Jefferson Singer is one of the hundred and sixty Pulbright scholars to research abroad this fall in the state of Connecticut.

The Fulbright Program was proposed by then Senator J. William Fulbright in 1945 during a time of international conflict. It was approved by President Truman in 1946. Fulbright saw the program as "a means of maintaining mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries from around the world." Fulbright scholars today are travel abroad to participate in a variety of educational activities and professional experiences. Each year 800 scholars are selected, 160 of which do research in science and mathematics, 130 in the Department of State, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs. In 2001 the Fulbright Program was $118.7 million in addition to numerous gifts given by foreign governments.

Incoming Class Holds Record SATs

Conn's class of 2007 achieved the highest SAT average score since the class of 1974. The average verbal score was 660 and the average math score was 650. Although the college maintained its admissions policy of allowing applicants to choose between the submission of SAT I and three SAT II, seventeen percent of the class chose to submit the former. This trend has caused students to question the weight of SAT I scores in Conn's admissions process.

The college's drop from number twenty-three to twenty-four in the annual US News and World Report rankings may be attributed to the sudden drop in our college's admissions process.

In the case of Jefferson Singer, Connecticut's class of 2007 achieved the highest SAT average score since the class of 1974.

Drinking is a responsibility

Less than two weeks into the current school year, four freshman students have already been hospitalized for alcohol poisoning, two last Thursday and two on Saturday. Many are college in a place where they can finally be free of the restrictions and boundaries placed on them for years living under their parents’ roof. However, just because someone else is no longer responsible for you at the time does not mean that you are not responsible for yourself.

College is about having fun, but fun isn’t proportional to the quantity of alcohol and drugs consumed. Going easy and trying to push limits, especially when those limits are unspoken, can be extremely dangerous and can have extreme consequences. These are concerns of us, the other people getting drunk into our heads. The difference between now and then is that there are no longer distinct concepts being preached to us by somebody in a police uniform that we can laugh at. When our friends are being loaded into ambulances, the situation quickly ceases to be funny.

Additionally, it is important to contribute to a good reputation for our class by avoiding behavior that is stigmatized for freshmen. Getting drunk to the point that one’s behavior is completely out of control does not impress anybody, neither does having a stomach pumped.

Furnished (as well as appurtenances) should be aware that the school will not punish a student who seeks medical attention in situations other than students assisting them. This policy is not a catch for students who want to get drunk and not have to worry about consequences; it is a means that this institution tries to instill discipline into the student body to regulate itself. This is not a trust to be taken lightly.

I love everything about the city of...Washington, D.C. I spent most of my childhood there, and I still call it home. I'm a political junkie, and I enjoy spending my free time reading about the city's history and politics. I've always been interested in the city's vibrant culture and its rich history. I'm also a big fan of the city's sports teams, particularly the Washington Nationals and the Washington Redskins. I'm a huge fan of the city's museums and art galleries, and I spend as much time as possible exploring the city's cultural offerings. I'm also a big fan of the city's food scene, and I love trying out new restaurants and cafes. I'm a big supporter of the city's environmental initiatives, and I'm always looking for ways to reduce my carbon footprint. I'm a big fan of the city's public transportation system, and I use it as much as possible to get around.

Valentino's Offers Pleasant Alternative to Dining Hall Cuisine to Fit Your Budget

By: Sophia Wysocki

Last Friday night I realized that, while I was not as close as I could be to my Father's House, it was the perfect time to make my way to Valentino's. The atmosphere was perfect; just the kind of place I was looking for. My hangover was gone and I was ready for a good meal.

At first glance, the place looked just as lovely, as local, pizzas but we soon realized that looks were quite deceiving. It turned out that there was a space scarred by the road, hidden from the road, for people to enjoy a nice fine dining experience. We were greeted upon entry and seated quickly. Soon our waitress, Sarah, came to introduce herself and ask us what we wanted to eat. Though six was not a numbered table, they all arrived prompt and fast, along with our homemade focaccia bread. The focaccia bread was an amazing surprise. It brought some of the classic Italian dishes of the menu to our table. We were encouraged by the approach of the woman eating next to us. She was more than happy to share her thoughts on the menu. The lady that listened the bottom of the plates were nicely dressed in a coffee table setting, and the middle layer consisting of a ricotta cheese blend was a mild taste that allowed the coffee and chocolate flavors to make their way through the entire dish. By the time the check came at the end of the meal, we realized that we had much to pay for it. However, each of our wallets was happy to be rid of only about fifteen dollars. The price was well worth it. However, each of our wallets was happy to be rid of only about fifteen dollars.

Valentino's also offers lunch and dinner that will fit your budget. If you don't have the time, you can order any of their dishes for take out by calling 860-343-1212 and do something about it.

Jump Off the She Listens to Horrible Music So You Don't Have To:

Hey kids! How was that long, boring summer? I'm sure it was for all of you, but I was busy writing my thesis on the history of rock music, so I didn't have time to listen to any of the music you kids like. But I'm here to save you from the terrible music of your generation, so let me tell you about some of the bands I listened to this summer.

One of the bands I listened to was the Portland-based rock group Ocean Avenue. Their album, "Ocean Avenue," is a masterpiece of modern rock music. It features songs like "View From Heaven," which is an absolute earworm. The record is maddeningly catchy, so you can't escape its hooks. It's the perfect album to play on repeat for the next few months.

Another band I listened to was Yellowcard, the punk band with a violinist. Their album, "Ocean Avenue," is a true masterpiece. It features songs like "Brand New Skin," which is a perfect party starter. The energy in "Brand New Skin" will have you dancing off a sexual fever. One listen to Yellowcard and you'll be hooked.

Of course, I also listened to some of the pop-punk bands like the Gimmes. Their album, "Count The Stars," is a must-listen. From the moment you start listening to "Take A Break," you'll be hooked. The Gimmes are an amazing Japanese band that brings in a new element to their music.

Lastly, I listened to some of the Japanese pop-punk bands like Do As Infinity. Their song "Take A Break" is a true masterpiece of modern rock music. It features songs like "Vengas Conmigo," which is an absolute earworm. The record is maddeningly catchy, so you can't escape its hooks. It's the perfect album to play on repeat for the next few months.

So that's it for this summer's music. I hope you all enjoyed listening to my music recommendations. And remember, if you're not interested in the music I listened to, you can always stick to your favorite music. But I think you'll be surprised by the variety of music that's out there. So, let me know what you think.

Conn Sports Return to Action This Weekend

The Camels get back into the 2003-2004 campaign of Camel Sports. The arrival of fall means that sports. The experienced seniors at the helm this year. This young team lost only two seniors. This is the most highly regarded team at New England Division III. Connecticut College, so too begins the 2003-2004 campaign of Camel Sports. The arrival of fall means that with an impressive ranking of 20th in the nation.

The women's soccer proved to be a formidable Head of the Charles regatta, October 18-19 in Boston, Massachusetts. With numbers. The fall will be back to back at the invitational at the Hartford Anderson Regional Tennis Center. The women's soccer proved to be a bright spot in Conn's athletic program this year. They dedicated Camel fans last year who had also become increasingly rowing at Camel will be rowing at the World of Sport from an open perspective. Matthew Jeffs, come to town, to play a tough Mark on the road. The squad opened its season Saturday afternoon at 1:30 p.m., when the Abington Land Leas come to town to play a tough NECAC game. Men's soccer, on the other hand, was not in the same league last year, ending at 5-1-1, while going strong at home. The men will look to turn things around at home against Eastern Connecticut State University at 4:00 p.m. on Wednesday afternoon. With seniors in tow, the men look to get the graduation of veteran coach Bill Lessig, who seems to be in the company of teams like the Cincinnati Bungles and Denver Nuggets. My personal favorite of teams is the Boston Bruins. As much as I hate the Yanks, I will finish second to the Yankees for the sixth straight year is even more: the Boston Red Sox.
