scholarly research and to acquire new knowledge, which is the sine qua non of their teaching depends on the stimulation and renewal gained through these activities. The rapidity of change in the world and the rate at which new knowledge is acquired demand more, and we hope, far more, than faculty members have opportunities to keep abreast of the many needs of community development must have high priority during this period of the "stealth recession." Turning next to our students, one goal difficulty facing them is a continuing closure in projecting enrollments. Those who will be between 17 and 19 years old by 1980, the one held in February in which attendance was increased beyond the dormitory room, dining room, and classroom, campus life will become a more stimulating complement and balance to the academic life.

The change in 1968 toward coeducation has enriched all aspects of campus life. Yet, the result is by no means complete. Although we have achieved a two to three ratio of men to women to students of providing an education to become very high. Those that are larger, however, risk losing the personal touch.

Our Admissions Office has been making concerted effort to inform prospective minority-background students about College’s programs. This important task should be continued, especially if the need for diversification of campus life more supportive of the needs of these students. We must also continue our efforts to attract more black scholars to our faculty.

Although Connecticut College is adjacent to two large communities, our environment is essentially rural. We do not have the resources and urban life-style, and public policy on financial aid will all affect the quality of the experience and make the business of projecting enrollments a risky one indeed. It may be possible to compensate for decreasing enrollments in the 17 to 21-year-old age group by attracting more students who attend classes during the day and in the evening and summer sessions. This is easier for those colleges which are located in or near large population centers, but there is little reason to doubt that our work and get a Program which could be considerably expanded if it were extended to those who hold down a college degree, but who would enjoy continuing education.

In conclusion, it should be our goal to maintain enrollments at about the present level, provided that it is possible to do so within admissions standards. Among four-year liberal arts colleges, Connecticut is about average in size. Those that are much smaller are less able to attract diversity both in their students and in their curricular programs. In addition, they lack economy of scale, so that the cost per student of providing an education tends to become very high. Those that are larger, however, risk losing the personal touch.

Our Admissions Office has been making concerted effort to inform prospective minority-background students about College’s programs. This important task should be continued, especially if the need for diversification of campus life more supportive of the needs of these students. We must also continue our efforts to attract more black scholars to our faculty.

Although Connecticut College is adjacent to two large communities, our environment is essentially rural. We do not have the resources and urban life-style, and public policy on financial aid will all affect the quality of the experience and make the business of projecting enrollments a risky one indeed. It may be possible to compensate for decreasing enrollments in the 17 to 21-year-old age group by attracting more students who attend classes during the day and in the evening and summer sessions. This is easier for those colleges which are located in or near large population centers, but there is little reason to doubt that our work and get a Program which could be considerably expanded if it were extended to those who hold down a college degree, but who would enjoy continuing education.

In conclusion, it should be our goal to maintain enrollments at about the present level, provided that it is possible to do so within admissions standards. Among four-year liberal arts colleges, Connecticut is about average in size. Those that are much smaller are less able to attract diversity both in their students and in their curricular programs. In addition, they lack economy of scale, so that the cost per student of providing an education tends to become very high. Those that are larger, however, risk losing the personal touch.

Our Admissions Office has been making concerted effort to inform prospective minority-background students about College’s programs. This important task should be continued, especially if the need for diversification of campus life more supportive of the needs of these students. We must also continue our efforts to attract more black scholars to our faculty.

Although Connecticut College is adjacent to two large communities, our environment is essentially rural. We do not have the resources and urban life-style, and public policy on financial aid will all affect the quality of the experience and make the business of projecting enrollments a risky one indeed. It may be possible to compensate for decreasing enrollments in the 17 to 21-year-old age group by attracting more students who attend classes during the day and in the evening and summer sessions. This is easier for those colleges which are located in or near large population centers, but there is little reason to doubt that our work and get a Program which could be considerably expanded if it were extended to those who hold down a college degree, but who would enjoy continuing education.

In conclusion, it should be our goal to maintain enrollments at about the present level, provided that it is possible to do so within admissions standards. Among four-year liberal arts colleges, Connecticut is about average in size. Those that are much smaller are less able to attract diversity both in their students and in their curricular programs. In addition, they lack economy of scale, so that the cost per student of providing an education tends to become very high. Those that are larger, however, risk losing the personal touch.

Our Admissions Office has been making concerted effort to inform prospective minority-background students about College’s programs. This important task should be continued, especially if the need for diversification of campus life more supportive of the needs of these students. We must also continue our efforts to attract more black scholars to our faculty.

Although Connecticut College is adjacent to two large communities, our environment is essentially rural. We do not have the resources and urban life-style, and public policy on financial aid will all affect the quality of the experience and make the business of projecting enrollments a risky one indeed. It may be possible to compensate for decreasing enrollments in the 17 to 21-year-old age group by attracting more students who attend classes during the day and in the evening and summer sessions. This is easier for those colleges which are located in or near large population centers, but there is little reason to doubt that our work and get a Program which could be considerably expanded if it were extended to those who hold down a college degree, but who would enjoy continuing education.

In conclusion, it should be our goal to maintain enrollments at about the present level, provided that it is possible to do so within admissions standards. Among four-year liberal arts colleges, Connecticut is about average in size. Those that are much smaller are less able to attract diversity both in their students and in their curricular programs. In addition, they lack economy of scale, so that the cost per student of providing an education tends to become very high. Those that are larger, however, risk losing the personal touch.

Our Admissions Office has been making concerted effort to inform prospective minority-background students about College’s programs. This important task should be continued, especially if the need for diversification of campus life more supportive of the needs of these students. We must also continue our efforts to attract more black scholars to our faculty.

Although Connecticut College is adjacent to two large communities, our environment is essentially rural. We do not have the resources and urban life-style, and public policy on financial aid will all affect the quality of the experience and make the business of projecting enrollments a risky one indeed. It may be possible to compensate for decreasing enrollments in the 17 to 21-year-old age group by attracting more students who attend classes during the day and in the evening and summer sessions. This is easier for those colleges which are located in or near large population centers, but there is little reason to doubt that our work and get a Program which could be considerably expanded if it were extended to those who hold down a college degree, but who would enjoy continuing education.

In conclusion, it should be our goal to maintain enrollments at about the present level, provided that it is possible to do so within admissions standards. Among four-year liberal arts colleges, Connecticut is about average in size. Those that are much smaller are less able to attract diversity both in their students and in their curricular programs. In addition, they lack economy of scale, so that the cost per student of providing an education tends to become very high. Those that are larger, however, risk losing the personal touch.

Our Admissions Office has been making concerted effort to inform prospective minority-background students about College’s programs. This important task should be continued, especially if the need for diversification of campus life more supportive of the needs of these students. We must also continue our efforts to attract more black scholars to our faculty.

Although Connecticut College is adjacent to two large communities, our environment is essentially rural. We do not have the resources and urban life-style, and public policy on financial aid will all affect the quality of the experience and make the business of projecting enrollments a risky one indeed. It may be possible to compensate for decreasing enrollments in the 17 to 21-year-old age group by attracting more students who attend classes during the day and in the evening and summer sessions. This is easier for those colleges which are located in or near large population centers, but there is little reason to doubt that our work and get a Program which could be considerably expanded if it were extended to those who hold down a college degree, but who would enjoy continuing education.

In conclusion, it should be our goal to maintain enrollments at about the present level, provided that it is possible to do so within admissions standards. Among four-year liberal arts colleges, Connecticut is about average in size. Those that are much smaller are less able to attract diversity both in their students and in their curricular programs. In addition, they lack economy of scale, so that the cost per student of providing an education tends to become very high. Those that are larger, however, risk losing the personal touch.
MARK GROGAN
The phrase "student government" has become synonymous with trite, repetitious, and administrative bullshit among students on campus. Obviously, one gets the general opinion the way it stands, the present system can't help but limp along. It takes two to tango down the merry path towards spathy; one group has to have something to be angry about, and the other has to sell the other on the ersatz unobjectiveness of the situation. From there the fence between the two gets larger, becoming filled with accusations, general misunderstanding, and increasing separation.

A polarization has taken place. The next question is "why?" In other words, who is to blame for the problem? It's an understandable loss of perspective by both sides; especially by the members of student government. The perspective I am talking about is that of purpose and direction. The definitions of these two words vary from group to group but the widest gulf seems to be between the students and those who represent them, Conn. College.

The divergence is understandable in light of the way people see their roles. The roles people play have a tendency to overshadow the true function of their position and their ability to cope creatively with new and demanding situations. Old definitions of purpose and direction and the roles they define for student government have to be given up for more vital and flexible definitions which are consistent with the pace of change and the needs of the Conn. College community.

I. Mark Grogan has nominated myself for the position of President of the student body because I have been interested in confronting the problems of Conn. College and in coming up with viable solutions (curbing student government completely). I have had no experience in student government, running, and no interest in classic governmental roles which include the job to get stuck in, I have a fresh perspective and the desire and ability to work at revising Conn. College into an institution and a community.

LESLIE MARGOLIN
With the approach of the new Student Government elections, I am giving thought to the recent campus controversies and to the future of Connecticut College. During my tenure in office I have worked diligently to reestablish and restructure the Judiciary Board to see it operate as an efficient and effective honor board.

Having served on the Judiciary Board since September, 1973, as its Chairman since February 1974, I have had ample opportunity to observe and participate in the various activities of the three branches of the Student Government Association. During my tenure in office I have worked diligently to reestablish and restructure the Judiciary Board to see it operate as an efficient and effective student government honor board.

The impressive amount of both social and academic policy revisions were approved and implemented during this period. While I still recognize a need for improvement in many of the proposed changes, I believe that after three years of judicial policy revision, questions, and suggestions, it is time for me to leave the Chairmanship to another and direct my energies toward other problems in the system.

As a member of the Executive Board serving on both the College Council and Student Assembly and various subcommittees of each, I have actively pursued such projects as the Day Student Lunch Program, Constitutional Revisions, Health Services, Security Review, and in some capacity chairing the College Council Sub-Committee on College Governance. I think my deep concern for the well-being of the college community is readily apparent. I sincerely believe that I have played an integral role in bringing about some form for the sake of the college community is readily apparent. I sincerely believe that I have played an integral role in bringing about a more open and inclusive form that can be supported by many of the major judicial and legislative actions of our Student Government Association. It is with this in mind that I feel confident in asking for your support.

MARY WRIGHT
During the past few weeks the former impossibly "temporarily" abolishing student government has become closer to a reality. All the values, standards, and concepts of student representation that generation has worked for could very easily be lost because we as a student body have not had the courage or strength to stand up for them. The idea of losing student government for six months to be reestablished in September to me is absurd. We, the students here at Conn now must be willing to take on this challenge of keeping us represented. I feel strongly enough about the importance of student representation to run for the office of Student Government president.

Over the past few years student government has had the respect of the administration and faculty as a voice of the student body. It was recognized as an equal partner in the decision making process, but during the past year it has lost respect due to a lack of student participation. There is no reason or excuse for letting a handful of students make all the decisions without hearing from the people they are representing. The officers can not possibly know how all of the students feel or think about issues facing the college community. As members of our college community to help these officers in determining the official opinions of the student body.

During my past year here at Conn nearly every person I've met has told me that this is a great college, a tremendous place to go to school, everyone loves it here, yet there are very few who are willing to take an active role to make it even better. It's now time we give Conn support for Conn by becoming involved. I hope during my term of office that I will give each and every campus student the opportunity to participate in school government through genuine interest. Those interested relating to current issues, try to solicit their ideas as much as possible through conferences and other dorm functions, and give my view on college government life with the hope that I can develop a better way for students to know what is happening in Conn. In order to avoid the crisis information system we had last year with the calendar example, endless discussions of anything I or any other officer might do next year, it will not be of any use unless we have your support.

JUDICIARY
The Morris Commission's report on the honor code is the chief reason it is unfair to impose it in the strictest sense; however they must also reflect the attitudes of the community to which it is accountable. Clearly then, each and every board member, especially the chairman who often represents students' interests and cases before the board must fulfill the following qualifications.

I. Commitment to the honor code in the Connecticut College community and it's possible to observe by the code. After serving two years on the board, I am convinced that it does work. Of course it is not perfect, or else the system would break down at some point, however, after hearing most of the cases to come before the board in the last two years it is a substantial majority of students live within the framework of the honor code. Each and every board member must be aware of the attitudes of the community. Throughout my term I have continued from page seven.
Election Platforms

Vice-President

DONNA HODGE

I would like to introduce myself to the Connecticut College community by first stating that I am a member of the Class of 1978. I bring myself to the attention of the campus community because I am currently seeking the office of vice-president of Student Government here at Connecticut College.

My reason for seeking this office essentially is because I am interested in seeking a sound student governing body at Conn. College. I realize that the only way we are going to achieve this is through the process of Student Government elections. And that is why I am running. I am interested in the overall student involvement on this campus, and the role that we as students have in the various decision-making processes of the college.

My qualifications for running for this office is simply that I want the job. By wanting and running for this office, I am making the commitment to you, the student body, that I am willing to give my time and energy to doing the best possible job that I can. Too many times we sit down and complain about things among ourselves, while never taking the initiative to try and make a change. Running for this office is my way of taking the initiative in an attempt to bring about a stronger, more active student governing body.

In speaking with many of the students on this campus, the major areas of concern are (1) the rising costs of attending Conn. College; (2) what will be done with the old library once the new one is completed; (3) the need for more social, and recreational activities; and (4) improvements in the sanitary conditions of the dorms.

I am not in the position to make any promises as to what can or cannot be done about these and other issues. I can say, however, that if I am elected these issues will be looked into and given the utmost concern and attention.

My involvement in extracurricular activities thus far includes: Connecticut College faculty-committee participant in Freshmen Orientation Program; member of the Executive Board of Unity House; member of the Admissions Committee of Unico; participant in Parent's Weekend Program; and involvement in intramural sports.

In closing, I ask for the support of the college community in my bid for this office, and I would ask everyone you know to come out and vote so we achieve a quorum.

JUDY NEWMAN

Many aspects of Connecticut College need to be altered to guarantee maintenance of the high quality of education that this school seeks to provide. We are witnessing a crucial period in Conn. history, and to eliminate vulnerability, decisive and immediate action must be taken.

Having spent almost one full year here, I have made an assessment of some of the things that we need and where we are going. In light of the apathy evident in recent student government elections, I have become convinced that revitalization of student government is imperative.

Therefore, if elected vice-president, work for that revitalization, trying to bring coherence and stimulation to the areas under the vice-president's jurisdiction.

Clubs are an essential part of Conn. College as they are in the foreground of extracurricular activities. While some clubs are obviously strong, there are some that are weak. As Student Club co-ordinator I would work for the stimulation of membership to the clubs, insuring opportunities for students to participate actively in viable extracurricular programs.

The financial situation at Conn. is one which directly affects everyone. As chairman of the sub-committee on finances I would strive to make a conscientious analysis of financial matters. Budgetary priorities must be analyzed and reevaluated to assure a smooth economic foundation on which this school can operate. Such matters include, for example, furthering of clubs in the financial support which organizations in this school receive.

The student government organization is an essential one at Conn. It speaks for the student body, and guarantees that the students are justly represented. I would seek to eliminate the source of apathy that was so evident in recent elections. As chairman of the election board, I would be sure that the duties of the officers are sufficiently publicized and that the importance of student government is realized, in an attempt to stir the consciousness of the Conn. College student body.

One of the most important jobs of the vice-president is that of the non-voting advisor to the freshman class, and the overseeing of elections to that body. It is within the freshman class that much of our potential rests. Freshmen must be geared towards activity at Conn. The elected officers of this class must be capable of contributing strength and cohesion to the school.

I would work to make sure that I presented an organized, capable, and stronger initiative and use its power more decisively on Issues concerning students. Continued on page ten.

ANN RUMAGE

I, Ann Rumage, am a candidate for Vice President of Student Government and have been actively involved in Student Government since my Freshman year. I have had the opportunity of serving as secretary of Student Government, house president, as a member of the College Development Committee, and the Student Trustee Committee.

Through these experiences I feel I can effectively deal with students, as well as faculty and administration.

Next fall will be a new experience for the college community. The number of student representatives on the student-faculty committees have been cut in half which adds more importance to the Student Government Association. Student Assembly and College Council will deal with new problems and grievances which directly relate to each student; the new committees won't be able to deal effectively with the day-to-day details of work. So the assembly will have more responsibility to the dorms for the issues and receive student opinion. But students will have to let their house presidents know their opinions on the problems. Then Student Assembly can be a responsible governmental body with student power. With less student representation there will be a greater need for a stronger Student Government.

Student Government must get a sense of student's priorities on the budgeting problem. As chairman of the Finance Sub-committee, I must find a balance between athletics, academics and Social Board needs. A fair decision can only be made by student input as a guide. At last year's budget committee, it was obvious that more people want to participate and solve problems but don't know how. By working more closely with Freshman Class Government, perhaps more freshmen will want to be involved and will learn early how to become active in Student Government. Upperclassmen can also help freshmen by leading them in positive ways. Student Government must help lead the students in solving problems and improving the Connecticut College community.

Many problems have been forced on us because of our financial position. The positive long range goals must be reached through proactive planning. Student Government helps solve these problems as well as day-to-day problems which directly and indirectly effect all of us especially students. Next year will be a change for the college, and Student Government needs to be more open than ever to be responsive to student grievances and desires. Student Government must control a forceful position with student input strengthening our stance.

ALAN SCHLESINGER

Election Platform for the Vice- President of Student Government

Alan Schlesinger advocates the following:

A vital reorganization of Student Government.

A reevaluation of students' needs and desired academically.

Create new interest and desire in a Student Government meaningful to the student body.

Student Government should take a stronger initiative and use its power more effectively on issues concerning students.

continued on page ten.
Music dept. recital:

Poetry set to music

A recital of contemporary music sponsored by the Connecticut College department of music will be given tonight at 8:30 p.m., Dana Concert Hall, Cummings Art Center.

Soprano Anita Telfermeze, who received her master's degree in music from Connecticut College, will be accompanied by concert pianist Clare Dale of New London; pianist Mary Hubbard of Ledyard, Yale University student; visiting instructor of harp Susan Davis, a member of the Eastern Connecticut Symphony; and U.S. Coast Guard Band member John Foltz, on percussion.

The program of poetry set to music will begin with "Quattro Liriche di Antonio Machado" (1944) by Alfonso Machado, followed by Stephen George's "Fuen Lieder, Op. 4" (1980) and "Madrigales, Book III" (1981) by Federico Garcia Lorca. The musical adaptation of Lorca's poetry was arranged especially by Jane-Ann Grelley.

Following intermission will be the continuation of "Madrigals, Book III." Eight songs of The Season of Time from the texts of In the 1966 International Music Competition in Geneva, the ensemble was a prize-winner and was awarded the special "Prix Joseph Fournier" for the best interpretation of a Bela Bartok String Quartet.

The performance by the Berlin String Quartet is the final concert in the 1976-78 Artist Series at Connecticut College.

Michael Grando returns to Conn.

With new mime repertoire

by Jim Dolekst

Michael Grando, a disciple of Marcel Marceau, and one of only a few professional mime artists, will return to Connecticut to perform a program of new pieces, Sunday at 8 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium.

Grando was a professional actor before he perfected his prowess for mime. He trained with Marcel Marceau in Paris for two years during the early 60s.

This weekend culminated in Grando's first major engagement at the Brussels World Fair in the late 60s, which was a great success.

Grando taught mime at Conn last year and last semester taught a special topic class for theater students. He has also taught at Rhode Island College, University of Rhode Island, and Brown. Aside from teaching, Grando has had performances all over the country in the past few years.

In this concert he will perform primarily new pieces. In last year's performance, Grando performed a variety of scenes, which were mostly college student-directed comedies. Though he had such an excellent response last year, Grando will perform more serious pieces this year, following requests by many theater students. The performance will include a piece that has been in the repertoire for a long time, "Old Age, New York."

Grando has been well received by the public. "The performance was enjoyable, entertaining, and moving. This year's performance will probably be even more spectacular than last year's.

Raitt gives phenomenal performance

Before packed house in Palmer

by Pam Jardine

"King of Hearts" will be shown Sunday, April 11 at 8 and 10 p.m. in Dana Hall. The 1987 film directed by Philippe Debroca stars Alan Bates and Genevieve Bujold.

The plot involves the invasion of a French town by the Germans. However, the residents have already escaped the village, leaving only the inmates of the asylum. The names are similarly to those of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." The film deals with the triumphs of the delirious innocence of the inmates over the able to make it tonight, but we'll play and pretend that she's here." A bit of theater, but suitable since it was April Fool's Day. There were many lighthearted jokes and ad-libbing all evening. They began a few chords, then Bonnie Raitt walked on, with a flourish of her blue handkerchief.

She was phenomenal. This isn't meant to sound overdone, but it's just the simple truth. The excellent performance is attributed partly to her, and partly to the audience. Rarely at Palmer has there been such an agreeable and responsive crowd.

Bonnie Raitt (who is a Radcliffe dropout, a Quaker, and the daughter of John Raitt, a Broadway performer) has been known to play anywhere from twenty minutes to an hour.

But Thursday night she gladly continued to play for nearly two hours. There is not much to say for the musical ability of her band; nor is Raitt's, they are all competent. But what heightened their performance even more so continued on page sixteen.

"King of Hearts": An Escape from reality

by Pam Jardine

"King of Hearts" will be shown Sunday, April 11 at 8 and 10 p.m. in Dana Hall. The 1987 film directed by Philippe Debroca stars Alan Bates and Genevieve Bujold.

The plot involves the invasion of a French town by the Germans. However, the residents have already escaped the village, leaving only the inmates of the asylum. The names are similarly to those of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest." The film deals with the triumphs of the delirious innocence of the inmates over the able to make it tonight, but we'll play and pretend that she's here." A bit of theater, but suitable since it was April Fool's Day. There were many lighthearted jokes and ad-libbing all evening. They began a few chords, then Bonnie Raitt walked on, with a flourish of her blue handkerchief.

She was phenomenal. This isn't meant to sound overdone, but it's just the simple truth. The excellent performance is attributed partly to her, and partly to the audience. Rarely at Palmer has there been such an agreeable and responsive crowd.

Bonnie Raitt (who is a Radcliffe dropout, a Quaker, and the daughter of John Raitt, a Broadway performer) has been known to play anywhere from twenty minutes to an hour.

But Thursday night she gladly continued to play for nearly two hours. There is not much to say for the musical ability of her band; nor is Raitt's, they are all competent. But what heightened their performance even more so continued on page sixteen.

"King of Hearts" is set during the second World War and captures the troubles and worries of the ordinary people. They are confused and lost, and they search for answers from the asylum they are locked up in. The film implies that the war is over but the everyday lives of the people continue on. The viewer is left wondering if the madness are inside or outside the asylum.

"King of Hearts" is set during the second World War and captures the troubles and worries of the ordinary people. They are confused and lost, and they search for answers from the asylum they are locked up in. The film implies that the war is over but the everyday lives of the people continue on. The viewer is left wondering if the madness are inside or outside the asylum.

"King of Hearts" is set during the second World War and captures the troubles and worries of the ordinary people. They are confused and lost, and they search for answers from the asylum they are locked up in. The film implies that the war is over but the everyday lives of the people continue on. The viewer is left wondering if the madness are inside or outside the asylum.
Summer sounds

by Keith Ritter

As the warmer weather draws nearer, so too does the intensity of summer music. This, to me, is music that captures the heat, pulse, and otherworldliness of an August night in a city. Most groups are on tour during the summer, publicizing albums which have come out in the spring. And for the intrepid reader, is where we are now.

Last summer, disco was the rage. However, disco (and its formula music) it lacks spontaneity. This summer will be, I believe, the summer of Latin music.

Now, some Latin music has always been around, usually in jazz circles. And there have been some attempts at commercial Latin-Rock; Santana, Malo, Barrabas. But this year I believe that people like Palmeri, Colon, Ponte and others are going to be heard by a wider audience than they have every attracted before.

One of the reasons I feel this way is the new Santana album is getting. This album, titled Amigos, is practically a study in the differences between disco music and Latin music. And every person I've played this album for has loved the Latin music and hated the disco drek.

Now, Santana's music in the past has not been Latin music; it was too electric an much of the power of it was lost in layers of synthesizers. But this year I say that it was bad; I am an avid admirer of the Santana band.

Poet, critic

To read

John Hollander, poet, critic, and editor, will read from his poetry on Sunday, April 30th, at 9 p.m. in a Knowlton living room. The reading is sponsored by the English Department's Colloquium Series.

A native of New York City, John Hollander received his B.A. and M.A. from Columbia University in 1950 and 1952 respectively, and his Ph.D. from Indiana University in 1959. From 1954 to 1957 he was Junior Fellow of the Society of Fellows of Harvard University and taught at Connecticut College and Yale. In 1963 Mr. Hollander taught at Princeton University as the Christian Gauss Lecturer and was the Visiting Professor at the Salzburg Seminars in American Civilization.

He spent 1967-68 at Churchill College, Cambridge University as the Overseas Fellow and in 1973-74 he was the Senior Fellow of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Since 1962, John Hollander has been a professor of English at Hunter College and in the Graduate Department of City University of New York.

Conn. professor organizes exhibit

Featuring syncronistic artwork

by Jim Diskant

Normally art history professors only organize art shows at that particular college; but Gall Levin Theodore, assistant professor of art history, has researched and organized an exhibit at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City. This exhibit features the work of the American artist Morgan Russell (1896-1953).

Theodore has just completed his doctoral thesis on Wassily Kandinsky's influence and the American avant-garde, 1912-1939 at Rutgers University. During this research she came across some old documents and a large collection of Morgan's Russell's work.

Russell founded and named a new style in art in 1913, the syncronism style. The movement's name is analogy to music. He combined fauvism and cubism to form synchronism with rhythmic curves. Projecting lights and color through lines and planes would be his object. It is a form of abstract art.

Loneliness and other problems of City are themes of 'Taxi Driver'

"Taxi Driver", now playing at the Garde Theatre, in New Haven, is a new film, which deals with one man's loneliness and how he deals with it. In addition, the film presents other problems which include violence, unfulfilled love, bitterness, the ugliness of a large city, pervasive and heavy abuse. The story, as well as the film, works because of the authenticity of these problems in today's society and is possible way in which they may be solved.

This is an extremely powerful film and its impact is hard. At times, the film is very violent, which is necessary and effective in the film. Therefore, the viewer should be warned that "Taxi Driver" is a hard film to digest and is not recommended for all.

Dancers perform in Spring Concert

"Taxi Driver", now playing at the Garde Theatre, is a new film, which deals with one man's loneliness and how he deals with it. In addition, the film presents other problems which include violence, unfulfilled love, bitterness, the ugliness of a large city, pervasive and heavy abuse. The story, as well as the film, works because of the authenticity of these problems in today's society and is possible way in which they may be solved.

This is an extremely powerful film and its impact is hard. At times, the film is very violent, which is necessary and effective in the film. Therefore, the viewer should be warned that "Taxi Driver" is a hard film to digest and is not recommended for all.

One day, while walking the streets, he sees a girl, whose beauty and supposed purity overwhelm him. She becomes an image of desire in a city that normally represents only flux to him. He takes her to a porno flick, which disgusts her and she leaves him. This rejection makes him search for vengeance and he decides to assassinate the presidential candidate for whom she worked.
Judiciary Board

continued from page seven

phased has been and continues to be on the importance of improved communication between the Judiciary Board and the student body, via the Chairman. My thoughts on the role of the J.B. chairman have not changed, but I do wish to add something regarding the Judiciary Board as a whole.

I believe the Honor System under which our school operates is a unique asset to Connecticut College. In order to be maintained, Judiciary Board must remain strong. I am confident that with the joint efforts of the Board and chairmen has enabled me to make the system the best it can be.

The chairman serves a number of functions. He or she must run a wholly structured and disciplined discussion in productive. I feel that I have learned how to conduct the meetings in such a way as to achieve maximum effectiveness.

In dealing with the rapport between the College and the Judiciary Board, I believe it should be somewhat extended. The only feeling I sense among students towards the Board is disinterest. The manner of having a student judiciary body is to provide judgment by a peer group in alleged violations of the honor codes. This should instill a sense of responsibility, not fear. Though all members of the Board should attempt to dispel the fear elements of isolation and tension with the student body, the chairman must especially try to do this since he or she is the chief of communication procedures and answers most questions on behalf of the Board.

Chairman is the chairman of the chairman and responsible for submitting a log of J.B. cases to the parking. This is not enough. Perhaps the chairman could write articles from time to time dealing with Board functions and the problems which seem to be occurring most frequently on campus. This would be a formal means of communication.

The informal means is obvious - students meet from time to time with the chairman at any time about any matter with which they feel he or she could be helpful. This is especially true when students encounter problems with professors. In these cases of academic violations, students sometimes express a lack of specificity in professional directions. The student feels uncomfortable confronting a professor with questions, he or she must feel comfortable dealing with the chairman. If the chairman conveys receptivity and students are not afraid of asking questions, the chairman can be reached, perhaps there will be less hesitancy about approaching him or her.

Here from these functions dealing directly with the Judiciary Board, the chairman is a member of the Executive Board of Student Government at least as the structure exists presently. As such, he or she must represent the student body at large on Student Assembly and College Council. This past year issues such as our new library, centralized dining, and of course, our ever-increasing tuition, were brought up before these bodies. There are certain to be more issues of the same import during the coming year. Obviously this election will decide whether or not students can have a say in the government in the future, but I only convey what the role of the J.B. chairman should be the Executive Board continue to function. I feel that as a member of the Executive Board, the same quality of openness one must display as J.B. chairman should exist on the part of Executive Board members.

I believe that the actual structure of the office of the chairman of the Judiciary Board is near to that of the task of the chairman to work with the school - not to be seen as someone set apart or above the student body as "the Lord High Executioner" as one of my professors kindly referred to the chairman earlier this year, but as a fellow student willing to put time and effort into better communications.

I am able to devote the time and interest to the work of the fall season is at least three. If elected, I will incorporate lectures and studies to increase. I feel that students shouldn't have to leave campus to find social activities. This campaign should offer a variety of activities to appeal to its diversified student social tastes.

I'm the type of person who likes to get involved and work hard, the development of my time will not be a hassle.

I've had several experiences proving my organization and cooperation with the student body, the chairman must especially try to do this since he or she is the chief of communication procedures and answers most questions on behalf of the Board.

I also have "hang in there"

Social Board

continued from page five

faculty development. More scholarship aid should be provided. The athletic program scholarship aid should be developed. The list could easily be added to, but me elaborate on these items, scholarship aid and faculty salaries.

We are now offering some form of financial aid to almost one-third of our students. As the tuition gap between the public and private institutions widen, we may have to move to the point where closer to half of the students should receive some form of aid, if the academic quality and diversity of the student body are to be maintained.

For the fall of 1975, the College has budgeted $1.4 million for the alimony. This is an ambitious goal for which I have been working. In the coming Spring and next year, the College must raise $1.4 million. This is a substantial amount of money. The College cannot expect to hold its outstanding younger faculty or attract those of highest promise to replace retiring members.

The requirements which I have outlined here are summarized in the Appendix. Most of these figures are only rough estimates to get the planning process under way. In detail, I have summarized in more detail by the Development Committee and by the Trustees. I urge you to set the goal of raising the total of $25 million over a seven-year period. For the years 1966-1967 through 1974-1975, the College acquired $3.8 million in financial aid and $15.1 million in other funds. In order to move closer to these levels, the College cannot expect to hold its outstanding younger faculty or attract those of highest promise to replace retiring members.

GOOBER GILDAY

My name is Goober Gilday and 1 am the Campaign Chairperson of the Social Board. If elected, I intend to make quite a few changes in the Social Board. I think the social activities on campus in the coming Spring and next year should be more interesting. We're going to party. If you're a frill, don't vote for me.

WORKING PAPER

continued from page five

vegetarians

continued from page three

Public Interest have pointed out the dangers of chemical preservatives and artificial food additives heavily used by the meat industry. Anthropology continues the discussion of our study of the peoples of superior health and long life spans whose diets include less animal foods than the American diet. (National Geographic often carries articles on such health matters.)

But where do vegetarians get their protein? Is a vegetarian diet nutritionally adequate? Isn't it boring? Are there any ethical considerations for vegetarians who avoid killing, don't they realize that death is a natural part of life? Meat is a practical and impossible to live without killing. After all, they kill plants to eat, and science seems to indicate that new life instead of eating meat, won't we be overrun with animals? And if we did stop eating meat, and released the land to grow more grain, would it really get to the point where we could not eat meat?

All these are valid questions, and they all deserve answers. The public space does not permit us in this article. If there is sufficient interest, I will continue this article next week to answer those and other questions about vegetarians and vegetarianism.
We're looking for one political activist on this campus.

That's right—just one individual committed to liberty should be reading this ad. Could it be you?

We're the Young Libertarian Alliance—the college affiliates of the rapidly-growing national Libertarian Party. We're organized VLA chapters on every major campus, and we need a coordinator right here.

Are you qualified for the job? The VLA coordinator must be someone who's dedicated to achieving a free society through political action. He—or she—will be responsible for establishing a VLA chapter, organizing meetings, rallies and demonstrations, and publicizing libertarianism.

The Libertarian Party, though less than five years old, is now organized in all 50 states. Our platform calls for a strict respect for civil liberties, a minimum role for government, and a free-market economy.

Roger MacBride, our presidential candidate, is a non-political businessman who recognizes that the Republican and Democratic Parties are entrenched, establishment institutions whose only goal is the perpetuation of their own power. The Libertarian Party is a new alternative—a young and dynamic political force that's committed to individual freedom and opposed to government oppression in all forms.

If you think you've got what it takes to be a VLA coordinator, write or call us collect. We've got a campus information kit that will get you started. And we'll give you all the help and advice we can.

Our final word: As a VLA campus coordinator, you'll do a lot of hard work. The salary is nil—but there is one small compensation: You'll be helping to achieve Freedom—Our Time.

YOUNG LIBERTARIAN ALLIANCE
1516 "P" Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20005
(202) 232-2089

We don't knock it—continued from page four

Lynne, Ryan-Allyn, and Dean Watson's house.

The evening (4-12) shift patrols the same area, but locks all buildings and turns lights off. The day shift (8-4) also patrols the entire campus.

All three shifts handle the money from Harris and the snack shop in Cro.

On each shift, usually two men ride, two patrol the campus on foot (referred to as Unit Two), and two check cars at the gate house.

At 4:45 p.m., Palmer Library reported a malfunctioning Xerox machine, which had jammed and caused paper to burn. The machine was turned off.

Shortly afterward, Wisniowski and Sgt. Eaton patrolled the campus, while Whitman and John Day, who has been with the force for two years, checked cars.

A caller reported a stranger wandering in Lambdin at 9:35. The man was Dick Varney, who is the only sighted, and the caller was not in any room. Security has no arresting power; they can only hold a person until the police arrive. They have not had any serious trouble apprehending suspects, "just getting kicked," said Officer Day.

At 10:20, Whitman and Wisniowski patrolled in the car. Day returned to Cro to patrol on foot, and Sgt. Eaton manned the gatehouse.

During the latter part of the shift security performed lock-up. This involves checking all doors and windows in the buildings. The following buildings were checked: New London, Hale Lab, Post Office, Blackstone, Smith-Burdick, Windham, the Chapel, Cummings, the Service Building at south campus, Palmer Auditorium, Bill, and Fanning.

Unit One returned to the gatehouses at 11:45. The householder of K.B. was there, reporting the sighting of a large rat in his dorm's dining room.

At midnight, a new shift took over. They were Paul Stublick, who had been working here for three days, and Dick Varney, who has been with the force for 7 years.

Varney, who is the only man experienced on all three shifts, usually works the day shift. He, too, was working at night to alleviate the shortage of men.

Commenting on his job, Varney said, "I've really enjoyed it. Most of the students on this campus are basically good kids." He added that it is hard to get help for the force; he had been working 14 days in a row. He said that a major concern of the men right now is the selection of the new Security Chief.

The driving unit proceeded to patrol the campus. A student was stopped for going the wrong way down the one way road in front of the new library.

Unit One also went off campus, checking Abbey and Holmes Hall.

Two more men joined the shift at 12:45: Michael Miller, who's been here two years, and Tracy Speaks, with the force for 8 months.

At 11:00 the Power House, which calls every hour to let security know that the lone man there is okay, called.

"From 12 o'clock on, the complete nerve center of the college is right here," Varney commented, explaining that all calls come through at the gatehouse phone at this time.

Earlier, Ben Wisniowski commented on the problem of false alarms; there had been 8 so far this year. At 1:15, Unit One arrived at Marshall, and discovered that the alarm had been set off in the Complex. All floors on the west side of the Complex were checked, but there was no sign of fire.

Coffee spoon—continued from page nine

John Day attributes some of the lack of security at Conn. to the fact that students aren't informed. "They don't know what we do, they think all we do is ride."
Taxi—continued from page nine

Before his assassination attempt, he needs a twelve year old prostitute, whom he befriends and tries to straighten out. The climax and surprise ending of the story makes a strong impact that will leave the viewer thinking for a long time after the film's conclusion.

Robert DeNiro is brilliant as Travis. As a follow up to his Oscar winning performance in "Godfather Part 2," "Taxi Driver" proves that DeNiro is one of the best actors in films today. He is very effective in his creation of an extremely complex character. The remaining members of the cast are also excellent. Jodi Foster is also great as the thirteen year old prostitute. She certainly proves her versatility in this film.

One may argue that Cybill Shepard, in her role of the girl, is typecast and that she is unable to act. Regardless of her acting ability, I believe that she is good in the film. She perfectly fills the role of a beautiful, self-centered girl, who is accustomed to using those around her.

Finally, Martin Scorsese should be highly praised for his direction. There are moments of brilliance in "Taxi Driver." Among them is the image at the beginning of the film, when a taxi appears through a mist of steam in the middle of the night. The loneliness of the taxi is engulfed by the heat of the city.

Finally, the many problems presented in the film are not completely answered, yet the questions which seem to work is violence. Thus, lingering question after seeing "Taxi Driver" is whether or not violence is a justifiable solution to the problems of the large city.

Food Day—continued from page 12

The Development Committee is sponsoring a ten telephone to raise money for the operating budget. The telephone will take place on April 12-15, 22-25 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. in the development office in Fanning. Volunteers are needed. Contact Robbie Roberts ext. 586 or post office box 1137.

Changes must come through the individual, and through group efforts. Food Day, a nationwide event, is a day to begin learning about these problems, about possible group efforts, about what the individual can do, and about ways of educating one's self.

To at least partially alleviate the problem, Joan Tabachnick is attempting to establish a list of students who are living off campus. These listings would include information as to who the students are, where the apartment is located, how many rooms it has, if rooms are needed, and how much the apartment rents for.

The listing will also include whether utilities are included, approximately when the students plan to move out (i.e. May 785), miscellaneous comments concerning the landlord, pets and convenience.

According to Joan this service should eventually help both the students looking for apartments and the landlords who need to rent out apartments. She emphasizes that the project needs help from students who are living off campus.

Joan asks those living off campus who have the necessary information to Box 1757 Connecticut College, New London, Conn. or call 442-0681.

German Summer School of the Atlantic

JUNE 28 TO AUGUST 13, 1976.

Earn up to 16 credits in only seven weeks at the U.N.H. campus in the seacoast region of New Hampshire. We offer undergraduate and graduate studies in German—language instruction, politics, literature, and more.

Financial aid is available.

WRITE GERMAN SUMMER SCHOOL, UNIVERSITY OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

P.O. BOX 611, DURHAM, NEW HAMPSHIRE 03824

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY

A Commonwealth University

THE BEST WINE SHOP

"THE WINE MERCHANT"
22 BROAD ST. NEW LONDON

ROME

Temple's Tyler School of Art and College of Liberal Arts offer an academic year or semester of study at the Villa Caproni, the University's Rome Campus. Study and live in the heart of Rome; A Short walk from the Spanish Steps, Via Condotti, Piazza di Spagna and other Italian cultural centers. Full credit courses are taught by distinguished European and American faculty.

Tyler School of Art

Painting, Drawing, Printmaking

Sculpture, Art History

College of Liberal Arts

Anthropology, European Literature, Beginning through advanced Italian, Italian Literature, Culture, Classical and Modern History, Urban Studies, Independent Studies.

Contact: Gillian Pesche,

Office of International Services

Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa. 19122.

(215) 787-7229

THE FREE AND THE IMPELLED

$2.95

THE RIPPING SEED. $2.95

THE TENDER SHOOT. $2.95

THE TACKLE $2.95

CHERI AND THE LAST OF CHERI $2.95

CIGARILLO DE CARNEJAHAN/CHANCE ACQUANTANCES $3.95

MY MOTHER'S HOUSE/ SIDO $2.95

THE FABULOUS VAGABOND $2.95

BIRTH OF DAY $2.95

FARTILY PARADISE $5.95

THE TENDER SHOOT. $2.95

"An out of print novel."

"If you are tired of reading women's novels (or biographies) which end in sad house, gas oven, car crashes, leap from open windows—then read Cellete. She will not present a retouched picture of the world or pretend that life is painless. But she will show you the pure and the impure, the earthly paradise which flourishes in an imperfect world. The pleasures to be snatched from the jaws of

"Erika Jung, M. Magazine"
Now you can stop spending so much on clothes.

Introducing Hit or Miss. Every college student's favorite store. You may have heard of us before; maybe you've even shopped at a Hit or Miss store in another town. And now there's one right here in Groton.

Hit or Miss is the store that sells the very same famous name clothes you see selling in department stores and expensive boutiques. Only we sell them for 30% to 50% less! Tops, bottoms, dresses, sweaters, jackets, you name it. Everything you need for a college wardrobe, and everything marked 30% to 50% off regular stores' prices!

At Hit or Miss we cut out the famous name labels, but you won't have any trouble recognizing the quality. We've also cut out charge accounts, fancy store decor and other unnecessary extras that can jack up the price you pay. So we can offer you real bargains.

Come in now to the Grand Opening of Hit or Miss in Groton. And check back often. Because our big selection of clothing bargains changes so often—we get new merchandise every morning—that we can't promise what you'll find from day to day.

Except a good chance to spend less and take home more.

Hit or Miss
MISSES AND JUNIOR SIZED FASHION AT YOUR PRICE

Groton: Fashion Plaza, 976 Poquonnock Road
Mon - Sat 10 to 10
SP.ORTS

Playoff berths undecided
As Hamilton wins two
Crew turnouts larger than ever;
Oarsmen drop opener to...

...I can take my racket out of my cover." He further stated, "I hope there will be a good grip on...

Lookee Here!

The men's varsity lightweight looked best, losing only by a margin substantially better than the same race last year.

It should be kept in mind that Conn. often peaks late in the season when races are most important. This is evidenced by the fact that the men's lightweight didn't win a single race last season until their second place finish in the nationals.

A crew meet is always a rather fascinating experience. It is a unique combination of circus atmosphere, tradition, and a little bit of stiffness that derives from its origins as a kind of upper class pursuit. The tension can be observed two ways: in the ritual of the preparations, and the flash of the finish.

There is always the long buildup to the moment when the starting gun starts everything splashing and heaving down the lake. Not for a second, however, does our team achieve grace and tradition break. The boats all pull straight off the line, betraying no sense of strain, any concentration involved, except in the orders of the cox and the signs of the competing oarsmen.

The movement of the boat is deceptively sleek, like a swimming centipede, but still the shell pulls quickly and effortlessly on, a smoothly pulsating machine.

Enough fantasy. The team is comprised of twenty returning oarsmen and women along with a group of enthusiastic hopefuls and various coxswains. All this participation and devotion add up to a total of 44 people and six different boats which Conn. will enter in this season's races.

This is the largest turnout the team has ever had and one can only look to the future since only three members of the team are seniors.

Crew turnouts larger than ever;
Oarsmen drop opener to Yale

by Walter Sive

With the preponderance of fans around the campus one might think the team spent their spring break just soaking up the sun. With a few dedicated athletes, however, this is no case.

The crew team, back from a successful training trip at Rollins College, Florida, is now readying itself for upcoming races. They hope to do at least as well as they did last year, which was highlighted by a second place finish for the men's lightweight crew in the nationals. The team has been going through extensive workouts in order to insure that everyone is in top physical condition to meet the competition.

Crew meet to be a somewhat obscure sport at Conn. Few people have ever seen a race, much less competed in one. "Crew jocks' row" Owing to the fact that most of the team's races are away, one must take a little hike down to the Thames River in order to view a race, turnouts the sense of glory only a handful of Conn. students.

Last Saturday, Conn. was scheduled to meet and defeat in which Worcester Polytechnic Institute and Clark University were participating. For the few Conn. students who did turn up, the venture was somewhat futile.

The race was called off because the Thames, in one of its more usual moods, decided to become so rough that it was impossible for any of the teams to take to the water. Clark, mindful of their experience here last year when their boat swamped, was not about to take any chances.

Conn., however, remained undaunted and began looking forward to their race the following day with Yale. Hopefully the spectators are not too disappointed and will return with vigor for the races to be held on Parent's Weekend.

This weekend the team will travel to Gardner's Lake in Colchester, Connecticut to try to capture the Emerson Cup. There the men meet The Coast Guard Academy, Trinity, and Wesleyan, and the women will take on Brown, M.I.T. and Wesleyan. This promises to be a very exciting race due to the high level of competition.

Their race Sunday, April 4 with Yale, although bringing no victories, was beneficial in that the team was able to row in its first organized race of the season.

Roast and Toast Nominations

Nomination forms are available in the Physical Education Office for the annual Physical Education Roast and Toast. Students are invited to nominate seniors who have made consistent, outstanding contributions to the Physical Education Program in Intramurals, Physical Education Classes or Club Sports.

Nomination forms can be made from April 12th through April 15th.

Upcoming Events

April 9: Men's Golf-Hone - 2:00 p.m.
April 10: Men and Women's Crew - at Colchester, Ct. Men's Tennis-Hone - 2:00 p.m.
April 11: Men's Tennis - at Fairfield University - 3:00 p.m.
April 14: Men's Tennis - at Clark University - 2:00 p.m.

Springtime at Conn.
Can only mean tennis

by Baseline Boomer

Tennis has traditionally been the gentiemen's game. Cutting into the upper crust of society, many have viewed enviously the elite enjoying this intellectual thinking man's game.

As spring slowly blows into the greater New London metropolis, retired, young, old, men, and women, laced in white tennis apparel, bound to the courts of play at Camp Connecticut College. Yes, some ventures to the North tennis courts, lodged comfortably behind the scenic Crozier Williams Super Dome, one will see that such celebrities as Nickola Schuller and his wife Jim Laver Luzin, and even Owie Prague have all taken to the game. As a matter of interest, Prague was heard saying, "I'll come out and watch the women, if I can take my racket out of its cover." He further stated, "I hope there will be a good grip on my handle."

Coach "Dig-me and my body" Bohonnon has been preparing his gladiators of glamour to optimistically compete against several teams this spring. Unbeknownst in several victories over the women's team, the Connecticut men can socially boast a winning record.

Upgrading that the pack of both experience and celebacy are Rockey Robert, who has been lonely all but too long, Rickey Rosenfeld, and Lawrence of Arabia Yahia. All join Robert in their aggression, style of play. All three can be considered successful doubles players.

Greg "Get me a Partner" Yahia, "Oh my Dicker," Dicker and "Baby Bo" Bohonnon are among experienced singles Faculty 54-33 as Carlos Crowards towards ascertaining victories in doubles with the others. Others battling for the second ranked game are Ethan "Big Foid" Wolfe, Vance "Get Down" Gilbert, and "Get me More" Goddard.

Yes, girls, believe me when I say, nothing can deter these three from filling in a position on scoring. The spirit of spring fever has unquestionably struck us all. The symmetry of the Connecticut College varsity tennis team might be considered unbreakable. Perhaps, with little practice and proper scheduling, the team will be daging victory in all of their matches.

Varsity oarsman Peter Jarret before...

... and after

by Steve Price

As the regular intramural basketball season enters its final two weeks, the playoff picture is still unclear. The top four teams from each division will make the playoffs, but inter-division play has brought changes in the standings and left several playoff spots undecided.

Hamilton has been the most surprising team in the league so far. Last week they beat two Division I teams, Plant Branford and previously undefeated St. Bridgford. Danny Berlin led Hamilton to the 88-48 upset of Bridgford by scoring 18 points in addition to controlling the tempo of the game. Tom Bell and Marc Offenhein each had 12 points for Bridgford. Hamilton improved their record to 7-2 by defeating Plant Branford 95-87.

Tom Van Gahn had 13 for Plant Branford. Tim Barnett was the game's high scorer with 20 points while Ted Williams had 19 for Plant Branford.

As the regular intramural basketball season enters its final two weeks, the playoff picture is still unclear. The top four teams from each division will make the playoffs, but inter-division play has brought changes in the standings and left several playoff spots undecided.

Hamilton has been the most surprising team in the league so far. Last week they beat two Division I teams, Plant Branford and previously undefeated Bridgford. Danny Berlin led Hamilton to the 88-48 upset of Bridgford by scoring 18 points in addition to controlling the tempo of the game. Tom Bell and Marc Offenhein each had 12 points for Bridgford. Hamilton improved their record to 7-2 by defeating Plant Branford 95-87.

Tom Van Gahn had 13 for Plant Branford. Tim Barnett was the game's high scorer with 20 points while Ted Williams had 19 for Plant Branford.

As the regular intramural basketball season enters its final two weeks, the playoff picture is still unclear. The top four teams from each division will make the playoffs, but inter-division play has brought changes in the standings and left several playoff spots undecided.

Hamilton has been the most surprising team in the league so far. Last week they beat two Division I teams, Plant Branford and previously undefeated Bridgford. Danny Berlin led Hamilton to the 88-48 upset of Bridgford by scoring 18 points in addition to controlling the tempo of the game. Tom Bell and Marc Offenhein each had 12 points for Bridgford. Hamilton improved their record to 7-2 by defeating Plant Branford 95-87.

Tom Van Gahn had 13 for Plant Branford. Tim Barnett was the game's high scorer with 20 points while Ted Williams had 19 for Plant Branford.
First Conn. men's lacrosse game
Receives enthusiastic home support

by Davenport Scott and Peter Stakes

No, those aren't savage Native-Americans that are walking on each other's heads. They're frustrated freshmen, sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors, who have made up a new Conn. sport - Lacrosse. This cold and windy March inspired more than 30 problem to participate on the Conn. Collete Lacrosse team. The team is under the direction of James Courtney, a man with high hopes and great determination. With the help of Davenport Scott, Mike Weinh, and Athletic Director Charles Luce, Courtney obtained equipment, field space, and a full schedule.

There are a wide range of talents and physicals on the team with participants spurred on by enthusiasm, which rises with the temperature. Daily improvement by call can be noted as well.

April 5, the team made Conn. College history when they held the first men's lacrosse game. Under fine weather conditions, and spurred on by an enthusiastic crowd of home team supporters, the Conn. squad faced the powerful team of Southern Connecticut State College.

Tom Deedy and Paul Funk converge on a southern Connecticut man as goalie Jim Glick looks on during Conn.'s first men's lacrosse game in history.

Tickets available
For Rigby performance

Cathy Rigby, whose performance for the U.S. Olympic Team in 1972 brought her the rank of Number 1 gymnast in the world, will be conducting a clinic in Crozier-Williams Gym at 4:00 p.m., on Friday, April 23. Cost for each clinic should be $2.00.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Specators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorum, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.

In Palmer Auditorium, Cathy's lecture will feature slides of her Olympic performance. Spectators for the clinic will be charged $2.00, and will also receive admission to the evening program at 7:30 p.m.
continued from page fifteen

The games were played on the basketball floor on the second story of the Coast Guard Gym, and in the field house on the third floor. Each team started six players and a goalie with ten minute halves of running time.

Conn.'s first game was at 5:30 a.m. and their last game wasn't over until 6:30 that night. Although the team often had short breaks in between games, many were back to back.

And out of the ten dedicated soccer players who attended the tournament, a number were standouts. Charlie Cassel played extremely well in his halfback position the whole day. In addition to scoring two out of three Conn. goals, Cassel's shooting and dribbling kept the opponents on their toes in every game.

Bill Clark, also playing halfback, was the only other man in the scoring column and led a number of offensive attacks.

Henry Gittenstein and Peter Stokes played exceptionally well in the goal, especially considering 'the hard floor, especially considering their position the whole day. In addition to scoring two out of three Conn. goals, Cassel's shooting and dribbling kept the opponents on their toes in every game. Bill Clark, also playing halfback, was the only other man in the scoring column and led a number of offensive attacks.

Henry Gittenstein and Peter Stokes played exceptionally well in the goal, especially considering the hard floor and point blank shots they had to deal with. Finally, the huddle of Tom Roosevelt and Andrew Williams proved to be an inspiring factor in...