Sullivan Speaks at Convocation
Denounces Apartheid and Racism

by Fernando Espuelas-Aenjo

The Reverend Leon Sullivan, center, receives an honorary degree from President Oakes Ames, right, and Dean Francis Johnson, left.

The team will not know. The coach will not know. Duke doesn't test its athletes, Butters explains, but requires those who fear they have a problem to report it to someone who will make sure that student is cared for. "We can only speak for half a few names myself. But he said. "Any threat of a bomb," he asked the audience. He received a seven minute standing ovation in response, which drew out his very last remark in which he intoned the civil rights icon, the Reverend Martin Luther King Jr., by saying "It will be a great day when we reach the 21st century.

Some people in the audience cried as Sullivan, a powerful bulky six feet four inch man with intense grey eyes, pounded on the podium speaking on the onus of racism in America and Apartheid in South Africa, which he called "The most despicable, and inhuman, and ungodly system in the world".

He said that the United States Government should be "aggressive in their efforts to counter Apartheid."

"When Congress speaks and the President speaks the world listens..." and if Reagan can overthrow tyrants in the Gulf and Philippines and attack terrorism in Libya he can fight Apartheid, he said.

He also said that the United States has a vested interest in seeing to the destruction of Apartheid. "It is maintained that if Apartheid is perpetuated a race war would break out in South Africa. And "A race war will be an ideological war," which would pit both the United States and the Soviet Union in "nuclear confrontation."

"Racism is alive and well in America," Sullivan said. He also said that an extension of Black ghettoes in the cities constituted a "de facto segregation" in Black and White America.

Sullivan predicted that "unless conditions for minorities improve "new urban revolts" would spread to every community."

"The government must not only "defend our shores and borders, but must also help the poor!" Sullivan said.

"People don't want handouts in our cities, they want handups!"

He called for the "overhaul of the welfare system", which has built-in disincentives that keep people from working.

"We need new strength and vision of leadership in this country," he continued.

BOMB

Threat in Knowlton

by Erka Riddington

The College Voice

At 5:48 p.m. on Thursday, August 28, Knowlton Hall received a bomb threat. Janet Hall, house fellow of Knowlton, answered the phone call. She was in the dining room when a student entered the hall to tell her that her telephone had been ringing. When Hall picked up the receiver she could tell the caller was male. He told her that if she didn't evacuate then search the building.

No bomb was ever found and the caller is yet to be identified.

"May there be a threat of a bomb," said director of Campus Safety, Charles Richards, "must be taken seriously. Our main concern is the people inside the building."

In case of a bomb threat, occupants are told to leave the building as if a fire drill were in session. Any Campus Safety officers on the scene would then search the place.

"We wouldn't know if there was a bomb if we saw one," said Richards. "We just search the campus for anything out of the ordinary. If something were found then the New London Fire Department and/or Bomb Squad would be called in to handle the situation."

When asked to speculate on the possible motives behind the threat, Hall said that she "could only assume it was a joke. Some issues have come up in Knowlton but none controversial enough for someone to go to such extremes." Richards gave two reasons why he thought someone would say there was a bomb.

"First, the person likes to see the confusion caused by a threat. Second, the person would like the dorm cleared out of personal reasons. Either one, we look out for as we are here to care for everyone."

"We need new strength and vision of leadership in this country," he continued.
Letter From the Publisher

As need dictates, this space will give me the chance to explain some facet of the newspaper to the readers. Looking back over the last two years, I see a plethora of issues which, although not appropriate for an editorial because of their parochial, strictly "Voice" oriented nature, merited some comment. I encourage you to contact me with any questions or topics which you may think appropriate for this space.

On to new business. We begin our teetering, practically every system for doing our job has been disrupted—for the better. Taking into account our need for more control over production and more ambitious—and consequently more expensive—projects, we have taken the plunge and bought a type-setting machine. Roughly the size of a large desk, and with infinitely more buttons, "The Blue Thing", as the machine has been dubbed, will slash our production cost and give us much flexibility. In the meantime, as we relearn to produce a newspaper, we must request your indulgence; it's like learning a foreign language: it will take us a while to lose our accent.

The typesetter will make other proposals possible. In the works is a new magazine called Nothing's Sacred, a political satire and commentary journal. We have also moved to identify other groups on campus to form partnerships with. Recently we entered into an agreement with Jonathan B. Leff, the Editor-in-Chief of the Gallery (Connecticut's literary magazine), to co-publish his magazine and distribute it to a wider audience. Popi Kalledathari has created and will edit a science news magazine (which is yet to be titled); it will be distributed as an insert in the Voice. We will keep you informed of any other projects as they materialize.

As the press roles for another year, I would like to thank you for your past support and constructive criticism; we will continue to grow so that we may serve you better.

Sincerely yours,
Fernando Espuelas-Asenjo, Publisher & Editor

---

Arm Chair Warriors

To the Editor:

The hijacking of the Pan Am airplane and the other terrorist attacks in recent days have again brought to mind a rather troubling notion; that of the American as armchair warrior. This individual, comfortably safe in his recliner with beer in hand, talks about American military operations very much the same way he would talk about the football game on television. To the armchair warrior our international relations involve planning an aggressive and brutal game plan to outsmart terrorists and hostile nations. He believes that we can show our military might throughout the world and as a result show the rest of the planet that we are going to "kick some ass" if people don't leave us in peace. It goes without saying that the armchair warrior will probably never himself be involved in a terrorist incident; instead he will sit back in his chair and watch those Europeans and the Atlantic Ocean suffer. Despite the reality that there is no one real source of terrorism in the world, the armchair warrior proclaims that we will publicly punish someone for the attack—preferably Gaddafi whether he is guilty or not. It seems to go against the American grain to admit that terrorism cannot be fought by highly visible conventional means.

The President responded to the recent terrorist attack on Pan Am, in the tradition of the armchair warrior by ordering an aircraft carrier to shadow the region. What do the aircraft carrier to the shadow the region? What could have the aircraft carrier done? Blown up the airplane?

Finally, it would seem that while we are angry that people died, we are perhaps more concerned with the fact that our national pride was hurt because terrorists dared to attack an airplane with Americans aboard. Is this kind of behavior really appropriate for a nation which holds the destiny of the world in its hands? I think not. Certainly the issue of terrorism is not easy to handle, but the meaningless firing of our military muscle is not the answer to the problem.

Neal Brandes
Lazarus

---

Yes, Apathy Again

With the words, "We who believe in freedom cannot rest," Sweet Honey in the Rock began their concert in Palmer. This one line set the tone for the evening. The group’s concern for human and civil rights was refreshing. What was most encouraging, however, was the support they received from a wildly enthusiastic crowd; it was a concerned, receptive audience. This outpouring of emotion and solidarity helped, for a brief expanse of time, to obscure the grip of apathy in which most students and faculty are held.

Last Thursday, also in Palmer, an event of importance took place. A President personified spoke to a bare-bones crowd of some 500 students and 51 faculty members. Considering that the whole senior class had to be there, the number of people present is even less impressive. The Reverend Leon H. Sullivan, perhaps the most influential American (outside of the Government) concerned with U.S. policy in South Africa, challenged the audience into action. But instead of speaking to a full crowd, he spoke in a Palmer Auditorium barely one-third filled.

When history shows up at our doorstep and we fail to greet it, we must wonder what is wrong. Has the college failed in its educational mission?

We have in the past been absolute curmudgeons about apathy: we beg forbearance. But Sullivan deserved to be heard; and we owed it to ourselves to hear his message.

The Student Government Association is soon to launch a campaign to raise funds for a South African Scholarship Fund. The College Voice shall report every week as to its progress. We strongly urge you participate in any way you can.

---

THE COLLEGE VOICE

Fernando Espuelas-Asenjo
Publisher & Editor

Alexandra Stockard
News Editor
Peter Falconer
Features Editor
Marc Laplaisir
Sports Editor
Margaret Nightingale
World Outlook Editor
Thorn Pouyet
Contributing Editor
Sarah Schoenfeld
Arts & Entertainment Editor (acting)
James Sachs
Advertising Director

Elizabeth Huffman
Managing Editor
Geoffrey Wagg
Assistant to the Publisher
Christine Weaver
Business Editor
Jennifer Marshall
Production Editor
Melinda Fee
Copy Editor
Jennifer Cauffield
Graphics Editor
Janet Schoenfeld
Associate Advertising Director

Associate Editors: Mary Haffenberg (World Outlook), Stuart Eaton (Graphics)

William F. Walter
Editor In Chief Emeritus

The College Voice is a non-profit student produced newspaper. Deadline for all articles is Monday at 5 p.m. for the next week's issue. "Letters to the Editor" will be published on subjects of interest to the community. The deadline for all letters is Wednesday at 12 p.m. for the following week's issue. Because of the volume of mail, and other curt, we cannot guarantee publication of any submission. We are unable to return any copies. All submissions must be typed, double spaced, and signed. The deadline for all advertisements is Wednesday at 3 p.m. for the following week's issue.
CONNTHOUGHT

Conn and Drugs
Thorn Pozen
Contributing Editor

Len Bias has died. Don Rogers and John Belushi, not to mention Janis Joplin, John Bonham and Jimi Hendrix, have died also. But the hype surrounding these highly visible people's overdoses, the drug problem continues in our society. As I sat in the office of David Brailey, the Health Education Coordinator, I began to see the scope of the problem of drug abuse in this country. He told me of rats choosing cocaine over food, sex and sleep. He told me that approximately nine percent of our country uses cocaine regularly and that its use could be much higher here at Conn.

It seems that no one on this campus is exactly sure as to the real depth or severity of drug use here, however. Forming this year will be a Drug Education Committee "to determine the severity of the drug problem at Connecticut College and offer institutional recommendations in the prevention, intervention and treatment of drug abuse." Acting Dean of the College, Eugene Gallagher, did not foresee any sweeping new policies from the report of the committee, due probably this spring. He stressed the college's role as an educational institution and sees education and awareness, as his letter to the students expressed, as the primary tools against drug abuse. Julie Quinn, the Director of Public Information for the college further stressed the role of education, pointing to previous efforts by Dean Marj丽 Liptcher and to past and future educational efforts of David Brailey, as the key to meeting the problem. And Charles Lace, Director of Athletics, stressed the importance of not blindly rushing into rash shortsighted policy.

So, as the administration studies the drug situation, we are left with only options and possibilities. Drug testing comes to mind, as does the possibility of random room searches. Drug testing has been called for by President Reagan on a national level and by several professional sports leagues, and was not completely ruled out as a possibility here. And room checks have been discussed and carried out at many colleges and universities around the country, although never brought us as an option here.

Like the rats in the experiment described by David Brailey, we are all here making choices. It must be society's role, in our case the college administration, to provide for us all necessary information to make rational decisions, on all moral issues. By intensifying its effort in the direction of education of drug abuse, as the administration is planning, rather than a more tensifying its effort in the direction of education of drug abuse, as the primary tools against drug abuse, Julie Quinn, the Director of Public Information for the college further stressed the role of education, pointing to previous efforts by Dean Marj丽 Liptcher and to past and future educational efforts of David Brailey, as the key to meeting the problem. And Charles Lace, Director of Athletics, stressed the importance of not blindly rushing into rash shortsighted policy.

like the administration studies the drug situation, we are left with only options and possibilities. Drug testing comes to mind, as does the possibility of random room searches. Drug testing has been called for by President Reagan on a national level and by several professional sports leagues, and was not completely ruled out as a possibility here. And room checks have been discussed and carried out at many colleges and universities around the country, although never brought us as an option here.

Like the rats in the experiment described by David Brailey, we are all here making choices. It must be society's role, in our case the college administration, to provide for us all necessary information to make rational decisions, on all moral issues. By intensifying its effort in the direction of education of drug abuse, as the administration is planning, rather than a more tensifying its effort in the direction of education of drug abuse, as the primary tools against drug abuse, Julie Quinn, the Director of Public Information for the college further stressed the role of education, pointing to previous efforts by Dean Marj丽 Liptcher and to past and future educational efforts of David Brailey, as the key to meeting the problem. And Charles Lace, Director of Athletics, stressed the importance of not blindly rushing into rash shortsighted policy.

So, as the administration studies the drug situation, we are left with only options and possibilities. Drug testing comes to mind, as does the possibility of random room searches. Drug testing has been called for by President Reagan on a national level and by several professional sports leagues, and was not completely ruled out as a possibility here. And room checks have been discussed and carried out at many colleges and universities around the country, although never brought us as an option here.

Like the rats in the experiment described by David Brailey, we are all here making choices. It must be society's role, in our case the college administration, to provide for us all necessary information to make rational decisions, on all moral issues. By intensifying its effort in the direction of education of drug abuse, as the administration is planning, rather than a more tensifying its effort in the direction of education of drug abuse, as the primary tools against drug abuse, Julie Quinn, the Director of Public Information for the college further stressed the role of education, pointing to previous efforts by Dean Marj丽 Liptcher and to past and future educational efforts of David Brailey, as the key to meeting the problem. And Charles Lace, Director of Athletics, stressed the importance of not blindly rushing into rash shortsighted policy.

The national theatre of the deaf presents carson mccullers: the heart is a lonely hunter

the heart is a lonely hunter

with a new consciousness rising in america concerning drug abuse and its effect on society, the Reagan administration is starting to address the problem which many Americans say worries them more than the national debt.

President Reagan, just by addressing the situation is helping to confront the problem of drugs in American society. Because of the President's immense popularity with the American people, anything he says or does takes on great meaning. The Reagan administration must act on the President's record popularity and the nation's willingness to confront the problem in formulating an effective anti-drug policy. Just paying lip service to the problem will not erase it. A sustained commitment is needed from the administration to make any drug policy effective.

This policy should be a two-pronged attack on drug trafficking and use. Both stronger law enforcement and better education of Americans on the hazards of drug use should be employed in the attack. Reagan recently outlined the administration's new anti-drug policy, parts of which are sensible, other parts of which are unsensible.

One of the better glories of Reagan's program is stronger enforcement of drug laws in the United States. His first step in this direction should be to expand the strength of the Drug Enforcement Administration, the agencies of the federal government charged with stopping drug trafficking. Right now, however, the DEA has approximately 2500 agents, the same number as in 1975. The President must increase the number of agents to affect an increase in drug enforcement on the national level.

The second strong point of Reagan's program is his verbal commitment to better education of Americans, especially American youth on the potential hazards of drug use. Secretary of Education William Bennett has been instructed by the President to formulate a program of drug education for the nation's schools. As of now the administration is hoping that local and state governments will provide the funding for these programs. This is not enough. The administration itself must delegate funds to these programs instead of depending on the individual states to fund education programs.

On the negative side of the President's drug policy are more plans for missions like the one conducted last month in Bolivia to wipe out drug processing plants in that country. The loaning of U.S. troops to Latin American nations in an effort to stem the flow of drugs into the United States is ill-conceived. Indeed, similar more successful, raids in the past in other Latin American nations have only slowed down drug exports for up until six months at the most. These raids are not the answer.

Another step in the wrong direction for the administration is Reagan's plan of testing federal employees in "sensitive" jobs for drug use. As a means of guaranteeing job performance this may be a good idea. But in the long run, the testing of a few thousand federal employees will not help eliminate drug use in America. Funding used for drug testing could be better used in the law enforcement and education portions of the President's program.

The combined steps of stronger law enforcement and greater emphasis on drug education are the first steps that should be taken in the war against drugs. The administration must follow these two routes and stay away from quick fix (no pun intended) solutions such as military raids in Latin American jungles and drug testing of Federal employees. Now it only remains to be seen whether Reagan will use the advantage of his immense popularity to make a meaningful contribution to the war against drugs or if he will squander it by committing himself to superficial resolutions to the problem.
FINALLY A FREE FLIGHT PLAN JUST FOR STUDENTS.
YOU WON'T GET A BREAK LIKE THIS ONCE YOU'RE OUT IN THE REAL WORLD.

INTRODUCING COLLEGIATE FLIGHTBANK, FROM CONTINENTAL AND NEW YORK AIR.

If you're a full-time student at an accredited college or university you can join our Collegiate Flightbank. You'll receive a membership card and number that will allow you to get 10% off Continental and New York Air's already low fares. In addition, you'll get a one-time certificate good for $25 off any domestic roundtrip flight. Plus, you'll be able to earn trips to places like Florida, Denver, Los Angeles, even London and the South Pacific. Because every time you fly you'll earn mileage towards a free trip. And if you sign up now you'll also receive 3 free issues of Business Week Careers magazine.

SIGN UP YOUR FRIENDS AND EARN A PORSCHE.

Or the grand prize, for the number one student referral champion in the nation: a Porsche and one year of unlimited coach air travel.

And how do you get to be the referral champion? Just sign up as many friends as possible, and make sure your membership number is on their application. In order to be eligible for any prize you and your referrals must sign up before 12/31/86 and each referral must fly 3 segments on Continental or New York Air. If you're not only get credit for the enrollment, you'll also get 500 bonus miles.

So cut the coupon, and send it in now. Be sure to include your current full time student ID number. That way it'll only cost you $10 for one year ($15 after 12/31/86) and $40 for four years ($60 after 12/31/86). Your membership kit, including referral forms, will arrive in 3 to 4 weeks. If you have a credit card, you can call us at 1-800-255-4321 and enroll even faster.

Now more than ever it pays to stay in school.

SIGN ME UP NOW!

CONTINENTAL & NEW YORK AIR
Khadhafi and His Libya

by Lisa M. Allegretto
The College Voice

Seventeen years ago this September, Colonel Muammar Khadhafi headed the military coup d'état that ended the Libyan monarchy under King Idris I which had governed the country since 1951. The newly formed Libyan Republic, under Khadhafi, promised to work towards "Freedom, Socialism, and Unity" by initiating a socialist economy, removing backwardness, and pushing for unification among the Arab States. The new government also guaranteed universal suffrage but, since the coup in 1969, there have been no elections held in Libya.

In 1980 Colonel Khadhafi gave up his title as de jure Chief of State to become a "private citizen" and now rules the country as a de facto dictator with a small group of trusted advisors. By using frequent appeals to the masses, security apparatus, and powerful revolutionary committees, Khadhafi holds Libya in an iron grip.

The repressive acts committed against the people of Libya since Khadhafi assumed power have caused great tension to build throughout the country. A constant fear of spies exists — not even family members can be trusted. Mysterious disappearances are common for those who go against Khadhafi and his philosophy. A suffering Libyan economy, due to the falling oil prices, has also contributed to the increasing tension.

As a result of the poor living conditions in Libya, opposition against Khadhafi is rising. Policies such as drafting young girls into the military, creating a "peoples army", and planting revolutionary spies among army officials have caused much unrest, especially among university students. Said a Libyan government official, "Opposition is sweeping Libya like a growing storm", but one is only able to speculate as to whether or not the people of Libya will strike out against their dictator.

Pan Am Takeover

by Geoff Schaefer
The College Voice

Eighteen people were killed and many more wounded by four hijackers aboard a Pan Am jet carrying 389 passengers in Karachi, Pakistan on Friday, September 5. The hijackers, who are Palestinian but haven't yet been linked to any terrorist organization, had demanded that the plane be flown to Cyprus to release prisoners they claimed were wrongfully detained.

Sixteen hours after they had stormed the plane, the hijackers randomly opened fire and tossed two grenades at the plane's generator had run out of fuel, causing a lighting failure. Someone then managed to open an emergency door allowing passengers to escape. Within fifteen minutes the hijackers had been seized by Pakistani commandos. While in an iron grip.

The repressive acts committed against the people of Libya since Khadhafi assumed power have caused great tension to build throughout the country. A constant fear of spies exists — not even family members can be trusted. Mysterious disappearances are common for those who go against Khadhafi and his philosophy. A suffering Libyan economy, due to the falling oil prices, has also contributed to the increasing tension.

As a result of the poor living conditions in Libya, opposition against Khadhafi is rising. Policies such as drafting young girls into the military, creating a "peoples army", and planting revolutionary spies among army officials have caused much unrest, especially among university students. Said a Libyan government official, "Opposition is sweeping Libya like a growing storm", but one is only able to speculate as to whether or not the people of Libya will strike out against their dictator.

Pan Am Takeover

by Geoff Schaefer
The College Voice

Eighteen people were killed and many more wounded by four hijackers aboard a Pan Am jet carrying 389 passengers in Karachi, Pakistan on Friday, September 5.

The hijackers, who are Palestinian but haven't yet been linked to any terrorist organization, had demanded that the plane be flown to Cyprus to release prisoners they claimed were wrongfully detained.

Sixteen hours after they had stormed the plane, the hijackers randomly opened fire and tossed two grenades at the plane's generator had run out of fuel, causing a lighting failure. Someone then managed to open an emergency door allowing passengers to escape. Within fifteen minutes the hijackers had been seized by Pakistani commandos. While

Khadhafi and His Libya

by Lisa M. Allegretto
The College Voice

Seventeen years ago this September, Colonel Muammar Khadhafi headed the military coup d'état that ended the Libyan monarchy under King Idris I which had governed the country since 1951. The newly formed Libyan Republic, under Khadhafi, promised to work towards "Freedom, Socialism, and Unity" by initiating a socialist economy, removing backwardness, and pushing for unification among the Arab States. The new government also guaranteed universal suffrage but, since the coup in 1969, there have been no elections held in Libya.

In 1980 Colonel Khadhafi gave up his title as de jure Chief of State to become a "private citizen" and now rules the country as a de facto dictator with a small group of trusted advisors. By using frequent appeals to the masses, security apparatus, and powerful revolutionary committees, Khadhafi holds Libya in an iron grip.

The repressive acts committed against the people of Libya since Khadhafi assumed power have caused great tension to build throughout the country. A constant fear of spies exists — not even family members can be trusted. Mysterious disappearances are common for those who go against Khadhafi and his philosophy. A suffering Libyan economy, due to the falling oil prices, has also contributed to the increasing tension.

As a result of the poor living conditions in Libya, opposition against Khadhafi is rising. Policies such as drafting young girls into the military, creating a "peoples army", and planting revolutionary spies among army officials have caused much unrest, especially among university students. Said a Libyan government official, "Opposition is sweeping Libya like a growing storm", but one is only able to speculate as to whether or not the people of Libya will strike out against their dictator.

Pan Am Takeover

by Geoff Schaefer
The College Voice

Eighteen people were killed and many more wounded by four hijackers aboard a Pan Am jet carrying 389 passengers in Karachi, Pakistan on Friday, September 5. The hijackers, who are Palestinian but haven't yet been linked to any terrorist organization, had demanded that the plane be flown to Cyprus to release prisoners they claimed were wrongfully detained.

Sixteen hours after they had stormed the plane, the hijackers randomly opened fire and tossed two grenades at the plane's generator had run out of fuel, causing a lighting failure. Someone then managed to open an emergency door allowing passengers to escape. Within fifteen minutes the hijackers had been seized by Pakistani commandos. While

It Could Just Be the Best Thing You've Ever Done!

Join The College Voice Staff.
General Meetings Every Tuesday
at 6:30 p.m., Cro 212.
Features

Taron is greeted by the Panawel People

Slightly Different Summers
by Wendy Lou Hine

The question, "How was your summer?", is one of the most popular conversation topics at the start of a new school year. Several students had unusual, exciting or interesting summers were asked to recount their experiences, and their stories reflect the wide diversity of Conn's student body.

Sophomore Alan Rozansky ventured to Israel with fifteen other college students from various universities. They were sponsored by the American-Israeli Public Affairs Committee. Alan is an active member of AIPAC, the pro-Israel lobby in Washington.

Upon arriving in Israel Rozansky met Tom Pickering, the U.S. ambassador, and visited the Knesset building, which houses the Israeli Parliament. Although he did not actually witness any violence, two days prior to his arrival there was an attempted terrorist take over in Southern Lebanon.

Rozansky saw the controversial Lavi fighter plane which is being manufactured by Israel for Israeli defense. The jet has caused a trade controversy between the United States and Israel because fifty percent of the parts used in the jet and all of the technology was supplied by the United States.

Rozansky also had a chance to meet the Drua, a minority group in Israel. He visited a small village near Haifa where he interacted with many common people, discussing current events. He also visited a military base and had the opportunity to speak to Drua soldiers.

While Rozansky was abroad he spoke to Jews, Druze, and Arabs. His goal was "not to get the Jewish point of view, but everyone's point of view" about the Israeli problem.

Sophomore Lacy Frazer and her family and friends were also traveling. They went out for a quiet dinner at Freshfield's, a small, secluded restaurant in Cornwall, Connecticut. While they were there, two women and a man made their way toward the table next to theirs. One of the women seated herself with her back toward a corner, away from everyone. Considering she was movie star Meryl Streep, her nonchalant manner was appropriate.

Frazer instantly recognized her and began to observe the actress's every move and eavesdrop on her conversation. Meryl was big-boned and had wide shoulders, but she was not fat. She was not made up and appeared the same way in real life as in "Out of Africa".

Frazer and her friend approached the group before she left the restaurant telling Meryl, "You're a wonderful actress." Meryl just smiled, said "thank you," and wrote her name on a napkin. The two girls then departed and Meryl finished her dinner seemingly unnoticed by anyone else.

An often unnoticed worker is the research assistant. This summer Christopher Young, a junior, psychology major worked in the children's unit of the Eastern Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute (EPPi), in Philadelphia and at the Eastern State School and Hospital (ES), north of Philadelphia.

The research conducted at EPPi concerned teenage suicide. Young was in charge of asking children questions based on a diagnostic test. His main objectives were reaffirming the diagnosis of an aggressive Conduct disorder and checking the reliability of the test.

Young conducted archival research at ES. The studies included seizure disorders and self abuse. Young's job was to sort through the files of hundreds of cases and look at the levels and types of medication used to treat the children. Young enjoyed doing the so called busy work involved in psychology. He has always had an interest in children's literature and "wanted to get some experience besides the day camp atmosphere."

While Young was tabulating facts, freshman Erich Metzger stalked his troublesome pheasants below the streets of Cincinnati, armed with shooting spears, rubber boots, and gloves. Metzger and his five companions were employed by the Indian Hills Service department to kill pesky rats in the city sewers. He and his co-workers, affectionately called the Rat Crew, woke each morning at 7:30 to be geared up and taken down into the darkness. The Rat Crew worked in groups of two with one member at each side of a long stretch of tunnel. They forced the rats to converge in the center and then shot at them with spears attached to bows resembling harpoons used in deep-sea diving.

The crew stayed underground for one hour and then came for air and lunch. They would then go back for another hour.

In an average day each member caught about twenty, seven to eight inch rats. Metzger said that the job wasn't too disgusting and, besides, it paid 4.50 an hour.

Now that school has begun once again and the lazy days of summer are over, only fond memories remain. Although the students may now be laden with books instead of beach towels, there is some remnant of summer that never disappears: memories of the search for adventure and new experiences.

THE FAR SIDE
By GARY LARSON

BLOOM COUNTY
by Berke Breathed

Animal game shows

by GARY LARSON

by Berke Breathed
Connecticut College recently initiated a new and hopefully more efficient I.D. system at the start of this semester. The updated system involves the use of computers and affects the entire student body. During the first few days of classes, all students were issued the new I.D. cards. Margaret Watson, Dean of Student Affairs noted, "The time came to improve the I.D. system. The new cards are much more professional looking and more durable."

The Residence Department initiated the system's changes in an effort to help satisfy the needs of the campus Food Service. According to Watson, the Food Service was in need of a more efficient manner of attaining statistics and control in planning meals. The new system solves this problem by producing numerous statistics, (through the use of the computers), on such things as the number of people eating at a certain block of time, which foods are more popular, and, of course, the total number of people who eat at one meal. All of this information, plus a host of other statistics, are all shared in the computer for future use.

Perhaps the most significant possibility with this new system is that it may benefit the students. Besides the duplicity of the card, Watson also stated that, "The new I.D. system will enable the Food Service to offer more control over meals like and dislike by being able to more effectively keep records on such information." Other benefits include the Food Service's ability to estimate peak periods so as to know how much food to have on hand to feed its patrons. They also have the ability to keep non-residents of the college from using the system. Watson pointed out that the new system will help keep costs down for students, since they will no longer have to pay for those abusing the system.

Another important benefit, Watson contends, occurs when an I.D. is lost by a student. "Now, if an I.D. is lost," she says "it can be voided by informing the system." In years past, lost I.D.'s could be picked up and used by anyone, causing problems for the original owner.

The long range use of the new system will involve even more functions for the I.D. cards. The card might one day replace the use of keys for student access to dormitory rooms and could also be used for entrance to sporting events. The current short term goal is to expand the use of the system to the entire campus.

Watson claims the new I.D.'s are "a built in protection for students and the school." She also notes the I.D.'s are for on-campus, internal use only. There is no obligation for the card to be accepted for such things as proof of age off-campus.

Watson states, "There have been no complaints so far and the students say they look more professional. This is a system where the residents will definitely benefit in the years to come." However, not all share Watson's enthusiasm, particularly some of the Food Service personnel.

"Some Food Service Employees, who wished to remain anonymous, would not comment on the system one way or another. In time, we may learn of some problems associated with this new system, but so far its introduction has been well-received."
New York-A quarter century after Marvel mastermind Stan Lee converted conventional comic book content into compelling entertainment with a cast of complex, colorful characters including classics such as Fantastic Four, The Amazing Spider-Man and The Incredible Hulk, the Marvel Comics Group is celebrating its silver anniversary by staging a second revolution: The New Universe. Rooted in science and technology, like the best science fiction, The New Universe brings the medium to a new level of sophistication by offering the most credible heights. What better way to pay tribute to Marvel than to celebrate the New Universe, which has thirty-two pages and a cover price of $.75, have been created by many of the top talents in contemporary illustrated fiction. Leading the roster is Archie Goodwin, editorial director of Marvel's Epic Comics line and twice cited as best writer by the Academy of Comic Book Arts, who created "Psi-Force," "Nightmask," "Mercy," and "Justice." Other writers and artists include Elliot Brown, Sal Buscema, Peter David, Tom DeFalco, Ron Frenz, Mark Gruenwald, Rick Leonardi, John Morelli, Gray Morrow, Mark Texiera, Herb Trimpe, and Al Williamson.

The New Universe is our way of saying that this new ideas in the Conn. student should be "curious and intellectually able to put that curiosity to good work." Students should be "sensitive to their environment and get excited about ideas so that in the classroom, when a professor is talking about something, they can take it away and question it and have the independence to state their opinions." She also thinks the ideal Conn. student should be "open-minded to the ideas of other people and be able to adapt to them." There should also be "flexibility, creativity and openness to new ideas" in the Conn. College student. Matthews believes that "the undergraduate college class is moving ahead in disciplines and pursuing knowledge, rather than just passing information on." Conn. students should also "be eager to assume responsibility and keep their sense of humour."

One of the reasons she chose Conn. is that it has a "greater sense of community and friendliness." Matthews recognizes that "the American education system has so much diversity that there is not just one style of facility." Connecticut College is a "small college" whereas Wesleyan is a "little university." Matthews sees that Conn. is "committed to a high quality liberal arts education in a community setting."

The Dean has two children: a fourteen-year-old son and a nineteen-year-old daughter who attends Oberlin College. Matthews' advice to her daughter, prospective students and college students alike is that "college should not only challenge, but also affirm strength. It should build self confidence as well as a reinforce it."
Drug Testing

continues from page 1

parents will not know. But, if the problem is not self-reported, that athlete is gone
with no second chance.

Such programs already have taken a radical turn through the general student population
in the Hawkins Independent School District in Texas, where all students involved in elective activities started taking mandatory drug tests last week.

Student council members,
scholars and athletes are all being tested, says Superintendent Coleman Stanfield. Stanfield adds testing will be random, at regular intervals
throughout the school year.'

Few foresee testing college
student government officers,
however, and few officials
outside athletic department support applying drug programs to nonathlete students.

"I'm personally not comfortable with it," says Suzanne Wasilek, Duke's dean for student life.

"We're being asked to solve a problem that may have started in the seventh grade,"
Butters says.

The publicity and pressure now building to mount anti-drug campaigns tend to create a false impression that schools
"can solve the problem alone,"
says Robert Atwell, president of the American Council on Education [ACE].

Besides, college officials are unsure such programs are workable.

"It must be remembered that two-thirds of the more than seven million full-time
students live off campus," Atwell points out.

Most students, moreover, are adults. "More than half of all college students are 22 years of age and older, and more than a third are 25 or older," Atwell notes.

But students, used to adult responsibilities in other parts of their lives, may not have the right to escape drug programs that presume them guilty or threaten to expel them, administrators say.

"By attending Duke," Wasilek contends, "students agree a person's rights are defined by the rules and regulations of the university.'

by Eric Carter

Peter H. Tveskov, the new director of physical plant, brings 20 years of college experience to Connecticut. This experience, he said, will help
him maintain Conn College's reputation as an energy efficient college.'

Tveskov, however, said that
energy efficiency does not depend on cold nights in dormitories. Instead, Conn had made the investment in heating that enabled the college to maintain a 68-72
degree temperature in dormi-
tories and classrooms.'

Donald Little, the previous
Director of Facilities Operations, supervised electrical,
custodial, and grounds
maintenance. The job description remains the same, but Tveskov will have a large support contractor.

The Facilities Resource
Management Company provides Tveskov with a support
team of engineers and other
professionals that advise him
on complicated changes to the physical plant. The support

New Chief at Physical Plant

has been

by Eric Carter

Peter H. Tveskov, the new
director of physical plant, brings 20 years of college experience to Connecticut. This experience, he said, will help
him maintain Conn College's
reputation as an energy efficient college.'

Tveskov, however, said that
energy efficiency does not depend on cold nights in dormitories. Instead, Conn had
made the investment in heating that enabled the college to maintain a 68-72
degree temperature in dormi-
tories and classrooms.'

Donald Little, the previous
Director of Facilities Operations, supervised electrical,
custodial, and grounds
maintenance. The job description remains the same, but Tveskov will have a large support contractor.

The Facilities Resource
Management Company provides Tveskov with a support
team of engineers and other
professionals that advise him
on complicated changes to the
physical plant. The support team concept is a relatively new college facility phenomena, but it has been used effectively in government foreign aid programs for a long enough time to prove its effectiveness.

Cro's renovation, while not directly supervised by the FRM, was approved by the management company, which believes Conn College will benefit directly from this new system when major changes in campus facilities are considered.

Tveskov will instigate a new work order system. When a room closes, for example, the responsible student calls physical plant and asks for a repairman. When the repairman completes the task, the student will be asked to sign the work order. A few days later, a copy of the work order will be sent to the student.

This new system enables the college community to regulate the quality of work. Tveskov supported the signed work order despite the possibility of deregulatory comments conserning his services. He said, "96 percent of the returned work orders include positive comments.'

Tveskov said that "Connection College has done a good job of protecting its investment in its facilities.' He intends, he said, to maintain this standard with a support team that is energy conscious.

Sullivan

Continued from page 1

"A new kind of leadership which can bridge the gap of American people." He urged the audience to fight the conservations which is "dividing"

society.

Sullivan is the pastor of the Zion Baptist Church in Philadelphia. He is the first Black man elected to the board of the General Motors Corporation.

Gallagher

Continued from page 1

made the decision," Ames
said, "and I found, not at all to my surprise, that he is respected by the students, faculty and staff."

John King, the reporter told Gallagher, was a student's dea. Herbert Atherton was the college's dean. Where is he? "You can find me
somewhere in between King
and Atherton," he said.

He sat back, a line of tenner crossing his forehead. He rubbed his nose when asked if he is a candidate for a permanent deanship. "Ask me in the spring," he said. He smiled again.
Connecticut College's Concert and Artist Series begins its 47th year of bringing internationally known performers to Southeastern Connecticut with a program by the National Theatre of the Deaf.

Also slated for the 1986-87 season are a wide variety of performers ranging from the People's Republic of China. Pianist nesteled, opera singer and violinist, celebrated novel and adapted by Glenn Berenbeim, explores "Animal Farm." The play, based on the novel by George Orwell, features the voice of John Singer, a courageous man who cannot hear but who lives for music but tries to hear with his other senses. He is part of the PBS Television series, "The Black and White House." His Ravel's concerto for solo piano, will play March 4 at 3 p.m. Both concerts will be in the college's Dana Hall.

Trakas is the 1985 winner of the Walter W. Naumberg Vocal Composition. He will be a part of the PBS Television Recital Series this season.

Paul Neubauer was appointed Leader of the New York Philharmonic in 1984 when he was only 33 years old. This young violinist is expected to become a top member of his profession.

Season tickets to the Connecticut College Concert and Artist Series are available by contacting the college Box Office, 8 p.m. Monday through Friday 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. while the college is open on stage by Director Joann.jpg

"Sweet Honey in the Rock," the all female a cappella group, his Palmer last Saturday at 8 p.m. in one of the most invigorating concerts in recent years.

"So what?"The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fantastic animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"

The dramatic animals by Laura Phillips seem to be the sentimental favorites among those who have seen the exhibition, and rightfully so. Phillips has created a fant-
tastical animal world complete with its own landscape. She has hoped that one day her zoo, farm scene triggers an emotional response within the viewer, one is unsure as to what the significance of the works is. The meaning of her art is obscure to this viewer. Personally, this viewer looked at Cromwell's works and could only think: "What?"
Features

Sea Semester Sails In

Hold the date: Sept. 17, 1986. Chuck Holloway from the Sea Education Association is coming to Connecticut College to talk about their undergraduate semester program in marine education. Chuck will show a videotape and answer questions about S.E.A.'s undergraduate program, Sea Semester.

Sea Semester is a challenging alternative educational experience. A 17-credit program, it is designed for undergraduates from any major or discipline. The 12-week program includes academic courses at S.E.A.'s headquarters in Woods Hole, MA, covering oceanography, maritime studies, and nautical science for the first six weeks. The next six weeks are spent aboard the 125 foot schooner, the R/V Westward, sailing almost 2500 nautical miles and applying new skills and completing oceanographic research.

Sea Semester is offered six times each year, with each 12-week program open for only 24 undergraduates. The faculty/student ratio is 1:3 and students come from over 135 colleges and universities throughout the country. Financial aid is available.

Don’t miss this chance to attend S.E.A.’s presentation and learn more about this exciting alternative in marine education.

Environment in Our Community

by W.A. Nisling
Special to the College Voice

As a reminder to all, especially our new freshmen and faculty, I would like to introduce our campus-wide environmental efforts that have been going on for more than a decade.

Recycling of paper, glass and cardboard is a major way of reducing the tonnage of material that must now be sent out of town since sanitary landfills in this area are filled. Shipping trash is costly; therefore the more we recycle the better. Save your scrap paper. Paper collection containers are available in dorms. You can also bring your paper and non-returnable glass bottles directly to the dumpsters in the south parking lot. Recycle returnable soda containers, especially aluminum. In every Faculty and Admin. office an effort is being made to provide separate containers for paper and plastic. New faculty members can ask their custodians for these containers. Our custodians are doing a great job separating paper from trash as they clean our offices. In 1983-84 we recycled 110 tons of paper, 57 tons of glass and 47 tons of cardboard—total 184 tons.

As winter approaches we shall also practice Energy Conservation. Other facets of our program include food conservation which means that students take only that food which they plan to eat. Use water conservatively. Keep the volume down on Hi-Fi’s; avoid noise pollution and help keep our campus beautiful. Don’t litter.

For a complete listing of our goals stop by the Botany/Human Ecology Office, New London 203, or request via Box 1511. A flyer is available.

The College Voice Publishing Group
Proudly Presents

NOTHING’S SACRED

Connecticut’s Magazine of Political Satire and Commentary

We Invite You to Apply for the Following Editorial Positions:

- Executive Editor
- Campus Editor
- National Editor
- International Editor
- Advertising Editor
- Graphics Editor
- Production Editor
- Operations Editor

(Associate Editors shall be chosen from the applicant pool)

Applications, which are available at the Voice office in Cro, are due no later than Tuesday, September 23 at 5:00 p.m.
Every week the Voice will strive to bring you the most comprehensive sports coverage possible. Through the use of insightful articles, columns, and other features the Sports Department will bring you the best and worst of Conn sports. At the same time, the news Athlete of the Week section will highlight Conn's most accomplished athletes.

We will begin full Voice coverage next week as the Fall season begins.