Financial Woes Leave Projects in Limbo
By KATIE HANDWERGER

Despite last month's budget freeze, the pace and success of a number of significant projects have been hindered by budget cuts. The funding for a number of programs has been reduced, and the number of projects that have received funding has been limited. The college has had to prioritize its budget and make difficult decisions about which projects to fund.

The college is currently facing significant financial constraints, and the impact of these constraints is likely to be felt for some time to come. The college has had to make some difficult choices about how to allocate its resources in order to ensure its long-term sustainability. It is important for the college to continue to work closely with its students and staff in order to identify creative solutions to these challenges.

Ecopledge to Make Job Seekers Eco-aware

By LARA MIRZAC

On Friday, October 26, the Connecticut College chapter of Ecopledge launched their campaign to encourage students to consider the environmental impact of their jobs. The campaign is designed to help students make informed decisions about their future careers, and to encourage companies to take steps to reduce their environmental footprint.

The campaign is part of a national effort to promote environmental awareness in the workplace. Ecopledge's website targets the company. To showcase corporations that are working to improve their eco, track records, the forefront of the College. Sec. page 7.

Ecopledge follows five set stages. First, they build the corporate website. Second, they build coalition of other companies. Third, they meet with the company's management team. Fourth, they release the results to the media. Fifth, the company appears on the website. To move into the Provost's office.

The Provost's report was created to move into the Provost's office. It was a project of the college, not the city. The report was created in order to help the college explore the relationship between the arts and technology. A virtual reality environment was explored, and the team worked on the project for several weeks. The project was completed on schedule, and the team was able to present it to the Provost's office.

J-Board Required to Print Log

Based on an interview with J-Board Chair Dan Bisson at The College Voice office on April 21, 2001, the J-Board has agreed to a new policy of printing a log documenting its meetings. The log will include minutes of the meeting and a declaration of the decision-making process. This will allow for greater transparency and accountability of the board's actions. The J-Board is required to print the log under the by-laws of the Student Government Association. The log will be available for review by any member of the campus community.

Should the new Prez Follow Claire to NL?

It has been a common question among the campus community whether the new president of Connecticut College should follow the footsteps of President Gaudiani’s tenure or whether the new president should take on a new approach. President Gaudiani has been absent from campus for years, which has led to many campus members questioning whether the president is able to effectively represent the college.

Connecticut College needs to continue to take a leading role in the community, in the city, not the president and certainly not the administration. To do so, Connecticut College needs to continue to hire someone who is actually interested in Connecticut College and President Gaudiani's inexperience was not often felt in the final years of her tenure is due in large part to the president away from Conn so much, and not because presidents at other schools are well represented in the New London community.

Many assert that the administration has placed too much emphasis on things like providing fully-funded in- and out-of-state student body fees and that it has been led by non-native Connecticutians. While blunders have clearly been made, President Gaudiani’s tenure as a result of her work with the school, the students and the faculty alike.

In conclusion, while President Gaudiani’s presence was not often felt in the final years of her tenure in comparison to her predecessor, Connecticut College needs to continue to hire someone who is actually interested in Connecticut College and President Gaudiani’s inexperience was not often felt in the final years of her tenure is due in large part to the president away from Conn so much, and not because presidents at other schools are well represented in the New London community.

Connecticut College and President Gaudiani’s unacceptable absences from campus has led to the printing of a log. As students at Connecticut College, we have been more concerned with the residents of the cities around us who have experienced some of the worst human rights violations in the world. The paradox of that region, we need to show our brothers and sisters in the Middle East that we are all struggling with the same untruths that we hear the advocates of hate are ruling the day.

We cannot allow them to do this. We must continue to fight for peace.

Hate Crime Laws or Thought Crime Laws? Refocusing Shared Governance

BRAD KREIT

LEFT OF MARX

Now that the college has had a couple of weeks to settle down new from Clinton’s inclusion, I need to look at where we stand as a college on the issue of shared governance before I find out how it will be implemented.

In the past, we need to have a complete definition of what shared governance is. As a student, we need to understand what shared governance is in every possible sense of the word. The purpose of shared governance is to help create a more open environment for students and faculty to participate in. It is a way for students and faculty to have a more active role in the governance of the college. It is a way for students and faculty to have more control over what is happening on the campus. It is a way for students and faculty to have more input into the decision-making process of the college. It is a way for students and faculty to have more say in the direction of the college.

I believe that shared governance is not about activism or power. It is about representing students and faculty in the decision-making process of the college. It is about having a say in what is happening to the college. It is about having a say in the direction of the college. It is about having a say in the future of the college.

Mystery of Missing Skunks: Investigating the Disappearance of Conn's Black and White Menace

By DANIEL JARICO

One of the most pressing questions on the Connecticut College campus is the disappearance of hundreds of skunks that used to inhabit the area. Some students and faculty members believe that the skunks have been replaced by more elusive species. Several theories have been put forward to explain the sudden decrease in the skunk population.

Several factors have been suggested as potential causes for the skunk population's decline. One theory is that the decrease is due to changes in the local environment, such as increased development and pollution. Another theory is that the skunks may have been killed by predators or humans. It is also possible that the skunks have simply moved to other parts of the campus or to nearby areas.

To investigate the disappearance of the skunks, a team of students has been conducting a study on the campus. The team is using a combination of field research and computer modeling to track the skunks' movements and to identify potential threats to their survival.

The study has already shown some promising results. The students have found that the skunks' movements are closely tied to the availability of food sources. They have also discovered that the skunks are avoiding certain areas of the campus due to the presence of predators.

The team is currently working on developing a plan to protect the skunks and to ensure their survival on campus. They hope to share their findings with the college community and to work with campus officials to create a plan that will protect the skunks and other wildlife on the campus.

Enthusiastic Coach Brings Life to Women's Crew

By ERIKA SCOTT

Pumped up with a new, energetic, and enthusiastic coach, the women's volleyball team is off to a great start. After some turmoil last year, the committee set out to find an assistant coach for women's volleyball. After picking a winning choice in Enid Kovach, Kovach traveled the campus and captured the hearts of many students.

Kovach says that the team has no problem with great enthusiasm and was greeted splendidly by the community. "She would sit down with you, learn about your experience with the sport, and how many people had played before," says Kovach.

The coaches and the community have all come together, creating a new and improved game for everyone and every

After losing two straight New England Small College Athletic Conference (NESCAC) games, men’s soccer entered last weekend feeling a little down. But the Bobcats squad.

The rest of the NESCAC games have been tightly contested with no real blowouts. Even though Conn is playing well, they are not playing particularly well enough for them to win by a goal. This type of game, however, is not uncommon in the NESCAC. Most games are decided by just a goal, so Conn needs to continue to play well defensively and keep an eye on the offense, as they must score to win.

Almost for sure, the offense will not be able to come through. The Bobcats have struggled to score consistently throughout the season, and it is clear that the offense is not clicking on all cylinders. The game against Bates was no different, as the Bobcats were held to just 1 goal. To make matters worse, the Bobcats were outshot 2-1 on goals and 4-1 on shots.

However, the defense played well, holding Bates to just 1 goal. The defense has been a strong point for the Bobcats this season, and it is clear that they will need to continue to play well in order to have a chance at winning the game.

In summary, the Bobcats face a tough task in this game against Bates. The offense will need to find the back of the net, while the defense must continue to keep the ball out of their own net. If the Bobcats can find a way to balance both aspects of the game, they have a chance to pull off an upset and advance in the NESCAC tournament. However, it looks like Conn will need to win this game to advance to the championship round.
