All hours Cro facility a near certainty

By Bruce E. Collin

College Council and Student Assembly approval of a motion to open Crozier-Williams to the college community 24 hours a day signals that the advent of an all-day, all-purpose facility may be in the very near future. The proposal has not been considered by the Crozier-Williams Committee and recommended to President Arnes and the Board of Trustees before implementation of the plan.

"Cro is the student's center," commented President Richard Lichtenstein, and he mentioned numerous advantages that would result "on the building's proposed status, including the main lounge's utilization as a 24-hour study facility. Concerning the monetary feasibility of such a program, Lichtenstein indicated that it was "understanding that money had been set aside" to have the building open for extended hours, such as will be the case during the review and testing period, when Cro will remain open until 2 a.m. He noted that although the current proposal does not include the accommodation, he might, if the present idea is realized, later strive to "have the gym kept open until 5 a.m."

Endorsement of the proposal also came from Mack Warren, co-chairman of the Crozier-Williams Committee. "The building itself should remain open 24 hours a day" he emphasized, "with at least one person manning it until 2 a.m."

Warren indicated that concerning long-range plans, he "would like to see the snack shop open longer — especially on the weekends." Depending upon numerous factors, there is also a possibility that the bar might conceivably expand its servicing hours.

Fast for World Harvest: financial breakdown

by Walter Palmer

The fast for World Harvest on November 21 was in general a successful program, yet it raised some fundamental questions concerning the price of food service at Conn. The financial breakdown is: 1,900 students participated in the meal boycott; officially — 890 abstained from lunch — 782 abstained from dinner.

The school alloted 75 cents for lunch and $1.00 for dinner — the total amount raised by the fast was $1,469.00. These figures relate an obvious discrepancy — the school charges a guest $2.00 for lunch and $2.40 for dinner.

Mr. Knight related that the financial modification was not made such as having less people work and combining dining facilities since less than half the school was eating. Mr. Knight claimed that these types of changes could have been made, thus saving more money, but he was not notified about the fast in time to do so.

Mr. Knight was then asked how the school arrives at the figures of $2.00 for lunch and $2.50 for dinner. He commented that these figures were at best "imprecise figures" based on the average total cost of meals throughout the semester. These guest prices are slightly higher than the actual cost to the students. "We have no profit intentions we just try to break even."

Linda Batters, who organized the Fast for World Harvest at Conn, commented that she felt the fast was successful, but was concerned over the financial discrepancy. She hoped that these figures would be taken into consideration when College Council discusses the idea of a meal plan for day students.

Ms. Batters also added that in addition to the money raised by the Fast, the chapel collections for the month of November, totaling $150, were also contributed to the Fast for World Harvest program.

Tenure with a ‘T’

The recent decision of the faculty to admit three students as voting members of an ad hoc committee designed to investigate the procedures used in the awarding of tenure is a vital and necessary move towards an increased sense of cooperation between two major campus constituencies. The committee’s examination of the tenure program as practiced here will be, according to President Oakes Ames, “thorough and comprehensive.” Its recommendations will have important implications to the continued strength and solvency of the colleges teaching program.

For this reason alone, it is important that the committee’s deliberations and final recommendations be made public. This will assure students of a real and genuine recognition on the part of the faculty that the student body has EQUALLY VITAL needs and desires, every bit as important, every bit as relevant.

The misgivings some members of the faculty felt toward admitting students to the committee is testimony to the important position the committee holds in their eyes. The Courier feels that the alternative motion, which was ultimately discarded by the faculty in favor of student representation, is simply another case of a faculty attempt to jealously guard its prerogatives in a needless, almost irresponsible fashion; the faculty has ample opportunity to meet and discuss issues in private.

Indeed, no student is ever admitted to faculty meetings except by express invitation. So the argument for a committee sans students, ostensibly because the faculty must have continued opportunity to discuss the tenure question in private, simply does not hold water. And no student organization has ever asked or even considered representation on the committees which deal with individual cases. We agree that the issue is most pertinent to the faculty, on a very basic level, but tenure also has broad implications to the student body.

It is our opinion that students want very much to know how our teachers are selected and rewarded, especially when some very good ones in our midst have been asked to leave. And this is by no means an irksome and irresponsible desire. In fact, Courier thinks it is a quite moderate one. The three students on the committee will not make a majority, but it is fervently hoped that they will make a strong and prominent minority.

letters to the editor

with feeling

Dear Editor,

In answer to Dean Cobb’s letter in the November 21 issue of the Courier we would like to point out some discrepancies and to clear the matter up, since we were the students who were involved in the Marshall incident.

Dean Cobb criticizes the Courier for not meeting with Mr. O’Grady before printing the editorial when she did the same thing by not contacting the Marshall students and relying only on information given to her by Security. That information was wrong. We are the students who placed the 11:45 call to the Public Safety number and frantically trying to reach a party on campus.

Dean Cobb states that because we used the wrong number and gave incorrect information, we were unable to reach campus security by the number in the directory. The number given to her by Security, she states, was the number in the directory, where she knew nothing of the incident editorial page.

Another error in Dean Cobb’s letter is when she states that a student told the guard that there had been a party in Marshall with screaming and yelling that had since stopped. We did not hear any party nor could we find any students who were in Marshall at the time who either heard or had a party. Also upon hearing the scream a group of us checked the dorm stairways and bathrooms and found no evidence of a party or its aftermath. It was in fact an unusually quiet night in the dorm, perhaps because of a party that was taking place on the other side of the complex on the opposite end from Marshall-in-Morris. At one point, when we were unable to reach Security by the number in the directory, we called Morrisian hoping to get in touch with one of the guards there. The student at the party who answered the phone told us after searching the room that he found nothing unusual in the room, we continued to try campus phone.

Dean Cobb stated we should let the student write a letter to the editor, by calling on the campus phone.

Dean Cobb is wrong when she alleges that the student who placed the call said she was calling about the same incident that was reported at 11:10. We, in member as they are on the Marshall administration committee, are the student who placed the call and is member of the student administration committee.

Perhaps Dean Cobb should have followed the advice she gave to the Courier by checking the facts at the source: the Marshall students - before writing her letter. Fairness and accuracy are just as important from a faculty administration member as they are on the editorial page.

Sincerely yours,

"We Were There"

Food for Politics

WASHINGTON — The United States does more to feed the world's hungry than any other nation on earth.

But we have little reason to be smug. For the truth is that our leaders use our food, not for humanitarian purposes, but to serve America's political and strategic interests.

The starving nations of Africa, for example, receive relatively little U.S. aid. A food surplus that goes to East Asia - mainly South Vietnam and South Korea - serves America's political and economic interests.

The United States, primarily via its State Department, uses the threat of famine to force other nations to adopt its policies. No nation is forced to buy rice from Egypt at commercial rates. But Egypt gets plenty of food aid from the United States, primarily because of its strategic position in the Middle East. Syria, too, benefits from its location in the Middle East, as does Turkey.

Even Singapore is a beneficiary, if one considers that the country, aside from oil, is now languishing on the desk of the National Economic Development Board of the Republic of Singapore.

The State Department has an excellent record of persuading other nations to adopt pro-American policies. A楞arming with congressmen are the diplomatic services of the State Department.

Alf Lodge, for example, is a progressive, fertilized methods is our own fault. Geologists study the Earth from the soil up, Heaven forbid that the cold war between the United States and Russia, which has been at odds with Moscow that had to knuckle under, not the Spaniards. In Greece, the Spanish Communists have been following the Italian lead. They, too, think that too close an association with the Soviets would be detrimental to their cause.

The one exception is Portugal. The Communist party there is strongly pro-Moscow. But, like the Latin American nations, they are more concerned with domestic problems than in getting along with Moscow.

The one exception is Spain, which has been at odds with Moscow since Russia invaded Czechoslovakia in 1968. Soviet and Spanish Communists recently patched over some of their differences. But it was the Spanish Communist party that had to knuckle under, not the Latin American nations.

In Greece, the Communists are deeply split between pro- and anti-Moscow factions. In short, the United States and Russia may well be girding up for a new cold war. But their European allies are proving to be reluctant participants.

Henry's Hangup: Secretary of State Kissinger, who has a fine eye for a pretty ankle, took special notice of the foreign minister from Uganda at the UN a few weeks ago. The African diplomat is the striking Elizabeth Bagaya, who once modeled for Vogue magazine under the nom de plume "Elizabeth of Toro." Each foreign minister Kissinger met for days thereafter was greeted with a comment along these lines: "I don't know you very well, but I have seen pretty foreign ministers."

Saxbe Backed?: Some of President Ford's most powerful associates have urged him to fire Attorney General William Saxbe, whom they view as lazy and bungling. But Ford promised Saxbe months ago that he could have the job as long as he wants it. And the President is a man who stands by his word. Even though Ford, too, has soursed on Saxbe, our sources say the President will patiently wait for him to quit of his own accord.

Euleguy: Four years ago, a young priest named Father Tito was mercilessly tortured by the Brazilian government. He was beaten, burned with cigarettes and his wrists were stuffed into his mouth. Fearing he would eventually betray his friends - all political enemies of the military regime - he attempted to cut his wrists.

A few days ago, at the age of 38, Father Tito died in Paris, where he had gone for sanctuary. In Brazil, Father Tito's brother, a Catholic priest, said of his soul, thus risking the same kind of torture that Father Tito suffered.
The Black Student Union and the Minority Cultural Centre are sponsoring a concert featuring the Black Voices of Freedom Choir on Thursday, December 5, at 8 p.m. in the Jane Addams Living Room. A $0.50 donation is asked at the door to aid in sponsoring similar activities in the future.

Saturday, December 7 at 7 p.m. in the Jane Addams Living Room. Program of Bach and World. Lincoln Baxter conducting. Solists: Kay Dolliver, flute and Steve Shepherd, violin. Kate Tweedie, piano and many other players. Come and enjoy some light music, and bring your own wine and cheese for a party afterward.

The national Theatre Institute's (NTI) Bus Company will appear at Connecticut College on Wed., Dec. 11 at 8 p.m. in an original play. TOM JONES by Larry Arrick (NTI director), based on the novel by Henry Fielding. The music has been composed by Barbara Damashek with lyrics by both Barbara Damashek and Larry Arrick. The production is being designed, performed and produced by the University of Rhode Island. Waterford, Connecticut - The National Institute of the Arts and Letters is a non-profit educational foundation established in 1962 to encourage study and promote the arts. One of the major features of the group's annual conference is a major performance of the play "Blues in the Night" by Mark Strand and Peter Stein. The play tells the story of a black woman who has been separated from her family and travels to New Orleans to find her son. The play is set in the 1920s and speaks to issues of race, gender, and identity in the context of the Harlem Renaissance. The performance is directed by Robin Richard and features a cast of talented actors. The play is presented in collaboration with the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The concert will feature a variety of musical styles, including jazz, gospel, blues, and folk. The performers will include both local and national artists, including the Connecticut College Jazz Band, the Connecticut College Gospel Choir, and the Connecticut College Bluegrass Band. The concert will also feature a special performance by the National Theatre Institute's Bus Company, a group of students from the institute who have been touring the country performing original plays. The Philadelphia Story

by Seth Greenfeld

"The Philadelphia Story," directed by George Cukor, is an extremely amusing film. Although the plot is nothing new to the classic story; boy loses girl and boy regains girl, there is a certain comic effect, Hepburn, Grant and Cukor merely served to amplifies the effectiveness of the vehicle. The Philadelphia Story was an exceptionally good film, one of the best of its kind.

Temporary paying jobs in Europe are available to students with a European Job Card. The card entitles you to a paying job, with from one to ten cents, in a resort, hotel, office, restaurant or hospital in Switzerland, Austria, France or Belgium. Standard wages are paid which earn back all or most of the trip costs. Of course it is an experience itself and the fact that it will always provide an overseas job experience to list on any future job application.

The European Job Card system begins with you. It will fit your name on a job list, and it initiates processing of your job application and working papers. As this is an advance planning system, students interested in earning their way to Europe should obtain their European Job Cards well in advance of their anticipated departure date. These students are issued a European Job Card which places their names on the job list and initiates the first steps in processing.

The advantages of a temporary paying job in Europe include the opportunity to see Europe and live in foreign countries. There is also the opportunity to see Europe and an overseas job experience to list on any future job application. Interested students may obtain complete information, including job listings and descriptions and an application form, by sending their name, address, the name of their school (only students eligible), and their departure date. The service is provided by Student Overseas Services, S.O.S. has placed thousands of students in temporary paying jobs in Europe during the past ten years. Throughout the year S.O.S. conducts Open House periods in Luxembourg, Europe, to make certain that every student who wishes to go to Europe gets off to a good start. Education and the Job Market

Education and the Job Market

by Clifton R. Wahrton

Every time the job market stiffens we face an argument concerning the relationship between education and employment, and whether our young people are being properly trained for the existing job opportunities. In this debate, it usually is generalized that all students are "artists" that takes a beating. Part of the problem stems from textbooks written by one or two专家s and the mathemagics graduate who ended up in retailing seldom find the time to write a book by himself. But the frantic recruiting of the 1960's gave rise to expectations of plentiful opportunities in every nearlv chosen field. When these opportunities abruptly declined, the criticism of the educational institutions increased. The critics of educational institutions ignored the fact that unemployment was more related to a wide-spread economic malaise than to inadequate or inappropriate education. Some critics suggested the manpower training and vocational-technical education ought to be the paramount responsibilities of colleges and universities. From a statistical point of view, such arguments were less than convincing. Between 1960 and 1970, jobs requiring professional and technical higher education increased but 20 percent, while demand for "craftsmen and foremen" increased only 19 percent and unskilled labor less than 5 percent.

Educational institutions have been producing as many or more career-training curricula than ever, but they cannot impose such curricula on a particular course of study, nor can they predict what the job opportunities will be in 4 or 6 years after the student first starts.

The way out of our present troubles lies first in breaking down the artificial dichotomy according to which general and career education are seen as mutually exclusive. In fact, the two are complementary. Second, we must recognize that the development of lifelong education relaxes the constraints on time. Desired combinations of vocational and general education cannot be limited to a 4-year undergraduate period. Many students decided in the context of education over a lifetime.

The career education is usually based on its great humanistic benefits - its capacity to give us a sense of place within our cultural heritage, while the benefits of career education are usually regarded as material gains. Yet, in a fundamental sense, general education itself is a crucial sort of job preparation.

In the United States there has long been a high degree of movement between jobs that are significantly different in nature, as in the case of the engineer who enters management. The career skills a man or woman learns prior to accepting a first or second position may be inadequate for a third, fourth, or fifth job. General education, concentrating on developing a broad cultural perspective, analytic abilities, and communicative skills, helps give us a clue to the world of work as any program of vocational training.

Differences in Awareness

Some of the more apparent differences they have found between American youth and British youth are that Americans are more pollution conscious, politics oriented, and aware of social injustice. They have become aware of the sharp contrast between the super rich and the super poor since England is far more economically and socially homogeneous.

Many of their misconceptions about America, i.e., huge cars and skyscrapers, were radically changed when they visited such places as Washington D.C., Cape Cod, Martha’s Vineyard, and Orient Point. They generally agreed that Washington was their favorite city because of its “natural beauty” and its "architectural, political orientations, and arts.”

In terms of class consciousness the distinction was made between upper class Americans and upper class British. The difference is, clearly, the American population is considered to be the upper class. However, the British believe upper class heritage or an ancestral background is that the criteria.

I am disgusted by Mr. Wiles’Wren’s article which would allow professors the right to prosecute students after a “not guilty” finding by the Judicial Board. How many times will a student be called to the bar of justice to account for an innocent position? Once, twice, twenty times? Or until found guilty? This is the mechanism of trystany, not justice!

I am a very adaptable student looking for a room in faculty housing, also willing to take the place of a departing student in some already existing house or apartment. I have no car, so I would also be looking for a place in a half-hour’s walk of campus. Please contact Craig Karlin, Box 645, or phone 452-9409.

For Sale: 3-speed bicycle. Well used but in good condition ($15 negotiable). Also Zenith stereo record player $15. Must sell before Christmas. Please contact Brown, Box 198 and 445-9966.

The end of an era

Commissioner Merves

by Anne Robillard

Dave Merves, the originator and organizer of flag football at Conn, played in his last game on Sunday, Nov. 14 when his team, the Quad, was defeated by Park in the playoffs. Dave came to Conn because he wanted to get in on the ground floor of a college that was changing.

At the time, the second year of coed education, there was only interscholastic basketball and soccer in the men’s athletic program. Loving athletics, football in particular, and feeling that intramural sports could be a vital aspect of Conn College life, Merves organized flag football in his freshman year.

At the outset, flag football was unofficial and relatively unorganized. Dave provided the footballs himself and the flags were pieces of towels that were tucked in at the waist. The program has grown from about seven teams in its first year to sixty-six this year and became better organized as Merves acquired experience.

The program now operates on a budget of $60 for footballs, flags, tees and other miscellaneous items. To improve the organization of Conn’s program, Dave read on flag football and contacted other schools concerning their programs. The rules he came up with are a combination of professional, college, and flag football rules. The contact and hitting is as hard as possible without hurting and any injuries that occur are entirely accidental.

Riders collect firsts in competition

The Conn College Riding team attended their third intercollegiate riding competition at the University of Conn on Nov. 23. Conn was represented by fifteen riders out of a total of 125 riders from eleven schools. Due to class limitations only four point riders were included in each school’s total. Conn’s participants were Cynthia Crocker, Sharon Golec, Lannie Hamilton, Randi Hansen, Buddy Hutchins, Liz Kilfoyle, Lee Langstaff, Laurie Pope, Mike Reardon, David Sargent, Vicky Saxe, Lannie Hamilton, Randi Hansen, Liz Kilfoyle, and John Taylor. Abby Weed and Joan Zapralka.

Conn collected three firsts in this show. Lee Langstaff placed first in open horsemanship, Abby Weed was first in beginner walk-trot-canter, and David Sargent placed first in advanced walk-trot-canter. Five other Conn riders also placed. Liz Kilfoyle took a sixth in open horsemanship, Linda Staehly a second in beginner walk-trot-canter, Mike Reardon a sixth in beginner walk-trot, Cynthia Crocker a fifth in beginner walk-trot, and Joan Zapralka took a sixth in beginner walk-trot.

The two remaining undefeated teams will meet on Saturday, December 7 in the flag football “superbowl” at 1:30 on Merves Field. It will be a North-South clash as the number one teams from each division, Park from the North and Blunt from the South, earned their way to the championships with playoff victories before Thanksgiving break.

Blunt defeated the North’s second place team, Morrison, in their road to the championships by a score of 28-14. It was a wide open contest for much of the game and was marred in the closing minutes by a fight which emptied both benches, delayed the game for five minutes, and caused the expulsion of four players. Andy Krevelin had an outstanding game for Blunt, never missing a tackle. Also performing well were Kevin Darkin and Robby Roberta for Blunt and Dana Sochacki for Morrison.

Park earned their trip to the finals with a 21-14 victory over the South’s second place team, the Quad. The Quad gained the playoff spot by defeating Hurdick in the last game of the season by a 21-2 score. They were two well matched teams in an evenly played contest, except for the final score. Standouts for Park were Steve Carlson, their quarterback, Brian Glassman, and Dave Gesnell. Mark Warren had an outstanding game for the Quad and Dave Merves, Paul Funk, and Brad Michaels were also good in defeat.

Some of the match-ups to look for in Saturday games are in the kicking department and at quarterback. Blunt’s Robby Roberts and Park’s Eric Birnbaum are both excellent kickers and the quarterbacks Blunt’s Dick Kadzis and Park’s Steve Carlson are also better than average.
