Summer Study Report creates mixed feelings

by Carol Bowman

Now that the details of the Summer Study Commission have been revealed, the campus community is reacting with mixed feelings as was demonstrated this past Tuesday at the Open All College meeting.

The thirteen member commission tackled the task of drawing up a long range plan concerning academic staffing. In more precise terms they evaluated the present tenure situation and suggested steps that could be taken to alleviate the financial crisis that Connecticut College faces.

Briefly the highlights of the Study include: A 3 per cent annual increase of the salaries and wages of the staff. A gradual reduction of the equitement, so far the average full time faculty salaries over a five year period, a reaffirmation of the existing tenure policy, with the minor modification of a ratio of tenured positions to the size of the department, and a change from credit to non-credit courses in the physical education department. Bear in mind that these are only suggestions proposed by his committee not the final word.

As a part of the study, a five year budget forecast was formulated using '73-'74 as the base period. The new recommendations incorporated by the Committee into the budget forecast are done with the intention that further drainage into the financial reserves will be avoided. It is obvious that the College cannot proceed on a present path without literally going into bankruptcy within the next ten years.

At the meeting on Tuesday both faculty members had a chance to air their views on the suggestions of the Committee. Professor Murstein of the Psychology department stated that he was both impressed and distressed with the report and that he was concerned that no plan was made for reorganizing for the future.

Chairman of the Commission, Mr. Schlesinger, replied that their study only dealt with a five year plan and that no steps were taken to look any further into the future.

Mr. Zimmermann of the Physical Education department cited the fact that enrollment of that department had increased while in eight others it had decreased. Also objecting the fact that two members of the Physical Education department were cut in comparison to other positions distributed over 25 other departments. Mr. Zimmermann and several students questioned the recommendation of the commission in the name of Intramural sports.

Commission member, Dean Jordan defended the recommendations, explaining that since the Physical Education department doesn't offer a major, that it would be to the benefit of the department to use their funds for increased intramural activities.

Discussion then followed concerning the policy of tenure. Student member, Mary Van Bourgundien, commented that the tenure system per se does not breed stagnant professors. Opposing views aired stated that tenure does not encourage flexibility and questioned what happens when too many professors are on tenure in the same department. Further study (Continued on Page 6)

Israel rally draws strong support

by Sherry L. Albert

A public rally to support Israel drew nearly five hundred people to the Beth El Synagogue in New London Tuesday night. The Jewish Community Council of Greater New London organized the rally when war broke out in the Middle East last Saturday. Several students and faculty from Connecticut College also attended.

The Rabbi of the Conservative, Orthodox and Reform temples, respectively, in the New London area each addressed the audience. Rabbi Aaron Pearlsstein of Congregation Beth El stated, "six years ago we felt the exhilaration of swift victory; tonight we feel the sadness of a prolonged victory."

Recalling the lesson of the Exodus, he stressed the importance of communal responsibility toward the free state of Israel. "Israel today is diverse (Continued on Page 6)

No liquor for Cro Bar

by Lynn Cole

The long anticipated bar will be installed by next semester in the Student Lounge-AA Room in the Crozier-Williams Committee Annex, and Crozier-Williams Committee Announced last week.

All legalities have been cleared up, said the Crozier-Williams Committee Co-Chairperson. A "liquor license to sell beer has been granted and a permittee has been hired."

Recommendations for structural changes of the area were recently submitted to the Administration by the Cro Committee. "We are ready to move," College Treasurer Leroy Knight said. "In fact we have been pushing the committee for its recommendations."

The newly selected students were then introduced and entertained questions from Student Assembly. One member to the new Committee, Lisa Goldstein, was asked what type of President she was looking for. She responded that she felt a "personable President" was needed.

A Student Assembly member pointed out that the new President should be an economist to avoid a repeat of last year's financial problems. Lisa then supplements her previous responses by saying that the new President should be a "personable economist."

The newly selected students were then introduced and entertained questions from Student Assembly. One member to the new Committee, Lisa Goldstein, was asked what type of President she was looking for. She responded that she felt a "personable President" was needed.

A Student Assembly member pointed out that the new President should be an economist to avoid a repeat of last year's financial problems. Lisa then supplements her previous responses by saying that the new President should be a "personable economist."

Committee meetings will begin either this weekend or early next week.

Building plans will be drawn up in the next two weeks and construction will then start immediately, according to Knight. "We cannot predict how long the Liquor Commission will take to approve the plans but we are financing regulations closely."

The recommendations for structural changes made by the Cro Committee include the following:

Removal of the wall between the AA Room and the Student Lounge.

Construction of a bar at the north end of the enlarged room.

Lowering of the ceiling at the entry way - now the student lounge entrance.

Paneling of all walls with simulated barwood.

Tiling of floor with standard (Continued on Page 5)

Agnew resigns

By Richard Pyle

WASHINGTON (AP) - Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resigned from office Wednesday and pleaded no contest to a federal income tax evasion charge.

A judge sentenced him to a $10,000 fine and three years probation.

The thunderbolt disclosure of the resignation, the second by a vice president in U.S. history, was almost calmly revealed by a staff secretary here as Agnew himself was making a surprise appearance in federal court in Baltimore.

Reading from a paper held in trembling hands, the 50-year-old vice president told A.S. District Judge Walter E. Hoffman that his decision to quit and plead no contest to the felony charge "rests on my firm belief that the public interest requires swift disposal of the problem which is facing me."
General election demanded

In this space two weeks ago, Pundit vehemently opposed the process employed in selecting the student representatives to the committee to select a new President of the College. Our opposition was reinforced by Student Assembly which also deplored the proposed manner of selection. However, despotism maintained the upper hand and Thursday's revision of the original plan was instituted. Under this revision, House Presidents were asked to encourage dorm members to submit resumes to the Executive Committee.

This minimal change did not diminish the elitist process of selection but rather enhanced it. The few house presidents who publicized the selection did so on Thursday. Of the original number of people attracted on a small number of people, 14 out of 21 dorms. The people who were attracted were ones previously involved in government or close friends of those who had prior knowledge of the selection. Thus, the selection of candidates was confined to those already enthewed in the web of elitist rule.

We believe that a General Election should have been employed in electing members to this committee. A General Election would have entailed a lengthy time for announced sign-up of interested students, submission of platforms to be printed in this newspaper, and speeches followed by questions.

It is blatantly obvious from past elections that xapathy in politics is one of Connecticut College's forties. As you recall, there were but two people running for the highest student government office last spring.

And there have been countless elections which have been invalidated due to lack of a quorum. And, yes, how many times has abstentions won over candidates in a race? It seems that very few would sign up. Besides, if five hundred people did sign up, would this be a threat to democratic stability? Not really. Rather, we feel it would show true interest in school politics in which the best candidates would have to prove him or herself.

The next major opposition to a General Election was the time factor. Had the General Election idea been adopted earlier, the election could have been held today with the Judiciary Board Elections. Or it could have been held last week with the Freshman Class Elections. Or if held next week. At most, one meeting would be missed by the student members. We feel that it would be most beneficial for students to be absent from one meeting and be the true representatives of the student body than to have rubber stamp approved puppets occupying space on time.

Perhaps the greatest affront to democracy was Ms. Lesser's elitist assertion that a General Election might not provide us with the most qualified people, a strange statement from one who owes her position and power to that electorate. We are shocked to discover that our President has so little faith in the judgment capabilities of the students who elected her.

It is necessary to point out at this time that we are not in the least opposed to the people selected to sit on the committee. They may very well be the most qualified students. What we are contesting is the manner in which they were selected.

It is now apparent that all major obstacles to a General Elections are nothing more than transparent facades. We reiterate that a General Election, well publicized, would enable all students to participate and allow for dialogue between candidates and the voters.

WE BELIEVE THAT THE MAGNITUDE OF THIS COMMITTEE'S POWER IS IMMEASURABLE. WE THEREFORE DEMAND A PROPER GENERAL ELECTION TO INSURE TRUE DEMOCRATIC REPRESENTATION OF STUDENT INTEREST ON THIS VITAL SELECTION.

CONNECTICUT POETRY CIRCUIT

Four Connecticut student poets are chosen each year, to read their poetry on a tour of colleges in Connecticut.

Students are invited to submit up to 5 pages of original poetry to Mr. Meredith on October 19.

Dissenting view

We cannot approve the above editorial. To call now for a General Election the day before the Trustee meeting is ridiculous. True, the opening of position for the committee was not widely enough publicized to inform everyone on campus. However, those who were interested found out about the procedures. It is extremely doubtful if anyone not involved in some way in school activities would have applied.

The candidates were chosen by those elected to represent the student body. Therefore their choices are representative of the student body. Any other form of selection would have obscured the very serious issues on hand. The qualifications necessary for the job were carefully considered. There is no point in having any elected representative on the committee who the trustees do not feel is qualified and therefore will give no say to.

We feel that an effective representative is one who knows the campus and the school well enough to get the information required to represent the student body. Therefore we feel that a general election now is uncalled for.

K.D.P. and S.V.
intramural programs shows that they never listened to anybody connected with the athletic program. If they had, they would know the importance of playing intramurals as they are now less than "stressed."

Perhaps the least rational part of the short section of Conn athletics is when the Commission, in its misplaced zeal, turns its task of making staffing recommendations to suggest that academic credit be dropped for participation in gym courses. No reason is given for this. But the intent can hardly be to save money. This action’s only benefit would be to weaken the department.

This report never quite got around to talking about the jobs of the Commission members. With its administrators, math, science and government teachers, the Commission did not consider that it might be better to have smaller music or art or creative writing classes than calculus or chemistry classes. Or that we look to non-faculty like administrators for areas to fire people and save money.

All paid members of this academic community are worried about their jobs. This Commission looked out of its fear of taking the chance to fire them not only on gym teachers, but also librarians and physical plant workers. It could have found innovative and courageous ways to run a college with little money, but it bailed out and produced an anti-intellectual and cowardly document. If this college ever ceases to fire people based on lack of commitment to academics, I know of a good place to start looking.

Bernie Zeitlich
To The Editor:

Twenty-one years ago the perfect right corner-back was born to humble parents in a modest section of South Brookline. He was well-liked in school and had an active social life, but his only great talent was on the football field.

This splendid physical specimen made the Conn College all-star squad for three consecutive years: thrice he was offered and thrice he declined the Knute "D" Rockne award for perfection of play.

But the years have finally caught up with this Achilles of the Pigskin; and with little fanfare and only a trace of a tear he has announced his retirement from the sport that has earned him immortality.

He won’t complete the current season, and is therefore ineligible to receive this year’s vaunted "D" award. But we would like to propose that a special Conn. College Hall of Fame be established with the first enshrinement going to honor this legendary defensive back.

For someone modest enough to thrive feel unworthy of the "D" award, we are sure he feels we have already said far too much. But we would like to give him one last assurance:

Jon Gold, you are, and have always been, worth "D."

Respectfully,
The Harkness Flying Club Football Team

Conn can’t afford to be innovative

The Commission on Long-Range Academic Staff Planning, otherwise known as the Summer Study Committee, made their proposals for the College based on the premise that Conn does not have much money with which to expand or experiment, but merely enough to exist.

This idea depresses a lot of people. But it’s not just an idea, but fact. What is disturbing is not that the Commission attempted to save money, but the areas in which they did so.

The Physical Education department received the brunt of the attack. While several departments’ enrollments have decreased, Phys. Ed.’s have increased. Yet, the Commission recommended a decrease in faculty in this department and an end to credit for courses.

Members of the Commission argued that since Physical Education was not an academic pursuit, that here was a good place to cut back. That same rationale may be used against Dance, Applied Music, Studio Art, Theatre, and Creative Writing courses offered at Conn. This is a foolish argument.

The Commission suggested reduction in part-time faculty. Part-time faculty play an important role in filling voids and alleviating heavy loads on full-time professors. What is more important is that there are many people who, because of family responsibility, cannot work full-time. These people are deprived of making their contribution to Conn and the community will suffer if there is a cutback in part-time faculty.

An early retirement program is encouraged by the Commission. The College will once again be deprived of many valuable faculty now teaching or who will soon be over 60 because it is cheaper to hire someone fresh out of college than to retain some of the older professors.

The Commission does suggest the hiring of student help to replace departing employees of Physical Plant, custodial and kitchen services. But PUNDIT does question how many workers are really needed in the kitchen at mealtimes.

Surely some of the maids who spend their afternoons watching television in the dorms could be put to better use.

In the future the Commission should attempt to finish their report sooner and present it to the college community in the first weeks of school as a preliminary report, subject to change as a result of criticisms from the community.

The Commission claims that it looked into just about every nook and cranny to find a place to cut costs and still keep the school running up to standards. But, even so, they found it necessary to cut back on faculty, departments, and upkeep.

Many people were disappointed that nothing new had been put forth by the Commission, whose concensus it was that Conn could not afford to be innovative. The trouble is we don’t have enough money. Perhaps we should print our own money, instead of wasting paper and ink on a Summer Study Report.

Due to a time factor this editorial could not be seen by the entire editorial board. Therefore, it does not necessarily reflect the opinion of the board.

Dissolution of the dictatorship!!!

We, the undersigned find the manner in which students were elected to serve on the committee to select a new President of the College to be totally inconsistent with any democratic practice and indicative of a government of the few without the consent of the many. We therefore call for a general election with speeches, platforms in the PUNDIT, and proper publicity for said Election. We further seek to ensure that such elitist tactics will never again be assumed by the governing student organ of Connecticut College.

Return all completed petitions to Box 1351.
Log official & unofficial, experimentation & comedy

By Bill Levin

This week's "security log" will be devoted to serious security matters here on the Conn. campus, with the information containing a severance of sources, but the second part will constitute a humorous attempt on the part of the "Wild Wretches" to document chronic events (basically pranks) which have occurred during the past week.

Most of such information will be entirely unofficial and even gleaned from informal conversation.

The word is out, Mr. O'Grady (Chief of Campus Security) revealed that two doors of the Harris dining room were seriously damaged one night during the week. The doors, which are located in an area from the corridor connecting the two wings of the complex, were apparently split from the top of the doors down to the hinges by which locks the doors, with the result that the school must now pay for repairs.

Another perhaps more serious incident occurred when a girl, lying on the floor had her arm seriously injured. She was immediately transported to the hospital (during the daytime, no less), was molested by a presently unidentified man. The man in question (her face, of course, the girl was lying, passing only long enough to "make a grab" at certain work, as for purposes which are quite delicately left unspecified. Fortunately, the "attack" was no more than a half hour in duration, and the point is that more serious crimes could conceivably be committed in the future. Be forewarned: the advice of the Chief of Security should be strictly followed in this matter.

South Campus witnessed a severe destruction of school property this week, but let it be made clear that one of the reasons for this damage is taken from unofficial sources and is "secret." Briefly, it appears that one of the aluminum light-posts in front of the dormitory was cut in two and deposited in the second-floor window of Jane Addams. The post, approximately sixteen feet in length, was cut, pushed over and then snapped close to the base. One egregious accusation, though not confirmed, has placed the cost of replacing the lightpost at almost $400. This destruction is not a laughable matter, ladies and gentlemen. The Judiciary Board is currently handling the situation, with appropriate action at hand.

And now for the unofficial version of "what really happened" regarding the prank action focused on the Harris Refractory, which was the scene of various gang wars.

It was reported when a group of (sic) believed to be residents of Wright House, and whom we will call the "Wright Wretches", or "the Wright Bowdies", or "if you prefer - Judas Schwartz's label, "Those Wheezing Wright Wretches") were seen wandering around late last night in what has been described as "a state of incandescence.

In one of their more rational moments they apparently decided that the Harris dining room was upside-down and set about rectifying this situation by turning all the tables in Harris upsidedown or right-side-up, according to the flowers, and salt-and-pepper shakers on top of the tables, which they placed with their "tops" on the floor.

However, the real fun began when a spy from J.A. saw the evil pranksters at work and went back to J.A., marshaled his forces, and returned to the Harris dining room with a rival prankster gang, which could be called (for purposes of identification) "the Jane Adams Avengers" or "Hamel's Camels" or even "Herbie's Hellcats," or any other name.

The members of this new gang, who reportedly had studied all night, immediately realized that they were either all standing on their heads or the dining-room was upside-down or someone had greatly increased the percentage of alcohol in the glasses of milk which they were standing on.

Hence they began to turn all the tables right-side-up again and put the flowers and salt-and-pepper shakers back on top of the tables, which they placed with their "tops" on the floor.

All of this really did occur but between the hours of 2 a.m. and 4 a.m., so that when the masses of unknowing students filtered down to breakfast the next morning, one of the six people realized that they were eating on upside-down-right-side-up tables.

Well, "Hamel's Camels" may have won the battle, but they didn't have the war, according to a spokesman for the "Wright Wretches," who promies retaliation next week, unless it rains.

"The Fantastic-Food-Fight" began this week when "Bootleg Bill" Gregory, apparently mistook the former for a notorious "Wild Bill" for an ashtray and, with a big smile, plunged his cigarette into the coffee. At the end of the fight, the table at which they were sitting now held 24 empty water glasses, 8 plates of slightly-squashed peas, 3 packs of cigarettes dipped in Russian dressing, and various other items.

"Bootleg Bill" and "Wild Bill" were last seen being chased around Crosier Williams by the head chef of Harris dining room, who had an eager expression on his face and a butcher's knife in his left hand.

Well, the above events are just a sample of "what really happened" here on the Conn. campus this week, but next week promises to be even better. Anyone who knows of events which are worthy of attention should feel free to bring them to the newspaper, by either calling 443-6374 or writing to Pundt, Box 1351, Care of Bill Levin and until then, that's all folks (sic).

The Southern duck wants to lie down!

by Kathv Mcglynn

Last Friday afternoon, former ABC correspondent, Don Luce, who sponsored the following crowd in the living room of the college house.

The Government and the Saigon judiciary Board are currently co-sponsored the visit of this man who discovered the tiger cages of Vietnam.

Luce indicated that he was first made aware of the said "tiger cages" of South Vietnam during his stay in Saigon in 1970 by a young man who alleged to have spent over 14 months at the island prison. Luce brought this matter to the attention of several government officials, which in turn caused his visit to go out and investigate the matter further.

Luce was accompanied by a couple of Congressmen, then went to Poulo Condor and there to their horror discovered that the "tiger cages" did indeed exist. Within those "pits," Luce saw the cramped and derelict bodies of many Vietnamese refugees, among whom were people who picked up their atrophied legs and shook them as though they were shaking a piece of cloth, and an old woman who was blinded by the caustic lime from the side of the cages.

Although the cause of the "tiger cages" caused quite an uproar in the United States, Luce himself feels that the Saigon prison units still exist. He further claimed that in January of 1971, the United States government awarded a contract to a United States firm to build for the South Vietnamese government 384 isolation cells, which would be 2 feet smaller than the "tiger cages.

The "tiger cages" was just one of the many incidents that Luce discovered that served to point out the failure of American foreign policy in Vietnam. He feels that only the primary reasons for our failure is our ignorance of Vietnamese culture.

To illustrate this ignorance, Luce described the visit of Robert McNamara to Saigon, at which time he addressed the Vietnamese people. For the occasion, McNamara had at his disposal the Vietnamese language, he mistakenly said, "Southern Duck wants to lie down," Luce suggested that this error on McNamara's part was symbolic of our inability to really grasp what is happening in Vietnam.

In his discussion, Luce pointed out certain domestic problems of the Saigon government. First of all, he indicated that the Saigon government was engaged in an effort to eliminate all political elements which were either Communist and non-Communist by throwing them into prisons, using torture to get confessions.

He suggested that most of the prisoners in Vietnamese prison camps are not North Vietnamese, which comprised only 10 per cent of the prison population, but rather the "neutral" elements to which the Saigon government, as Buddhist priests, and the leaders of various organizations, such as the Saigon Student Union and the University of Saigon High school unit, among others.

Luce contended that as a result of such suppressive policy of the Saigon government, other problems emerge. One consequence suggested was that many Vietnamese in the country during the war will not return now. This will have an adverse effect on the internal development of the country.

Furthermore, the NFL will never surface in such an atmosphere and thus will be forced to continue to resort to violent means to express themselves. Another factor, pointed out by Luce, was that the Saigon government refuses to allow refugees to return to their homes in the countryside. Not only does this destroy chances of building a strong, agricultural economy, but further it leaves a rather extensive mass of discontent in the cities. The vicious circle continues.

(Continued on Page 11)

ALERTING ALL CC STUDENTS

Oct. 13 is the deadline for registration for the forthcoming Municipal 9 a.m. - 8 p.m. Election, on Nov. 6, Tuesday. Phone Extension 501 for transportation to City Hall, to register.

You may register as a Democrat, Republican or unaffiliated, but you must be registered in order to vote.

REGISTER THEN VOTE DEMOCRAT

The Republican Party has been critical of the Democrats for urging YOUTH TO VOTE. They want you to be inactive. DEFEAT THEM.

Young Democrats for urging YOUTH TO VOTE. They want you to be inactive. DEFEAT THEM.

As Deputy Mayor Ruby Turner Morris in her STANDS:

Keeping Mass Transit Running. As Chairman of the New London Transit District, she has had continuous responsibility for helping those without cars get about.

Helping prevent the Razing of Famous Old Union Station, which if restored would bring about $14,200 tax revenue to the city plus remain a distinguished architectural monument.

Trying to inform and help the Elderly. As one of the organizers and a member of the New London Senior Affairs Commission, Mrs. Morris tries to defend their interests of the elderly.

Bringing Tourism to the City. Largely through her efforts, the Coast Guard Training Ship EAGLE was moored for five days last summer, and visited by thousands. Active advocate of having a submarine exhibit, a submarine museum, and a hydrofoil tourist boat and other attractions at or near City Pier.

Advocating the provision of twice-a-week garbage collection to the city.

REGISTER THEN VOTE DEMOCRAT

Lambdin, Edie Williams in number of Conn. students leaders will have to listen to our significant force for change in the country.

Saigon government was engaged in an effort to eliminate all political elements which were either Communist and non-Communist by throwing them into prisons, using torture to get confessions.

He suggested that most of the prisoners in Vietnamese prison camps are not North Vietnamese, which comprised only 10 per cent of the prison population, but rather the "neutral" elements to which the Saigon government, as Buddhist priests, and the leaders of various organizations, such as the Saigon Student Union and the University of Saigon High school unit, among others.

Luce contended that as a result of such suppressive policy of the Saigon government, other problems emerge. One consequence suggested was that many Vietnamese in the country during the war will not return now. This will have an adverse effect on the internal development of the country.

Furthermore, the NFL will never surface in such an atmosphere and thus will be forced to continue to resort to violent means to express themselves. Another factor, pointed out by Luce, was that the Saigon government refuses to allow refugees to return to their homes in the countryside. Not only does this destroy chances of building a strong, agricultural economy, but further it leaves a rather extensive mass of discontent in the cities. The vicious circle continues.

(Continued on Page 11)
Create your own major

by Car in Gordon

Students need not follow an established major, but have the opportunity of creating their own interdisciplinary major.

This has been possible for the past three or four years, but has been made easier this year by the creation of an interdisciplinary committee rather than an interdepartmental one.

What this means is that students may not have concentration of courses in one department. (Formally students have to fulfill the requirements of one major with a core of courses in one department in order to complete a in department specialization.)

The new interdisciplinary committee, chaired by Professor Minor Myers, is encouraging students to invent their own major and has made it easier for them to do so.

The committee's philosophy, as stated by Chairman Myers, is to encourage students to develop a special interest and pursue it in a

by Nia George

When asked how plans for Connecticut College's new library are progressing, President Shain reported that some new gifts for the library have recently come in. The library is, however, not completely financed yet. Shain said that the decision whether to begin construction before all funds have come in, or whether to wait until most of the costs have been financed, has not been made yet.
It is sometimes more economical to begin building before all financing is completed,
due to rising costs and interest rates.

It will be physically possible to begin construction of the new library, as of January 1, 1974,
according to President Shain, although "this is still theoretical." The final decision as to when construction may begin is up to the Trustees of the College. There is still no definite word on any projected date for a groundbreaking.

"Our aim is to build a boathouse down by the river,"
said President Shain, to queries about further building at the school, at which time he would hold our crew boats and might eventually accumulate a few pleasure boats. The prospects of Conn getting its very own boathouse are not immediately realizable, however.

Shain said that there are currently no plans to add any more dormitories, classrooms, or other facilities to the College. The only other building that will be appearing in the near future at Conn is the new Child Development wing (Pundit, September 13, 1973).

Cro Bar serves only beer, ale

(Continued from Page 1)

size brick linoleum.

- Hanging of shutters at window cases.
- Installation of beams across the room.
- Installation of recessed lighting units.

physical plant to make the necessary renovations, ac-

According to President
Shain, the house keep the faculty close to the campus, which rent is charged according the requirements

Keep America Beautiful

Punid Thursday, October 11, 1973, page five

Next time you see someone polluting,
point it out.

Don't close your eyes.
Point it out to someone who can do something about it.

by Stuart Cohen

"We maintain eighty-five housing units for faculty and staff," explains Miss Warrine E.
Eastburn, Secretary of the College and Assistant to the President. These units, says Miss Eastburn, are "owned by the college," and include thirty single houses and sixteen multiplex dwellings. She adds that forty of the units are in New London and sixteen in Waterford, and that "some of these houses...
remained on the New London City tax rolls.

According to Miss Eastburn, Connecticut College is supplying facultly housing for quite a number of years. The reasons for making faculty housing available are that it is "considered another benefit for accepting a position," and that the hospitality of the faculty close to the campus. "Housing close to the college is to be used... for student entertainment," for example, holding class there, says Miss Eastburn.

The college housing units, for which rent is charged according to size, are assigned on the basis of academic rank, and, when rank is equal, in order of the date of requests for use of quarters. "The proviso that the housing available is too large or small for the needs of a faculty member, it shall be offered to the next person in order of priority." This proviso is part of the arrangement provided by Miss Eastburn.

Once a faculty member has been assigned College-owned quarters, he may stay until he either retires or resigns from the College.

Miss Eastburn feels that the question of whether some limit on the amount of time each faculty member may occupy College-owned housing will be raised in the near future, and does not know how the question, should it come up, will be resolved.

Not all faculty members want to live in faculty-owned housing. "This is encouraged by a second mortgage for tenured faculty that the College carries."
Miss Omwake returns from abroad

by Patti Baras

Miss Eveline Omwake, Professor of Child Development, spent the second semester of the 1972-1973 academic year in Iran, in connection with a Fulbright scholarship at the University of Tehran. She returned to resume her teaching and research responsibilities at Bank Street College in New York City led to an abrupt change of plans. Miss Omwake was invited to become a consultant to a special project in the field of early childhood education. Meeting with teachers and parents also took place in this time.

Israel rally draws strong support

(Continued from Page 1) people, he has observed, is that it is a united people. It was created for the purpose of being a safe haven for Jews throughout the world and has been striving toward this goal since 1948.

There is a grave danger in thinking Israel is merely a Jewish concern, he explained. Americans must give of themselves and accept the responsibility for the Jewish people. He described the Middle East as a crisis situation, one of bold danger and opportunity, for the Arabs' ultimate goal is the annihilation and dismemberment of Israel.

Rabbi Ervin Preis of Congregation Ahavath Chesed led the audience in prayer, as a way to place the problems of the day in the context of Jewish history and prayer. Both the Prayers of Hannah, the wife of Elkanah, and Ruth, who was a Moabite, were read from the Bible. The prayer for the return of the exiles was also included.

It is obvious that the recommendations are not so strong in their effect that they may be realized. The over-all impact of the recommendations will be the effect of not only the proposed legislation, but the Trustee as well, who will be here this weekend.

If you, as a student or faculty member, have any questions about the report by all means do so. These recommendations and the conditions of the recommendations to be made in the future concerns you.

Russian grenades were used. Israel has incurred more losses from Russian missiles than any other source. Furthermore, this is a danger for the Arab nations and other Middle Eastern countries.

While she remained in England, Miss Omwake was especially interested in the Hampstead Child Therapy Clinic, a clinic which specializes in the training and teaching of blind children.

After her return, Miss Omwake spent her time in writing about her findings in Europe and in completing her plans for this year's teaching. After learning the details of Miss Omwake's leave, I asked her for some information on the new wing that is to be built in the Bank Street College. This wing is intended to provide office space, interview rooms, and small rooms with writing equipment for students to use in conjunction with individual projects. A large multi-purpose room will also be included in this wing. A more detailed informational bulletin concerning the new wing will be released in the near future.

ACROSS

1. Drinks copiously
2. Order
3. Laughs loudly
4. Suburb of Newark
5. College pounds
6. Brief and to the point
7. Place of study (college title)
8. Large headed
9. A 7-letter word (pl.)
10. Inventor of the electric light bulb

DOWN

1. Location of 1939
2. Large-tipped
3. African woman
4. Church extension
5. 5-letter word
6. Art of meddling
7. Furniture with cargo
8. Theory—Read
9. Ding Dong
10. Bible

Name/Organization P.O. Box Dorm Phone

For sale
For rent
Personal
Help wanted
Service offered

Classified ads

ANTWERP
ARMS
BOSTON
BURLINGTON
CAMBRIDGE
COLUMBUS
DENVER
DETROIT
EDINBURGH
EUGENE
FRESNO
GREAT FALLS
HARTFORD
HOLYOKE
HUNTINGTON
KANSAS CITY
KNOXVILLE
LOWELL
LONG ISLAND
MIDDLETOWN
MINNEAPOLIS
MINNEAPOLIS
MONROE
NEW YORK
OHIO
PITTSBURGH
PORTLAND
PROVIDENCE
ROCHESTER
ROCHESTER
RUTLAND
SAN FRANCISCO
SAN FRANCISCO
SALEM
SALEM
SEATTLE
ST. LOUIS
SALT LAKE CITY
SALT LAKE CITY
SOUTH BEND
SOUTH BEND
SPRINGFIELD
SPRINGFIELD
SPOKANE
SYRACUSE
TAMPA
TAMPA
TACOMA
TACOMA
TULSA
TULSA
UTICA
UTICA
VANCOUVER
VANCOUVER
VIRGINIA BEACH
VIRGINIA BEACH
WASHINGTON
WASHINGTON
WILMINGTON
WILMINGTON
WINNIPEG
WINNIPEG
YORK
YORK

Answer:

ANSWER

Classified ads

Box 1351
Connecticut College

Please print your ad clearly:

Classification:

Forsale
Forrent
Personnel
Help wanted
Service offered

Name/Organization P.O. Box Dorm Phone

Wanted: Non-smoking, responsible male to positively reinforce female who desires to stop. Send a list of qualifications to S.M.O.K.E., Box 728.

Classified ads

Forsale
Forrent
Personnel
Help wanted
Service offered
music

by Lincoln Baxter

notes

It was with great expectations that I sat myself down in Palmer Auditorium last Thursday, October 4. I was not disappointed. Both Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra performed magnificently.

Both Beethoven's "Coriolanus" and the fourth symphony were conducted without a score. Ormandy has obviously mastered the technique of conducting ahead of the orchestra so that he can show the orchestra how he wants each phrase played before it is played.

Assuming the conductor has an orchestra as competent as the Philadelphia, this technique gives him supreme control over the interpretation and performance of the music. Ormandy definitely displayed that control.

Following the intermission they played "Livre Pour Orchestre" which was probably the most controversial piece of music on the program. Lutoslawsky is an excellent composer who knows his art, as Livre Pour Orchestra and other works show. But this is probably not his best.

Tsk, tsk for T.S.

By Maxine Olderman

Question No. 1
Who is George Hellekering and what has he ever directed before or since Murder in the Cathedral?

Question No. 2
With the exception of T.S. Elliot who played the invisible 4th Tempter who were those actors — where did they come from?

Question No. 3
That music!

Opinion:
The poetry of Eliot must be read not once but often to be absorbed — the cerebral does not make for good cinema.

Opinion:
Tight-lipped dull old actors don't make good archbishops.

Opinion:
A close-up of a wave, the weaving of tapestries, a zoom-in on a cross upon the mount and the inexorable motion of a crashing wave makes for heavy-handed symbolism.

Opinion:
The internal conflict of a man about to become a martyr although intrinsically explosive is visually static.

Written in four movements this work employs "aleatoric" or chance music between movements. It is this use of aleatoric music which I don't understand. It adds nothing to the work as a whole or to any of the individual movements except maybe the last. It seemed to do nothing but fill what would normally be silence between movements.

I fear his use of this technique is fascist and hence degrading the work as a whole. The movements themselves are well written, brilliantly orchestrated, and fit together well as a unit.

Opinion:
They murdered the wrong man

(Continued on Page 8)

First Black Pres. nominee to speak

Guest speaker at the 11:00 a.m. service at Harkness Chapel this coming Sunday, October 14 will be the Reverend Channing Phillips.

His topic will be "The Politics of God," and he will be available for informal discussion after the service in the Chapel library, where an informal meal of fruit, bread, and cheese will be served.

Mr. Phillips is founder and current President of the Housing Development Corporation, a non-profit organization building and rehabilitating housing for low-income families in Washington, D.C.

Opinion:
The film itself is a hybrid — a double-headed attempt at combining the best of the drama of the stage and the scope of the screen.

Opinion:
Long verses delivered in monotone and choral odes chanted by alien townpeople are not only unsatisfying in film but are irritating.

Opinion:
The verse of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" is more adaptable to the screen than Eliot's poetry because it is fantasy — it is not steeped in tragic human conflict but is rather sheer fun.

Opinion:
Mr. Phillips, a graduate of Virginia Union University and Colgate Rochester Divinity School, is a former professor of Biblical Studies at American and Howard Universities, and served as Senior Minister of the Lincoln Memorial Temple United Church of Christ in Washington, D.C. from 1961-1970.

Other participants in the service are: Mrs. Thelma Waterman, Director of the Office of Community Affairs; Cadet 1st Class Steven Brantner, Coast Guard Academy; and Mr. David Robb, Chaplain.

Opinion:
Mr. Phillips worked with Ralph Nader on the Project for Corporate Responsibility.

Opinion:
They murdered the wrong man

(Continued on Page 8)
Summer Report—Give it a C-
by Lynn Cole

The report of the Commission on Long-Range Academic Staff Planning is wishy-washy, unremarkable, and evasive.

It shows little research and little grasp of the data the Commission did collect. The recommendations uphold a clear policy of de facto discrimination against women and the Commission has chosen to single out one department for close criticism.

Recommendations of the Commission include the following:

- Faculty size be reduced by five full time faculty equivalents.
- Part-time faculty be the target for the implementation of the reduction.
- The present tenure policy be upheld including:
  - Tenure should not be awarded to part-time faculty.
  - One Physical Education Instructor be released.
  - Physical education courses no longer be offered for credit.
  - The library staff be reduced by 5 full time equivalents.
  - Library acquisitions be limited for the next five years to the average rate of the last 3 years.

Concerning tenure, the report never defines the issues. Instead, it discusses only one alternative to tenure and excuses it on dubious grounds. Tenure is upheld as the protection of "academic freedom." While no one bothers to define academic freedom, the report would suggest that academic freedom is granted with tenure and that untenured members are without this privilege. Not so, says the Faculty Handbook. This guide book says all faculty have academic freedom in all their classes and research work at this college. If the college already grants that right, why is tenure necessary?

In recommending that part-time faculty not be eligible for tenure and other benefits and that they be the target of the faculty reduction plan, the Commission has upheld a policy of de facto sex discrimination. The Commission works on the assumption that all part-time jobs provide flexibility to meet changing enrollment patterns; in other words, that part-time jobs are "part time" in the sense of years of work.

However, there are many part-time jobs that are part-time in the sense of hours on the job; laboratory instructors for instance. Many women's groups are asking that employers make more part-time jobs available; many women have family commitments and can only work a limited number of hours. This doesn't mean that they will be any less committed or less valuable.

By singling out the Physical Education Department, the Commission has shown its lack of research and that it has acted with malice. Suggesting that all sports and recreation here is "extra-curricular" and therefore should not qualify for "credit" the Commission has struck a low blow. The Commission never makes clear whether the release of the Physical Education faculty is in addition or included in the other five.

The recommendation for limited library growth is only anti-intellectual.

The committee makes no recommendations concerning the administration staff itself.

Recommendations for the release and/or non-award of faculty is serious business. The Commission could have found other alternatives and made innovative suggestions, instead it has been content to uphold the status quo and to ignore the basic issue. The report itself lacks organization, violates basic rules of research reports, and raises more questions than it answers. Any professor would ask for a re-write.

(Continued from Page 7)

- They should have aimed for the director.
- Fact: The discussion leader was Mr. Bradford.
- Fact: The opinions are gleaned from the Coffee Spoon discussion and comments heard at the dinner table. The most perceptive ones are mine.
- Fact: Next week in this column we will nip "Tom Jones" got more laughs in the right places.

Tsk tsk for T.S.

HBD KDP

Summer Report—Give it a C-
by Lynn Cole

It's not drugs. It's not suicide. And it's not cancer. It's automobile crashes.

More American people between the ages of 15 and 25 die in automobile crashes than in any other way.

At least half of those deaths are alcohol related. And the drunk drivers who cause most of them are under 25. Sometimes, many times, they kill themselves.

One of the most dangerous things you can do is get drunk and drive home.

You can change it. You have to.

You march against the war.

STOP DRIVING DRUNK.
STOP KILLING EACH OTHER.

HOW DO YOU THINK MOST PEOPLE YOUR AGE DIE?

You fight for clean air and clean water. You eat natural foods. You practice yoga. You are so much for life. And you are so much against killing.

It would be unthinkable for you to wittingly kill another human being.

So then, why is this happening?

STOP DRIVING DRUNK.
STOP KILLING EACH OTHER.
Reballoting For Judiciary Board To Be Held Today

Liz Hufferd

The Election Board declared that a new election for Judiciary Board Officers from the classes of '77 and '78 will take place on Thursday, October 11th. The board concurred to invalidate the October 4th balloting at their meeting to tally the election that same evening.

The Class of '73 failed to submit the two-thirds quorum required by Connecticut College bylaw, Article III, Section C, rule 5. The Election Board unanimously voted to strike the 77 Judiciary Board balloting because of improper election procedures. Chairman Richard Lichtenstein explained that "lack of communication between candidates and those running the election" prompted the nullification.

Candidate for the 77 Judiciary Board position, Miss Hufferd, appealed for a new election to the Election Board at the October 4th meeting. She testified that she was "only informed of the procedure for submitting her platform to "Panduit." Consequently, her statement didn't appear with those of her competitors in the October 4th issue.

After some deliberation, the Board agreed that the election had been poorly conducted. Election plans for the 110 week prior to the elections and was therefore unaware of campaign restrictions. She had published literature before promulgating her cause. According to college bylaw, Article III, Section A, rule 47, "there shall be no campaigning for any committee position." Miss Hufferd's inspection of the rule rendered her legality as a candidate questionable.

After some deliberation, the Board agreed that the election had been poorly conducted. Election plans for the 110 week prior to the elections and was therefore unaware of campaign restrictions. She had published literature before promulgating her cause. According to college bylaw, Article III, Section A, rule 47, "there shall be no campaigning for any committee position." Miss Hufferd's inspection of the rule rendered her legality as a candidate questionable.

Freshman Class Judiciary Board candidates platforms

Ken Cremer

The Judiciary Board oversees many aspects of the College Community concerning social and academic issues. I see the Judiciary Board as a good outlet for my belief in active participation in the College Community. Members of the Judiciary Board must display a sense of justice and impartiality in order to uphold the integrity of the Honor Code. My background as president of the Current Teacher, Student Association, and advisor to the Board of Education at the High School I attended, qualifies me for an objective Board member.

Rose Ellen San Filippo

As a new member of Connecticut College, it is becoming increasingly evident to me that a college and the community must be maintained for the general welfare of a college community. It is imperative that the students be kept informed of not only the honor code, but also of their academic and social responsibilities. Failure to do so may lead to a serious violation of the honor code on the part of the students. This code must be upheld or the student may lead to suspension or expulsion from the College Community.

The significance of this status on campus is one of the duties of an impartial Judiciary Board. To impartially pass judgment on possible violations of the honor code is an aspect which I consider of great importance. If we cannot impartially pass judgment on even minor violations then the rights of both the students and the faculty will be infringed.

As a member of this Judiciary Board, I would pledge to uphold the honor code, which is vital in preserving the high social and academic standards of Connecticut College.

Pablo LaPrell

When I first arrived on the Connecticut College campus, I began to explore the different positions open to the Freshmen class in Student Government. After reading the literature and speaking with many people involved in Student Government, I decided that the Judiciary Board was the branch of government in which I could work most effectively. I talked at length with the members of the Judiciary Board and was further convinced that I wanted to serve on the Board.

Briefly, the main purpose of the Board is to protect against infractions of the academic code, such as cheating and the Honor Code. Students at Connecticut College regulate their own lives through self-discipline; the Board is responsible for upholding the honor code of our community. I would like to be a part of this by sitting on the Judiciary Board.

Nancy Rockett

Freshmen, as election day approaches for our class, a feeling of Ôfairness' can be instilled by possible aperitic attitudes toward government systems to establish an example of what we are ours through the potential of the class to identify each of us now unknown into a workable unit. Student Government, the Honor Code, a small school as ours, has a chance to prove the democratic system a success dependent on each student's decision to involve himself.

Separate from Student Government and singular to our School, we have the Judiciary Board whose power to affect your life here requires your constant acknowledgment of its importance. The Board is completely student oriented, based on the belief that academic and social grievances can be most responsibly and effectively handled by the perception of fellow students. Possibly in the future, the Board is the last bastion of insensitiveness and peer judgment may abolish the need for the Board.

As one who has not seen the causes for or effect of the Board, I hope to feel the reality of respect and seriousness that the returning Community has impressed and the importance the Board holds. I must adhere to those terms. The Board trusts with confidentiality any approach made by other personnel or a student when the student believes that honor in academics has not been upheld. In the future, in the form of a social justice society, an allowance must be made for deviation from a public performance of the honor code. As a result of a proposal I have made in the past, I feel that the Student Board agreed that the election process is being funded by the various student organizations and that the administration is involved in the decision-making process.

Visgilio joins faculty

Assistant Professor of Economics, William R. Visgilio, has attended Providence College where he received a degree in Industrial Economics. Prior to joining the faculty as an instructor, Mr. Visgilio taught at the University of Rhode Island. He is currently an Associate Professor of Economics. His teaching interests include: Student Council President; President of my Junior class; however, the Board views the dissemination of its power as one of the reasons for the poor run election this year.

There is a proposal currently before the Community Council to make all elections the responsibility of the Election Board. Mr. Visgilio says that he "wishes the passage of this proposal will eliminate this type of confusion in the future."
Campus column
Recent fire threats
By Bill Levin

Since the beginning of the current academic semester, CoM. students have been dealing with a noticeable increase in the number of "almost big" fires. Concurrently, an increasing number of pranks (including false alarms and "fire drills" or "attacks") are contributing to the general confusion concerning fire. As students, awakened at some ungodly hour of the night, are inclined to believe that the clanging fire bell is just the result of someone pulling the fire alarm in an attempt to create a little excitement. In addition, students do not seem to be adequately prepared for coping with a fire which should prove to be a real threat. Given these conditions, it is very conceivable that the next fire may produce extremely serious consequences, that is, severe property damages and human injuries. It would seem vital that measures be taken to prevent (or at least reduce) the danger of a fire, the one for which no one is really prepared and which we have had the extreme fortune to thus far escape: the fire which will produce far more undesirable consequences than a brief paragraph or so in the Security Log.

Lest anyone should doubt that a big fire could just be around the corner, consider the case of those minor fires which have recently occurred and studied some of the dangerous conditions which exist on campus. To the best of my knowledge, a few small fires have been reported in rooms inhabited with various bulbs in dormitories. In one incident, a small fire started when a "hot" light bulb fell into a girl's room in Wright House (the dorm is also known as Sin City, U.S.A.). Fortunately, several other girls smothered the flames and were able to locate the fire and extinguish it. However, it is believed that this dormitory fire door had been locked or if the timely discovery of the fire the had been several minutes later that the result would have been a fire of an extremely serious nature. In the Blackstone fire, as reported in the New London Daily Times, one security officer was taken to the hospital after being overcome by smoke. Mr. Grady was quoted as stating that "student had apparently removed from the dorm" and also that "fire drills completely broke down." Another factor that this particular fire could have easily gotten out of control. At least, K.B. and Tarrabie, have been known for their knowledge of false alarm fires, which, as previously mentioned, causes students to call the "security office" in just another joke. As shown by these incidents, it seems very clear that the fire will erupt into a major fire has also greatly increased. Obviously, whatever can be done to reduce the number of "small" (or "almost big") fires should be done, but the reason questions: What can be done to reduce the fires explained to some students that the administration, in conjunction with Campus Security, is contemplating a possible room-by-

Campus Sounding Board

BSOE Sounding Board

Today's Army wants you!

Unless, of course, you're black. You see, the Army offers any number of benefits—health care, care for dependents, vocational training, travel opportunities, personal defense skills, retirement benefits, in totality, an exceedingly broadening experience.

All of these things are truly fine, but what happens if there becomes a black army in what America? That is certainly a dangerous idea; dangerous for several reasons. For instance, the standard of living for black people would skyrocket, and the desires and expectations of all black people would change accordingly.

America's external defense system might be put into jeopardy—after all, history has taught us that the loyalties of a mercenary soldier are irreproachable. Unless, of course, you're black.

Well, there it is: America's external defense system. America's racial attitudes. Obviously, whatever can be done to reduce the number of "small" (or "almost big") fires should be done, but the reason questions: What can be done to reduce the fires explained to some students that the administration, in conjunction with Campus Security, is contemplating a possible room-by-

Youth Service Bureau

By Eric McKenzie

In front of a long, low, white building, Mr. Edward O'Regan, the youth service bureau's psychiatric social worker, parked her car while she proceeded through a side door and the various...
Ski Club formed

By Neal Stone

As of this fall, a new club has been formed on campus, the ski club. This club was formed after a lot of consideration on what could a club of this type offer to the Connecticut College community. We were not looking forward to forming a club which had a detached and mostly inactive membership, but rather a club that its members would deeply enjoy partaking in.

Skiing is enjoyed by millions, and every year the number of people participating in the sport is increasing. With such a large participation, it is important to have a club to coordinate the activities of the varied interests. Hopefully the new ski club will be able to cater to all those interested in skiing while at Conn.

The new ski club will be ideal to those who have just begun learning to ski. We will be able to offer these beginners ski equipment (boots, skis, bindings, poles) and ski instruction to those who require it. To start off all of the beginners we will hold a special learn-to-ski day at Powder Hill at the beginning of the second semester.

To those who have had more experience we will be offering night skiing at Powder Hill during the midweek. This will comprise of twenty to thirty students getting together one night a week and bunching out to Powder Hill for a few good hours of after dinner skiing. On the weekends we will be making trips to New Hampshire and Vermont. The important thing to remember about these trips is that we will be able to offer lift tickets at special student group rates. Finally, if enough interest is indicated, the ski club hopes to be able to take a ski trip to either Colorado or Utah during Christmas break.

All of these programs and trips sound very promising, but in order to get them started and in order to buy equipment the ski club needs a good deal of money. Because the college is limited in the amount of money it can offer to the clubs, we need another source of income in order to carry out our plans. This income will come from a ski swap to be held in the gym at Crouser-Williams center on October 25. The ski swap is an invitation to all ski shops in the area and all private parties (including C.C. students) to sell all of their last year stock and second hand equipment (including all types of ski clothing). The ski swap will offer the community three things:

1) It will enable the students to sell their second hand equipment.
2) It will enable the community to buy ski equipment and clothing at great savings.
3) It will enable the ski club to earn money by taking twenty percent of the sales.

As of now we have a membership of 20. By the winter we hope to double that, and we hope everyone in the Connecticut College community will get a chance to participate in the new ski club; they will find it a rewarding experience.

All inquiries: Neal Stone, Box 1219.

JOIN C.C. SKI CLUB

Southern duck

(Continued from Page 4)

After painting this very gloomy picture of the contemporary political situation in South Vietnam, Luce looked at its significance in regards to United States foreign policy in general. He suggested two questions that we as a nation should address ourselves to: "Does there ever come a time when you should stop giving aid to a dictatorship?" and "Do we prefer to use our resources, such as oil, for war rather than for our own domestic needs?"

In Luce's opinion, the only open option for the United States in Vietnam is to completely leave it alone and terminate all economic aid to the Thieu regime, thereby giving the Vietnamese the opportunity to work out their own problems free from our interference.

Service bureau

(Continued from Page 10)

is called to order, they accompany him and represent him. If he is freed on probation, the staff keeps in touch with him at school and at home so that they can be of assistance whenever necessary. If the boy or girl is not in school, an all-out search is made for a suitable job.

Mr. Smith showed me a letter he had just received from a young fellow who had entered the Army and seemed to be benefiting from the experience. Mr. Smith explained that this was only one of several letters to which he turns to find employment for the young people.

If anyone is interested in donating time, money or clothing, please contact the Youth Service Bureau, 241-4499, and ask for Mrs. Edythe Zimmerman.

Crew team looks for a crew

As a shame the way Conn's first teams to be nationally ranked are forced to stand by the wayside as other lesser teams build up their images defeating Freshman or J.V. competition.

Last year in what surely ranks as a feat of comparable significance to the Mets latest pennant drive, the Connecticut College Women's Varsity Crew team astounded the sports world by placing second to Radcliffe in the Nationals in Boston.

Astounding? Fantastic? Impossible? Well, stay seated because the day prior to this upset, 350 miles away the Men's Freshman Lightweight Team blew down a rain swept course in Philadelphia to finish a solid second to the Coast Guard in the Small College Men's Nationals.

Training extensively everyday at Gaines Ferry, these men and women frequently stumble into the Complex too late for the usual repast and would be served instead an array of cold cuts and congealed desserts. Wofling down these slim remnants as only a truly fatigued, hunger crazed group of individuals can, they were oblivious to the scandalous remarks and gestures aimed in their direction.

Clearly no way to impress others of the dexterity with which one rows a boat! This view was unfortunately the only one most Connites ever witnessed and the Crew Team was quickly labeled a group of Freshmen searching for their identities and forgotten.

Having gotten the last laugh at the close of the 72-73 school year, the Crew team is rumored to be searching for a new image this year. Practicing only three times a week in the fall with some light calisthenics thrown in for laughs, they have opened their practices to anyone who would like to come.

Simply by tracking down Coach Bart or Rick, his able-bodied assistant one can find himself or herself in the gallowas as early as the same afternoon. Why not try it? You probably won't be the envy of your friends, but it makes for a great meal in the Complex.
The conquering camels

The soccer season moves into its third full week of regular season play and the Connecticut College team has racked up an impressive 3-1-1 record. With two probable victories in games this week, the Conn team should be entering the second half of the season with an excellent 3-1-1 win, loss standing. Victories this past week over Eastern Connecticut State College and Wesleyan J.V. are responsible for the Conn teams winning ways.

The Eastern game was another thriller, a 14-12 victory, which seems to have been the only score by which booties could win. In a highly physical and tension packed game, with key Conn players missing, Tom Slaughter kicked home the winning goal on a rebound off the goalie with little time remaining in the first half. The play was set up by some fancy dribbling by Nick Schuller, who got the assist on the goal. From there on out it was once again the tough Conn defense which held the opposition scoreless for the third time in four games.

The Conn team played admirably and coolly in not being aggravated by the dirty Eastern team, even without key men as Gally Hand, Jeff Charnoff and John Phillips. The team was grateful to have them back against Wesleyan on Saturday, and eagerly await the return of Scott Vokey and Andy Williams as well.

A full and ready Conn soccer team, even without such key men J.V. on Saturday and once again the New London boys walked away with a victory, this time by a score of 2-1. It marked the first time this season that the Conn team registered more than one goal, mostly because it was also the first time that a goal wasn’t scored by a freshman.

Dan Tucker scored the game’s first goal midway through the first half on a hustling and eager Gally Hand assist. The Conn team dominated play and continually attacked the Wesleyan goal until Jeff Charnoff single-handedly took the ball in from the left wing and pounded it into the Conn left hand corner of the net for a 2-0 advantage. The Wesleyan team got on the scoreboard with only minutes remaining and the Conn defense once again held strong for the remaining five. Standout games were turned in by Dario Coleta, John Moore and John Phillips, with Tucker, Borson, Briggs, Charnoff and Hand close behind. In actuality it was a team effort that scored the victory, as it has been thus far this year. Schuller, Carney, Woodward, Slaughter, Kurtz, two Kellys, and Kauffman have all had their good games in helping the Conn team to the outstanding record it already has.

To see the Conn team further improve, the home game this week is Friday, the 12th, against a Manhattanville team which Conn beat by some 11 goals last year. The team and head coach Bill Lessig, who deserves much credit for mold and hand close behind, will appreciate your continued support.

Conn. baseball brigade

By Stu Meyers

It’s hard to pinpoint when things started getting out hand. A beautiful day beckoned upon arrival at Mitchell Baseball Field and we all got there in good stead — a luxurious Lincoln Continental, a majestic forest truck, and a rather mundane Oldsmobile. Bellies were filled with breakfast, the pre-game drills were imposing to any casual observer, and we didn’t run into the soccer net situated in short left field once, thank-you. We displayed enthusiasm, hustle, fancy footwork, crisp throws, a penchant for accuracy, and dazzling outfields amongst our molotov mob and even some swagging bragadocio that would have curled Leo Durocher’s ear. Led by imper turbable, inevitable, invigorating, ball player extraordinaire, Ned Preble, the patched-up Conn College Baseball Brigade stood ready on the brink of battle with Mitchell College.

The following Conn. confidence could have dotted some when Mitchell broke a 0-0 tie in the bottom of the 1st inning. Consequently, variables were introduced — the right fielder and 2nd baseman couldn’t stay on his respective feet (alternating positions didn’t stop this person from performing various half-gainers and belly flops in the field which were only surpassed in difficulty by his timely one-hop throws to first base), the short-stop turned a groundball into a juggling act (only once — although the crowd clammed for more), the centerfielder was seen pirouetting in the rain looking for a fly ball (perhaps he thought he was on stage in the spotlight), Conn, accounted for 2 hits (truns were scored on a passed ball), the Mitchell leftfielder didn’t have a play all day (although he was seen with a deck of cards), and most of the Conn. regulars were on vacation (at home, not on the field).

The score was 19-3 but it was felt, with due conviction, that with a couple more innings we’d get more hits and make it closer. It should be reported Mitchell wanted no part of extra innings and Conn’s momentum was subsequently held in check. It was a good, fun finale to the fall season and with a few breaks (preferably not hitting the ball to Mitchell fielders as often in hopes of breaking up the left fielder’s solitaire game) maybe we still would’ve gotten beat.

Just be sure to clear out your spring calendar so you won’t miss The Renaissance — out- standing players all fell: Doug Milne, Rich Kada, Paul MCn, John Gold, Peter Johnston, Mark Warren, Bruce Parmenter, Steve Brunetti, Jerry Denlinger, Brian Folgera, and the Main Man, Ned Preble.

Calamity on the Charles

In the recent sailing regatta, with took place on the Charles River on Sat. October 6, Conn. College scored an upsetting second place tie victory in the three college competition. Although the wind battered the tiny vessels and fearless crews unmercifully, all three teams managed to finish the standard triangle course on the bubbling, deadly and sludge filled waters at least once.

Franklin Pierce College, weary, weather beaten and water-logged emerged as the winner with the teeny tiny score of only 21 points (low score wins). And of course, breathing hard down their stern was the University of Vermont and our own fighting Jack, C.C. both totaling an amazing 57 points apiece.

All aspiring “Sea Dogs” can participate in the C.C. sailing team just by showing up at the CGA dock on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday at 15:30 (or 3:30). Keep ‘em flying.