A NEW CYCLE OF ACHIEVEMENT

"As we prepare for the public phase of our campaign, it is imperative that each of us thinks of Connecticut College in increasingly dramatic terms."

I hope this special issue of Connecticut College Magazine holds something for everyone. It is an opportunity to talk about the Sheaffer-O'Neill collection, a recent acquisition that makes Connecticut College one of the top places to study the life of America's most noted playwright. It is a chance to share a particularly uplifting convocation message, presented this fall by an outstanding alumna and trustee. And it is a place to thank all of you who have given of yourselves to the college this year, to ensure that the college can continue giving of itself, both now and in the future.

The past year at Connecticut College has greatly increased my enthusiasm about and expectations for our future.

It was a year of completion and evaluation. We closed the books on the college's original five-year strategic plan, among the first of its kind in U.S. higher education, and we published and distributed the results of that plan in the comprehensive report, "A Time to Lead." Working from this study, we drafted our strategic plan for the next five years. The Connecticut College community, rather than basking in the satisfaction of good work well done, has been recharging, preparing itself to provide leadership in liberal arts education for the next millennium.

To ensure the sound financial base required of leadership, we are now in the advanced stages of preparation for announcing the largest comprehensive development campaign in Connecticut College history. I am proud and grateful to report that already the contribution of the Board of Trustees — whose members have committed themselves to leadership in campaign giving — has been exemplary.

The 1993-94 Annual Fund surpassed even our ambitious objectives, and giving overall was exceptional throughout the year. Thank you. Your generosity serves as a resounding vote of confidence in the college.

As we prepare for the public phase of our campaign, it is imperative that each of us think of Connecticut College in increasingly dramatic terms. Endowment and increased annual support will be the immediate focus. The highest priorities for endowment will be faculty chairs and scholarships, both of which will augment the financial strength of the college and at the same time ensure our ability to attract the strongest faculty and students.

The college needs your support at every level. As the campaign proceeds, everyone will have the opportunity to give to specific purposes. All will be asked to increase giving to the Annual Fund.

We recognize all of you who have given to the college in the past year, and we note some of the more outstanding achievements of this fund-raising period. Again, on behalf of the entire campus community, I thank you all.

Sincerely,

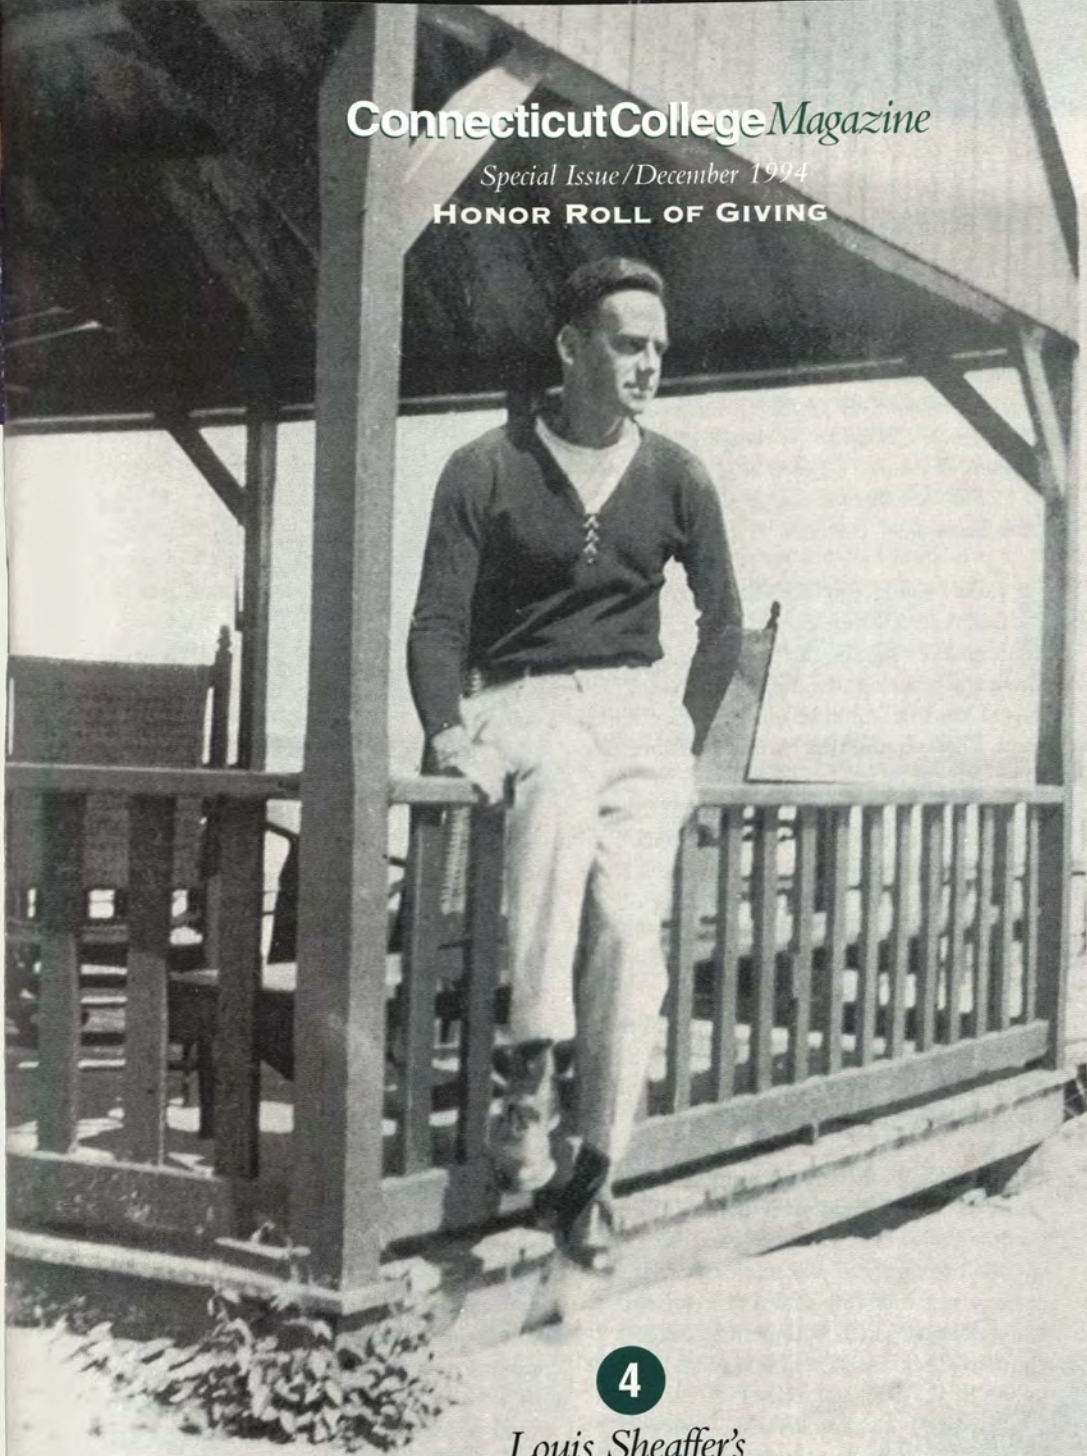

Claire L. Gaudiani '66

Star power A parable on not settling for being an "average" college

Carol Ramsey has been a trustee of the college since 1988. She is a former head of school at the Wilmington Friends School in Wilmington, Del., and a former vice president for independent schools for the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) in Washington, D.C. She made these remarks at the college's 78th Convocation, September 1, 1994.

RAMSEY: Complacency is never acceptable.

It was 24 years ago that I started as a freshman at Connecticut College. I remember signing the Matriculation Book and realizing that this college was mine. I knew it would be mine for four years. I had no idea that I would continue to be defined by it 24 years later.

Now, you are probably anticipating that I am referring to the education I received here as the defining factor. Or that the definition I allude to is the lasting influence of my teachers and friends on my life. No. I am not talking about that. I am talking about the fact that 24 years later, I am judged, not by the record I have built in the intervening years, but by the perception of others of the quality and distinctiveness and direction the college currently chooses to pursue.

Rightly or wrongly, I am painted by the brush you wield. I and other alumni become the personification of your intent and the barometer of your actions.

For a very long time, I was perceived as being average, largely because the college I chose to join presents itself that way. That is no longer the case, and today I offer the perspective of one who loves this college not just for all you have given me, and all you have accomplished, but for the promise that is the college's future.

Today, I come to speak of not being average.

As text for that discussion, I offer a fable by James Thurber, called "The Moth and the Star."

A young and impressionable moth once set his heart on a certain star. He told his mother about this and she counseled him to set his heart on a bridge lamp instead. "Stars aren't the thing to hang around," she said.; "Lamps are the thing to hang around." You'll get somewhere that way," said the moth's father. "You don't get anywhere chasing stars." But the moth would not heed the words of either parent. Every evening at dusk when the stars came out he would start flying toward one, and every morning at dawn he would crawl back home worn out by his vain endeavor. One day his father said to him "You haven't burned a wing in months, boy, and it looks to me as if you were never going to. All your brothers have been badly burned flying around street lamps and all your sisters have been terribly singed flying around house lamps. Come on now, get out of here and get yourself scorched!"

The moth left his father's house, but he would not fly around street lamps and he should not fly around house lamps. He went right on trying to reach the star... He never did reach that star, but he went right on trying, night after night, and when he was a very, very old moth he began to think that he really had reached the star and he went around saying so. This gave him a deep and lasting pleasure, and he lived to a great old age. His parents and his brother and his sisters had all been burned to death when they were quite young.

Moral: Who flies afar from the sphere of our sorrow is here today and here tomorrow.

What this fable describes to me is the debate about our future and what we will become. It is about whether we should strive to be more than we already are; about whether it is hope or folly that moves us to strive past our limits; about whether we can choose to be average and expect to thrive.

It seems to me that Connecticut's great power and strength of recent years has rested in two things: its efforts to make itself distinctive and its aggressive avoidance of settling for being average. From CISLA [the Center for International Studies and the Liberal Arts] to Study Abroad/Teach Abroad, from the Olin Building to the College Center, from the Honor Code to civic virtue; Connecticut has demonstrated a deep understanding of what the average college has failed to grasp: that in this world you will lead or get out of the way; you will guide or be passed by.

Now, don't get me wrong. There is a lot of good to be said for being average. The dictionary says that if you are average, you are intermediate in value. Hence, you are normal.

And from adolescence to the grave, we not only glorify being average, we strive to maintain it. Why not? It is a safe, secure position. You don't ever have to explain or defend average. When you say it, everybody pretends they know what you mean.

I personally take a great deal of satisfaction and comfort when I am able to respond to a question by declaring I am average. It relieves me of having to be too specific or clear or purposeful or committed. How tall are you? Oh, average. How much do you weigh? Oh, average for my height range. How old are you? Average for someone of my generation.

When describing a new love interest and friends ask, "Is he good-looking," I can say, "Oh, he's average." Heads will bob in acceptance. He could be ugly as dirt but the answer "average" will quiet all discussion on the subject.

Average means you don't have to tell the whole truth, you can overlook shortcomings and never stand for close scrutiny or precision. You never have to offer more than "intermediate value."

At one time the estimation of this college could be satisfied by claims of being average. As long as class size was average and course offerings typical of small liberal arts college; as long as student performance, faculty scholarship, campus facilities and tuition costs were "average," we could feel safe.

But, in this world, so big and so different, if we choose to be average we cannot thrive. "Intermediate value" in a world with needs of gargantuan proportions is too little.

Add to that the fact of our extraordinary privilege, the privilege of being in this place, with this company, these students, these teachers and these resources... An "intermediate return" on such an investment would be a travesty.

What average does not force is responsibility of accountability. It is a paradox that we apply averages whenever we attempt to do just that. We check average salaries, average standards, average class loads, average class size, average SAT scores in defense against actual assessment.

That is pervasive and it is meaningless. Average does not speak to problems solved or suffering relieved. It does not measure hope given or tyranny confronted. It does not show responsibility met or promises kept.

Last year, we completed the first stage of our strategic plan. It was five years of deep introspection, followed by self knowledge, then self advancement and action. All organizations, like human beings, go through changes and phases of life, growing and developing, each stage different from the one preceding it, but consistent with the encoded plan. Every person and organization changes, but not everyone guides that change as you have done. The trick, of course, is to stay calm, placid in the face of seeming chaos, energetic in spite of lethargy, eager despite doubtless risk and inventive when sameness is the other option. The desired results come only when resolve prevails.

The other evening, I happened to meet a man who worked at another fine institution. Though unsolicited and not in these words, he offered this advice to me a trustee of the college: He told me that Connecticut College sets its goals too high. It aspires to be too much. He said that we should settle for being something less than our absolute best, and that we should save ourselves the risk of disappointment. After all, he cautioned, we might fail. Better to do so under the shroud of praise for being average, than in the burning glare of virtue applied.

That is what he said. But this is what I heard: In his world, we were to be also-rans, at best a quiet follower. He is stunned that we dared move to lead.

It is our college — not his — that has moved to preeminence in science by winning the construction of a state-of-the-art science center.

It is our college — not his — that put its money where its mouth was, keeping its promise to its faculty and completing salary gap closing.

It is at this college — not his — where students live by an honor code by which they earn the rights and privileges to share in governance of their college.

It is we who have created an environment where students of any color who aspire for knowledge, tolerance, peace and progress can thrive, not his college.

As the man pointed out, being average may be a matter of fact. But we know that staying average is a matter of choice, and we choose to fly afar from the sphere of that sorrow.

We are good today. We will be even better tomorrow.

Mr. Sheaffer's O'Neill

A special acquisition suddenly makes Connecticut College one of the top places in the world to study the life of America's most noted playwright.

LOUIS SHEAFFER'S most visible legacy to theater enthusiasts is his superb two-volume biography of Eugene O'Neill: O'Neill: Son and Playwright (1968) and O'Neill: Son and Artist (1973), published by Little, Brown. Reviewers around the world admired the author's wealth of facts and insights and the clear narrative stream, and it was not surprising when the 1974 Pulitzer Prize for biography was given to Sheaffer.

But there is another part of Louis Sheaffer's legacy to the world: the immense and hitherto hidden archive of documents and pictures he acquired during seventeen years of immersion in the world of Eugene O'Neill. This rich repository of information about New London's most famous son has been recently acquired by the Charles E. Shain Library. Almost overnight, Connecticut College has become a nationally important O'Neill research center, not only for our own students and faculty, but for the international community of O'Neill scholars.

Book covers of Sheaffer's two-volume biography O'Neill: Son and Playwright and O'Neill: Son and Artist. These paperback editions were published by Paragon House in 1988.

Although he was born in New York City in 1888, it is well known that Eugene

O'Neill spent his boyhood summers in New London. Because his father James was an actor, the family spent much of the rest of the year on tour or living in a hotel in New York. New London was his only real home. By 1911, the year the founders of Connecticut College had secured a charter from the State, O'Neill had been suspended from Princeton (1906), married Kathleen Jenkins, his first wife (1909), and shipped out as a seaman to Argentina, South Africa and England (1910-11). He returned to New London in 1912, writing for the New London Telegraph, composing bad poems and courting local girls. By the time Connecticut College's first freshman class arrived in 1915, however, he had moved to Greenwich Village and fallen in with the group of young revolutionaries with whom he would play the leading role in creating a new, serious drama of ideas far removed from the mannered melodrama so popular at the time.

A half century later, Louis Sheaffer came to New London to begin retracing O'Neill's earliest steps. Among the many local residents who assisted him were College Librarian Hazel A.

Johnson, who had built an estimable library collection of O'Neill first editions and autograph letters, and Professor of English Gerda Taranow, who was working on her own book on a famous theater figure, Sarah

Students and historians will want to examine the Sheaffer-O'Neill Collection for many reasons, not the least of which is that Sheaffer was an exhaustive researcher who amassed more information than he could use.

Bernhardt: The Art Within the Legend (Princeton, 1972). The long O'Neill saga began in New London, and with the posthumous publication of his autobiographical masterwork, Long Day's Journey Into Night, set in the living room of his boyhood home, the chronology may be said to end here as well.

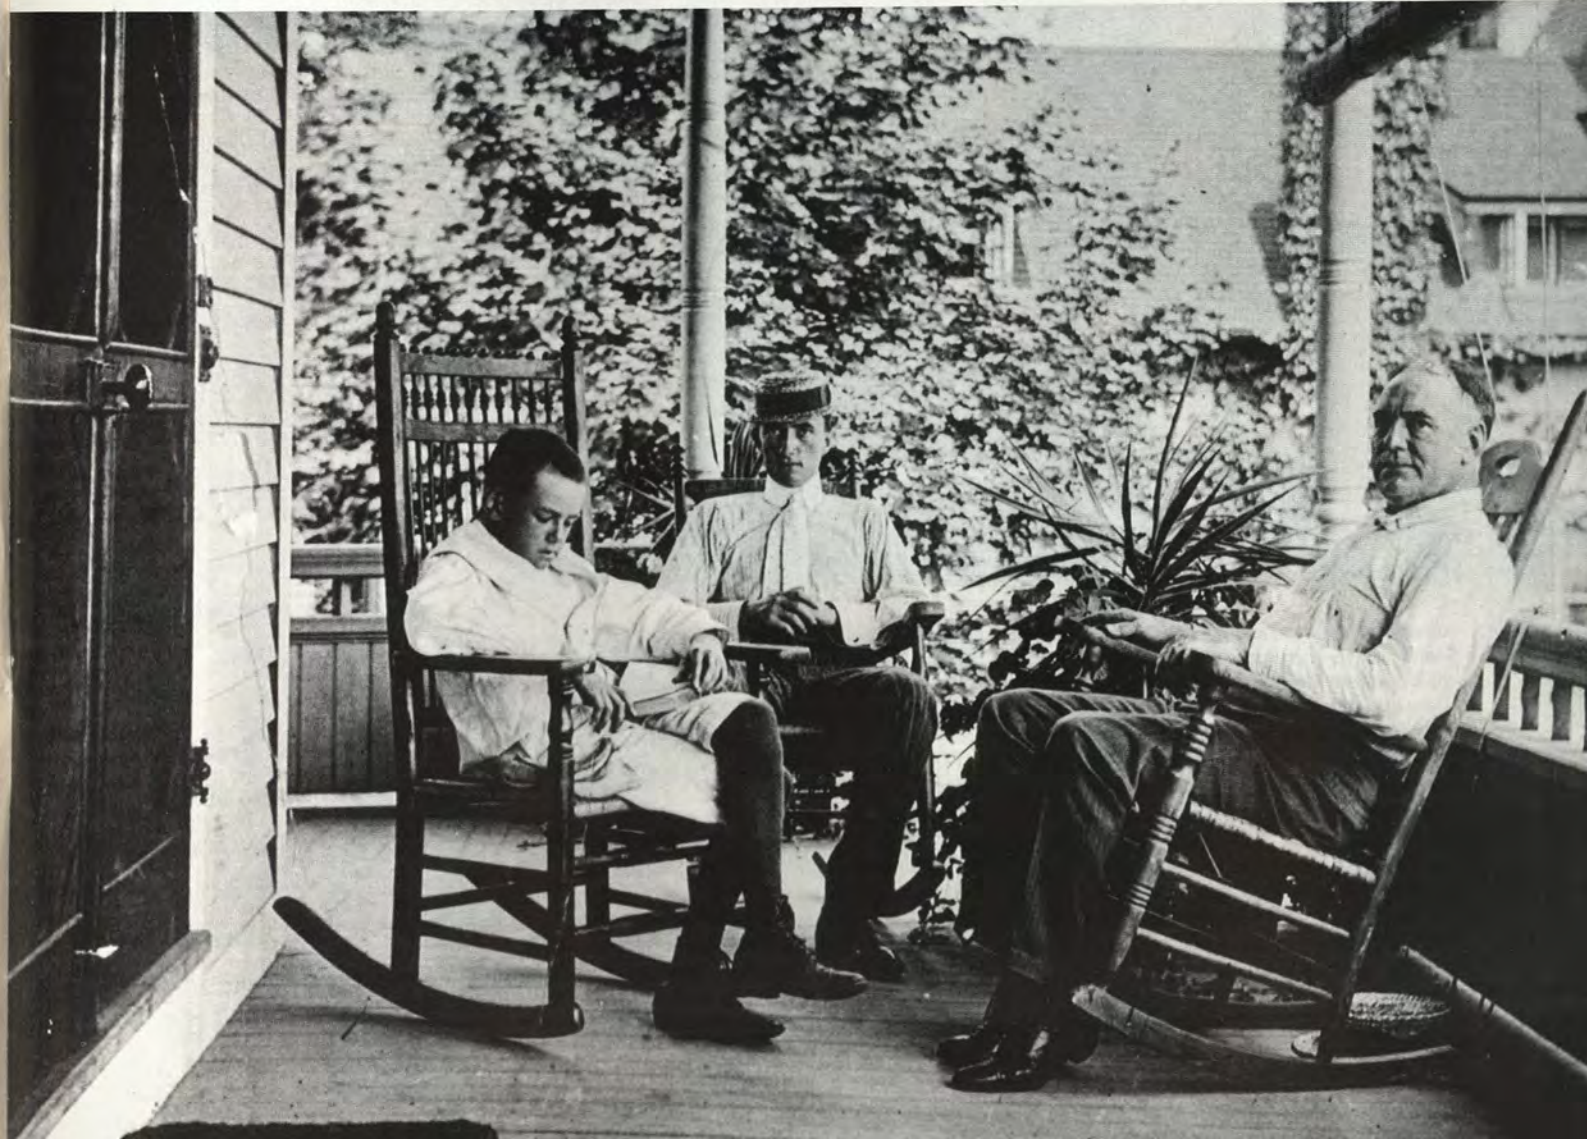

Students and historians will want to examine the Sheaffer-O'Neill Collection for many reasons, not the least of which is that Sheaffer was an exhaustive researcher who amassed more information than he could use. In 1991 he wrote to an acquaintance, "My two books use only a fraction of the voluminous material I collected. There are at least three or four more books in my material, and no end of articles." But even if this were not the case, a large body of documentary evidence such as Sheaffer's papers can be used to support a range of interpretations; those delving into this material in the future may come to conclusions at variance with Sheaffer's, or be led to completely new insights about some facet of the O'Neill story.

O'Neill was not only one of the most autobiographical playwrights who ever lived, but corresponded voluminously with friends, family and associates. In addition to 15 original O'Neill letters, the collection has hundreds of letters that Sheaffer photocopied or transcribed in libraries, or obtained from individuals.

What makes this archive truly unique, however, are the typewritten accounts of the hundreds of personal interviews Sheaffer conducted with people who knew O'Neill or were associated with him in any way, from school classmates to wives. Indeed, the longest of these accounts resulted from his several meetings with the controversial Carlotta Monterey O'Neill, Eugene's third wife.

The photographs Sheaffer accumulated are remarkable as well, in part for their sheer number — perhaps as many as 500 images — but more importantly because so many of them depict O'Neill with family and friends in relaxed, informal situations. Among the most charming are those of Eugene and his second wife Agnes Boulton, proudly admiring baby Oona. A later snapshot of a smiling, adolescent Oona with her father is a poignant reminder of the estrangement O'Neill would initiate when, against his wishes, Oona married Charles Chaplin.

In 1987, the year before the 100th anniversary of O'Neill's birth, Sheaffer and his editor, William Phillips (now Editor in Chief at Little, Brown) discussed the possibility of a one-volume abridgment. The project proved impossible. Sheaffer's great achievement was to construct a long narrative laced with telling detail and colorful quotes while never impeding the progress of the story. He wanted the work to be reissued, not abridged, and wrote to a friend, "Unless my agent...can find a publisher to reprint both volumes, I fear that 'the indispensable life of O'Neill' (thanks, Brendan Gill) will not be available when all the celebrating of the playwright's 100th anniversary is going on."

Some British critics took exception to wealth of detail that is one of the work's greatest attributes. Most reviews were laudatory, there were exceptions, such as this amusing excerpt from a British theater journal: "Did you know that the O'Neills took their Dalmatian to rehearsals of Electra, and he got into a scrap with Miss Brady's wire-haired terrier? That they stopped in

EUGENE O'NEILL
PRINCETOWN, MASS.

August 15, 1921.

My dear Miss Brown:

Your play is a sound piece of work and I am glad to have had the opportunity to read it. It reveals a genuine sense of dramatic value both in the handling of situation and in the dialogue. And it has imagination. These are the two qualities, I should say, the possession or lack of which make or unmake a dramatist. All else is relatively unimportant, can be learned.

I like your characterization of the "poor whites". They are particularly well drawn. They all live. I can't say the same for the lovers. They seem to me wooden and banal - types, not human beings. Probably you were not one - little as much intrigued by them as by the others. One has to beware of this. I know from experience. A play often becomes as weak as its weakest line.

The whole idea is original and imaginative - but I wish you had worked it into your plot more convincingly. The man talking about to himself in the grove is a bit strained, don't you think? You see, when you show him to us, he isn't that kind of man. Why not make him so?

And the tearing of the flower does seem one turn of the sentimental screw an extra turn myself for this, having made many an extra turn myself for which I now feel regretful.

As for H. R. P.'s carp about "remedyless tragedy", that is mere Pollyanna - hokum and a profoundly naive criticism. Can tragedy contain its remedy? The notion is absurd. What remedy for poor Macbeth? Or Antigone?

Thanks for letting me see the play. You have every reason for being encouraged and keep on with playwrighting to be encouraged and keep on with playwrighting.

Eugene O'Neill.

Had Freud never existed, O'Neill would have had to invent him

New London en route to Maine for Boat Day in 1926? That Carlotta caught flu in 1930 and fainted on Christmas Eve while wrapping presents for the servants? And that his dentist thought he should see a psychiatrist? These and many other mind-boggling facts and figures can be found in Louis Sheaffer's monumental...prize-winning biography of O'Neill...But if you want to get to the heart of O'Neill, man and writer — discover what made him tick, how all this mass of minutiae ... added up to the sum of his work — you will be disappointed."

The Financial Times of London complained about the length, then added: "As for Sheaffer's reflection that if O'Neill's mother had become a nun, her playwright son would never have known this world, this is what Punch used to call 'a blinding glimpse of the obvious.'"

The literary editor of The Birmingham Post was more perceptive: In a 1974 letter to Sheaffer he wrote, O'Neill saw little of his daughter after leaving her mother for Carlotta Monterey in 1927. At age 16, Oona visited her father and his wife at Tao House, their California home. Two years later she married actor Charles Chaplin against her father's wishes.

Son and Artist,

incapacitating illness, until his death in 1953 at the age of 65, Louis Sheaffer completes a commanding two-part biography whose absorbing first volume, "O'Neill, Son and Playwright," was published in 1968.

In his first volume Mr. Sheaffer performed prodigies of research into the playwright's earlier years, going so far as to canvass not only all his classmates in all the schools O'Neill attended but also everyone who survived from among his acquaintanceship in his seafaring days and in the period of his start in the theater. Indeed, Mr. Sheaffer's re-creation of the Provincetown Players and of Greenwich Village life in the 1920's is an invaluable document in American cultural history. The second volume sustains this standard of scholarship with, among other things, a newly revealing investigation of O'Neill's marriages, in particular his gruesome relationship with his third and last wife, Carlotta.

Although the son once again of the word "son" in Mr. Sheaffer's present title is awkward, it points of course to what is in effect the thesis of his study: his belief that the whole of O'Neill's work, and perhaps of his life, was an elaboration, dissimulation or confusion of his earliest relation to his parents, variant upon variant of an endlessly exfoliating Oedipus obsession. Had Freud never existed, we conclude from Mr. Sheaffer's astute reading of the biographical and literary evidence he has gathered, O'Neill would have had to invent him.

But this is not to say that an explanation which restricts itself to family influence and other factors of an individual's environment is sufficient to account for O'Neill's character, or lack of it, or for the extremity of his nature, and Mr. Sheaffer has the good judgment not to let himself be limited by his Freudian bias. With tact and skill he applies the insights of psychoanalysis to O'Neill's plays; about the man himself he provides us with the abundant detailed information he has collected in countless interviews and hitherto unavailable documents but leaves it to us to decide whether a fate like O'Neill's is finally shaped by the Freudian determinism.

The playwright's father, James O'Neill, was an Irish-born actor whose substantial talent was squandered in the season-after-season performance of the same popular role, that of the Count of Monte Cristo. He was boastful, loquacious, and Sheaffer's biography O'Neill: Son and Artist was reviewed by Diana Trilling on the front page of The New York Times Book Review, November 25, 1973.

"O'Neill has always puzzled us here, to some extent; we feel the greatness brooding away there under the surface, but the idiom and the subjects are often rather alien to us. Still, I am convinced personally that Long Day's Journey is one of the half a dozen great plays of the century." Parenthetically, it should be noted that since the 1970s, thanks to Jean Chothia at Cambridge, and others, the O'Neill canon has now come into its own as a recognized subject for graduate study in British universities.

O'Neill: Son and Artist was reviewed on the front page of The New York Times Book Review in November, 1973, by none other than Diana Trilling. After acknowledging what she termed Sheaffer's "prodigies of research," and describing the work as "commanding" and "absorbing," she observed that the book's title “... points of course to what is in effect the thesis of [Sheaffer’s] study: his belief that the whole of O’Neill’s work, and perhaps of his life, was an elaboration, dissimulation or confession of his earliest relation to his parents, variant upon variant of an endlessly exfoliating Oedipean obsession. Had Freud never existed, we conclude from Mr. Sheaffer’s astute reading of the biographical and literary evidence he has gathered, O’Neill would have had to invent him.”

At a celebration of the acquisition of the Sheaffer-O’Neill Collection in November, 1993, Diana Trilling sent a letter for the occasion read by President Claire Gaudiani to the audience in the pleasant reading library area named for Jane and Hamilton Smyser.

“It gives me great pleasure to join in your celebration of Louis Sheaffer’s work on Eugene O’Neill. Your festivity has provided me with the occasion to return to Mr. Sheaffer’s volume which I reviewed ... in 1973. I wrote only as a literary critic. I am not an O’Neill scholar nor even an O’Neill fan, except for my admiration of the one late play ... Long Day’s Journey Into Night. But that play I continue to regard as the best play ever written by an American dramatist. On all scores Mr. Sheaffer’s study is a worthy guide to our understanding of the author of that play, meticulously thorough in its research, riveting as psychological investigation and as story-telling. The passing years, far from having dimmed Mr. Sheaffer’s accomplishment, add to its luster.”

Biographers will continue to be drawn to O’Neill and his “endlessly exfoliating Oedipean obsession,” but none are likely to replace the Sheaffer work. Because so much of his narrative and insight is based upon his conversations and correspondence with people who knew O’Neill, few of whom are alive today, the Sheaffer vol-

With our library’s acquisition of the Sheaffer-O’Neill Collection, some of that research is already beginning to take place at Connecticut College.

HONOR ROLL OF GIVING

A YEAR OF EXTRAORDINARY SUPPORT FOR A CONNECTICUT COLLEGE EDUCATION:

- Total giving: $12,034,111
- Annual Giving tops $2 million
- $3.6 million in gifts to invested funds: endowment and life income
- $4.5 million in support from corporations and foundations; $2.5 million specifically for the sciences
- 41 percent parent participation

GIVING BY DESIGN

On the following pages, we recognize the people who gave to Connecticut College in the past fiscal year. All donors believe the college can leverage their dollars into a superb education for leaders of the 21st Century. Some donors have additional reasons. Alumni are influenced by their years on campus and the experiences that laid the foundation for their later achievement. Parents have seen their children evolve into intellectually disciplined, thoughtful adults. Friends have come to understand the work of the college and the contributions its scholars and graduates make to society. Whatever the reason, every donor has considered his or her gift carefully.

Ideally, each gift is part of a plan that takes into account the immediate and expected resources of the donor and the immediate and long-term needs of the institution. Philanthropy is a partnership. Your partnership with Connecticut College can be expressed through support of the Annual Fund, through gifts of capital, and by including the college in your estate plans.

ANNUAL FUND

We did it!

We've never had a more exciting year! Encouraged by the previous year's success we challenged ourselves to break through a formidable $2 million barrier. And we did it. The grand total in annual giving this year reached an outstanding $2,179,177 in cash and pledges, and it's thanks to you!

Never have I seen such eager participation from so many Connecticut College constituencies. We showed an increase of 199 alumni donors for a total of 7,429 donors, and garnered nearly $300,000 in additional funds compared to the year prior — a 16-percent increase.

I believe this enthusiasm reflects a general and overwhelming approval of the distinctiveness of this institution. Our volunteers — a dedicated network growing more efficient each year — worked diligently, under the guidance of a superb Annual Fund staff, and rallied alumni, parents past and present, students and friends to give at ever increasing levels. And they did so with enthusiasm, because they believe in the value of a Connecticut College education.

The college is working hard to adapt its program to a changing and increasingly interconnected world in which trained, multifaceted thinkers and humanitarians will be perhaps the most valuable resources. Connecticut College is dedicated to preparing its students to be citizens and leaders in a global civil society, and the staff and volunteers are working hard to get the word out. Clearly, you're with us.

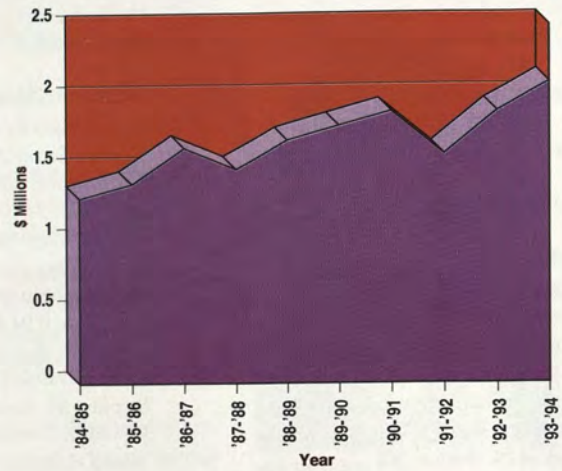

I am proud to be involved in advancing Connecticut College. Following a more than successful leadership phase, we will be ready soon to launch the public portion of our comprehensive campaign, designed in large part to increase the level of annual giving in concert with endowment growth. I know I can count on you to appreciate the needs, and to do all you can to support our college.

Read on, and see what we've done this year. Then imagine the possibilities for the year ahead. Please, help us continue to make the Annual Fund a winner.

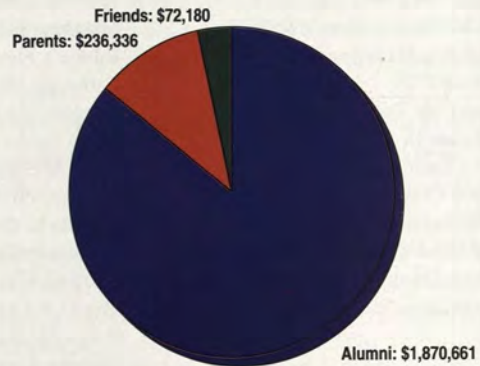

Thank you!

Weissman passes the baton

Harvard yields to Connecticut College without missing a beat

"The mandate of the Development and College Relations Committee chair is to provide leadership," says Bob Rasmussen, vice president for development and college relations. "Many people can preside," he says, "few can lead. Paul leads. And like all good leaders, he nurtures sequential leadership, knowing when to pass the baton."

After four years as chair of the Development Committee, Paul M. Weissman P'87 has stepped down, choosing to diversify his energies as a vice chair of the Connecticut College Board of Trustees. He leaves the seat to Sue Bernstein Mercy '63, in whom he — with the rest of the board and indeed the entire campus community — has every confidence.

"I am a strong believer that alumni have to become more active, more responsible for what happens at Connecticut College," says Weissman.

Alumnus or not, Weissman — who, in his spare time, serves as special associate director for the investment firm of Bear, Stearns & Co. — has brought the committee far. "Paul has given us the leadership to expand the donor base," says Mercy. "The progress he has inspired has been monumental."

Weissman has brought the board far during his tenure, preparing them for leadership in the campaign and helping spark their enthusiasm for its comprehensive nature.

Says Director of the Annual Fund Alison C. Woods, "I credit Paul with providing the inspiration to galvanizing the leadership among the board of trustees, with the result that the board is providing the pace-setting gifts to the Annual Fund. By doing this, he really lit the fire under the Annual Fund, increasing awareness of its importance to the college."

Through both his personal giving and his leadership of the committee, Weissman's accomplishments include the following:

- oversaw the advancement of $8.2 million in commitments to the College Center at Crozier-Williams, completed in 1992;
- coaxed the Annual Fund beyond both its 1992-93 and 1993-94 objectives;
- inspired a considerable increase in trustee giving, from 5 percent of total Annual Fund giving to 12;
- brought in $41,653,959 in total giving over the course of his four-year term;
- saw alumni participation increase from 37 percent to 45, with 1481 new donors.

Weissman graduated from Harvard in 1952, has served as head class agent for the 42 years since, has headed up major reunions, is chairman of the Harvard College Fund and serves as co-chair for the Faculty of Arts and Sciences portion of the Harvard Campaign.

"I have a great affiliation with and fondness for both institutions," says Weissman. "Harvard has a system of actively involving alumni — in special alumni events, in development, and in other activities. That's how I've been brought up, and that's what I've tried to encourage at Connecticut College."

Paul Weissman P'87

PLANNED GIVING recorded its third highest giving level, at $3.3 million. Particularly noteworthy in this category was the amount pledged in the form of life-income gifts, in which the donor receives a one-time charitable deduction and a lifetime income by making an irrevocable gift to Connecticut College. This year alone, the college received $1.4 million in life-income giving, a figure roughly double the previous high.

Director of Planned Giving Craig Esposito attributes the popularity of the various planned giving vehicles to an increased awareness of how planned giving can serve the donor and the donor's family's needs, while helping meet the college's needs too.

THE HERITAGE SOCIETY was established in 1989-90 to recognize those individuals who have chosen to include Connecticut College in their estate plans. Today, the Society counts more than 600 members.

PLANNED GIFTS

Barbara Hogate Ferrin '43 and husband Allan

Home base

Crafting a house into a professorship

When she and her husband Allan decided last year to retire to Florida, Barbara Hogate Ferrin '43, Connecticut College trustee and Planned Giving agent, faced an important decision: What would be the best use, now and for the future, for a family home in upstate New York?

The Ferrins, eager to become full-time Floridians, were reluctant simply to put the house — which had been in Barbara's family for years — on the market. At the same time, Barbara was considering her role as trustee in the leadership phase of the college's forthcoming campaign. After consulting with the college and considering their many options, the Ferrins decided to include an annuity arrangement, through which they would make a gift of their home to Connecticut College in return for a guaranteed lifetime income, as a part of their total giving plan.

With this plan, the Ferrins were able to make a sizable gift, receive an immediate income tax deduction, avoid capital gains taxes and remove a substantial asset from future estate taxation. Additionally, they were able to convert a significant portion of their gift annuity into a tax-free return of principal. Effective yield on the gift was approximately 12 percent after tax savings and tax-free income were taken into account. The college, after selling the house, invested the proceeds and pays the Ferrins the annuity. The funds remaining at Barbara's death will be designated toward establishing a professorship in economics, her field of study as an undergraduate at the college.

"It seemed like an ideal solution," said Barbara. "I was able to make a significant gift to the college during the leadership phase of the campaign, and I was able to make it to coincide with my 50th reunion. I was spared the burden of selling the house myself. And I'm especially satisfied to know the proceeds from this fund ultimately will be used to establish a permanent professorship."

PLANNED GIFTS

Frances Freedman Jacobson '56 and husband Howard

Splitting the difference, sharing the honor

The timing was perfect. They were both planning to make a significant gift to their respective alma maters — he celebrating his 40th reunion at Harvard, and she, as a Connecticut College trustee, making a leadership gift to the ongoing campaign. And they had just benefited from one of Wall Street's most successful initial public offerings in years.

So, with their highly appreciated stock in a successful restaurant franchise, Frances Freedman Jacobson '56 and her husband Howard set up a charitable remainder unitrust as part of their giving plans for both institutions. The trust will sell the stock and reinvest the proceeds to maximize the total return. In return for irrevocably transferring $1 million in shares, the Jacobsons will receive lifetime annual payments of 5 percent of the trust's fair market value. They received an immediate income-tax deduction, avoided capital gains taxes and removed a substantial asset from consideration for future taxation. The funds will grow tax free within the trust, and, upon their deaths, Connecticut College and Harvard each will receive half of any remaining funds. With good stewardship, this amount should far exceed the $500,000 share that each college could expect today.

Said Frances, "This is a wonderful opportunity for me to do something special on behalf of Connecticut. I have always felt very strongly about the school, and I have a special bond since my daughter, Susan, graduated from the college as well. This was too good an opportunity to pass up, and I wanted to set an example for others, encouraging them to be as forthcoming and supportive of the college and its campaign."

"It really didn't involve a great deal of soul searching," said Howard. "There were so many benefits to be derived from making this gift, both for us, as the donors, and for Connecticut College and Harvard. I really do think it is a wonderful opportunity and I encourage other donors and alums to look carefully at what they might accomplish through this type of giving. It's a win-win situation for all involved. More than anything else, it is especially nice to know you're making substantial contributions to wonderful institutions of higher learning."

The Jacobsons have a long history of involvement and philanthropy in both their local community of Worcester, Mass., and in education. Howard is chairman of the board of trustees at Worcester Polytechnic Institute. Frances and her daughter Susan '82 were co-chairs of the College Center Connection Committee, which raised $1.2 million in commitments toward the renovations of both the College Center at Crozier-Williams and the new Athletic Center.

SOCIETY

THE 1911 SOCIETY, named for the year the college was founded, celebrates leadership. Created to honor donors of $1,911 or more to the Annual Fund, this vital group makes an example of generous giving and encourages others to do the same. During the 1993-94 year, The 1911 Society accounted for nearly half the total fund.

This list recognizes all gifts to the college received between 7/1/93 and 6/30/94.

NAMED PROFESSORSHIPS

A new turn on a traditional chair

In recognition and support of the faculty of Connecticut College, Sue Bernstein Mercy '63, chair of both the 1911 Society and the Development Committee, and her husband Eugene made a leadership gift to the ongoing campaign in the form of an endowed term chair.

The first scholar recruited to fill the Sue and Eugene Mercy Chair is Kerry Smith, a specialist in the politics of prewar Japan and the popular conceptions of urban and rural conflicts. Smith, a 20th-century economic and social historian, came to the college this fall as an instructor in history.

Though the words "endowed" and "term" might seem to be contradictory, in fact the income from the endowment will continue to support the faculty once the term is completed. Designation of the funds will be made by the president of the college in consultation with the provost and the donors, and will be based on the college's specific and ever-changing needs.

Mercy — whose son Tod is a 1991CC graduate — is an outspoken advocate of the college. She places powerful emphasis on the importance of the 1911 Society to her alma mater. "Through the personal contacts made by the 1911 Society Committee and class volunteers," she writes, "our membership grew from 161 in 1992-93 to 196 [this year], and our gifts increased from $792,758 to $1,037,421 — nearly half the Annual Fund.

"...I am committed to Connecticut College, having drawn from it both as an alumna and as a parent. When I give, and when I encourage others to give, I do so because I believe we owe it to ourselves to give back to the community from which we have acquired the knowledge to solve problems, the courage to take risks and the inner strength to pursue bold dreams."

Getting the campaign on the right track

Thanks to the generous gift of $1 million from the Lyn and David Silfen Foundation, Connecticut College will be able to open a first-rate track and field facility in the fall of 1995.

Trustee Lyn Gordon Silfen '67 and her husband David are avid sports enthusiasts, and when asked about their gift, Lyn said, "This will complete the extensive program to improve the athletic facilities here at Conn. It will be an added jewel to the existing natatorium, the rowing tanks, the climbing wall, the basketball courts and Dayton Arena.

"We believe athletics to be an important part of life, and we feel the new track and field facility will greatly enhance life at Connecticut College," she says. "Sports, athletics and teamwork are an important part of the college experience."

Sharing this spirit are the 10 additional schools that comprise the New England Small College Athletic Conference (NESCAC), which prides itself in putting academics before athletics. Among conference members are Amherst, Bowdoin, Colby, Hamilton, Middlebury and Wesleyan.

As Connecticut College President Claire L. Gaudiani '66, who serves on the NCAA Presidents Commission, was quoted in a recent Sports Illustrated feature on NESCAC, "The formula for what needs to be done in college sports lies in NESCAC... We are showing that young adults can live their lives in a way that's closer to what many people think is the right way. We are making the right thing the normal thing."

Athletic Director Bob Malekoff has traveled extensively throughout New England, consulting with other ADs and coaches, in preparation for construction of the new track. He says he's seen "some good facilities and some mistakes we want to avoid," and he feels confident the Lyn and David Silfen Track and Field Facility will be truly exceptional.

It is certain to help with recruitment. Vice President of Planning and Enrollment Management Claire Matthews agrees. "Our type of college attracts runners," she says. "Running happens to be a sport good students tend to participate in.

"I think our commitment to track and field will attract more good students to the college," she continues. "And I also think that having the track and field facility will prove that we are committed to NESCAC sports. Until we became a member of NESCAC [in 1982] it might have been acceptable not to have a track. It's no longer acceptable — until now we were the only NESCAC school without one."

Bob Rasmussen, vice president for development and college relations, says, "I thank Lyn and David for their superb gift. The pace of the campaign is being set by the board members, who are completing their initial gifts to it. Lyn has been extremely helpful to the college, both before and during her service to the board, through — among other things — her steady support of the Annual Fund, the Arboretum, the College Center projects and the Silfen Botany Term Chair. And, as you would expect, taking a leadership role in the campaign."

IN ANCIENT GREECE, LAUREL LEAVES crowned heroes, victorious athletes, statesmen, philosophers and others who had achieved distinction. In time, the laurel came to symbolize academic achievement, graduation especially and, beyond this, the transition from the sheltered groves of academe to the outside world.
 These ideas find symbolic expression in the longstanding tradition of the Laurel Chain procession at Connecticut College graduation ceremonies.

VOLUNTEERS

"Independent" spirit

Connecticut College defined my life," says Phyllis Schiff Imber '43. These 51 years later, "Flip" continues to give back to the community from which she gleaned so much. Currently a class agent chair — the lead Annual Fund volunteer for her class — she was co-chair for her class's 50th reunion, which gift resulted in the Class of '43 Chair in Philosophy and Science. She is a vice chair of Forum, a member of the planned giving advisory committee, and she has hosted several alumni gatherings in Pennsylvania, where she now resides.

"It was at the college that I had my first thoughts of being an independent woman," says Imber. "I was an Auerbach major," she says, referring to the former concentration in merchandising and consumer economics. Sponsored by the owner of G. Fox & Co., the program offered students hands-on retailing experience at the Hartford flagship store. It was in Hartford that she began what would be a lengthy and successful career in retailing, and it was also in Hartford that she met her husband, Herman, who would be her business partner as well.

She recalls the impact of both Beatrice Fox Auerbach, for whom the hybrid program was named, and Chase Going Woodhouse, her economics adviser and a former congresswoman, as being "tremendous." Even today, the college continues to provide role models for Imber: "I think Claire's the greatest," she says of the current president. "And it's been marvelous to watch the college become what it is today."

Lisa Boudreau, associate director of the Annual Fund, says "Flip Imber is a model volunteer! Her energy and spirit are just wonderful, and her dedication to the college is clear. She's a leader and a motivator, and just a joy to work with."

Says Imber, "It's wonderful to have the opportunity to be needed and to be meeting people. It keeps you young."

Special congratulations and thanks go to the Class of 1949, which gave $142,000, the largest Annual Fund gift in the college's history. Led by H.J. Wettach and Irma Klein Schacter, the class also set a new record for a 45th Reunion gift, in response to a $65,000 challenge from two anonymous classmates.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Accepting a hand, working to return the gesture

"Although these words can express only a fraction of my thanks to you, enumerate only so many of my accomplishments made possible by you, and give only minimal justice to my hopes, dreams, and aspirations, it is my sincere wish that you will accept these few short paragraphs as a token of my appreciation for what you have done for me."

So writes Judd J. Balmer '94, first recipient of the fully endowed Virginia Deuel '37 Scholarship, in his letter of report and appreciation to his benefactress. Deuel, who majored in sociology as an undergraduate, has been a generous supporter of the college for years, through a so-called "current" scholarship fund, in which moneys donated annually are dispersed that same year. She decided in late 1992 that she wanted both to increase the amount awarded yearly and to ensure that the scholarship would be given in perpetuity. She was able to upgrade her current fund by relinquishing her life interest in a gift annuity, thereby ending the named scholarship, which carries no restrictions.

This kind of giving, which has direct impact on the lives of those Connecticut College students unable to attend the college without assistance, makes a real difference in the living and learning experience of all students here. At the same time, it keeps the donor in close contact with the college, its students and the vitality of campus life. Understanding this, many undergraduates say they hope to return the privilege of attending this institution, as Virginia Deuel has done.

Writes Balmer, a competitive swimmer and diver with a dual degree in government and German, "Many people take an active interest in the education of family members; few people, however, take an active interest in the education of strangers. People such as you, Virginia Deuel, allow people like me to have an opportunity to pursue our hopes and dreams. Without having received aid from you, financing my senior year at Connecticut College might have been virtually impossible... It is people like you who influence young people like me to keep the giving cycle alive. It is because I have experienced first hand what your generosity has done in my life, that I will contribute to needy students, if at all possible, later in my life."

SCHOLARSHIPS

To study abroad

When Joan King was associate dean and instructor in French at Connecticut College, one of her responsibilities was the Study Away program, "a natural outgrowth of her love for travel," noted the college publication Dateline upon her death in January 1992.

Loved and respected both at the college and in the greater New London community, today she is remembered in the Joan King Memorial Fund for Study Abroad. Thanks to the generosity of many and the recent gift of Joan's sister Paula Gorman, the Study Abroad endowment is fully funded and waiting to lend assistance to those Connecticut College French majors who are interested in getting to know more about the land of their acquired tongue.

The award — which is need-based — will be granted through the office of financial aid. When Paula Gorman made her gift this year, she specifically stipulated that, though the endowment was sufficient to support one small study-abroad term, additional funds would be more than welcome, so that the endowment may in the future support more and lengthier stays abroad.

Since one of the college's central missions is to provide undergraduates with international experience, this scholarship fund is important to the objectives of the ongoing campaign. Thanks go to the Gormans for fulfilling the endowment requirements and for their encouragement of like-minded support, and to the many who have built the fund to the point at which one gift could make it a working endowment.

LEADERSHIP GIFTS

Matchmaking

A generous gift from trustee Virginia Eason Weinmann '51 has brought renewed vigor to the effort to secure the matching required for a National Endowment for the Humanities grant. The grant, awarded to endow a distinguished teaching professorship in foreign languages, literatures and cultures, represents a core initiative of the college's ongoing campaign, one of the primary thrusts of which is to raise endowment for professorships.

The position is critical, too, to our ongoing efforts to fortify the Center for International Studies and the Liberal Arts. "This chair is the priority for funding among all the endowed chair opportunities we offer in the campaign," says Vice President for Development and College Relations Bob Rasmussen. "Having a trustee like Virginia step forward is the best possible endorsement of the importance of endowed chairs and a tremendous help to us in encouraging others to make their commitments.

"I am excited about the possibility of the college becoming a national model for global education," writes Weinmann. "The $300,000 challenge grant of the National Endowment for the Humanities will certainly be central to reaching this goal. It is a pleasure to give impetus to Connecticut College's task of matching the NEH funds three for one."

PARENTS FUND

Recognizing value

Parents' participation at 41 percent

"Activity and attitude." These are the keys to success in fund raising, according to Jeff Deming P'97, who with his wife Jane led the Connecticut College Parents Committee to raise a whopping $236,336, the largest in the history of the Parents Fund.

Participation among current parents reached an unprecedented 41 percent during the year, a winning sign that the college's program is meeting the approval of its community.

Jeff, a senior vice president with Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh, Penn., cited the tremendous support the Parents Committee received from President Gaudiani and Jill Molinaro, who as assistant director of the Annual Fund, worked closely with the Demings and the rest of their committee. For her part, Molinaro could not say enough about the enthusiasm of the Demings and the committee as a whole: "We had 31 volunteers, and they were extremely conscientious, enthusiastic and dedicated," she said, adding, "It's really exciting to see people feel so good about this place."

The Demings — whose son Christopher will graduate in 1996 — were so encouraged by their experience with the committee that they agreed to chair it again this year. In fact they were thick into it before school even opened for the fall semester. The committee had been telephoning parents of incoming freshmen, welcoming them to the community and offering to answer any questions.

"We wanted to stress that we're not just here for fund raising," said Jeff.

Of course, fund raising is the primary focus of the committee, the enthusiasm of which is infectious. Asked whether they had run into problems with parents already paying hefty tuition rates being asked to give more, Deming said, "Of course there are those who are paying every last dime to meet the [requisite] costs. But when the kids are having a very good experience at college, the parents sense it, and it's a big circle: They say, 'Yes, I'm paying the tuition, but we'll give a little more, because we understand the value of the experience and the costs of providing it.'"

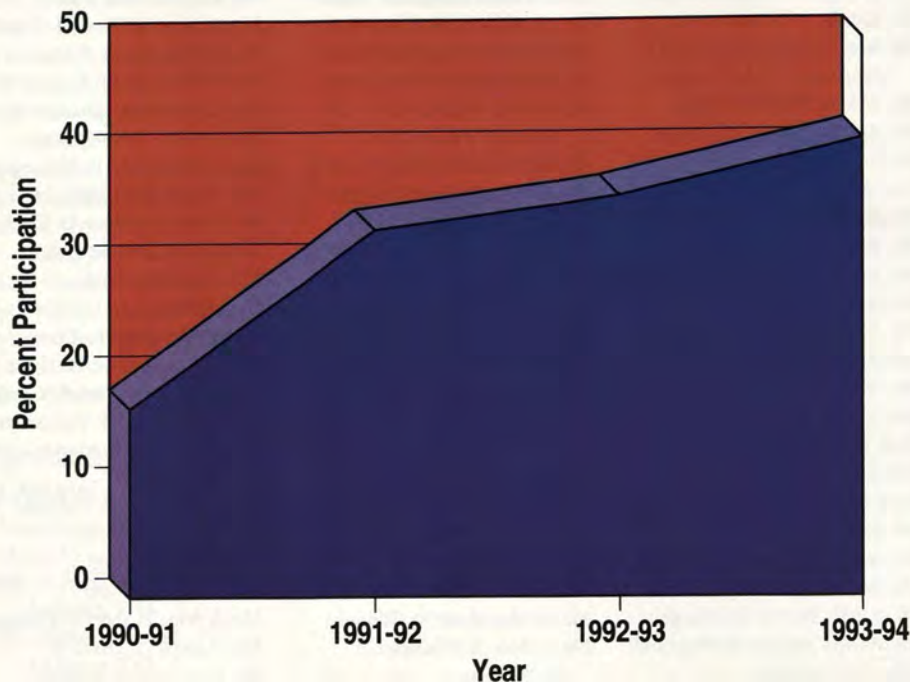

The Demings are no strangers to fund raising, having chaired the Parents' Fund at Bowdoin College and at their children's earlier schools. Notes Jane, "For many of the parents it just comes naturally. Especially parents who have sent their kids to private and parochial schools all along, they're used to being asked. We get them to start giving early, and we educate them about the gap between tuition and the costs of education."

That is not to say the parents of public school students don't give their fair share: "What we stress is participation," says Jeff, "not dollar amount."

THE COLLEGE'S AGGRESSIVE INROADS into the fields of science have attracted the attention and support of considerable corporate and foundation philanthropy. Even as the Olin Science Center was rising before our eyes, the Sherman Fairchild Foundation awarded the college a $1.7 million gift to establish a permanent professorship in physics, as well as lab equipment and a research-grade telescope. The National Science Foundation awarded the chemistry department $676,072 for renovations to Hale Laboratory; the Booth Ferris Foundation granted $100,000 for the purchase of physics lab equipment; and both the Camille and Henry Dreyfus Foundation and the Pfizer Foundation awarded funds toward development of courses in environmental chemistry. In all, corporate and foundation support reached $4.5 million.

The physics of giving

Fairchild Foundation awards a professorship, telescope, and needed equipment

A $1.7 million grant from the Sherman Fairchild Foundation will be used to advance the study of physics and astronomy at Connecticut College.

The award will be used to endow a professorship in physics, upgrade laboratory equipment and purchase a research-grade telescope for the observatory of the new science center.

The Sherman Fairchild grant is one of the largest in the college's history and the fourth major science grant received in the past three years. In 1991, a $350,000 Keck Foundation gift established an endowed fund for undergraduate summer research internships. In 1992, the college was awarded $5.1 million from the F.W. Olin Foundation to construct the new science center, which will be ready and in use for the second semester of this academic year. The foundation later increased the grant to $7 million. Also in 1993, the Booth Ferris Foundation gave the college $100,000 for lab equipment.

Most of the new funding — $1.2 million — will be used to establish a permanent endowed professorship in physics.

"This grant will enable the college to hire an established teacher-scholar who can hit the ground running," said Stephen Loomis, provost and dean of the faculty.

Michael Monce, chair of the physics department, said the prestige of a named professorship as well as funding for a research lab will attract a strong pool of candidates.

The grant also will fund the purchase of a $125,000, 20-inch reflecting telescope and other equipment for use in the observatory atop the new F.W. Olin Science Center, scheduled to open in spring of 1995.

According to Leslie Brown, the assistant professor of physics who runs the college's astronomy program, "This new telescope and computer equipment will allow us to teach students how to use modern astronomical equipment and work on more serious observations and long-term monitoring studies." The department's existing telescope, a Clark refractor, will stay in the Bill Hall observatory and will remain an important part of the program, she said.

The remainder of the funds will be used to equip the new professor's research laboratory and to purchase teaching equipment for the two introductory physics laboratories and the machine shop in the F.W. Olin Science Center.

The grant, to be paid over four years, acknowledges the college's leadership in the teaching of undergraduate science in a liberal arts setting. The college's program centers on small groups with frequent student-faculty contact, learning through active and original experimentation and interdisciplinary work.

Students rally to raise funds

4,038 pledges and $253,261 raised by dedicated student callers

Thank you to the 121 student callers for your dedication to Connecticut College.

The 1993-94 student phonathon netted a 12 percent increase in dollars over last year's and a 6 percent increase in the number of pledges. Thirty-seven percent of those who pledged this year were new donors.

Current students are the best spokespersons on life at Connecticut College today. Callers truly understand that gifts to the Annual Fund directly impact their opportunities and experience at CC.

Class of 1994 pledges support

The Class of 1994 broke all previous senior class giving records when it presented a check for $16,121 to the president of their soon-to-be alma mater. Much of the inspiration behind the gift came from the two co-chairs of the Senior Pledge Program, Esther Potter and Knute Gregg.

Together with an enthusiastic steering committee and a committed network of volunteers, Potter and Gregg rallied their classmates to a hefty 60 percent participation rate, and an average gift of $63.

"We were teaching them to become alumni," said Gregg, who as a legacy came equipped with a fairly strong sense of post-commencement commitment. "We wanted to get them involved in the giving process, to understand that they have a certain responsibility to give something back to the school."

Writes Vice President of Development and College Relations Bob Rasmussen, "[Esther and Knute] worked tirelessly and would not give up until they had made Connecticut College history with the largest senior pledge effort to date. They will surely be among the college's best volunteers now that they are officially alumni.

"Each year, we reaffirm our belief in the effectiveness of the Senior Pledge program in educating our alumni-to-be about giving back to the college of their time, energy and resources. It is impressive to see how much these young people love Connecticut College and are willing to help make a difference in the lives of the students that follow them."

SUBMISSION OF CLASS NOTES

Class notes may be submitted to your correspondent at any time. However, if you would like to have your notes appear in a specific issue — Connecticut College Magazine publishes six issues yearly: Winter (Feb.), Spring (April), Commencement (June), Summer (Aug.), Fall (Oct.) and Honor Roll of Giving (Dec.) — please make sure your class correspondent receives your news by the deadline listed below.

Issue	Your Deadline
Commencement	Feb. 15
Summer	April 15
Fall	June 15
Honor Roll	Aug. 15
Winter	Oct. 15
Spring	Dec. 15

All classes may contribute to each issue. If you need further information about submitting your news for class notes, please contact your class correspondent or Mary Farrar, assistant editor, Connecticut College Magazine, 270 Mohegan Ave., New London, CT 06320-4196.

Olive Auer Figggett and Yvonne Carns Wogan have kept in touch since college days. They thought it was time they really got together. After 15 years, they arranged to meet in Vinalhaven, ME, where Yvonne was vacationing. However, they didn't recognize each other — even passed each other by! We have as yet no news as to how the belated reunion went. In winter, Olive goes to FL where she plays golf. In Worcester, she plays bridge. She still is able to drive her car.

After living apart for many years, Thursa Barnum and her brother have decided to move back in the house which was their family home. Thursa is fortunate also to have her sisters and several grandnieces and nephews within an hour's drive. She and her brother had a trip to the Canadian Rockies in August.

Beatrice Brooks Carpenter has lost the macular in both eyes, so her neighbor reads her mail to her. Under the circumstances, it's amazing how legible her writing is. With the help of her son, she went to two grandsons' weddings this summer as well as to the christening of a new grandson in July. Her doctor tells her that she will not go blind so she keeps a positive attitude.

Wilhelmina Brown Seyfried, our long-time class correspondent, called to say that my request for news came late because it had to be forwarded. She is now living summers with her daughter in MI and winters with her son in Wallingford, PA. Billie has just been presented with her first great grandchild, a boy, and she was anxious to share the good news. By the way, she's still knitting up a storm.

Alta Colburn Steege and her husband, Rip, had two lovely cruises last year. One was from New Orleans to Ft. Myers, Lake Okeechobee and on to West Palm Beach. The other started in Nova Scotia and toured the Maritime Provinces. And then, out of the blue, just two days before her birthday in Dec., she was rushed to the hospital for triple by-pass surgery. Any Christmas cards she was able to send were late, but she wants us to know that she is on the "up and up" although it is slow going. Jimmie had a lovely telephone visit with Elizabeth Schaibley Grimes who, she says, is pretty much housebound, but is doing all she can to help her daughter recover from a smashed ankle she received in an auto accident.

Our congratulations to Giovanna Fusco-Ripka. In March, Jennie was honored by La Festa Della Donna, a celebration of the Italian-American women who have succeeded. Jennie was given a lovely plaque in recognition of her accomplishments. Jennie has many physical problems but manages to get by with periodic nerve blocks for pain. In June, they made it possible for her to fly to Long Beach, CA, for a two-week's relaxing visit with her son.

Grace Gardiner Manning suddenly developed a fracture of a thoracic vertebra. It made for a miserable summer. She's improving but is not yet able to drive. A bright spot was the two-week visit from her daughter, Nancy, her husband and their two children from Houston, TX. "There's nothing like a two-year-old" she writes, "to liven up a household." Grace's older daughter and her husband, who live in MA, are frequently with her on weekends.

Elizabeth Hendrickson Matlack stayed in Medford Leas this past summer where she could enjoy all the creature comforts. The younger generations are using and taking responsibility for her beautiful, beloved but simple place in ME. She is thankful that she still lives independently, drives her car and has plenty of new friends. However, she still misses the old ones.

Like most everyone else our age Grace Wood Bregenzer has had her physical problems, but she assures us that she is on the mend and will soon be back into her many activities. The update on her children is pretty impressive. She has two daughters, one a professor at Boston College and the other a middle manager at Northrop Corporation. Both are married and have two children each. Her granddaughter is a sr. at Brown and one grandson is going to Yale. Her two other grandsons are a freshman at UCLA and a recent graduate from public school in CA. Caz flies to Boston and CA to visit her children.

You win some, you lose some. This time my mailing elicited only a few responses. Everyone must be visiting, traveling or being visited. At any rate, it was good to hear from those who did send me some news.

Betty Church Fuetsch writes that she and her husband enjoy good health, living quietly in the country. They enjoy their garden, music, theater and friends and make frequent trips to see children and grandchildren. Nothing earth-shaking, as she puts it. But isn't that the way it's supposed to be at our age?

Janet (Betty) Thorn Waesche, now of Shawnee Mission, KS, says that after 22 years Russell retired as a Coast Guard Rear Admiral in '71. They winter in FL and a month on Long Island Sound in the summer. Their four grown children (three girls and one boy) have given them four grandchildren and are scattered from coast to coast. They have a good life. And they probably have many a tale to tell.

Bless her heart, Emma Moore Manning sent in a card full of news. She had spent time after the reunion weekend in both CT and MA visiting with Lee Gilson Williams in Wellesley Hills, MA, and Liza Bissell Carroll in Madison, CT. Had delightful visits with both. Then, she went on a cruise to Scandinavia — her first cruise. After five trips to the British Isles, she finally got to the continent. Emma has been retired for 16 years and thinks it's great. More power to you!

And last, but by no means least, comes a report from Marjorie (Jerry) Webb Jones from Muscatine, IA. I like the way she describes the scene there: "We enjoy the change of seasons and the whims of the mighty Mississippi." She sounds especially devoted to her grandchildren. One grandchild earned a master's at the U. of Toronto; another enters high school this fall; another is a sr. at Michigan State; and the last is a sr. in high school. That's quite a squad, Jerry!

Harry and Selma Silverman Swatsburg went on the Connecticut College Alumni Seminar in Israel. Selma reports that it was strenuous and hot, but fun!

Marj Mintz Deitz now has five great-grandchildren ranging in age from 1 to 9. She still plays golf, tennis and bridge and, when possible, volunteers at the Worcester (MA) Art Museum.

Ruth Hollingshead Clark writes that she and Bose are well and looking forward to moving into a FL life-care village. Her time is consumed helping Environmental Coalition of Broward County on Everglades and water supply related issues. She also does research for the League of Women Voters. They attended a grandson's graduation at the U. of Rochester and saw another grandson receive his MFA at Rochester Institute of Technology the same weekend.

Jane Swayne Vreeland wrote that Betty Fairbank Swayne and her husband (Jane's brother) sold their home and moved to a retirement complex near Kennett Square.

Since the move, Betty's health has failed, and she is in the infirmary unit.

Talked to Frances Walker Chase, who was busy packing for a two-week trip with her cousin through the Canadian Rockies, Banff and Lake Louise. Upon her return, she repacks for her annual trip to England for Christmas. She stays there through March. Fran saw Barbara Lawrence on the Cape this summer, who, despite her infirmity, maintains a wonderful sense of humor. Frances reminded me that we are still building our '38 Class Scholarship fund for deserving students, and we hope you have made your annual tax deductible donation.

The Class of '38 sends sympathy to the families of Frances Willson Russell, who died on 12/24/93; Helen Maxwell Schuster, who died in Sept. '93; Dorothea Bartlett, who died on 6/3/94, and Bethy Anderson Verduin, who died on 6/1/94.

I send you greetings of the season and wishes for a healthy New Year.

My first column must start with accolades for Betsy Parcells Arms and Kathryn Ekirch for all the hours and care that went into the planning of our 55th reunion. Twenty-one classmates and nine husbands attended. From the Sykes Society luncheon to our own elegant reunion dinner, topped by a superb speech by Ruth Kellogg Kent "Planned Giving," it was a reunion of friends and much nostalgia. And, YES, Betsy and Kat will continue to lead us for the next five years — until our 60th!

Betsy Parcell Arms' happy news is "a family wedding in Sept. — our CC daughter Carol — we were all so happy about this event."

Kat Ekirch writes she has little to report — "my golf game and I are aging together."

Carol Prince Allen was torn between a family wedding and reunion. She and Lew chose the wedding in Denver, after which they took a wonderful tour of CO. They are still enthusiastic over their lakeside retirement home in NC. Lew has joined the Lions Club, while Carol is active in the Seven Lakes Auxiliary. They both still enjoy their golf.

Jane De Olloqui Harris' oldest grandson graduated from the U. of Chicago last June. Younger brother Alec is a freshman at CC. There are three more grandsons to account for. Jane and family are still in the same house in Wayland, MA, that they bought in '75 and have no thoughts of ever leaving New England.

Barbara Myers Haldt was sorry to have missed reunion, but Peale's Colgate reunion prevailed. Having driven from FL for that, they followed it with a visit with their granddaughter in VT and daughter in Gloucester MA. In Aug., they flew to Spokane, WA, to pick up an RV and tour the state.

Middy Weitlich Geig is still in a FL retirement home and in a wheelchair, but she gives much of herself to others. She reads to the blind, works for a white elephant sale on behalf of the center and recently ran a symposium on miniature antiques.

Southeastern Conn. holds Dinner for Twelve Strangers. First-year students were invited to join Mark Warren '75 and Lissa Loucks '87 at Mark's home in Saybrook, Conn., on Oct. 25 for a scrumptious meal prepared by Vanderbrooke Catering, owned by Lissa. The Dinner for Twelve Strangers concept was initiated through the Southeastern Connecticut Club to bring alumni, students, faculty and staff together. An alum hosts the dinner and others are invited to attend from the college community. There are usually 8 to 12 dinners going on simultaneously with 8-12 guests at each dinner. It has been a popular event and a great opportunity for members of the college community to meet one another informally. Thanks to Mark and Lissa for their warm hospitality.

D.C. hosts a Happy Hour for Young Alumni. Forty-five young alumni from the Washington, D.C. area gathered at The Big Hunt in Dupont Circle on Nov. 15. Thanks to Jennifer Lapan '94 who headed up the event.

The Conn Chords perform in Maine. One of Connecticut College's talented a cappella groups, the Conn Chords, performed for alumni and their guests at The Portland Yacht Club on Nov. 12. CC has four a cappella groups: the Conn Chords, an all-female group, being one of the oldest. Thanks to Leigh Semonite Palmer '78 and Michael Wilbur '81 for organizing the event.

Boston JFK Library event is the largest alumni club event in years. More than 140 alumni and guests gathered at the JFK Library on Nov. 9 to hear Professor of History Michael Burlingame discuss his new book, The Inner World of Abraham Lincoln, and to tour the newly renovated JFK Library Museum. Paige Margules Tobin '89, organizer of the event, and Mark Howes '89, club president, were thrilled with the evening. "We thought the event was just perfect in all respects. Now we have to really work on increasing the number of our volunteers," stated Paige. Special thanks to Paige and Mark for organizing this record-breaking event.

HOWES THAT? Bradley and Patricia Howes with sons David '93 (left) and Mark '89 (right) at the JFK Library in Boston. More than 140 alumni and guests heard Professor of History Michael Burlingame discuss his book, The Inner World of Abraham Lincoln.

Morgenthau Alumni Lecture Series. The University Club was the setting for the second annual Morgenthau Alumni Lecture Series named in honor of Jane Morgenthau '33, a long-time active and loyal member of the Connecticut College Club of New York City. This year's featured speaker, Alexander Richardson '79, is president and founder of Lexitech Inc., a multimedia communications company. The buzz words for the '90s are "information super highway," and Alex's company is one of the forerunners in the race for new technologies. Lexitech, Inc., produces kiosks that provide information from job opportunities to travel and leisure. President Gaudiani was on hand to introduce Richardson. Thanks to Cynthia Fazzari '88 for organizing the event.

President's Receptions held in Atlanta and Rye, N.Y. Twenty five alumni and guests joined President Gaudiani on Oct. 25 at The Mansion Restaurant in Atlanta to hear her speak about "A Time to Lead II." More than 140 alumni live in and around Atlanta, and Rena Whitehouse '87 has offered to organize alumni events in the area. Thanks to Elizabeth Schoen '86 for her help. If you are interested in helping out in Atlanta, please call the Alumni office at 203-439-2310. On November 9, 25 alumni gathered at the Westchester Country Club to hear the president discuss the strategic plan and to hear the Williams Street Mix, the only coed a cappella group on campus.

Call Debra Johns, Director of Alumni Programs, 203-439-2310, for more information about clubs.

Betty Young Riedel writes their routine would surprise no one. In winter they head for FL where they have a small place on the Gulf Coast; summers "we flee DC for NH" where their son has a hideout. But "we also have a motor home that tempts us to wander."

Beatrice Dodd Foster and Bud drove from FL for our reunion, stayed in son's home in Groton and then departed for Cape Cod where they stayed for the rest of the summer. Their two daughters, Wendy from Munich, and Sue from CA, spent two weeks with them. When at home in Venice, FL, they often see Barbara Myers Haldt and Peale, Nancy Weston Lincoln and John, Winnie Valentine Frederiksen and Nini Cocks Millard.

Elizabeth Mulford deGroff hated to miss reunion, but she was in CT for another reunion with daughter Judy Schoonmaker '69. Granddaughter Jessica Schoonmaker '95 will graduate next year and "I'll be there," says Libby. She keeps in touch with Jan Jones Diehl. "Now we are off to visit the Copper Canyon in Mexico."

Lee Jenks Rafferty had an exciting experience this year when she and her two CC daughters went on a Kenya safari in Africa. "It was fabulous, and I fell in love with all the wonderful animals we saw."

Marjorie Johnston Rawls managed to write "life is good in New London, NH," even though she just experienced the tragic death of her 25-year-old grandson in a swimming accident. "He left two little children, and I am devastated, but life must go on." Our deepest sympathy to Marjorie.

Phyllis Harding Morton reports "this is your ex-treasurer speaking. I do want to thank you, one and all, for your past cooperation in keeping the class funds 'above water' for the past 55 years." However, it was difficult and costly to maintain a small balance, so it was mutually agreed that the Alumni Office would become custodians of funds remaining in our class bank account. Phyl — you deserve a round of applause for those 55 years of guarding our money!

Dede Lowe Nie just wants us to know "how wonderful it was seeing again the first friends I made in Winthrop House."

Hannah Andersen Griswold and her husband were given a magnificent 50th wedding anniversary party by their daughters Rhee and Camilla. "It was the highlight of our year."

Grace Hecht Block had been looking forward to reunion, but her husband's Alzheimer's was worsened by a stroke in April. He is now in a nursing home, and she is living alone and trying to keep busy.

Virginia Taber McCamey went to FL to catch a portion of the Braves' spring training. In May, she and Frank went to Dauphin Island on the gulf for birding followed by a visit with TX relatives. In June, she combined a visit with her daughter, granddaughter and great-granddaughter with reunion. Ginny flew up from Atlanta and Doris Houghton Ott picked her up at her daughter's and the two drove to New London together. She is now back home in GA picking and freezing the produce of their country garden. Ruth Brodhead Heintz and husband spent last Christmas in London with son, Jeff, and family. They were joined by son, Stephen, from Prague, sons John and Ted and families from WA, and son Chris and family from Arlington, VT. Ruth says they also have time to see old friends.

Edith Frey Hagle was packing, even as she wrote, to leave the following day to visit younger son, Pete, in Stamford, CT, their first trip east in eight years. "I keep very busy with my art work."

Madeline Sawyer Hutchinson writes that advanced osteoporosis and a whopping case of Lyme Disease kept her from our 55th, but she was thrilled to receive a long letter complete with pictures from Ruth Kellogg Kent soon after reunion. Her daughter, Sara, and granddaughter, Sara Rose, visited her from NM and together, they went to Saco, ME, to see Sadie's sister, "my only trip in two years — usually I'm housebound."

Margie Abell Powell and John are off on their annual European trip — two weeks in Venice and three in London. "I visited Ruth Hale Buchanan at her summer home in Newport. I do see her regularly in WA, also Ginny Walton Magee, between trips."

Maryhannah Slingerland Barberi and Margaret Robison Loehr (Mogs and Slingy), our previous co-correspondents, had their picture taken sitting together on the Marjorie Abrahams Perlman Memorial Bench located on the path between Windham dorm and the library. It was the gift of Marjorie's sister Elise Abrahams Josephson '44. Elise's four children also gave a tree behind the bench — an appropriate memorial for a botany major.

Nancy Weston Lincoln wrote that she thought of us at reunion while they were enjoying the festivities of their granddaughter's wedding. Both of their granddaughters are now married and they have a 7-year-old great-granddaughter and a 3-year-old great-grandson. "The holidays are wild again!"

Mary Driscoll Devlin praises our 55th reunion as an outstanding event. "It was such a happy and friendly time and thanks must be given to our outstanding leaders, Elizabeth Parcells Arms and Kathryn Ekirch." Mary and husband are looking forward to meeting with some classmates in Jan. in Venice, FL, for some rounds of golf.

Mary Winton Dickgiesser has six grandchildren in college and two back to graduate school after a period of time "in the real world." The highlight of the last year was a cruise on the Baltic with her three girls. Mary continues her volunteer work in the local historical society dealing with the relocation of artifacts and bringing records up to date. People are using their records in the search of land titles that the Indians are claiming all over CT.

The Class of '39 sends sympathy to the family of Elizabeth Patton Warner, who died on 7/11/94 and to the family of Ruth Kellogg Kent, who died on 7/18/94.

Frances Adams Messersmith and Bob had a New England vacation this year visiting friends and family, including a granddaughter's wedding. They also spent a month in NC.

Trail Arnold Kenety, in MD for 24 years, says remodeling the kitchen and "watching the weeds grow" have taken up much of the summer. During the year, she volunteers for the Colonial Dames in Baltimore in various ways. She has two sons and four grandsons.

Barbara Boyd Bensen has somewhat curtailed her real estate business this spring and is using aquatherapy to improve an ailing hip. She attended a Duke graduation for one granddaughter (two others are in Depauw this year) and spent her vacation on Cape Cod.

Kay Croxton Caine, a Californian since '44, is chief babysitter for her great-granddaughter while her granddaughter finishes college. She still finds time for her library volunteer work two days a week. She regrets missing reunion but hopes "next time" it will work out.

Elizabeth Failor Woodworth lives in Bar Harbor, ME, with her two sons' families and two granddaughters nearby. She busies herself with exercise classes, rug hooking and cross stitch. She is on the board of the local library.

Elizabeth Goodrich Barnes volunteers at Yale New Haven Hospital, often working in the gift shop. Her family includes six children and nine grandchildren. One daughter lives near Shirley Socolof Sherry in NH, and Liz sees her while visiting. She also keeps in touch with Anne Godchaux Polack and Hildegard Meili Van Deusen.

Mildred Hartmann McQueen, living in Lancaster, PA, sees Julia Rich Kurtz occasionally. She has three daughters, two sons and two grandsons. Mimi volunteers for the Charles Demuth Foundation that has a museum on the family property displaying his watercolors.

Charlotte Hosfeld Tarpay had a short hospital stay in June, with her son a fellow patient for an unrelated problem. Both are doing well. During the summer, she, Betsy Hodgson Yeager, Marion Butterfield Hinman and Janet Corey Hampton met in Westport, MA, with Jane Neumann, major gifts director, and Deb Johns, director of alumni programs, for lunch and an update on the college.

Margie Livingston Campbell wrote me a wonderful, newsy letter explaining some of the problems she and husband, Staff, have addressed, including improving the environment and educational standards. She's painting a lot and "looking forward to Grandma Moseshood. At least in age." Their annual visit to AK to visit their daughter's and son's families included wonderful fishing on the Yukon with neighbors. Fishnets and fish-wheels are used not only for commercial salmon but also by the families for winter provender for their dog teams. A highlight was a dip in an outdoor pool fed by natural springs with a temperature of 110 degrees. Bunny says, "I think the 50th reunion made me more conscious than ever of the amazing lives our classmates have had, and so often faced with terrible troubles and decisions. Our self-deprecating generation of women should be appreciated for their ability to grow intellectually and emotionally."

Nancy Stecher Brown is involved in the local yacht club activities in Davidson, NC. She has three children and a granddaughter. One daughter is studying in China this fall.

Mary Wiener Vogel and Jane Storms Wenneis met unexpectedly in a local inn and reminisced about the '93 reunion. Minsi hoped to spend a weekend in Oct. with Mary Enequist Faircloth, Jeanne Dubois Catharine and Virginia Rowley Over in VT.

Frances Yeames Prickett reports a wonderful summer with lots of company and tennis. She and Hank had a good trip to Cape Breton Island and a CA and HI trip this fall.

Homecoming '94: A Family Scrapbook

STIRRING ORATORY FROM A scholar/philosopher set the tone for a gathering of the Connecticut College community Oct. 7-9. More than 1,200 alumni, parents and guests took advantage of the warm temperatures and cobalt blue skies to return to campus and share the creative vision of the college today. And as if that were not reason enough to celebrate, sweeping victories on the playing fields buoyed spirits on the hilltop even higher.

Weekend high notes included the address by author Cornel West (see Verbatim, Fall Connecticut College Magazine for the text of his speech), the State of the College Address by President Claire Gaudiani '66, a discussion of international issues by Alvin P. Adams P'95, U.S. Ambassador to Peru and former ambassador to Haiti, and a slide presentation by Weissman Visiting Artist Joy Wolke. Parents, students and alumni also rallied for a concert by campus singing groups, the dedication of a sculpture of the college mascot, open houses at many of the academic departments and a first reunion for the Class of 1994. No ordinary hamburgers and hot dogs for the picnic on the Green — the Homecoming crowd lunched on Mediterranean chicken over couscous and simmered red beans. — LHB

Evelyn Hooper Stenstream writes, "On 10/1/94, I was especially honored to be awarded the Sustained Service Award at the homecoming of Norwich U." Evelyn began her service to Norwich in '70 as an ambassador and admissions volunteer. She has served on the Board of Fellows there since '82.

Attention classmates: Keep your blue wind-breakers for our next reunion. Chair: Jane Day Hooker.

Lois Webster Ricklin enjoyed seeing so many classmates and was surprised by the size of the class gift. "I have neglected my house and gardens for about a year. I never could do more than one thing at a time. Now that reunion is past, I need to get back to the gritty part of my life." Lois also reports that Marge Alexander Harrison was injured in a severe auto accident in Aug., was on the mend and expected an early return from the hospital. Marge was not driving when the accident occurred.

Jane Howarth Yost claims the highlight of her year was seeing Jane Bridgewater Hewes in June. "She looks younger than ever." Many CC alumnae have retired to Cape Cod where about 30 met for luncheon.

Caroline Townley Von Mayrhauser is happy and proud that her oldest grandchild, Cate Tower, is a sr. at CC, and Cate's sister, Lydia, is a freshman. (Cate introduced herself to some of our classmates at reunion.) "Glad to report almost complete recovery from my minor stroke last fall."

Phyllis Miller Hurley and Jack celebrated their 50th anniversary with a four-week trip including a Baltic cruise, a week in London and a return trip on the Queen Elizabeth 2. She was sorry to miss reunion. Two grandchildren are in college — Colorado School of Mines and New Mexico State. The youngest just entered nursery school.

Alice Adams Hilmer says, "Reunion was indeed a blast. Only wish more had been able to make it. I proudly wear my blue jacket and welcome the rain. To my great joy, Peg Carpenter Evans stopped me on the street in Stowe, VT, where I was visiting friends."

Ruth Hine has been on crutches since Feb. Two operations — one in May — fused her ankle, and she should be walking freely soon. "It's gone well, but at times I grab at the fraying ends of my patience."

Jean Loomis Hendrickson has a few more weeks in Kent, WA, before heading for her winter home in Desert Hot Springs, CA. Son, Paul, who works for Battelle Laboratories; wife, Kay; and two sons used Jean's GMC van for a three-week vacation.

Christine Ferguson Salmon's youngest daughter married Wayne McGlashan in FL, and Chris drove there to visit them. "Congratulations to Ellie Abrahams Josephson for the home in Santa Fe. Bet it's as wonderful as the Las Cruces one was. So sad I couldn't get to the Big Fiftieth ..."

Mary Melville Heron is working with husband's stroke club, rereading Thoreau and clearing out her father's library. "My two youngest girls are the first females to run the ancient Zildjian Cymbal business. Fortunately they are both good business persons as well as musical, so I think the family business will last another generation after over three centuries of male rule. Sorry to miss our 50th, but my husband is still seriously ill."

Dorothy Hale Hoekstra and Dick have decided to live it up while still healthy. She travels a lot: winter in Boca Raton, summer on the Cape. Fifteen grandchildren and five great-grands keep her busy. The Hoekstras celebrated their 50th anniversary in June with a wonderful party and a surprise trip to ME to see a house where she, her mother and grandmother were born. They've also been to Israel and Paris this year.

In the spring, Jane Day Hooker and Tom welcomed two new granddaughters and enjoyed the wedding in Monterey, CA, of their oceanographer son to an Australian oceanographer. Then, sadly, on 7/24/94, Tom died of cancer. I speak for our classmates to express our sympathy for Jody and her family.

Another sad note from Alex Campbell (40 So. 20th St., La Crosse, WI 54601) to tell us of the death of Jeannette Salzer Campbell on 6/10/94. The class extends our sympathy to him and his family.

Margaret Jerome Oliver writes that she has finished her 10th year of singing in her town's community chorus. For the end of June and a few weeks in July, she will be family sitting. Both of her granddaughters graduated from high school. The proud grandmother states that the first-born, Alethea, was valedictorian of her class and is a freshman at Smith College. Second-born, Rebecca, began her first year at Worcester State this fall. Margaret lives in Acton, MA.

Marion (Sis) Durgin Hanscom wants to report a mini-reunion in April with two of our ex-'50 class members. Mary Shellabarger Cleave and Sis visited Mary Jean Sloxum Warfield and her husband, Dick, at their lovely home in Prescott, AZ. They spent a week with them, and during that time spent three days traveling to the Grand Canyon, Zion National Park and Bryce Canyon. Sis writes, "It's wonderful how the years just drop away when we look at each other after all this time and how easy it was for the three of us and Dick to relax and enjoy each other."

Mary Ann Rossi and Bruce Brackenridge were in Seattle for the June wedding of their daughter, Sandy Rossi, to Jeff Fairhall, owner of the Essential Foods Company on Bainbridge Island. Their other daughter, Lynn Brackenridge, was married in London in July to Chief Justice Harry Carrico of the Virginia Supreme Court. Mary and Bruce celebrated their 40th anniversary between weddings.

Shirley Lukens Rosseau and Dick's youngest daughter, Ann, was married in May in Carmel. Shirley and Dick, along with Brenda Bennett Bell and Henry, attended an Elderhostel last fall in NC at the John Campbell Folk Art School. The men did blacksmithing while Brenda and Shirley practiced calligraphy. "A unique experience in Southern living for us," Shirley said.

Eleanor Souville Levy and Paul were off to Dakar, Senegal, for four weeks. It was a business trip for Paul who works for the World Bank.

The class extends sympathy to Marguerite Hoadley O'Connell whose husband, John (Okie), died on 5/18/94. They had been married 41 years. Ellie Souville Levy and Brenda Bennett Bell attended the memorial service at Arlington National Cemetery.

flight attendant daughter, Betsy, had a wonderful trip to England. Bonnie spent Grandparent's Day with 10-year-old Molly at her private school. Son Todd lives in Berkeley recovering from the loss of his wife, Mimi, a year ago. Roger and Bonnie spend time in San Diego visiting daughters Jenny and Kate and granddaughter Christina, 4. Bonnie's frequent "baby sitting" includes their favorite place, the zoo.

Emily Howard Ryan and husband Bill have enjoyed many European trips over the past 10 years often visiting friends who live in France. They have been on cruises and trips to Guatemala, China and Thailand. On one of their trips they rode the elephants in an Aka tribe village after an exciting ride to the village via shallow, long boats with open engines. They also visited the "Golden Triangle" at the convergence of the three rivers on the borders of Burma (Myanmar), Laos and Thailand. Their four children also "must" be visited! Two are in CA, one at the epicenter of the earthquake (all okay), West Hills and North Hollywood. Their oldest daughter lives in Beaverton, OR. The other daughter in Brewster, MA. Em and Bill have nine grandchildren ranging from 13 to 2. They recently enjoyed being tour leaders for their youngest son, Pat, and his wife on their first European trip. Em and Bill are still in the computer consulting business. Both are hale and hearty and enjoying life.

Marion Streett Guggenheim (no relation to Picabo Street, the skier!) writes that not long after helping recruit reunion attendees, she had to suddenly drop out due to a family emergency. She regretted not seeing her roommate Polly Hume Keck. Marion keeps busy as a low-level elected official and is helping to start a non-profit family and children's group focusing on violence, abuse and neglect specifically in our nation's capital city.

Betty Schneider Ottinger has become active in Democratic politics. She is a practicing psychoanalyst/psychotherapist in DC and served as one of the consultants to the Mental Health Task Force. They worked to get the very best mental health benefits included in the National Health Bill. She is still enjoying the thrill of shaking hands with the Clintons and the Emperor and Empress of Japan during a White House state dinner that she attended.

At this address, things are about the same. Daughter, Barrie, a computer scientist, does a lot of traveling with her job at the Naval Undersea Warfare Center in Newport. We are coping with a 6-month quarantine for our 16-year-old cat due to "a possible" rabies infection, so I walk him 2 to 3 times a day! Your faithful correspondent is still trying to pry news out of you. Last year after sending out 91 post cards I received only 8 responses. Can't you guys do better than that?! I realize that an evening at the White House is a tough act to follow, but we are interested in what you're doing even if you think it's insignificant. — Judith Morse Littlefield

In the weeks following our momentous 40th reunion, many classmates expressed enthusiasm by writing notes and sending copies of their photos of the festivities. Included in this group were Janie Weiss Donnelly; Sue Greene Richards; Kitty White Skinner, who sent a postcard from Lubec, ME, "the easternmost point in the U.S.," where she spent two weeks in the fog and had to go inland to dry out; and Connie Demarest Antonucci. Connie and Joe spent six months a year in rural MI, "nestled on a little lake where we run down the street to the asparagus farm for fresh asparagus in season, dart to the local blueberry patch for fresh berries and zip off to the local farm for wonderful, fresh corn." This is a reversal of lifestyles from the Antonuccis' six months spent in Tucson, AZ.

Dudy Vars McQuilling and Jim's youngest child, Andrew, married Mirtha Cabral on 7/1/94 in Santiago, Dominican Republic. Dudy reports there were 737 guests at the wedding! On the way to the ceremony, Andrew, Tom (brother and best man), Dudy and Jim were trapped in a glass elevator at the basement level where none of the workmen answered their cries. They were finally rescued by the ushers! Andrew and Mirtha met while at Harvard Business School. They are now living in NYC. Early in Aug., the McQuillings and their four children and eight grandchildren (two under 1 year) spent a week in ME. "The whole group joined us for breakfast and lunch ... at dinner, Jim and I were blissfully alone," wrote Dudy.

Nena Cunningham Dahling's husband, Bill, is retired so they have travel time and spent Thanksgiving '93 in CA with son Bill Jr., an attorney. His wife is an associate professor of English at UC/Riverside. Son Dick is in investment banking in NYC, and son Peter graduated in May from Duke with an M.A. in public policy and environmental management.

Ann Cross Frost and Kent are living in Canandaigua, NY. Their son lives nearby and is a salesman in the family business. He's married to Julie, and their daughter, Meghan, was born on 6/20/94. Daughter, Martha, and her husband, Bruce Donaldson, live in Charleston, SC, where they have their own landscaping business. Their daughter, Eleanor, was born in Jan. '93. The Donaldsons visited the Frosts in Aug.

Mary Lee Matheson Shanahan and Tom are based in Southern Pines, SC. They were on Fisher's Island and Cape Cod in early July. Tom is recovering well from a kidney ailment.

Mary Joslyn Gurney missed reunion as she runs a bed and breakfast in Williamstown, MA, and was busy with the Williams College graduation.

Jan King Evans recently shared the memories of her mother Karla Heurich King Harrison '28, whose husband was killed in action in Normandy in '44. Karla's classmate, Henrietta Owens '28, once told her friend Karla's story in a moving essay, "Next of Kin," that was published in The Atlantic in '45. The experiences were recounted this year on The Discovery Channel's, "Normandy — The Great Crusade." Jan and her brother traveled to Normandy in June to attend a ceremony and the naming of a street for their father.

Your correspondents wish each and everyone of you a blessed holiday season, during which time they are hopeful of receiving voluminous cards and letters full of news about you and yours!

Helen wrote, "This will be a very busy two years for me, traveling to Medical Alliance meetings in each county in the state and to Chicago for national meetings. It's also been a rough year as we lost both Bob's and my father and have been shepherding my sister through surgery for a brain tumor. She has moved to Tacoma so we can care for her." Helen also noted that the medical alliance is focusing on domestic violence education and health system reform. Congratulations from all of us, Helen!

Maureen Mehls Kiernan says hello to everyone and apologizes for not writing in a long time (she was good at it when she was class correspondent, though). She's been the elected town treasurer in Ridgefield, CT for 10 years, and has a flower business. Husband, Jerry, is a data processing consultant. Her older daughter is working in the geriatrics field after receiving her masters in public health administration at Tulane. The younger daughter is in law school at Pepperdine and will probably end up in Asia somewhere; she has traveled in Thailand and Laos. When you see her at reunion, remember she's Maureen not "Mo."

Missy Missimer McQuiston does lots of work in the Philadelphia area on behalf of CC. Her daughter Mary Hope (a CC grad too) is now in San Francisco and was married last year. Another daughter graduated from Ithaca College School of Communications in Atlanta. Missy is active at a local school, her tennis club and the Pennsylvania Museum of Art and Anthropology. She and Bob went hiking in Switzerland recently. Though she stays in touch with lots of classmates through her CC activities, Missy hasn't made it to reunion yet. '95 could be the year!

Carolyn Sharp Brodsky says she'll be there. She and David recently celebrated their 35th anniversary, and welcomed their first grandchild a year ago.

Carol Broggini Maiden also had a first grandchild this year — a product of two CC grads, so maybe there's a third generation here!

Judith Annis (Kisel) Rokicki married Joe in January '86; they live in Cleveland. Between them they have five children and eight grandchildren. Judy took early retirement a year ago after 12 years with British Petroleum. Since Joe had already retired (for the second time), they're free to travel, play golf and enjoy their family.

Joan Murray Webster's three children are all living in Dallas. Life continues to be full for Joan, raising Connemara ponies and working with the Junior League. She and John had their 32nd wedding anniversary this year.

Mary Winne Sherwood's "baby" is her co-housing community in NC. They've just broken ground so building can start on the 33 households.

Jean Chappell went to Guatemala this summer and visited Mayan ruins. She's been studying school administration and is certified to be a principal but loves her classroom work so much she says she doesn't want to switch!

Ann Milner Willner and Chuck live in Ledyard, CT, home of the famous (infamous?) Foxwoods Casino. Chuck has retired, Ann still teaches second grade, and they have four grandchildren. They too were hiking in the Alps this year!

Another Foxwoods Casino neighbor is Molly Blackall McKay. As conservation chair of the local Sierra Club, she's co-chair of a group called TRACK (Trails and Rails Action Coalition). It's trying to find transportation alternatives to the influx of highways and cars because of the casino. If you're interested in getting involved, call Molly in Stonington, CT. (Call the Alumni Office at 203-439-2300 for Molly's phone number and address.)

I hope you all have happy holidays and a safe winter. Don't forget to put me on your holiday mailing list for news. As for me, I'll be in Africa for a month and will report on my experience a few issues from now.

Fredda Rakatanasky, divorced in '87, recently married Jeffrey Sharfstein. She's in her 25th year of teaching in the Providence, RI, public schools. Her daughter, Jennifer Myers, graduated cum laude from CC in '93, and, like her mom, also majored in child development. Jennifer did an internship at Yale and is looking for a job in Boston. Fredda gave her daughter her diploma as part of the 75th commencement exercise and reports that "it was quite an experience going to the alumni/graduate luncheon."

Patricia Allen Shellard is a donor center coordinator with the HLA Registry Foundation in NJ, the largest donor center in the National Marrow Donor Program that finds bone marrow donors for patients in need of transplants. Trish works with the donors who, after extensive testing, are asked to donate their marrow. It's a fascinating and rewarding job.

Start planning now to attend our 25th reunion, 6/2-4/95. Get in touch with your friends and come as a group! Correspondent Trish Shellard has the latest addresses from the college; if you've lost track of someone, call Trish at 201-652-8425, or write to the address above (send news too!) or contact the Alumni Office at 203-439-2300. See you in June!

Married: Kristin Wooten to John Walker, 10/93.

Born: to Roger Kaufman and Michelle Grosser Kaufman '87, Allison Barrie 12/6/93.

Hello classmates! It was wonderful to get news from some dear old friends — I use the term "old" affectionately and not because this was the year most of us said, "Oh, No! The BIG 3-0!" I look forward to hearing from more of you soon — I truly enjoy getting your notes, and it sure does beat getting window envelopes that usually contain bills. I have had an eventful few months since my last column. After taking a new job in Human Resources (yes, I'm still at Newbury College!), I bought a house and have settled in Reading, MA. Please note the new address above, so your letters will find their way to my new mailbox! Until the next issue, I remain your faithful correspondent — Suzanne.

And now, on with the news ...

Roger Kaufman was promoted to assistant vice president of marketing for U.S. Healthcare in New England. He and Michelle (Grosser) '87 celebrated the birth of their daughter, Allison Barrie last Dec. Life is great, and they are enjoying parenthood!

Carol Newman has moved to Newport, RI.

Madge Rossi graduated from acupuncture school in June and moved to Honolulu to meet up with Tim Evans '88. Life in paradise always welcomes friends — so visit!

Kristin Wooten Walker is living in Nashville, TN, where she works as a nurse-midwife at the city hospital! She finished her master's program at Yale and has since delivered more than 100 babies! In Oct. '93, Krissy married John Walker. In attendance were Robertta Stewart, Wendy Hyde, Lisa Hoekstra, Lisa Condon, Emilie Woodward, Gerda Gomez Pasquarello and Loren Shapiro '83.

After working at Giorgio Armani and Moschino, Andrea Fazzari is now looking to work for a PR firm that specializes in the fashion industry. She is eventually planning on starting her own design company based in Milan or Paris.

Andrea Goren is finishing her MBA at Columbia, and then plans to work in an investment bank for a period before she returns to the film industry.

Renner Johnston has started an Architecture Program, after living and studying in Germany since graduation.

Bruce Marchand is running his own theater company, and teaching acting in Houston, TX.

Raquel Mazon spent four years working in the fashion business in NY, and is now starting a master's program in international relations at Columbia.

After working as a freelance journalist in NYC since graduation, Sarah Schoen has just started a Ph.D. in social work in NYU.

After freelancing as a photographer and art director in London for the past four years, Christopher Stedman has started an MFA at NYU and the International Center of Photography.
