Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.conncoll.edu/ccnews_2000_2001

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.conncoll.edu/ccnews_2000_2001/17

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the Student Newspapers at Digital Commons @ Connecticut College. It has been accepted for inclusion in 2000-2001 by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Connecticut College. For more information, please contact bpancier@conncoll.edu.
The views expressed in this paper are solely those of the author.
Conn Hosts Community Development Summit

B. COWARD

Conn College hosted a "Leadership in Community Development" student conference in April 2000 bringing together college students from across the region to discuss community redevelopment. The summit included a series of panel discussions, workshops, and interactive sessions that were participating in the region's renaissance. Institutions taking part in the summit included the University of Connecticut, the University of Hartford, Trinity College, SCSU, UConn, the University of Rhode Island, the University of Connecticut at Storrs, and the University of Rhode Island at Providence.

President of Connecticut College Chris Gaudiani '86 opened with a brief history of the event and welcomed the attendees. "The College has a long history of investment in community development for the past twenty years," she said. "Why would the trustees lend money to back a loan? What is the motivation?" Because it's the right thing to do.

Gaudiani then moved on to discussing the role of Claire and the College as an institution in community redevelopment. "This, of course, is one part of the leadership of Claire and the College," she said. "But it's also important to recognize the leadership of other people in the community."

Finally, Gaudiani thanked the students for their participation and expressed her hope that they would continue to be leaders in community development. "We want to see you all continue to be leaders in community development," she said. "And we want to see you all be part of the College as well."
Save Fort Trumbull or Save New London: It's Your Choice

The homes in the Fort Trumbull area are not worth saving. They have been remodeled, renovated, or torn down. Of the 170 properties, over half are vacant or occupied by single families. There are only four owner occupant. It would be a tragedy if the historic buildings were torn down and replaced with commercial properties. In her letter to The Voice (issue 3, p. 2), Sarah Hughes '02, of the Save Fort Trumbull Neighborhood is wrong when she writes that Revitalizing New London, the program to save Fort Trumbull, is not only a great idea that has never been brought to full fruition. It is an impressive enough itinerary capable of making New London have a face New London. In their own way, each will serve the history, the historical value are not more valuable than the health and education of those children or the job security of their parents. The State Park, the Pfizer Complex, the proposed hotel and conference center and the Coast Guard Museum are all necessary to add value to this city unique.

When compared with programs offered by our peer institutions, the Conn College experience as is has so often been described, is a message. We'll either print your complaint or look into your problem ourselves. If you wish to preserve is a city riddled with unemployment, we'll fight the opponents of the Municipal Development Plan. If you wish to preserve is a city that is pressuring is a realization that gets lost in all the hype around with drums screaming about a lack of education when the senior administrators were just, literally, pained, when I ask "would you take five seconds out of your day to send a message of hope to a student?"

Now all of a sudden, we are all activists. In a sense, I assert that it is a tragedy if the college continues its commitment to social justice. They have negotiated with those who press the opponents of the Municipal Development Plan. If you want social justice, get behind the NLDC. If you want to preserve is a city that is pressuring is a realization that gets lost in all the hype around with drums screaming about a lack of education when the senior administrators were just, literally, pained, when I ask "would you take five seconds out of your day to send a message of hope to a student?"

sweating the tools of shared governance? If you have not even attempted to utilize the tools of shared governance when you have not even attempted to utilize the system that the administration has made abundantly clear, the college continues to press the opponents of the Municipal Development Plan.

The Voice would be a tragedy if the college continues its commitment to social justice. They have negotiated with those who press the opponents of the Municipal Development Plan. But will stay within its budget and will return to offer-...
Sometimes Even Our Editorialists Can Be Wrong

Tim Stevens

Complaint of the Week

Sometimes even the esteemed staff of The Voice disagrees with our views. A recent editorial on Friday, September 29, 2000, by Brad Kreit, "The Voice," was a stinging criticism of a recent editorial I wrote. The concern of any self-respecting newspaper, particularly one that covered the same story as a front-page article. From what I have been told, the concern was negligible.

Brad Kreit

The Voice

To this I simply respond; too bad. The public relations department of the Voice is valid, regardless of if I feel that the rally/protest is valid, or not. I have been privy to good arguments for both sides. I was under the impression that the government to explain itself. Obviously, that is a legitimate question as to whether or not the government is supposed to be responsible for the frightful and the fear that women would choose most attractive candidate. Except maybe listening to people as individuals, listening to their thought processes will be affected in different ways. Not to mention that by the time we hear the government's response, it is already too late.

ASSIGNMENT

On September 29, 2000, the Voice, a college newspaper, reported on an event that was controversial. The event was a rally/protest that took place on campus. The Voice reported on the rally/protest and provided a perspective on the event. The article includes a response from the editor of the Voice, Brad Kreit, who disputes the validity of the rally/protest. The author of the article, Tim Stevens, responds to Brad Kreit's criticism, arguing that the government needs to explain itself and that the public needs to be educated about the issues at hand.

The following is the text of the article:

"Sometimes Even Our Editorialists Can Be Wrong"

Tim Stevens

Complaint of the Week

Sometimes even the esteemed staff of The Voice disagrees with our views. A recent editorial on Friday, September 29, 2000, by Brad Kreit, "The Voice," was a stinging criticism of a recent editorial I wrote. The concern of any self-respecting newspaper, particularly one that covered the same story as a front-page article. From what I have been told, the concern was negligible.

Brad Kreit

The Voice

To this I simply respond; too bad. The public relations department of the Voice is valid, regardless of if I feel that the rally/protest is valid, or not. I have been privy to good arguments for both sides. I was under the impression that the government to explain itself. Obviously, that is a legitimate question as to whether or not the government is supposed to be responsible for the frightful and the fear that women would choose most attractive candidate. Except maybe listening to people as individuals, listening to their thought processes will be affected in different ways. Not to mention that by the time we hear the government's response, it is already too late.

ASSIGNMENT

On September 29, 2000, the Voice, a college newspaper, reported on an event that was controversial. The event was a rally/protest that took place on campus. The Voice reported on the rally/protest and provided a perspective on the event. The article includes a response from the editor of the Voice, Brad Kreit, who disputes the validity of the rally/protest. The author of the article, Tim Stevens, responds to Brad Kreit's criticism, arguing that the government needs to explain itself and that the public needs to be educated about the issues at hand.
Fighting Gravity Changes its音位 in the mood of the recorded show, which is a testament to the band's musicianship and the power of music to evoke emotions.

The song "No One" is a popular track off their debut album, "The College Voice." It's a powerful reminder of the importance of pursuing one's dreams and the challenges that come with it.

"No One" is a song about the struggle to find one's place in the world. It's a call to action, a reminder that we're all in this together, and that we can overcome our fears and insecurities if we just believe in ourselves and each other.

The song features a blend of acoustic and electric guitar, with a driving bass line and a driving drumbeat that keeps the listener engaged. The vocals are powerful and emotive, perfectly capturing the message of the song.

Overall, "No One" is a fantastic track that resonates with anyone who's ever felt alone or isolated. It's a song that encourages us to keep fighting for our dreams, even when the odds seem stacked against us.

The message of "No One" is one that we can all relate to, and the song's universal appeal makes it a timeless classic. Whether you're struggling with your own personal demons or simply looking for a way to connect with others, "No One" is a song that will speak to your heart.

So take a listen and let the music inspire you to keep fighting for your dreams, no matter how big or small they may be. After all, you're not alone - there's strength in numbers, and together we can make a difference.

The College Voice, Volume 40, Issue 4, Friday, September 29, 2000

PAGE 4

Machinal Ready to Break Out of the Box

By KEVIN KAMINSKI

After twelve years of touring and releasing six albums, the Richmond-based rock band Fighting Gravity, finally released a live album titled "Almost Famous." The album captures the energy and excitement of the band's concerts and showcases their musical talent.

While the album is a testament to the band's musical prowess, it also serves as a reflection of their personal growth and development as musicians.

The album features a mix of songs from their past albums as well as some newly recorded material. The band's signature blend of indie rock, alternative, and pop music is on full display, with each song bringing something new to the table.

"Almost Famous" is not just a live album; it's a celebration of the band's journey and a tribute to their fans who have been with them since the beginning.

The album's release was met with overwhelming support from the band's loyal fan base, who were excited to hear the new material and relive their favorite moments from past concerts.

In addition to the live performances, the album includes interviews with the band members, providing insight into their creative process and personal stories.

"Almost Famous" is a testament to Fighting Gravity's musical talent and their ability to connect with their fans on a deep level. It's a must-listen for anyone who appreciates high-energy, well-crafted rock music.
Rock the Boat saved by the “Better” Band

By MARGARET WEISBERG

The 2000 Navy Concert Tour rolled into Groton Connecticut on Saturday, September 23rd, with Modern Rock WCOL 107.7FM, bringing with it a variety of bands ranging from the up and coming and industry veterans. A stage was erected on the grounds of the US submarine base and the goal was for the concert on this day to be the largest crowd to ever come to Groton. The concert on this day was to be a huge success. The band's superior stage presence, their music and the joy the view, take your meal out onto homemade potato chips, and fresh can pick up your chowder, salad and soup. And seemingly satisfied diners, was so difficult to choose what I The prices are what one could expect. For example, a delicious but hearty lobster roll costs about $14. On the other hand, a main course meal costs as much as $20. Most side dishes are less than $2. When I arrived at Abbott's for our meal, I was greeted by friendly staff. As I was seen to the window, I was seated at a table. The waiter was quick to bring me my order. The food was excellent, and the service was outstanding. I highly recommend Abbott's Lobster to anyone looking for great seafood in a beautiful setting.

The Watcher: worth a Second Glance

By MORA BRICKICH & NANCY DINHORNE

In the movie The Watcher, star Michael Keaton, and film director, Martin Trombey, as菜 polis (Trombey) and serial killer, Martin Trombey, play an extended game of cat and mouse. Set in modern Chicago, Spider-Spader receives pictures in the mail of his daughter, who has been kidnapped. The serial killer, Spider-Spader, receives pictures in the mail of his daughter, who has been kidnapped. The serial killer, Spider-Spader, is a twisted character but his acting is less than stellar. It consists of giving the character sympathy and delivering it with a twisted look. The Watcher is a good choice for a Coin student looking for a job with a twist on it. It has a relaxing and fans an atmosphere, great food and service. There is a small yet successful seafood in a beautiful setting.

Talented Local Musicians Light Up Secret Theatre with Show

By IAN ABRAMS

The Swedish Program

Study abroad in Stockholm, Sweden with The Swedish Program at Stockholm University. The program offers a unique opportunity to study in the heart of Sweden, where you will have the chance to experience the culture and lifestyle of a modern Scandinavian country. The program includes coursework in a variety of subjects, as well as the opportunity to participate in internships and field trips. For more information, please contact the Swedish Program office at Stockholm University. The program offers a unique opportunity to study in the heart of Sweden, where you will have the chance to experience the culture and lifestyle of a modern Scandinavian country. The program includes coursework in a variety of subjects, as well as the opportunity to participate in internships and field trips. For more information, please contact the Swedish Program office at Stockholm University.
Connecticut College's New College Bring Knowledge and Experience and Economy

RESIDENT STUDENTS EXPERIENCE REALITY OF AIDS IN KENYA

By BEN HUGHES

A 22-year-old Nigerian student, who arrived on campus at the beginning of the spring semester, has already made a significant impression on his classmates. His name is John Qian Tian, and he has recently become the latest student to take part in the College's Resident Students Program. This program is designed to bring real-world experience and knowledge to the classroom, and Qian Tian is no exception.

Qian Tian, who is majoring in Economics and Political Science, arrived on campus last fall from the University of Nairobi, Kenya. He is part of a group of students who have been brought to Connecticut College as part of an agreement between the two institutions. Qian Tian was selected for the program based on his academic achievements, extracurricular activities, and personal qualities.

Qian Tian's experience in Kenya has been both challenging and rewarding. He has learned about the culture and language of Kenya, and he has also had the opportunity to interact with students and faculty from the University of Nairobi. He has also had the opportunity to visit some of the most important cities in Kenya, such as Nairobi and Mombasa.

Qian Tian's experience has taught him a lot about the importance of education and the need for change in Africa. He has also learned about the challenges faced by young people in Kenya, and he has been able to see the impact that education can have on their lives.

Qian Tian is grateful for the opportunity to study at Connecticut College, and he is looking forward to sharing his experiences with his classmates. He is also looking forward to continuing his education at the University of Nairobi, where he plans to pursue a career in international development.

Qian Tian's experience is just one example of the many ways in which Connecticut College is bringing real-world experience and knowledge to the classroom. The College is committed to providing its students with a truly global education, and it is achieving this through partnerships with institutions around the world.

Sata Shiftera Shift to Spring Semester

Fort Trumbull Forum

The next forum in the series will be held on April 5th, at 7:00 pm in the student center. The topic of the forum will be "The Future of Energy," and it will feature a panel of experts from the field of energy policy and sustainability.

The forum will be moderated by Dr. Jennifer Wang, the College's director of sustainability. The panelists will include Dr. Michael Schlesinger, a professor of economics at Yale University, and Dr. Jane Lubchenco, the former administrator of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Dr. Wang said, "We are pleased to have these experts join us for our next forum. They will provide valuable insights on the future of energy, and we hope to see many of you there.

Community Development Summit

The Community Development Summit is scheduled for May 1st, at 9:00 am in the student center. The summit will feature a keynote address by Dr. Jane Lubchenco, as well as discussions on a variety of topics related to community development.

Dr. Lubchenco said, "We are excited to host this summit, and we hope to see many of you there. It will be a great opportunity to learn about the latest developments in community development, and to network with others in the field.

Write for The Voice

Call x2188

What is the main idea of the article about Connecticut College's Resident Students Program?

The main idea of the article about Connecticut College's Resident Students Program is that international students, such as John Qian Tian, bring real-world experience and knowledge to the classroom. Qian Tian, a Nigerian student from the University of Nairobi, has already made a significant impression on his classmates and has learned about the culture and language of Kenya. Qian Tian's experience highlights the importance of education and the challenges faced by young people in Kenya.

What is the significance of the Community Development Summit?

The Community Development Summit is significant because it provides an opportunity to learn about the latest developments in community development and to network with others in the field. Dr. Jane Lubchenco, a former administrator of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, will deliver the keynote address. The summit will cover a variety of topics related to community development, including sustainable energy policy and sustainability.
IM Update

Yay!!! The word "love" has never been in the vocabulary of the members of the Rough Riders. But now, on this day, the Riders have assured well over 20 wins on the season. We had a rough, but green old game. This weekend proved to be very different.

Led by the balanced attack of Brian and Kurt "the Mad" String Cheese, the team with "No Po" defense with his 4.20/40 speed, while Dave McElroy penetrated the RR defense with his 4.20/40 speed. In the other game, the RP All-Stars staked claim at numero uno by silencing String Cheese 2-0.

Garrett "the Mad" String Cheese staked claim on his second ETO as a rider and a ETO continue to see improved defense. Unfortunately for Blad, Cap's credit, he officially has the potential "myth" silenced their critics with much different.

Nancy's Welcomes all Connecticut College Students. We invite you to visit Stephen Nichols for a N.Y. Experience.

Nancy's Welcomes all Connecticut College Students. We invite you to visit Stephen Nichols for a N.Y. Experience.
Field Hockey Suffers First Major Setback of 2000

BY ADAM ROGOWIN

Women's field hockey suffered on their first loss of the season this past weekend, falling to Wesleyan (Conn.) in their first meeting since last season's NCAA tournament. A 1-0 loss to what is currently ranked 18th nationally was expected to end a perfect season and a 13-game winning streak, but the Camels' defense was unable to prevent Wesleyan from scoring three times. Wesleyan made good use of four corner opportunities to take advantage of Conn's mistakes and put the game out of reach.

“We were uncharacteristically careless at the back of the net,” said senior forward Emily Bowers. “The game was very, very close going into halftime, but we just weren’t able to convert our chances.”

Conn managed to pressure Wesleyan throughout the game, but was unable to keep the ball from crossing the line. The Camels' defense was able to hold Connecticut to 17 shots, but 10 of those were on target. Wesleyan's goalie, a junior from Philadelphia, Pa., made 14 saves to keep Conn from scoring and earn the win.

The loss was a重大 setback for Conn's team, which had gone 9-0 in its first nine games of the season. The Camels had been hoping to make a statement in the NESCAC this year, but the loss to Wesleyan has put them at 2-1 in conference play. Conn is now 5-1 overall, while Wesleyan improves to 8-2-1.

Conn's next game will be against Middlebury on Sept. 25, and the team is looking to bounce back from the loss to Wesleyan. The Camels know that they need to play better defensively in order to have a chance against the Panthers, who are currently ranked 6th in the nation.

In other NESCAC news, Colby College women's field hockey continued their strong play with a 3-1 win over Tufts University on Sept. 23. The Camels will now turn their attention to Wesleyan on Sept. 26, looking to get back on track against a tough opponent.