Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.conncoll.edu/ccnews_1975_1976

Recommended Citation
http://digitalcommons.conncoll.edu/ccnews_1975_1976/34

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Newspapers at Digital Commons @ Connecticut College. It has been accepted for inclusion in 1975-1976 by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Connecticut College. For more information, please contact bpancier@conncoll.edu.
The views expressed in this paper are solely those of the author.
Plan to alter class times
Submitted to faculty
By David Jordan
A proposal has been submitted to the faculty which would restructure class times next year. The plan calls for classes to begin on the hour, starting at 8:00 a.m., with the last class ending at 4:00.

The reasons for the proposal were explained by Dr. Robert Rhyme, College registrar. With the closing of some dining halls next year, it was thought that more time should be available for lunch at the remaining halls.

Under the current system, dining rooms are open through two class periods. If the new plan is adopted, dining rooms would be open for two hours, or a full three class periods, theoretically eliminating some lines that would be present if the same dining system is present next year.

A second reason for the proposal, according to Dr. Rhyme, is to “free up more time in the late afternoon for all-College activities, committee meetings (both student and faculty) and sports events.”

Dean of the Faculty Wayne Swanson sees some problems arising for both faculty and students if the plan is adopted. “Certain departments still require two or three-hour blocks,” he said, “and of course there are those who say away from the idea of an 8:00 class.”

“The idea is a good one, though,” said Dean Swanson, continued on page nine

Student security force
Tested at campus party
The first step in the institution of a Student Security Force at Connecticut College was taken last Friday. At the party where Shoigun was performing, a Student Security Force was being tested out. The party was supervised solely by a four person Student Security Force, comprised of Audrey Calver, Marc Pandone, Lisal Ungenack, and Peter Belenfant, and the sponsors, the Social Board and Unity.

The proposal to attempt a trial run of Student Security was approved by Dean Watson and Connie Sokalsky, who both had high praise for the outcome. There were no reported incidents and the students were apparently successful in doing their job.

Flying American flag upside down
Creates controversy on campus
by gaschy Feldstein
“If it takes this to make a stir on this campus, and affect the school spirit situation, then great,” Marc Pandone commented about the flags flying upside-down outside of Katherine Blunt dorm.

According to Pandone, a KB resident, he and another student living on the second floor of KB discussed placing flags upside-down for discussion. Pandone hung his American flag upside-down because “it’s extremely natural to me; that’s how I hang the flag upside-down.” He asked another student if he wanted to hang his American flag upside-down, also, and he agreed.

The flags were placed outside the dorm at 12:30 p.m. on Monday. Shortly afterward, there was a complaint from Mike Shuln and, the print shop. A security review committee was called and told the students to “fly them right or not at all,” according to Eric Williams, student safety officer.

The students asked to discuss the matter, but the officer refused. About twenty minutes later, President Ames, who had seen the flags earlier, called the dorm. A student discussed the situation with him, explaining that the flags would not be changed.

As a result of the students’ actions, there were complaints from both students and faculty. “I don’t understand why they’re doing this, desecrating the American flag,” stated Chief of Security Francis O’Grady. According to O’Grady, there were at least twenty complaints on Monday. There were no complaints, however, on Tuesday or Wednesday.

William Churchill, assistant to the president believes the matter has been blown out of proportion. He added that is understandable that many people feel strongly about the use of the flag.

The American flags flying upside down over K.B. caused numerous complaints and comments this week.

Development Committee considers Alternatives for Palmer Library
by Anne Rohillard
As the new library nears completion the problem of what to do with Palmer Library grows increasingly important and has merited considerable attention from the Development Committee. This committee has been considering the question of what to do with Palmer on and off for over a year.

Bernard McMullan, cochairman of the committee, said they had considered three uses for Palmer: as a storage area, a dining facility, and an academic center. The first possibility is no longer under consideration.

In trying to make a decision between these alternatives, the committee is also considering the space needs of the campus as a whole. It has received input from student offices, a theatre workshop, an audiovisual center, study areas, club offices and meeting areas, a faculty dining room and lounge, gamerooms, and a dining hall if a centralized dining facility is made.

Other needs include new classrooms and office space to replace those in Thames and Winthrop, and new housing for the bookstore and post office, and the duplicating room.

Though these space needs cannot all be met through housing in Palmer, there will be spaces vacated by a move into Palmer, no matter what plan is decided on. The development committee split into two subcommittees, each investigating one of the possibilities.

Though a decision to have completely centralized dining has not been made, the subcommittee investigating this project, recommends the possibility of a central dining facility being beneficial to the college, as it would provide a much needed sense of community and other intangibles such as facilitating the exchange of ideas between more students and faculty.

This subcommittee decided that “using Palmer for dining immediately satisfies the college’s social space needs: a central meeting area for the post office, a central facility for dining, and a faculty dining room and lounge.” John Detmold, director of development, pictures Palmer as a “gracious” dining facility because of its high ceilings and spacious layout. He believes such devices as scrumbled meal lines not only would make lines shorter, it would allow for more choice.

Both Mr. Detmold and Mr. Rumsage stress the desirability of centralized dining in the open atmosphere that Palmer provides. They also question the need of new classroom space, believing that by more efficient scheduling adequate and quality space for Thanes and Winthrop classes could be provided in other academic buildings.

This subcommittee points out that “Palmer could accommodate a gracious dining facility for the entire campus, with space remaining for other uses.”

McMullan, who served on the subcommittee investigating the use of Palmer for academic purposes, states that he “would like to see Palmer maintained as an academic building as it would best suit the needs of the campus. We’re an educational institution, not a feeding place.” He also does not see the inevitability of centralized dining.

This subcommittee did not consider the need for more academic space but the need for “quality academic space.” They consider the classrooms in Winthrop and Thames inadequate teaching spaces and are against having classrooms in dormitories because spaces open up there.

There is also need for lecture rooms seating 40-80 students and for more seminar rooms. Palmer has no academic building could provide this space and faculty office space.

They also considered putting the bookshop and a faculty lounge in Palmer. The committee’s decreases the need for more academic space but the need for “quality academic space.” They consider the classrooms in Winthrop and Thames inadequate teaching spaces and are against having classrooms in dormitories because spaces open up there.

Minor changes found in Course, major choices
by K.D. Maynard
In the past several years, studies have been published noting that there seems to be a trend of students moving toward career-oriented educations and away from more general liberal arts education.

Students allegedly are more conscious of their future plans, and their ability to fit into the current economy at the rates they would prefer. As noted in the “working paper” of President Ames, there is “confusion” today about the “mision and value” of a liberal arts education.

At Conn., however, there seems to be no momentous change in the areas that students are choosing to study. When analyzing the majors of graduating seniors over the past five years, there were only slight increases in the number of those majoring in economics, sociology, botany, and mathematics, and slight decreases in the number of those majoring in philosophy, english, and languages.

However, there are many factors that must be taken into account.

Parents’ Weekend Schedule
is printed on page 9
If you want to be heard,
Now is the time

The development committee is considering two possibilities for the conversion of Palmer Library. The discussion over whether the facility should become an academic center for the humanities or a centralized dining area is nearing its conclusion with a decision likely in the next few weeks.

Both options have valid and important points in their favor and it is now up to the students and faculty to consider the positions (Pundit, page 1), and to form and voice an opinion. These opinions are essential in the committee's final decision, for it must reflect the will of the entire college community.

All too often decisions are made without the college body having a chance to voice its concerns. This opportunity is now available and it is up to us all to take advantage of it.

Pundit urges everyone to read, consider, and debate the options, and then let the committee know his feelings. Don't wait until a decision has already been made. At that point it is too late.

Written applications are now being accepted for the positions of Editor-in-Chief, Sports Editor, Fine Arts Editor, Photography Editor, Copy Editor, Production Editor, Graphics Editor, and Contributing Editor for next semester. Features Editor and Contributing Editor are also open for this semester. All Interested should come to the meeting tonight at 7 in the Pundit Office Crc 212.

One time only

Self-nominations for president, secretary-treasurer and Judiciary Board members for the classes of 1977, 1978, and 1979 are open today, Thursday, April 22nd at 9:00 a.m. through Monday, April 26th at 5:00 p.m. There are two Judiciary Board openings for each class.

It is imperative that men and women of each class nominate themselves for class president, secretary-treasurer and Judiciary Board members.

Elections cannot be re-done this semester due to the time element. And the classes need presidents (and executive boards) as well as JB members elected before summer.

Two reasons are the senior class president must contact possible commencement speakers over the summer, and the junior class president must organize the Freshman Brother-Sister program.

Please nominate yourself and please vote for YOUR class president, secretary-treasurer and two Judiciary Board members.

Liberal arts

To the Editor.

Last Wednesday, I offered the following commentary on WCNI, and I thought you might be interested in considering it for publication in PUNDIT.

In his working paper on the mission and future of Connecticut College, President Ames maintained that despite the problems we face and the uncertainty of their solutions, "these are no times for a failure of nerve."

I agree with that claim, but I'd like to go on to say that these are no times for a failure of mind, especially in studying and from the absence of certainty of their solutions, for the examination of human life is a liberal arts college. If the liberal arts college has any lasting value at all, it resides at the center of its form of education, and not elsewhere. So the question is, what is the center and foundation of a liberal arts education?

We've been told by a variety of sources that there is some confusion in response to this question, and the confusion is an admission that no one really knows the answer, or that each of us has his own partisan answer. That is not true. The center and foundation of any liberal arts education is human life, its nature, conditions, limits, forms, history, and historical studies. And it is in that respect we are a very liberal college because we are committed to the education of our students. Language study is a necessary instrument for the examination of human life within the humanities and historical studies, and in view of that connection, if we reduce or eliminate programs in language study, merely because they are occasionally under-enrolled, we will have to be responsible for the consequences, which is the disruption in the humanities disciplines.

To be aware of those consequences, to be responsible for them, to decide in favor of or against them, in view of that, we will have to becoming more of what we already are. This has never meant that we should get bigger, even when we could afford it. We are committed to the value of a plurality of very different forms of expression and understanding, because the richness of our cultural heritage includes the satisfaction and fulfillment of human life. That should always be on our minds as we live through an age of scarcity. But only the amount of money has gotten smaller. We are in far worse trouble if we cope with economic drought by diminishing the possibilities of human life through the loss of those visions of eye, mind, and heart which nourish the human soul and which animate the liberal arts college.

Sincerely yours,

Lester J. Reiss

Associate Professor of Philosophy

Letters to the editor

Typography

Editorial Board
Co-editors-in-chief
Debbie Alter and Bonnie Greenwald

News
Amie Robillard

Sports
John Perry

Fine Arts
Jim Diskant

Copy
Anne McGee

Production
gaucho Feldstein

Business
Cindy Roehr

Advertising
Alan Schleisinger

Graphics
Marilyn Post

Photography
Debbie Pendleton

Production staff: Dave Alden; Laura Eisenman, Kathi Funk, Bill Lowen, Sue Simone, Kim Lawrence.

Published by the students of Connecticut College Thursday while the College is in session. Information to be printed in an issue must be in the Editor's hands by 3:00 p.m. before the desired inclusion, unless prior arrangements are made. The Pundit post office box is 351; there is also a slot at the door of the Pundit office, Crc 212. Editorial Board meetings are held every Thursday of publication at 6:30 in the Pundit office.

Pundit is represented by National Educational Advertising Services, Inc. 356 Lexington Ave., New York, New York, 10017.

Subscription rate: $6.00 per year
Vegetarians take ethical stand against Meat diet; obtain protein elsewhere

By Janet Noyes
One of the most common questions asked of vegetarians by non-vegetarians is, "How do you get your protein?" Americans in general have a misunderstanding about what a diet is and how it comes from, and how much they need.

According to nutritionist Frances Lappe, Americans consume about twice as much protein as their bodies can use, and much of the meat and dairy products are the only usable source of protein. Proteins are made up of amino acids, which are indispensable to our bodies. There are 22 different amino acids that our bodies use to make up proteins. Fourteen of these can be made by the body itself while the other eight must be supplied by our food. All the plant foods in our diet contain these essential amino acids, but often in proportions that are not altogether usable by our bodies. The body must be able to balance these proportions in order to make complete proteins that are readily usable by the body. The other eight must be supplied by our food. All the plant foods in our diet contain these essential amino acids, but often in proportions that are not altogether usable by our bodies.

By obtaining these proteins from plants, vegetarians avoid the killing of animals. One advocate of vegetarianism is Frances Lappe, who in her book, Diet for a Small Planet explains protein theory in detail. Basically, combining grains with legumes, beans, peas, lentils, grains with dairy products, or seeds with legumes will provide complete proteins. In a college situation, this is not easy to do, but not as easy as it may seem. But how to be a campus vegetarian is another whole discussion.

Pure vegetarians, those who use no animal products, must be careful about what they eat in their diet. B12 is essential for the metabolism of proteins, fats, and carbohydrate metabolism, functioning of nerve tissue. A long-term deficiency in Vitamin B12 can cause mental and physical paralysis. For this reason, some pure vegetarians prefer to supplement their diet with B12 or B12 supplements. Dairy products and eggs contain B12, but the use of these foods is the subject of controversy among vegetarians.

Some ethical vegetarians consider the production of food and the feeding of animals. Since the production of these foods does not involve killing others argue that the exploitation of the animals makes it unethical. Others find the foods acceptable, but conclude that the act of killing the egg, they believe, has potential for life, or is itself, "disguise" who you are eating with.

This argument is reminiscent of the issue of human abortion, including the question "when life begins." To my knowledge, the vegetarian community has not yet taken a stand on abortion, and although all ethical vegetarians share a reverence for life, they have not been able to agree on a definition of life, or even reverence for that matter. It is a very personal question.

Critics of ethical vegetarianism point out the inconsistency of an attitude that permits the killing of plants for food while rejects the killing of animals. Oneresponse to this criticism is that while it is impossible to live without killing animals, it is possible to reduce the amount of killing we practice. By abstaining from meat, a vegetarian not only avoids killing an animal, but also avoids killing the plants that produced the thousands of pounds of grains, legumes, herbs, herbs and the animal consumed in its lifetime.

Aside from the question of animal production, there is the question of ecology, land and resource usage. If America were to convert from a meat-centered diet to a grain and vegetable-based diet, thousands of gallons of water and thousands of acres of land would be available for the more protein-efficient production of grains, legumes, and vegetables. The 21,000 square miles of land that could be used for crops, enough land to produce food for the entire world. In the next 30-40 years, it is possible that the population doubles as predicted, even a grain-based diet may not feed all... but then again, it might.

Students criticize military spending

In response to Bulletin editorial

On Saturday, April 18, about fifteen people representing the Atlantic Life Community and the American Friends Service Committee gathered around the main gate of Electric Beat in Groton. They were protesting the base-landing of the first submarine of the $40 billion Trident fleet. In the following letter, one of the participants responds to challenges made in a Norwich Bulletin editorial. Kim Lawrence, Janet Noyes, Laura Praglin, and Lynn Clements wish to present this rarely heard side of the defense debate:

10:16, 1978
To the Editor, Norwich Bulletin:
In response to your April 12th Editorial, I say that military spending is essential to human needs -- either in terms of jobs, services, opportunities, or the basics of a decent life for all Americans.

Obviously, building nuclear attack subs has created 15,000 jobs in this area alone. But many more jobs could have been available in Southeast Conn. had this same money been invested in non-defensive programs or priorities. Contrary to your editorial, the purchase of defense hardware is not the most labor intensive activity. Most of the support comes from affluent voters in both rural and suburban areas. The New York Times has described Carter's backers, most of whom are drawn from affluent voters in both rural and suburban areas. The New York Times has described Carter's backers, most of whom are drawn from affluent areas. Carter's backers, most of whom are drawn from affluent areas.

Vegetarians take ethical stand against Meat diet; obtain protein elsewhere

by Michael J. Ganley

Elections '76
Carter is frontrunner in Pennsylvania primary

by Michael J. Ganley

As Tuesday's Democratic primary in Pennsylvania approaches, political analysts are predicting a showdown in determining who would win the nomination. Pennsylvania is no exception, and in some political quarters, cries of "this is it" are heard.

Many knowledgeable observers believe that none of the remaining primary battles will give any of the three serious Presidential contenders much of a run in the race anything close to the 1,500 delegates needed to win the nomination. Carter's momentum is largely responsible for this point of view. The extend to which Carter's controversial remark endorsing the "ethnic purity" of neighborhoods will continue to have an effect on the race for the Democratic nomination is anyone's guess.

Last week, Carter was endorsed by the NAACP, the nation's largest civil rights organization, for the first time in his campaign. Carter's endorsement will help him better compete with the remaining primary candidates, and the convention with Jimmy Carter and Hubert Humphrey vying for support from among both the uncommitted delegates and those pledged to the various other candidates and favorite sons.

The fact that front-runner Jimmy Carter's seemingly unstoppable bandwagon now appears to be losing some of its momentum is largely responsible for this point of view. The extend to which Carter's controversial remark endorsing the "ethnic purity" of neighborhoods will continue to have an effect on the race for the Democratic nomination is anyone's guess.

Last week, Carter was endorsed by the NAACP, the nation's largest civil rights organization, for the first time in his campaign. Carter's endorsement will help him better compete with the remaining primary candidates, and the convention with Jimmy Carter and Hubert Humphrey vying for support from among both the uncommitted delegates and those pledged to the various other candidates and favorite sons.

The fact that front-runner Jimmy Carter's seemingly unstoppable bandwagon now appears to be losing some of its momentum is largely responsible for this point of view. The extend to which Carter's controversial remark endorsing the "ethnic purity" of neighborhoods will continue to have an effect on the race for the Democratic nomination is anyone's guess.

Last week, Carter was endorsed by the NAACP, the nation's largest civil rights organization, for the first time in his campaign. Carter's endorsement will help him better compete with the remaining primary candidates, and the convention with Jimmy Carter and Hubert Humphrey vying for support from among both the uncommitted delegates and those pledged to the various other candidates and favorite sons.
Professors debate in De Litteris series
by Jack Rees
For the past four years there has been a series of lectures presented by the Connecticut College faculty, the general title for which is De Litteris. Scholars from the English, Philosophy, History, Russian, French, Chinese, and Religion departments present papers on the first Thursday of every month, in the form of a lecture form with documentary evidence for his or her thesis. Following the lecture, the floor is opened for questions and criticism at which time the speaker must expand and defend the present thesis.

Tonight, Professor Edward Cranz, who has been asked to work next year at the Princeton Institute for Advanced Study, is speaking on "Alienation in Antiquity and in Hegel and Marx." This presentation is the fourth in the series.

These lectures give students a chance to see their teachers in a different light: they are not explaining, or commenting on papers, or grading tests. The lecturers are arguing a position they hold; the lectures are not exposition, but critique.

The student is exposed to the beliefs and prejudices of the people whose views in the classroom are many times simply accepted. A professor is not all expert teaching; he is learning also. The lectures De Litteris lectures are exposed to what they have learned.

By asking different teachers debating their positions, one comes to realize the implications and ramifications of a given viewpoint, and that not every argument with an internal coherence answer all questions. The material presented has a great deal of value in itself, as well. This value is best expressed by the meaning of the words "De Litteris".

De Litteris means "of letters," in this sense, "Litterate in general; hence, acquaintance with it; learning, study, erudition." Man who possesses learning are called 'human men of letters' and belong to the community of letters.

Human men of letters are originally scholars (later the word referred to men who wrote literature). The humane men of letters are engaged in the study of the "liberal arts," which in this context has a very specific meaning. Liberal means "the distinctive epithet of those arts of 'sciences' that were considered "worthy of a free man," directed general intellectual enlargement and refinement; not narrowly restricted to the requirements of technical or professional training.

"To liberallize" means 'free from narrowness.' "Art" in this context means "anything wherein skill may be attained or displayed.

More specifically, it means "certain branches of learning which find in the nature of intellectual instruments of apparatus for the work of life." That is the student in the Litteris series are actively involved in the pursuit of these goals.

Approved 1976-77 College Calendar
Freshmen arrive, orientation begins
Transfer and upperclass students arrive; advising and testing begin
Advising continues for all students
Registration
Classes begin; change of course period begins; opening assembly 4:20 p.m.
No classes
Change of course period ends
Period for filing Pass-Not Passed course option
Fall break begins
Fall break ends
Voluntary course drop begins
Thanksgiving recess begins
Thanksgiving recess ends
First semester classes end; voluntary course drop ends
Review day
Examinations begin
Examinations end, Christmas recess begins
First semester grades due
Christmas recess ends, second semester advising begins
Advising continues for all students
Registration
Classes begin; change of course period begins
Change of course period ends
Period for filing Pass-Not Passed course option
Voluntary course drop begins
Spring recess begins
Spring recess ends
Master's thesis due
Senior honors thesis due
Second semester classes end; voluntary course drop ends
Review day
Examinations begin
Examinations end
Senior grades due
Commencement
All other grades due

Infirmary just isn't home,
Say Blunt basement refugees

Jim Polan (far left), Matt Tyndall, Jerry Tisser, Drew Rodwin, and Jon Perry in their temporary quarters in the infirmary. After the basement fire, in K.B. these students, as well as Sam Gibson and Tom Shaw, were forced to leave their dorm until damages could be repaired.

However, they complain that the nurses refuse to bring them milkshakes or give backcrubs, but one nurse did make each person an Easter present.

Their major complaint is living out of a suitcase. All the boarders tent to agree with freshman Drew Rodwin that, "the infirmary just isn't home." To make the infirmary seem more like a home, they have nicknamed it "Easter," but that doesn't make it lack of permanence any more pleasing.

The main fire damage to the students' personal belongings was due to smoke. Articles like rugs, wall hangings, prints, and clothes suffered the worst damage. One of the freshmen, Jim Polan, reported his bicycle damaged, as well as some prints.

Both items are covered by his insurance company. Other minor repairs, such as dry cleaning fees are to be paid by the college, according to Sam Gibson.

Along with a comfortably-sized solarium, the fire victims are housed in the infirmary in a triple, a double, and two singles. Sam Gibson misses his single room in K.B., but mostly the problem with living in the infirmary is what he terms "social suffering."

Jim Polan continued that with this the infirmary's generally exposed to cleanliness, the atmosphere isn't conducive to visitors, and could be between Poets and Plutocrats. Sometimes...

There is a general consensus that now that the immediate crisis has past, many things have toned down. According to Rodwin, the people from the K.B. "basement were pretty in separable anyway," and became even closer as a result of the circumstances, but now, Jerry Tisser says, this feeling is wearing off as everyone has become accustomed to their situation.

Jon Perry reported he has seen slow progress in renovating the basement of the infirmary. Drew Rodwin believes there could be continued on page nine

Carrier, Gould to speak
At PBK ceremonies

Miss Constance Carrier, post- translator, and teacher of classics, and Professor Thomas F. Gould of Yale, well known for his work in classical philosophy will be the two guest participants in today's Phi Beta Kappa ceremonies.

Carrier has published two books of poetry; in 1955 The Middle Voice won the Lannan Prize, last year Swallow Press brought out The Angled Road. She has written the PBK poem for the afternoon initiation ceremonies.

Her translations include poetry and drama and the complete tragedies of Terence, and the poems of Propertius and of Tibullus. She is now working on a group of her own poems, and, this summer, has been invited to return to Yadon.

Gould, author of Platonic Love and his translation and commentary of classical drama Oedipus the King, will deliver the annual Phi Beta Kappa oration at 8:30 p.m., in Oliva Hall of Cummings' Arts Center.

Delta of Connecticut chapter has invited the Yale professor to give the principal address in today's Phi Beta Kappa ceremonies.

Carrier has been editor of the journal Arion and presently has two book-length studies ready for publication: The Sun, the Lion and the Cave, and Sophocles or Socrates: The Ancient Quarrel Between Poetry and Philosophy.

A graduate of Cornell where he earned the doctorate in classics and philosophy, Professor Gould has chosen for the title of his oration, "Is Life Worth Living?" He will be introduced by President Oakes Ames.
New London Shorts

The body of a 52 year old woman was found on Sunday, April 18 in Winthrop Cove. Thirteen hours earlier the police had received a report of a screaming woman near City Pier. The body was found by a New Londoner. An autopsy was scheduled to be performed on Monday.

10,000 Seek Admission to C.G.A.

More than 10,000 high school seniors applied to the U.S. Coast Guard Academy this year, reaching an all-time high.

In general, the final rank higher in all areas, including class rank and SAT scores, and exhibit more leadership potential than ever before.

This large number of high school graduates is a huge leap from the past, exhibiting more leadership potential than ever before.

Departments showing at least a 10% increase in school graduates is a huge leap from the past, exhibiting more leadership potential than ever before.

The Connecticut General Assembly is preparing to debate a bill concerning the repeal of these laws. Supporters of the repeal say that these laws no longer "represent the will of the people.

Opponents to the repeal state religious reasons and say that employees should not be required to work on Sundays. The controversy over the blue laws became greater, when, two years ago, the Mystic Village shopkeepers opened their stores on a Sunday.

Additional Funds Needed for Firemen

Because of some recent trends in the New London fire department, Fire Chief Guido Bartolucci estimates that the department will need additional $50,000 to cover overtime pay.

The overtime problem, he said, was a result of the recent retirement of the Deputy Chief and the resignation of a paid firefighter. Firefighters are being covered by overtime.

City Manager C. Francis Driscoll said he would recommend extra funds for the department, but the amount will be less than the Fire Chief's request.

Chamber Forms Downtown Unit

A downtown division of the Chamber of Commerce of Southeastern Connecticut is being formed. Its concern will be the problem facing the downtown area of New London.

The chamber has asked businessmen in the three black area near City Hall to participate. A questionnaire has been sent to help form the plan of action. There will be an organizational meeting on May 4th.

Fire Station at Toby May Field

A delay of six months or more in the construction of a new fire station at the corner of Toby May Field may be caused by a full scale investigation of its impact on the environment, should the city decide to carry it out.

A letter asking for the study was filed with the city on Thursday, April 8 by the Citizens for the Preservation of Toby May Field. It was the last day for filing such contests to the city's intention to forge the impact statement.

The city cites problems the fire station would impose on the area such as traffic and noise, and the loss of land from the recreational areas.

Governor Takeover at EB

A recommendation from Admiral Hyman S. Rickover that the government acquire ownership of General Dynamics Electric Boat is now being considered by the Defense Department.

Rickover is the head of the Navy's nuclear propulsion program. He proposed government ownership of the shipyard continued on page eight.

Levine to talk

On family roles

Dr. James A. Levine, educational director of the Child Study Center at Wesleyan University, will speak on "The Future of the Family: New Roles for Men in Childrearing" at 4:30 p.m. in Dana Hall.

A lecturer and author who teaches every other year in the department of psychology at Wesleyan College, Dr. Levine is also a frequent consultant for day care services and serves on the board of directors of four Massachusetts child care centers.

In 1974-75 Dr. Levine received a Ford Foundation travel-study fellowship which permitted him to travel throughout the United States interviewing men in primary child-caregiving roles at work or in the home. This research has led to a book entitled Men Who Care for Children: New Styles in Fatherhood, scheduled for release by J.B. Lippincott in September.

Revenger's Tragedy

Tonight, Friday, and Saturday

Cro pool

8 p.m.

There really was an Easter Bunny

EGG HUNT CHAMP: Heather Clifford, second from left, was the grand prize winner finding 78 eggs in Sunday's egg hunt. Pictured with Heather are those who found the five "special" eggs. They are Benjie Greene, Theresa Church, Janet Church, and Alexander Bogel.

National Shorts

Lebanon

Peace seems likely to come soon in Lebanon. Last week Syrian troops cautiously entered Lebanon to provide pressure for some kind of settlement between the Christian and Moslem forces.

President Serleiman Franjeia has signed a constitutional amendment which allows early elections for his replacement to take place.

Although Syrian soldiers were not violent in Lebanon, it was feared that Israel would be angered by this Syrian move, but the United States assured the Israelis that Syria only wanted to help bring peace to Lebanon.

Patty Hearst

Patty Hearst has agreed to testify and cooperate in the prosecution of her former associates in the S.I.A. Her cooperation will probably give her a smaller sentence for her bank robbery conviction.

Her testimony will most likely be directed toward William and Emily Harris. The Harris' were formally charged last week with participating in the kidnapping of Ms. Hearst.

Also last week Ms. Hearst was hospitalized for a collapsed lung. Surgery was performed and she is in good condition.

Justice Department Redlining

The Justice Department has decided to file cases against a wide range of banks and real estate appraisers for using racially discriminatory practices in black or mixed neighborhoods.

The department wants to discourage these institutions from using prejudiced guidelines to discourage mortgaging in this area.
Improvisation is key
To dancer's success

by Janet Noyes

Anthropologist Margaret Mead has learned much about humankind by entering the societies of other people, living with them for a while, learning their language, adopting their values and customs, and offering them her friendship. She is welcomed wherever she goes, because she brings no threat of change or destruction to them. She values them as they are, and is eager to learn what they know about living.

In this sense, Marie Brooks and her company of dancers aged 7-13 years, are anthropologists. So far, they have traveled to the West Indies, Africa, Trinidad, Jamaica, and Haiti, not as performers, but as students of life in these cultures. They learn to perform the traditional dances of these peoples, then share what they have learned in concerts such as the one in Dana Hall Saturday night.

Their dancing was absolutely incredible. The talent displayed by the dancers is of the type that many dancers envy and choreographers search for. But talent is worthless without hard work, and it was obvious that these people have invested hours and months of that into this own way. "If talent is worthless without hard traveling expenses. Ms. Brooks believes "if you want to do something bad enough, you pay your own way." This summer the company will travel to the South to learn more dance. Their appearance at Connecticut College was made possible by the combined efforts of Unity at Connect- ticut College and Galena at Hartwick. These adventure stories started a weekend of cultural events called Eclipse - A pause in Blackness.

Palmer vocals liven
Short gig at Shaboo

by Seth Tiven

Although Robert Palmer has been making records for quite a long time, he started to arouse some real interest about a year and a half ago with the release of his second album, Sneakin' Sally Through the Alley. His fine voice, combined with the musical talents of the Metters and Lowell George (from Little Feat) and the production by Steve Smith, made for an excellent album. His second LP, Pressure Drop, was released late last year, and although it was good, it didn't match up to the first, partly because there were some weak points. Monday night, however, was both superb, and provided a solid rhythm section for the rest of the band to follow. Palmer himself has superb stage presence to complement his voice. The arrangement of all the tunes was tight and smooth from song to song. With the exception of one segment in which the band was introduced, there was no unnecessary or extended solos. The Palmer's voice was highlighted of the show unquestionably was the medley of three songs from the first album, "Sailing Shoes", "Julia", and the title track, "Sneakin' Sally Through The Alley".

The exhibit covers the broad period between the 1900s, when Mrs. Sherwood became the spokesperson of religious and instructional tracts, and ending in the 1960s with Maurice Sen- dak's attempts to explore "Wild and Wilder." Tickets at $1.00 for student and $1.50 for non-students.

The exhibit explores these diverse themes clearly and in depth, although the casual server would only find the colorful illustrations interesting. Such pictures kept the children's attention. The cards explaining the subject are readable and informative and the books selected seem to represent the different types of literature well. There are poems, plays, short stories, and novels to choose from.

"Wild and Wilder" is a repertory composition featuring Thornton Wilder's "The Skin of Our Teeth" and two dance-theater pieces, will be performed by the Bus Company of the National In- stitute, in the East Studio of Crane-Williams Sunday, April 25 at 8 p.m. The show is part of the Company's spring tour throughout New England and the New York State area.

"A few songs by Randy Newman" is the focal part of the first part of the evening. Lee Theodore, a guest artist at the Institute, has choreographed several short dance numbers to adaptations of Randy Newman's. The book also features the composer's own music.

Feature Wilder, Newman

National Theater Institute will be performing on Sunday at 8:00 p.m. in the dance studio in Cro. They will perform "Wild and Wilder." Tickets at $1.00 for students and $1.50 for non-students.

Didactic, fantasy literature for Children now on exhibit in library

by Jim Dishant

"Enduring Themes in Children's literature" organized the exhibit with the help of Barbara L. Reed, lecturer in education.

Didactic, fantasy literature for Children now on exhibit in library extends from mid-18th century through the early 20th century, and includes about 300 books. The collection is comprised of rare books.

An original edition of Aesop's Fables with Illustrations by Arthur Rackham is featured in the present Palmer Library exhibit. The collection is comprised of rare books.

The exhibit explores these diverse themes clearly and in depth, although the casual server would only find the colorful illustrations interesting. Such pictures kept the children's attention. The cards explaining the subject are readable and informative and the books selected seem to represent the different types of literature well. There are poems, plays, short stories, and novels to choose from.

The exhibit explores these diverse themes clearly and in depth, although the casual server would only find the colorful illustrations interesting. Such pictures kept the children's attention. The cards explaining the subject are readable and informative and the books selected seem to represent the different types of literature well. There are poems, plays, short stories, and novels to choose from.
Entourage melds diverse art forms into one philosophy

By Jonathan Kromer

The American Dance Festival has, for 28 years, encouraged fledgling artists and provided a supportive and enthusiastic audience for new work by more established dancers and musicians.

For the past couple of years, the Entourage Music and Theatre Ensemble has provided a creative environment for new work. The world premiere of "Entourage," which concludes the annual American Dance Festival, demonstrates the group's ability to create a stimulating and innovative atmosphere for new work.

"Entourage" is a multimedia experience that combines music, dance, theater, and film. The ensemble's work is characterized by a collaborative approach to composition, in which the director, a core group of performers, and other artists work together to create a unified vision.

The story of "Entourage" begins with a car crash, in which the composer's career might seem to be at a standstill. However, the ensemble, led by Clark, is determined to push through the adversity and bring their work to life.

Composed of a group of晾set artists, "Entourage" explores the idea that art is not confined to a single medium. The ensemble's approach to composition is called "collective reflection," which involves the entire group in the creative process. This method allows for a wide range of ideas and perspectives to be incorporated into the final work.

The ensemble's work is characterized by a strong sense of community and a commitment to collaboration. This approach allows the ensemble to explore complex ideas and create works that are unique and innovative.

"Entourage" is a testament to the power of collaboration and the ability of artists to overcome adversity to create something beautiful.

Keith's Column

Raw intensity marks Led Zeppelin's newest release

by Keith Ritter

Welcome to Springtime! I, for one, find it quite refreshing to be reminded that the world is still turning, despite the enormous pressures of all the work there is to be done. After the initial throes of spring fever have passed, I find it much easier to settle down and finish it all up, enlivened by the glorious weather around me.

Of course, a little music helps too. But the topic of today's column is an album that should not be used to work to, unless you want to do the same thing on heavy metal guitar. The album in question is Led Zeppelin's "Presence.

The album is in top shape and gives us a life force that is familiar and comfortable. The band has not sounded this charged up since their classic first album.

There are echoes of the particular album on Presence. "Tea For One" sounds like "Since I've Been Lovin' You" with new guitar licks. But those additions are spectacular and Page has no equal (not even Clapton) when it comes to Blues-rock guitar.

Plant has abandoned the frantic screaming he had been doing for a more refined, more emotional style of vocalization. He says he sang most of the album in a piano chair, to get away from the usual style now that he has been doing for a more refined, more emotional style of vocalization.

The power of this album lies in its raw intensity and its accomplishment in translating the verse for life Plant felt after his accident into a musical acknowledgement of the ability of human beings to combat the insane twists life sometimes takes.

Composer subject of 'Music Lovers;
Amateurs star in 'Bicycle Thief'

by Pam Jardine

The Music of Alfred Hitchcock, a 1971 film directed by Ken Russell will be presented by the Conn. College Film Society on Sunday, April 23 at 8 p.m. in Dana Hall. The film stars Glenda Jackson, Richard Chamberlain, Max Adrian and Christopher Plummer.

Russell deals with the life of Tchakovsky in a tragic manner in this film. From the outside, the composer's career might seem like one of continuous rise, but Russell's vision is an interlaced one.

In an excellent manner, the film portrays Tchakovsky's tortured personal decline, which left behind the waltzed lives of those who loved him, and ended in a long-denied suicide.

An Italian film, "The Bicycle Thief," directed by Vittorio De Sica, will be shown on Wednesday, April 25 at 8 p.m. in Oliva Hall. Based on the novel of Luigi Bertolini, this 1949 film stars Lamberto Maggiorani and Enzo Staioli.

The film is De Sica's most well-known, as a classic of Italian neorealism. It has received worldwide acclaim including the Academy Award and the N.Y. Film Critics Award for Best Foreign Film.

The story is of a poor married couple, Toma and the bicycle, which provides their only livelihood. Just when the bicycle gets in the wrong hands and is stolen, the story begins.

The film follows the desperate search through the streets of Rome to find the needed bike. The story is about Toma and his son, their lives.
Spring fever

This week's spring weather lured students outside for a variety of activities. Here a student performs with other band members on the lawn outside Jane Addams.

Flags—

continued from page one

would be offended at what they think is a disrespectful action. "They were asked reasonably to put the flags right," he said, referring to Monday's incident. Student reaction has varied. "I think they should be kept rightside-up. The revolution is over," said Perle Jak. Clarkson commented, "it reminded me of the movie 'Hearts and Minds'; it's a little bit anarchistic: out of place, out of time." He added that he was neither offended nor impressed.

Another student's reaction was, "if I had a choice, I'd just as soon see it rightside-up." At present, only Pandoe's flag is flying upside-down. "What started out as a fun thing has turned into a political struggle," he said. He mentioned that faction in the dorm have been created, with some students putting the flag right-side-up when he's gone.

Electives

continued from page three

Democratic contenders. Furthermore, the Times also contains that many Carter voters are likely to desert the would arise from a total management. The Democratic Department, however, has said that it is seeking to improve relations with privately owned shipyards.

Library exhibit

continued from page six

Salve Regina College in Newport, Rhode Island, where she gave lectures on different aspects of children's literature. The social studies courses were her prime concern.

"I was aware of what was available and made use of the resources in our library to put together this collection," explained Mrs. Shackford.

Professor Robley Evans had written an article about the 19th Century children's books in our library for the Spring 1973 Griphon. Mrs. Shackford was able to expand this to include this basic conflict between morals and fantasy.

---

Dear Editor,

Out of concern for the eating habits of many, St. Rose's Nutrition Committee is distributing Nutrition Cards for the dining rooms on campus. These are to be left on the tables for reading during meals. Some of the topics are sugar, protein, meat, vitamins, food fiber, cholesterol, and food additives.

Sustenance hopes that these will benefit some of you.

Sustenance

More

To The Editors:

I wish to thank Lauren Kingsley for helping me to keep up with my logic. In item I she bemoans the fact that housefellows are chosen more on their reputations rather than their abilities. As for the comments: There is no Item II. In Item III we are told that the housefellows should be chosen because they are "real students" (reputations?) rather than by their interviews.

Later in the article, Ms. Kingsley says that the average student is weird, erratic and desperate. She follows this immediately with the judgement that the chosen housefellows were never like the average student. I felt personally judged when she said that one who is a moron about money will be a moron about people.

The impression comes through that there is something bothering Ms. Kingsley. More important now than perhaps any other time it is necessary that our views be stated clearly and logically so that we may carry on reasonable arguments and arrive at good decisions. If important changes are to be made it is surely the role of the interested and qualified members of the college community and not just a few who may not appreciate all sides of the question. However, in order for the rest of us to know another's feelings, they must be expressed clearly, objectively and by the proper means. Ms. Kingsley has only attempted to satisfy the last of these. I wish to thank Lauren Kingsley again for helping me to remember how important good communication is in relationships and in decision making.

S. Wirtelmaier

Still more

To The Editors:

If "nurds elect nurds," then I hope Miss Kingsley was not one of the students who voted for me last year. It would be difficult for me, as I am about to "enter the real world," to suddenly discover that I am a moron.

Richard L. Allen

Nutrition

Dear Editor,

Out of concern for the eating habits of many, Sustenance, the food issues group on campus, is distributing Nutrition Cards for the dining rooms on campus. These are to be left on the tables for reading during meals. Some of the topics are sugar, protein, meat, vitamins, food fiber, cholesterol, and food additives.

Sustenance hopes that these will benefit some of you.

Sustenance

Dodd at Conn.

U.S. Representative Christopher Dodd will give a presentation in Bill 106 at 4 p.m. today. There will also be a question and answer period following his presentation.
Parents' Weekend Schedule

FRIDAY, APRIL 23

Poetry Readings
Student poets; and Franklin Reeve - poet, critic, novelist;
Brendan Galvin - resident poet 3:30 - 5:00 p.m., The College House

Lacrosse Match
Brendan Galven - resident poet 3:30 - 5:00 p.m., The College House

Student poets: and Franklin Reeve - poet, critic, novelist;
Students accompanied by parents may obtain advance com-

Saturday, April 24

"Wake-up Welcome" for Students and Parents, Registration,
Coffee-Doughnuts 9:00 a.m. - 12N, Crosier-Williams Main

Library

College Bookshop Hours: 9:00 - 11:00 a.m.; 1:00 - 4:00 p.m.
Recreational Activities All Day - paddle tennis, squash court (by reservation) All Day - ping-pong, billiards, bowling, volley ball, tennis court 2:00 - 3:00 p.m. - swimming

Faculty Symposia (10:00 - 11:00 a.m.) "Being Parents of a College Student Today" - Molly Brooks and Bert Gunn, In-

Library

Undergraduate Instruction at Connecticut College " - John Kent, 304 New London Hall "Colonial Colleges and Politics" - Minor Tyler, Jr., 125 Hale "Dante and Medieval Symbolism" - Robert Proctor, 306 Fanning Hall "The Spiritual Landscape:

Lecture

Ruge, Friedrich, Constable - Charles Price, Olivia Hall "Adventures in the Plant World" - Sally Taylor, 113 New London Hall

Cancelling Demonstration by Christian Phiney '78 and David Stern '79 10:30 a.m., Crosier-Williams Pool

President's Assembly President Oakes Ames 11:15 a.m.,

Palmier Auditorium

Lunches for Parents and Students 12:15 p.m., Dormitories

Open House Poetry Readings - Student Art Exhibit 1:00 - 3:00 p.m., UNITY House

Botany Department Plant Sale 1:00, Outdoors at the Greenhouse

Crew Races CC Women vs Assumption College & University of New Hampshire CC Men vs Assumption College & University of New Hampshire 1:00 p.m., CC Boat House and USCGA Boat House

Basketball Dancing Class 1:00 - 2:30 p.m., Crosier-Williams East Gym

The Winners of the "Basket of Cheer" 1st prize $50 hard liquor - Anne McCoo 2nd prize $25 wine - Steve Gutman 3rd prize case of beer - John Defrnel The Shiffs thank all those who took a "chance."
Peter Bellotti from the undefeated K.B. team shoots against Blackstone in first round playoff action of the inter-dorm league.

KB is favored to win Dorn basketball title

By Steve Price

Can anyone stop K.B.? So far, no one has, and as the playoffs get under way they are the clear favorites to win the championship. More wins during the last week of the regular season preserved K.B.'s undefeated record. Peter Bellotti's 22 points led them to a surprisingly easy 69-49 victory over Smith-Burdkirk first place finishers in Division I.

Steve Litwin led Burdkirk with 12 points, while Bellotti scored 18 in their other victory, a 63-49 decision over Lambdin. 16 of his 26 points came in the second half to break open a close game. Ted Riffin led Lambdin with 11 points.

In other games, the Faculty upset Morrison 65-53 in a preview of their playoff matchup. Bob Hampton, the top scorer in the league, led the Faculty with 26 points with another amazing display of shooting. Jeff Longstein's 18 points topped Morrison.

Lambdin breezed to a 63-28 victory over Smith-Burdkirk II as Greg Yahia and David Silverstein each had 15 points. Paul Roberts took 12 for Burdkirk.

The semi-finals will be played on Monday night with the winners of the Burdkirk-Lambdin and Hamilton-Larrabee games meeting in one matchup, while the Faculty-Morrison victor will play the K.B.-Blackstone winner in the other game. The championship game will be played on either Monday or Tuesday night.

Laurz enters B League hoop playoffs; Expects to win first championship

by Reech Nand

Laurz, that little outhouse in the woods, has finally earned the distinction it has deserved all season, and is ready to enter the B League basketball team playoffs.

Besides being ridiculous for the noise, the toilets that inflict burns upon the residents, and the broken dryer that has been out of commission for years, Laurz finally has something to be proud of.

For the first time in Connecticut College's history, Laurz has a winning basketball team, despite being the underdog all season long. In fact, this is the first year Laurz has ever, in the history of its existence, had a basketball team. The team's record is currently 7 and 2, and plans to end the season game with a 9 and 3 record.

The team's scoring punch comes from Richard Dunne, Colleen Ewing, and Georgette Dionne. It has excellent defense with the added virtues of height and speed.

As basketball star, John England, says, who moonlights in England, "I knew there was something good about this dorm besides listening to music clearly at 4 a.m. without turning on my stereo."

This year Laurz is considering recruiting.

Women stickers Drop third Straight game

The women's lacrosse team lost to Williams Saturday April 14 in a close match against Mount Holyoke. The score was 7-6.

As indicated by the close score, the teams were well matched and the score could have gone either way. The team which played superbly, but Holyoke was able to pull through in the game's final minutes.

Claire Quam, Emily Wolfe, Buffy Ashforth and Wendy continued on page eleven

Connecticut metmen Defeat Thames Valley

At five and six inches, Larry Yahia and Ethan Wolfe also notched straight set wins pushed Connecticut College to the top of the New London Conference. At number one singles, Yahia's winning victory over Win Bohoonot beat Walter Sadowski 6-4, 6-5. Greg Yahia split sets with his opposite, but then was unable to finish due to darkness.

David Rosenfeld playing three and four singles respectively crashed their opponents in straight sets.
Pitching and hitting look Strong for Camel batmen

by Barry Grass

Springtime is synonymous with many things. The pounding of the glove, the crack of the bat, and the roar of the crowd are indications that spring and indeed baseball season is once again upon us.

The past two weeks have seen the opening of practice for the Conn. baseball team. In preparation for the upcoming season, Coach Steve Brunetti is looking at 28 prospects, out of which he hopes to fill the nucleus of a ball club. The following is an analysis of positions and the overall prospect for the upcoming season.

Pitching, which was a weak point last spring, is looking better. Lefthanders Dick Kadin andSkip Price, and righthanders Scott Masere and Andy Krewolin make up a strong hill corps. The catching will be shared by three players: Brian Filenbaum, the scrappy receiver who played last spring, Eric Weisenbale and Dave Paulsen, both strong bat carriers up the plate.

The infield positions for the most part are open. Ted O'Leary will be on first base. Other infield prospects are Paul McCarthy, Paul Canell, Pablo Fitzmaurice, Krewolin, Masere and Tracy Masters. Coach Brunetti, last spring's starting shortstop, will once again perform at that position.

The outfield has one returning player from last year.

---

Crew

continued from page ten

start, Conn. made up ground through the body of the race, but was unable to improve beyond third behind the winning Brown boat and the Tech seconds.

The first women faced one boat each from Brown, Wesleyan, Trinity and Tech. A rough start forced Conn. to row catch-up through the race, eventually reaching second. But a few rough strokes in the sprint allowed Tech to take second by a deck.

by Davenport Scott

Conn. rally comes too late as Stickmen lose to U. of Hartford

Last but not least, a great deal must be said about Wendy MacAlister, the red haired flame in the goal who blocked shot after shot in the course of the contest. The night after the game, the team got together and toasted to their future which is looking more and more optimistic with each day's practice. The team's next game will be a tough one against Wesleyan on Saturday, April 23.

Up, up and over

Randi Hansen jumps the fence to win 6th place in the Intercollegiate horse show at University of Connecticut April 17. This Saturday at 9:00 a.m. is the annual show at the Conn. College stables which will include a special drill exhibition by the Sabre and Spur Riding Club.

Upcoming Events

April 22: Women's Tennis - home - 3:15 p.m.
April 23: Men's Golf - at Trinity. Women's Lacrosse - home - 3:30 p.m.
April 24: Men's Lacrosse - at URI - 1:30 p.m.
April 27: Men's Baseball - Avery Point - 3:30 p.m.
April 28: Men's Lacrosse - Home - 3:30 p.m.
Men's Golf - Home - p.m.

Women's tennis team Tripped by Radcliffe

by Hilary Henderson

The scarlet coats of Radcliffe arrived at Conn. for the second women's tennis match of the spring season Monday, April 19 and defeated Conn. 7-2.

Although the score indicated a rather decisive victory, three of the matches were very close, including two that went to tie-breakers.

After a number of challenges matches last week, and the departure of one team member, a new line-up was arranged. Playing first for Connecticut singles was Anne Caputi. Second in the lineup was Hilary Henderson, followed by Lisa Schwa~tli Sarah Burchenal, Sally Schwab and Anne Garrison. Burchenal was the only team member to emerge victorious. A discussion last week resulted in the formation of three new doubles teams. Henderson and Burchenal played one for Conn. with Caputi and Pam Keta in the second position.

The third team of Schwartz and Jody Smith did not get a chance to play as an injured "Cottle" resulted in a default by Radcliffe.

The next Connecticut women's tennis match is today against the University of Connecticut. Coach Sheryl Yeary forecasts a close match, as UConn just squeaked by Conn in the fall season.

Women's lacrosse

continued from page ten

Crandall played extremely well and proved Conn's ability to score. On defense, Ann Doubleit, Melissa Eletherius, Terry Hazan and Kit Shaffer exhibited excellent clearing and intercepting to hold down the fort in the backfield.

Backing them up from the unglamorous but all-important bench were Dina Catani, Allison Hall, and Margy Erdman.

Women's Tennis---at Barrington College---1:00 p.m.
Lacrosse---home---3:30 p.m.
Mens Tennis---at Wesleyan University---
April 23:
April 24:
April 25:
April 26:
April 27:
April 28:
April 29:
April 30:

Women's Golf---Home---p.m.

April 28:
April 29:
April 30:

April 22:
April 23:
April 24:
April 25:
April 26:
April 27:
April 28:
April 29:
April 30:

Women's Tennis---at Wesleyan University---3:00 p.m.

Women's tennis team continued from page ten

Craddell played extremely well and proved Conn's ability to score. On defense, Ann Doubleit, Melissa Eletherius, Terry Hazan and Kit Shaffer exhibited excellent clearing and intercepting to hold down the fort in the backfield.

Back up from the unglamorous but all-important bench were Dina Catani, Allison Hall, and Margy Erdman.

Women's tennis team Tripped by Radcliffe

by Hilary Henderson

The scarlet coats of Radcliffe arrived at Conn. for the second women's tennis match of the spring season Monday, April 19 and defeated Conn. 7-2.

Although the score indicated a rather decisive victory, three of the matches were very close, including two that went to tie-breakers.

After a number of challenges matches last week, and the departure of one team member, a new line-up was arranged. Playing first for Connecticut singles was Anne Caputi. Second in the lineup was Hilary Henderson, followed by Lisa Schwartli Sarah Burchenal, Sally Schwab and Anne Garrison. Burchenal was the only team member to emerge victorious. A discussion last week resulted in the formation of three new doubles teams. Henderson and Burchenal played one for Conn. with Caputi and Pam Keta in the second position.

The third team of Schwartz and Jody Smith did not get a chance to play as an injured "Cottle" resulted in a default by Radcliffe.

The next Connecticut women's tennis match is today against the University of Connecticut. Coach Sheryl Yeary forecasts a close match, as UConn just squeaked by Conn in the fall season.

Women's lacrosse

continued from page ten

Crandall played extremely well and proved Conn's ability to score. On defense, Ann Doubleit, Melissa Eletherius, Terry Hazan and Kit Shaffer exhibited excellent clearing and intercepting to hold down the fort in the backfield.

Back up from the unglamorous but all-important bench were Dina Catani, Allison Hall, and Margy Erdman.

Women's Tennis---at Barrington College---1:00 p.m.
Lacrosse---home---3:30 p.m.
Men's Tennis---at Wesleyan University---3:00 p.m.

Women's tennis team continued from page ten

Craddell played extremely well and proved Conn's ability to score. On defense, Ann Doubleit, Melissa Eletherius, Terry Hazan and Kit Shaffer exhibited excellent clearing and intercepting to hold down the fort in the backfield.

Back up from the unglamorous but all-important bench were Dina Catani, Allison Hall, and Margy Erdman.
Military spending

If indeed the defense of our nation is so crucial, then I call on General Dynamics, Pratt & Whitney, Lockheed and Boeing to make our weapons systems without profit. I’ll bet not one of them will do it.

And, if your editorial states, there is an intense raging over the question of too much military spending, why is there no debate within the pages of your newspaper? Consider printing this entire lengthy piece with that concern in mind.

Marta Daniels
Field Sec'y
American Friends Service
Peace Education Division

---

Baseball—

continued from page eleven

Sponsor—centerfielder Dana Spachack. Other outfield prospects include Adam Schneider, Mark Fiskio, Maser, and Paulten. The team had a scrimmage April 10 against Old Lyme High School with the Cornell winning 8-2. Everybody played and Brunetti was pleased, stating that it is good omen for the upcoming season.

If indeed the defense of our nation is so crucial, then I call on General Dynamics, Pratt & Whitney, Lockheed and Boeing to make our weapons systems without profit. I’ll bet not one of them will do it.

And, if your editorial states, there is an intense raging over the question of too much military spending, why is there no debate within the pages of your newspaper? Consider printing this entire lengthy piece with that concern in mind.

Marta Daniels
Field Sec'y
American Friends Service
Peace Education Division

---

Law Club sponsors

First annual ‘Law Week’

The first annual Law Week, April 24-30, sponsored by the Law Club at Conn. will feature four events of interest to anyone considering law as a career. Monday, at 7 p.m. in Hamilton Livingroom, Peter Zimmerman, a representative for Northeastern Law School in Boston, will answer questions about the school’s program offerings. Northeastern’s program is unique in that it involves a cooperative-clinical approach to law as well as a regular classroom method.

The movie “Inherit the Wind”

Palmer Library

There are estimates that the cost of renovating Palmer for use either way would amount to several million dollars. The razing of Thames and Winthrop, if the occupants of these buildings were moved to Palmer, would save approximately $35,000 per head.

The savings in closing all but two kitchens on campus would be $196,000, and centralized dining would probably save a little more. President Ames stated, “We are trying to make a decision on the merits of each proposal though finances cannot be entirely ruled out.”

---

Attention Pre-Med Students

For further information about summer term course offerings write or call:

Summer term Admissions
1502A Yale Station
New Haven, CT 06520
(203) 432-4229

---

Yale College Summer Term

May 30—August 15

Spend a Summer at Yale

A complete semester, full credit, a wide selection of courses taught by Yale College faculty.

Humanities Center offers such unique programs as:

Colonial America — An examination of the formative years in the development of an American nation.

Film — A study of film through production, analysis, historical development.

Forms of Literary Modernism — Studies of the modernist period in twentieth century fiction, poetry, drama in Europe and America.

For further information about summer term course offerings write or call:

Summer Term Admissions, 1502A Yale Station
New Haven, CT 06520
(203) 432-4229