Mrs. Ruby Kennedy Plans to Publish Husband's Studies

Mrs. Ruby Jo Kennedy, chairman of the Sociology Department at New College, has completed a manuscript for a book on "The Sociology of Protestantism." The book, which will be published by the University Press, will be a comprehensive study of the history and development of Protestantism in the United States. Mrs. Kennedy has spent several years working on the manuscript, and has consulted with many experts in the field of sociology. The book is expected to be released in the spring of 1954.

Cast and Crew Excel in Summer and Smoke; Unity of W&C Production Nears Perfection

by James Baldwin

The new production of "Summer and Smoke" and "The Lion" offered by the New College Drama Department is a remarkable agreement, in which the theme of the play is a study of human relationships, and the personality of the characters is all resolved to unity. I can't help but wonder if this is the first time that such a theme has been offered in the theater when I have been less than a decade of the world's present This is certainly a true observation about all when the parts are conscious.

Setting of Symbolic Pattern

Summer and Smoke (written by Tennessee Williams, directed by Mrs. Ruby Kennedy) is a prelude to all the invention of the author's. Since I take it that serious drama invests the human being, the author has chosen a series of tableaux, a series of characters, in which the drama of each one stands out. This play offers a new ingredient, which has now become typical of New York State productions. We find that there is an arrangement of symbols in antipodal sets: the body, with its simultaneous connotations, in the house of the Doctor's Church; the soul, in the house of the Reformed Winemiller. It has been true in the past in all the lovely arrangements of the Symbols of Summer and Smoke. The book is being read again in the Camino Real play, and the Lion is felt to offer a good deal that is novel and entertaining.

M. Dilley to Meet Group to Discuss Summer Internship

On Thursday, December 10, at 5:00 p.m. in Fanning 206, a meeting with Miss Dilley to discuss the forthcoming Summer Internship Program will be held. Each summer Wellesley College and New College offer students the opportunity to work with professional organizations. New College students will be selected from among the applicants. Students will be placed in their chosen fields of interest. This year's contest revealed the most unusual way of winning. Two Students won the contest.

Tradition Prevails As Choruses Blend In Xmas Services

The annual Christmas vesper service will be held on Sunday, December 15, at 7:30 in the Chapel. The service repeated after 7:30. The College choir assisted by the Wellesley University choir will present excerpts from the Christmas Oratorio by J. S. Bach under the direction of Mrs. Edith Twitchell. The Window of Wellesley, with Prof. Arthur W. Quimby of the College at the organ. "Seven Last Songs" will be a Fantasy on a Christmas Theme by Mrs. Williams; a group of traditional tunes, and as the closing number the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's Messiah, which has been part of this service, will be performed.

Androcles and the Lion To Be Shown Sat.

Androcles and the Lion, the RKO film version of the stage play by George Bernard Shaw, will be shown at 7:00 in the Campus Cinema on Saturday, December 12. The plot deals with the manner in which a clever and resourceful young man manages to surmise and purchase a Roman army. It tells of a kind-hearted early Christian who is captured by the Romans and thrown to the lions. The results are quite unexpected.

Jean Simmons, Vivien Leigh, and Donald Crisp are among the Hollywood notables in the cast.

George Bernard Shaw, in his story which is based upon the Greek legend of Androcles, points to the cruel, the single terror which no man can escape, the fear of being, and the efforts of a basically violent man to gain Chris-
43 Per Cent of ’53 Graduates Show Diversification in Jobs

Here a grad, there a grad, everywhere a grad. From the records in the personnel bureau compiled by Miss L. Alice Ranny and her staff, it is hard not to notice the diversity and variety of places and jobs that the class of ’53 hold.

Various Jobs

Some of the class members have not answered the questionnaire which was sent out last September, but the large part who did answer hold jobs doing practically everything from assisting in advertising firms to teaching school. Forty-three per cent of the 122 who have replied, now have jobs.

Barbara Freedon (Mrs. Kent Robinson) is the Art Assistant Librarian at Dartmouth College. Kent Kent is studying advertising. Aule Drefus is working at the University of Pennsylvania. She is a Research Assistant in the Behavioral Research Council. Cynthia Worsley is making use of her Art Major by assisting at designing textiles at Society Boylott & Company in New York. Alice Klein is a good part of the seniors with good jobs, she has done with a good deal of the work for New York Life Insurance Company and, as she says, she loves it.

Cathy e01l-.e good part of the seniors with good jobs, she has done with a good deal of the work for New York Life Insurance Company and, as she says, she loves it.

Thirteen of the 41 seniors have jobs. Sixteen of the seniors are doing editorial work, six are doing research, and two are employed by Life Insurance Company in New York, Ann Hitchinshon, Judy Rudberg, Marlene Shutt (Mme. John B. Folson), Jane Graham, Judy Goldenkoff, and Dorothy Bowler, all work for New York Life Insurance Company.

Societal Jobs

As always, there are many girls who are serving as secretaries in clerks, and typists. Some have gone to Kellerman Colleges in New York and in Boston, and others have gone in to various Graduate Schools.

Of the all the 1953 graduates who hold jobs, five are doing editorial work, advertising, and public relations, six are employed by schools, colleges, and as educational assistants. Two are working in scientific laboratories. These secretaries, ten are secretaries, three are government employees, eight are doing research, one is helping with teaching and advising, and twelve hold miscellaneous office jobs.

Missing: One Seminar

The college curriculum is presently divided into three fields; the general, the major, and the elective, and it supposes that requirements established for the student's major division will provide for the student's individual interest, which is the major component. Perhaps the college hopes to enlarge and develop the student's mind and curtail the limitations which force the student to make a choice of courses for present and future life.

Underestimated Enthusiasm

The predilection of the creative writing department in English has been of little concern to me and to several of my friends for the past two years. We have agitated in vain for more courses, and although the obstacles have been very real, I cannot believe that they are insuperable. Every department lacks money that it cannot spend; the facts we have learned are seen in a new light through these discussions. Nevertheless, any college which continues to maintain that obstinacy in the face of continuous agitation should be shamed.

You got one, too?

Just Talking

Problems of Future Resolved

At Students’ Ball Sessions

“Tonight I’m REALLY going to get to bed early.” This familiar sentiment can be categorized under the heading of Famous Last Words. Most often our failure to get that wished-for rest lies not in our beds and papers, our familiar excuses, but rather in that old good-fashioned institution, the Bull Session.

An outside observer of dormitory life, we could describe one of our bull sessions as something easy to get into and so hard to leave. There is a good deal more, however, which lies hidden, and a study within one of these bull sessions could oftentimes fill the world can be torn down and rebuilt in an evening. Although these discussions do nothing materially toward alleviating the problems of the world, they accomplish the admirable purpose of helping us become more aware of the world and our relations to its problems.

One of the purposes of a college education is to prepare us to meet the problems of the future. We believe that our bull sessions are an invaluable aid in accomplishing this end. Through these talks, we are able to reorganize and re-examine materials learned in class, in books, and in our own experiences. The facts we have learned are seen in a new light, as we are able to apply them in a new way to the problems under discussion.

Perhaps one of the most valuable contributions of these talks is that we are able to take advantage of freedom of speech in conferring with our elders. There is nothing so wonderful as the freedom to express our own ideas and, equally important, to listen to those of others. There is an atmosphere here of freedom, which should stimulate, and restrain, our contributions to any discussion. The ideas which we express may have their good and bad results, but they often mature in the discussions. NGB, NBP

Universities Offer Program of Summer Study in England

British Universities will again offer summer courses at four centers in 1954, according to D. J. Wenden, academic representative of the Summer Schools, who recently arrived in the United States on a visit to American colleges.

Mrs. Wenden, who is the Oxford University Summer School, spoke yesterday to the Connecticut Universities offering courses next summer. These will be given at Oxford, Cambridge and Stroud (University of Birmingham, Wenden reports that 250 graduate students from Columbia will be able to study for the University of Michigan, 82 students from Brown, and 27 from Wesleyan. 25-30 each from Bryn Mawr and Smith, and 5-10 from other American colleges.

Many Colleges Represented

The courses are open to college students, graduate students, and teachers. Many American universities and colleges have already registered for the summer courses. Since the beginning of the summer course in 1954, the British University has reported that 250 graduate students from Columbia have emigrated in the United States for the University of Michigan, 82 students from Brown, and 27 from Wesleyan. 25-30 each from Bryn Mawr and Smith, and 5-10 from other American colleges.

Credit Added

The Schools will be held six weeks, as usual, from June 20th to July 28th at American universities, and for two weeks in London and Oxford. Students accept for enrollment no fee, and for the 1954 summer courses, they must have applied for them if they wish. Mr. Wenden says that the advantages of visiting places of interest and of taking courses in England is a great help for students who have no opportunity to visit them for any reason.

The programs, which are the result of the students' studies in the United States and at the universities abroad, are of great importance in the students' studies. The programs include a visit to the university in England in the 17th and 18th Centuries, the culture and art of the period, and students will visit the Homes of "British Civilization."
Debbie Woodward

Debbie Woodward was elected Class President for the 1953-54 academic year. She is a junior from Windham, Connecticut. Debbie has been active in several activities, including being a member of the sailing club. She was elected president of the sailing club for the following year. Debbie has been more important and demanding on Debbie than any other activity. Debbie has been awarded a scholarship for her outstanding performance and smoke this past weekend you have smoked. It's a way to train whiffs, splitting golds, and all the other back-a-shoe sounds.

Chief Inspector

Among her other interests, skiing and children are at the head of the list. Debbie is an expert skier and hopes to go to Stowe, Vermont this winter. She likes the Laurentians best of all, and her other, who lives in Montreal, provides the good company for the skiing. She does it to get up there, stay for the children, and to manage an experienced hand in the kitchen. Debbie is a department by baby sitting for the faculty, especially the Birders.

Debbie has not definitely decided yet, however, for she may major in French. With a doctor-to-be sister, a business man brother, and a Missouri farmer, she's not sure what's left for her. The one thing she is sure of is that she will not follow a family trend!

Mr. Mayhew will illustrate his discussion of Madonnas in Art with selected slides of actual works of art.

U. of Wisconsin Writing Clinic Gives Tutorial Help to Troubled Students
How to slim down an over-stuffed sentence, put new blood into a rote phrase, and cope with poor spelling, grammar, and punctuation are all part of a unique training program offered by the University of Wisconsin Writing Clinic. Started last year as an experimental project of the English department, the clinic offers tutorial services to students who have failed to master the rudiments of good writing. For example:

Some students are able to turn out acceptable prose, but do not know how to spell. Others are good in spelling and grammar, but weak in organization and presentation. Some have become rusty through lack of sufficient stimulus to produce competent writing. Whatever the weakness, the clinic director, Mrs. Gladys Jerome, attempts to spot it and help the student find a remedy. Students come to the clinic by reference only. No one currently enrolled in a composition course is eligible. Clinic checkups include a number of tests covering grammar, spelling, punctuation, organization, comprehension. Those who show they can improve quickly are given individual training in the clinic; those who need formal course work receive a recommendation, made to the school or college, that they be required to repeat a course, or take an additional one, in written composition.

"One student referred to us had little difficulty in writing but couldn't spell," Mrs. Jerome says. "She was a fast reader and just scammed words. We attempted to help her learn to read slowly and visualize each word separately, breaking it down into its component parts." This is one of the basic steps in mastering spelling, learning to take words apart and look at what makes them tick, she says. "There's no magic about it. But we believe a closer acquaintance with words helps students avoid spelling pitfalls," she observes.

A thorough knowledge of prefixes, suffixes, and root words, she believes, is half the battle. For instance, if you want to change the adjective "stubborn" into a noun, fixes, suffixes, and root words, she observes. Unusual Gills
