Chadourne Becomes Officer In French Legion of Honor

Marc Chadourne, chairman of the Connecticut College French department, was recently appointed as the rank of officer in the French Legion of Honor, a group they in the Palmer Room of the Library Monday afternoon.

As commander in the Legion of Honor, presented the award to Mr. Chadourne.

Mr. Chadourne was originally in Belgium, as a Commander in the Legion of Honor, presented the award to Mr. Chadourne.

The Legion of Honor, created by Napoleon, was originally an award for military achievement. Since then it has been expanded to include scientists, artists, musicians and anyone who contributes a service to the country.

It is one of the highest awards France makes to her citizens.

Marc Chadourne is an explorer of five continents, novelist, correspondent, and writer. He has collected a first-hand knowledge of French history studied during fifteen years spent in France, Russia, China, Japan and America. He is a member of the French Academy and is the executive director of the American Institute of France in New York City.

In advance Japan's plans for aggression in India, China, and Korea, a new type of fighting at the end as the Japs crossed Indochina, he escaped to Manila, and then took refuge in the United States.

The most famous of Mr. Chadourne's novels are Absalom, La Pucelle, Gaiety, Gaiety (for which he received the French Academy Novel Prize) and Galicia de la Folie (for which he received the Prix Femina in 1920).

Bergson's Thought
Primary Topic of Chasteney Lecture

by Florchadourne von Wockendick

Mr. Jacques Chastenay spoke on "Bergson's Thought" in France at the Beginning of the Twentieth Century before he presented the award to Mr. Chadourne.

Begning his lecture, he named the major political events that were of importance during the 18th, 19th and at the beginning of the 20th century in Europe and in America. He spoke about the technical progress of this period, and then pointed out the changes in philosophy.

The speaker named the year 1826 as the beginning of a new trend. This year marked the start of the great influence of Bergsonism in France. Bergson's basic orientation was that energy was important above all and every scientific truth. This brought about a shift from the rational to the irrational, not only in philosophy, but also in literature, art and music. Other important developments were those of patriotism and nationalism, especially among the young population. Also, the woman began to play a more important part, although there was not yet the question of giving her any political rights.

Monseigneur Chastenay concluded by explaining how this intellectual revolution opened the way for new ideas and forces by breaking up past traditions. He stressed how this has succeeded, especially in the American way of life.

Don't Gather Greens, Look to Greenhouse!

The Executive Committee of the Trustees gave its permission last week, for the organizing drive for a new social-recreational building. The history of this plan has been long. The present group is built as a temporary structure in 1916, constructed for the use of 400 students. The great question is, how temporary can a temporary structure be?

The prospect of a new building has been considered often, but always a more pressing College need has been there. For example, it was not until 1940 that all the students at Connecticut College. (In 1930 more than half of the college was in the highest income brackets, it is, shopping a little easier.

Russian Folk Songs on Ballet, Folk Tale To Be Shown Here

Two outstanding Russian mov- ies will be presented Saturday, December 9 at 8 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium, "The Stone Flower" was made by the Moscow Times as "a work of visual beauty—brilliantly directed and produced." "Minneapolis Times" as "one of the most completely defined pictures ever made." Based on an old Russian folk tale, these movies were photographed in an entirely new color process, the movie shows scenes of a fab- ulous fairy tale land, intermixed with real life Russian traditional dance and song. You may remember the enthusi- astic applause for the Russian movie which appeared in Life magazine a few years ago.

The second movie, "The Russian Ballerina," offers a chance to see the almost legendary Russian ballet in action. Known as the "most famous Russian act" company in the world, the group no longer tours outside Russia, and this movie is the only chance to see them in the American ballet, and particularly England's Sadler's Wells Company. The story of a young ballerina's struggles and the backstage work of the theater, the movie features Ulanova, Russia's foremost dancer, in her greatest role, "Swan Lake." Admission $0.50.

Note to All Seniors! See Bulletin Boards

Seniors are asked to pay special attention to the 2nd floor bulletin board which is posted outside the Personnel Office. This board is a follow-up of Miss Raymond's speech last week.

At least one serving of fruit and vegetables should be eaten each day. The fruit and vegetables should not be restricted to those of the highest income brackets, it is of course a present for someone special. The Sport Shop is next with Echo silk scarves and soft cashmere sweaters, both imported and domestic.

Down one door to Percy and Stone, you'll find a full line of Dunhill and Roosevelt lighters as well as sterling candlesticks, ash trays, and pepper and salt shakers for your household gifts. Fisher and Mosler is able to supply and many gifts such as scarves, shirts--if you dare choose them--and many other relatives would love to have them.

On to Kaplan's, where you'll find all sorts of leather goods such as handbags, evening bags, travel bags and luggage. You'll also see men's suits, shirts, ties, and even ties, and even a Christmas tree.
We're On Our Way
News of the trustees' approval of a new social-recreation building to replace our antiquated gymnasium is certainly cheering news. Like many other private institutions, Connecticut College is confronted with an ever constant financial problem. A limited amount of funds requires our college trustees to exercise extreme care in its allocation, but often it is impossible to provide enough as is actually needed, for salary, to mention only one, has been a sore spot in the college budget. And with these problems uppermost in mind, the trustees have nevertheless seen the necessity of the proposed building and thus have given permission for the students to organize a drive to raise the necessary funds.

The Show Must Go On
A word of commendation must be given the actors and actresses who performed in the recent Wig and Candle production. During the period of total darkness which enveloped the entire auditorium, they continued, with a degree of nonchalance that was truly remarkable. Even when light was provided, by what must have been quite distracting human candle-holders, they carried on with nary a falter. They may be but amateurs, but they certainly would claim the praise of everyone present, who, judging by the old theatre adage, "the show must go on!"-AMT.

Klineberg Suggests Methods

Dr. Otto Klineberg of Columbia University, will give his annual Klineberg Lecture on Friday, December 8, at 3:30 p.m. in the Klineberg Lecture Room, Palmer Library. Dr. Klineberg will discuss the interconnection of personality and prejudice, and the effort to introduce a more scientific approach to the study of these phenomena.

Can Prejudice be Overcome?

Klineberg Suggests Methods

by Sally Wing

Can psychologicaS do with the information now available to them? This problem was among those considered by Dr. Otto Klineberg, of Columbia University. In his lecture on Tuesday, November 16. His address was the second in a series of speaking engagements sponsored by the Psychology Department.

Klineberg suggests-ideas about other people in a certain group-are discussed by Professor Klineberg. There is a high degree of uniformity among individuals who share the same ideas, which has led to the belief that there must be some truth in them. In testing what adjectives were commonly coupled with given first names, many associations occurred more often than would be possible by chance alone. The following combinations were common: Richard-good looking; Adrian - artistic; and Agatha-bold. Literary stereotypes are thought to be a causal factor in these beliefs, in which there is "not even a kernel of truth."

In their search for the causes of prejudice, psychologists have tried to discover the influence of experience. One test which has been used is the "social-distances" method. Using varying "degrees of distance," either incented, from intermarriage with members of another group, or from complete exclusion from the country. To test the influence of experience, experimenters introduced three imaginary groups, towards which, the perceived as much hospitality toward existing groups.

These results suggest that individuals may have generalized attitudes based not on experience, but on what they have heard or imagined. Attitudes seem to be "readymade" from the people who share their own way of life.

Theories can be distorted by assimilation to an individual's frame of reference. In the "shah of reproduction" process of spreading information, a description of a comparatively innocent picture may be distorted into a description of a bitter argument. We wonder whether the ways in which we have been prepared to see the world.

Considering the difficulty of learning in a circumstance where it is expected that agencies such as Usenzo and the State Department will publicize their activities at their own assumption is that information "flows more often than not from the direction anticipated," an assumption that has yet been satisfactorily disproved.

As a means of decreasing the "shah of reproduction," "equal status contacts" is needed. The Southern master-servant relationship has no effect on cutting down prejudice. However, when platoons of Negro soldiers were put into all-white regiments during the war there was a definite improvement in social relationships as a result of social experiences. The effectiveness of this method may be illustrated by the fact that Negro soldiers who had no contact with Negro platoons thought they had been impressed.

An individual will stand by his group when he has helped make a specific contribution to it. A personal effort upon him. An experimental study on the habits showed that a group which changed its habits by its own decision showed a marked and persistent change in their use of food, as opposed to a group which was given an attractive lecture at the beginning. The case for the food was not killed at the conclusion of a discussion of the merits of the foods. The former method clearly exemplified a modern application of psychology.

Profile
ESU CLEVELAND

by Ann Byrget

"It's Esu makes the world go round," is the phrase on the lips in the hearts of many proud freshmen at CC, who have just elected a terrific pair to lead their activities, Esu Cleveland and Carol Lee Hobbs, a sophomore-junior scramble.

The word for her reaction to the honor is simply "flabbergasted." She tells us that her famous first words were, "Are you kidding?"

Many hours after the initial shock we find her still in a high state of excitement. And of course, Knowledge went wild with joy.

The new prey of the class of '56 makes her home in Pelham Manor, New York; and attended the Dobbs school. Her serious effort at Connecticut is directed in the interest of her studies of English, French, sociology, religion, and history, plus a certain course that is conducted on Thursday afternoon. For relaxation she enjoys Sports, with a Serious capital letter.

Reviewers Praise Production And Qualities of Years Ago

by James R. Baird

Perhaps there were others in Palmer Auditorium last Saturday evening who felt as I did when I attended the second act of Years Ago. It was a night of high expectations, and it seems to me that my childhood impressions of this picture were confirmed by the weak electric lights, the sort that flickered at the first rumble of the projector, that suggested some crisis or some excitement. I was inordinately excited.

Miss Gordon's play belongs to that particular group of contemporary dramatic pieces inviting us to re-enter with nostalgia, wonder, and seriousness the life of the American family. Its world is secure; it's innocence, even that distinguished by eccentricity, is touching.

The most memorable event of her freshmen career thus far, besides her election, was the sophomore-junior scrabble. "Carol Lee Hobbs, much to my surprise Esu, Carol Lee Hobbs, Katie Webster, and Sherry Siddow were right on the ball and way ahead of the girls in figuring out the clues. It was highly embarrassing, but not much fun. "But wait 'till next year," Esu says. "We're living for Mascot Hunt!"

In the meantime, Esu will be kept busy with her new duties and her office of treasurer of Knowlton. Once in a while she may be free for a game of bridge. See "Cleveland."---Page 2

Helena Drysdale

It was a night of greatest pleasure that this reviewer saw, on December first, the fall production of Wig and Candor's Years Ago. It is a definitely a "perfect piece," and by that I mean pertaining to a particular era and it would have great appeal for that past generation. However, as I looked about the audience and saw the reaction, it was obviously amusing for this generation.

The play itself is of no outstanding value. It is not a production that would give one an opportunity to display his or her dramatic ability. Its purpose was to amuse and satisfy; and it accomplished this end admirably.

One of the most delightful performances of the evening was that of Brian MacIntyre, Fred Whittmah. His complete ease, naturalness, and freedom of expression caught the attention of everyone as soon as he entered.

Mr. Striker and Peggy Fark, as Mother and Father Jones, maintained their own memory when I think of "Mother and Father Jones"-Page 5

Miss Bower Speaks at Association Meeting

The New England Association of Teachers of Mathematics held its annual meeting in Boston, Saturday, December 2. Mr. For-guson and Miss Bower of the Department of Mathematics attended, and Miss Bower was one of the two speakers at the morning session. Her topic was "Geometry and Philosophy".

Mr. George, was conventional, simple.
and effective. The motif was well rendered a very homey
and realistic touch.

Last but not least, we have the important—he understood his character.

Juniors Win Autumn Athletic Cup

The Juniors grabbed the class competition cup by both handles and whisked it off to safe keeping. The cup was awarded to the Juniors by virtue of their wins in hockey, speedball, tennis and a tie in soccer.

After the managers' reports were given and club members had been named, special awards were given to the A.A. coffee. Sally Back, a Senior, and Louise Durfee, Junior class president, earned the right to have their names engraved on the A.A. plaque.

All Eyes to the A.A. Bulletin Board

In case you haven't noticed, there is a little something on the A.A. bulletin board apropos to winter safety. Unless you are already a senior life saver in good standing, here's your chance.

Everywhere They Are Raving About CC's SAVING

Libby Griffin and Muff McCulloch have been working like eager beavers to bring a sailing club to Connecticut. Your cooperation has been great in filling out the blanks. Consequently, plans are coming along. Keep up the enthusiasm, and remember, if you can bail, you can fly!

All Aboard to the A.A. Bulletin Board

Watch for notices announcing the meetings of the winter sports' clubs.
