Pres. Park Returns After Washington Education Meeting

President Park returned recently from the White House Conference on Education held in Washington. The aim of the conference was to discover national sentiment on education and to promote interest and activity in the problem among high school and college educators.

Approximately 800 delegates attended the conference. They were seated at 166 round tables, assigned so that at each table there was a cross-section of people in different capacities all over the country. It was suggested that a state conference follow this conference in order to apply some of the ideas brought out in Washington.

The conference was arranged in such a way that there was a chairman appointed from each round table who would meet with the other chairmen and draft a report which would be read by two people appointed from this group of chairmen.

The first question which was brought up was "What should our schools accomplish?" Other questions included the organization of school systems which applied to regional districts, school building needs and expansion, and the problem of getting enough good teachers and keeping them. There was a suggestion for the extension of scholarships to get more people who might fill teacher's positions.

Dr. Namba Relates Facts of Japanese Educational System

by Elaine Diamond

Perhaps you noticed a very distinguished guest on campus earlier this week. Dr. Monkichi Namba, president of Kobe College, Nishinomiya, Japan, visited Connecticut in conjunction with a grant he received from the Rockefeller Foundation to make a study of women's colleges in the United States.

Dr. Namba is interested in administration, general education, dormitory management, and extra-curricular activities. While at Connecticut, he was whisked from dormitories for meals, to interviews with the administration and faculty, to classrooms where he lectured and on and on, where, we hope, he was able to receive a good picture of the life of the school.

Dr. Namba particularly wishes to study dormitory living while in this country, as he feels that "a good education may be re-

Learned House Has Xmas Party Today

by Barbara Carney

Connecticut College is sponsoring a Christmas party for the children at Learned House today from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. One hundred boys and girls from the ages of four to fourteen will be guests at the party.

Santa Claus, loaded with gifts from Connecticut girls, will greet the children. Each girl purchased a gift for a boy or a girl within the age group assigned to her dorm. Santa will distribute these gifts to the children in front of the Christmas tree. The children will then see comic strip movies and play Christmas games. Afterwards, they will enjoy soda, ice cream, candy canes, and Christmas cookies.

The Connecticut girls who have been working at Learned House will supervise the games and entertainment.

High school students affiliated with Kobe College, Nishinomiya, Japan, participate in annual field day.

ceived in the dormitory." At Kobe College only one hundred and fifty of the eight hundred and fifty students who attend the school, board. At present, Kobe is building another dormitory, and Dr. Namba hopes that more living space can be supplied for the students soon.

The Japanese system of education is very much like that of the United States. Before the war, Japanese schools were patterned after German institutions, but when the Germans were defeated, the Japanese turned to the American type of schooling. Kobe College is a liberal arts school that offers four main fields of concentration to the student: English lit-

Dr. Napier of Yale To Be the Speaker At Vespers, Jan. 8

Speaking at the vesper service on Sunday, January 8, will be Dr. B. Davie Napier, associate professor of Old Testament in Yale Divinity School. Born in China of American missionary parents, he received his early education there, his A.B. from Howard College (Birmingham, Alabama), his B.D. and Ph.D. from Yale. In 1939 he was holder of Yale's Two Brothers Fellowship, and on coming to Yale as teacher was elected a Fellow of Calhoun College there.

His ministerial experience includes pastorates in Congregational churches in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Georgia, in two cases serving as minister of music. Partly in conjunction with his church work, he also served as teacher in the departments of religion in Judson College, Alabama; in Alfred University, N. Y.; and in the University of Georgia. He is the author of From Faith to Faith, recently published, and of various articles on religious subjects in religious journals.

La Belle Verriere to Return As Christmas Pageant Theme

MARIE WATERMAN

To culminate the Christmas activities on campus, the Art Department in conjunction with a senior committee and faculty committee will sponsor the annual Christmas Pageant tonight and tomorrow night, December 16, in Palmer Auditorium at 8:00. Student chairman of the pageant, an art major, is Marie Waterman '56.

This year's presentation is a production of La Belle Verriere, a traditional story of the dedication of a window in the famous cathedral at Chartres in 1260. La Belle Verriere has been produced many times before at Connecticut, the last time in 1948. The cast is composed of both students and faculty.

The Pageant Madonna, a senior, is voted upon by the senior class according to the qualities stipulated by the committee. The results of the vote remain unknown until the Madonna is unveiled at the Friday night performance. In the rehearsals and on Thursday evening, the girl who received the second largest number of votes assumes the role of the Madonna.

Committee Chairmen

Assisting the chairman, is a faculty committee composed of Miss Hazlewood, the director, Mr. Quimby, Dr. Laubenstein, Miss Tuve and Miss Hanson. The student committee chairmen are: Cynthia Van Der Kar, costumes; Peggy Mark, make-up; Jean Pentz, business manager; Carolyn Pfeifer, props; Doris Frankenstein, lights; and Esther Pickard, stage manager. The set was designed and constructed by Marie Waterman. Dusty Heimbach is junior sub chairman of the production.

No tickets are required for this year's performance. The Thursday night production is open to the public; the final performance is given for the college community.

Merit Scholarships Given to Students

A nationwide search for talent at the high school level is the feature of a new program designed to locate young men and women of high aptitude and make it possible for them to go to college regardless of their financial means. The National Merit Scholarship Corporation is the largest independent college scholarship program in the history of American education. With initial funds of 20½ million dollars, the new corporation is expected to serve as an instrument by which business and industry may increase their support of higher education in the United States.

Gay Carolers Brave Cold Night; Sophs Rise at Sat. Dawn

by Susie Rike

Gay caroling groups made up of students and faculty will bundle up in warm clothes and spread the Christmas spirit throughout the campus. Tomorrow night, after the Christmas pageant, the Freshman class will gather in front of the post office. They will serenade both faculty and students, stopping first at President Park's house, where they will present her with a wreath. Nancy Kushlan, the freshman song leader, will lead the group as they sing. It might be added that the Freshmen are looking forward to the goodies they have been told will be thrown to them from the upperclassmen.

Faculty Will Carol

Also, on Friday night, around 9:30 the more hearty faculty will carol, led by Mr. Strider. They will go to all of the dorms. This tradition began six or seven years ago, and is loved by both the students and the participating faculty.

The Sophomore class will arise at 6:00 Saturday morning for their traditional caroling. Despite the early hour, most sophomores seem very enthusiastic. However, there have been some requests for early morning "tidbits" to "tide them over" until breakfast. They plan to sing to President Park and Dean Burdick, as well as to the students.

The Christmas spirit certainly has not been lacking on campus. The French, German, and Italian Clubs held an International

Adult Education Increasing; Lectures by Strider, Mayhew Popular With New Londoners

by Vicki de Castro

The trend toward adult education is growing, as exemplified by the extensive program maintained here in New London. About 3,000 of the town's people, nearly a tenth of the adult population, attend adult education classes. The classes, sponsored by the public school system, range in material from Upholstering to Art Appreciation. Most of the courses offered are practical courses, such as cooking and sewing, but others include English for the foreign born, arts and crafts, and cultural courses. For a long time the College has been working in connection with New London's adult education program. Bill 106 has served as the classroom, where members of our faculty have taught evening classes.

Large Interested Classes

For the last five years, Mr. Strider has given courses in English. He has taught courses on Shakespeare, American Literature, The Literature of the Bible, the Twentieth Century Novel, a survey of Drama from Oedipus to Death of a Salesman, and a Survey of English Poetry. The year is divided into two semesters, most of the courses being single semester courses, given over a period of ten weeks with one lecture a week. Last night Mr. Strider gave a lecture on Hemingway and Faulkner, the last in a series on a Survey of American Literature. Mr. Strider says that the attendance at his classes is large, the audience ranging from professional men, to service men, to housewives. He says that he has enjoyed meeting these people, and has especially enjoyed teaching them because of their intense interest. Mr. Strider believes that because they are not taking his course for credit, and since there are no tests, that these people must have a tremendous urge to learn. Their interest is manifest in the questions they ask about what to read, and in their request for a reading list. Mr. Strider finds teaching such appreciative people extremely rewarding and gratifying.

Also active in connection with New London's adult education program is Mr. Mayhew of the Art Department. Tonight he will give the final lecture in an Art Appreciation course. Each week Mr. Mayhew discusses a particular artist, supplementing his lecture with slides of the major works of that artist. Among the men he has covered are Giotto, Donatello, Leonardo da Vinci, Michelangelo, Picasso, and Cezanne. Mr. Mayhew says that he, too, has been delighted by the tremendous audience. He finds the people very interested, and says they "seem to have a good time." He enjoys teaching the adult classes, because as he put it, "such an adequate response is a pleasure to the teacher."

News Does Apologies

Dear Editor,

In fairness to two members of Wig and Candle whose work in last week's production was to have been praised if your proof-reader had seen eye to eye with me, I would like to correct two statements that appeared in my review of The Children's Hour.

Of Miss Sydney Wrightson's characterization I said that it was always believable, rather than almost. And of Miss Peggy Marks' make-up work I said, rather ponderously, to be sure: it was a delight to see a young lady playing the part of an old lady without the forehead ruled like sheet-music and the eyes stamped like crows-feet. Omission of the italicized phrase left a very bizarre sentence and none of the admiration I intended to express for Miss Marks' work.

Another year's past, and Christmas is here; So how would you like us to bring you some cheer?

We have a few presents we'd like to bestow; On your mark, get set, 'cause here we go!

To Pippy and the Nutmeg a hearty best wish For a pleasant relief from Friday night fish.

To the New Haven Railroad, we'll give a fat dime If one train next year leaves the station on time.

We leave to the library a key to the stacks

In hopes that the books will remain in the racks.

To the coffee makers we give a big thank-a;

Keep up the instant, but cut out the sank-a.

Regulars are fine, king size divine,

An eternal cigarette is next on the line.

To Ford we say we're as happy as can be;

You've set us a model that suits to a T.

To Miss Tuve for Susie we'll give a red bow,

Although we know she needs no extra glow.

For the New London Water Company a hope we'll scribble

That next year will pass without even a dribble.

Mr. Christiansen, we give you a burglar alarm

To prevent late night snowmen from doing you harm.

The mouse man we give more protection from vermin;

You know how we hate to let any old germ in.

To the chem building we leave a deaf ear to that wail

From the students who will say, "I'm going to Hale."

The Infirmary needs only one wish for next year

That those with mono will soon be all clear.

Now we have finished and done our best;

Merry Christmas to all, and to all a good rest!

Education Unlimited

Although the recent White House Conference was not intended as a solution to the problems of education, it is generally felt that it can lead to positive action toward a solution. This conference was an encouraging sign of the growing interest in the schools and colleges of this country. Even greater evidence of the attention given to this problem was the Ford Foundation grant of half a billion dollars to several colleges and hospitals throughout the United States.

Connecticut received a part of this Ford grant to be used for additional benefits for the teachers. The mainstay of any college is its faculty, and Connecticut is fortunate in having an unusually distinguished and talented teaching staff. The Ford Foundation grant will enable us to continue to attract and to keep such people on the campus.

The education of the growing population of this country has become a problem because of the rise in the number of college age men and women who plan to finish either two or four years of college. The question of expansion has been brought up among many colleges such as Connecticut in the last few years, and with expansion will also come the need for more and better teachers to take care of the influx of students. Consequently, when interest is aroused in education and financial help given, it is an indication of national sentiment toward the field of education.—JLJ

Mrs. Ruby Kennedy Attends Conference

Educators from New England, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania colleges met at Barnard College on December 10 to attend the fourth annual Eastern College Conference on Functional Education, a workshop discussion of undergraduate field work programs.

The all-day conference began at 9:30 a.m. and in six sessions considered the relationship of community field work to academic study, the placement of undergraduates in field situations, field exchange programs between colleges, and how students can best be trained to do field research. The program concluded with a summary and business session at 4:00 p.m.

Dr. Meyer Chairman

Dr. Gladys Meyer, associate professor of sociology at Barnard, was chairman of the meeting. The workshop sessions were moderated by: Professor Edward Solomon of Sarah Lawrence College, Professor Clarice Pennock and Professor Leslie Koempel, both of Vassar College; Professor Mary Ellen Goodman of Boston, Mass.; Professor Richard Brotman of The City College of New York and Barnard, and Professor Leona Kerstetter of Hunter College.

The program was planned by the Eastern College Conference's standing committee. President Buell Gallagher and Dr. Harry Shulman of The City College of New York; Mr. Clyde Murray of Columbia University; Professor LeRoy Brown of Brooklyn College; Dean Weldon Welfing of Simmons College; Professor Ruby Jo Reeves Kennedy of Connecticut College; Professor Vincent Whitney of Brown University, and Professor Jane Judge of Sarah Lawrence are members of the committee.

On the question of the financing of schools, two groups out of three favored federal aid in order to help the states with their local problems. The majority of the delegates, however, did not favor the use of tax funds for non-public schools.

There were no definite votes taken at the conference and many of the ideas were merely assertions of the need for education. However, it was felt that, although no immediate action could rise directly out of the conference, it was a forward step in arousing national sentiment concerning the problem of education in this country.

Opportunity Calls Graduate Students To Foreign Posts

Opportunities to study or teach in France during 1956-57 are available to American graduate students, it was announced Sunday by Kenneth Holland, president of the Institute of International Education.

The French government is offering approximately thirty university fellowships through the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and forty teaching assistantships through the Ministry of Education. The fellowship awards are for students with definite academic projects or study plans. The assistantships afford language teaching experience and an opportunity to become better acquainted with France.

Nominations or candidates for fellowships and assistantships will be made by a joint committee of French and American educators working in cooperation with the French Cultural Services and the Institute of International Education.

Closing date for application is February 1, 1956.

The French Government awards are open to men and women preferably under 30 years of age. Applicants must be U.S. citizens. Other eligibility requirements are: a bachelor's degree. See "Opportunity"—Page 5

JULIE SOLMSEN

Julie Solmssen to Head Active 1959 Class in Projects

by Sue Carvalho

Julie Solmssen '59 has been kept busy this fall with her duties as president of Grace Smith, but her responsibilities have increased with her election as president of the freshman class.

Tall, attractive Julie hails from Essex Fells, New Jersey, where she attended Montclair High School before coming to Connecticut. She was Art Editor of her high school yearbook, on the Honor Study committee, active in the Athletic Association for three years, and also found time to do Social Service work. She hopes to be a sociology major at Connecticut.

Skiing, tennis, and traveling are her favorite pastimes, not to mention art, which she practiced last winter as an assistant in an art workshop for little children.

Her past two summers have been spent as a counselor at a camp on Cape Cod. Although she left at a very young age, Julie has returned twice to Switzerland, her birthplace.

Ann Lewis

December 26 means more than the day after Christmas to Ann Lewis '56. That is the date of her marriage to Storrs Warinner, a 2nd Lieutenant in the Air Force. Ann, who lives in Freeport, Long Island, met Storrs, a Garden City resident, the summer after her Senior year in High School when they were introduced by a friend of hers. They were pinned in February of Ann's Sophomore year, and were engaged on October 29 of this year. Storrs, now stationed in Waco, Texas, went to Hampden-Sydney College in Virginia. After their marriage in Rockville Centre, Long Island, the couple will live in Waco. Ann plans to finish second semester away and to graduate from Connecticut.

Laura Elliman

On August 20 Laura Elliman '56 will be married to Bob (Bo) Nutt, a Dartmouth '49 graduate. They met in Staten Island while they were both working on a play being given by a local theater group a year and a half ago. Bo, who lives near Laura in Staten Island, is now with an Advertising Agency in New York. They plan to be married on June 16, and they will live in Staten Island.

Many Conn. Graduates Return On Faculty, Administration

by Vicki de Castro

Here is the last installment: Assistant Professor of Zoology is MISS BERNICE WHEELER, a member of the class of 1937. Since majoring in Zoology here at Connecticut, Miss Wheeler has been outstanding in the science field. She happily attributes her desire to continue in Zoology to the influence of her instructor here, Miss Botsford. Miss Wheeler went on to Yale to get her Ph.D. in Zoology. She was then asked back to teach in our Zoology Department. Her special fields are Genetics and Evolution. Last year she received a Ford Foundation Fellowship for studying Geology at Yale. She is interested in the relationship of Zoology to Geology. The definite merit of her work is seen in her election to Sigma Xi, an honorary scientific society.

Classmate of Miss Thumm's is MRS. MAY A. NELSON, Assistant in the Admissions Office. As a student here, Mrs. Nelson majored in Zoology, graduated with honors, and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. As a commuter, she was treasurer of their club. During the summers, while she was still a student, she worked in the Admissions Office, and after graduation she continued working there.

MISS THELMA M. GILKES, a member of the class of 1939, is Cataloguer for Palmer Library. As a student at Connecticut, she became interested in library work and in cataloguing in particular. She worked and was trained for this special job throughout her four years here. In 1943 she returned to replace Miss White, her former teacher, as Cataloguer. Miss Gilkes was a History and Government major. She remembers her classes with a great deal of pleasure; she found them "stimulating experiences" to which she would look forward from day to day. As evidence of her interest and her accomplishment in her work, Miss Gilkes was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

Also working in the library is MRS. CONSTANCE CARNEY, a member of the class of 1941. Mrs. Carney majored in Zoology. As a commuter, she was Newspaper Correspondent for the Commuter's Club. When she first returned to CC, she assisted in the Chemistry Department and later switched to library work.

MISS MARY A. CUSATI works in the Reserve Room of the library. Miss Cusati has been back at Connecticut for three years. While a student here, she majored in French and minored in Italian.

MISS HELEN K. AITNER, a member of the class of 1946, also works in the library. Miss Aitner, like Miss Cusati, was a French major. She holds the position of Reference and Documentary Librarian and has been back at CC for five years.

As a student here Miss Kaiser majored in Philosophy, became a Winthrop Scholar, and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. As Secretary of Honor Court, Community Services and Chairman of Service League, she played an active part in student government. She was Madonna in the Christmas pageant of the class of 1953, and after graduating from CC, she won a Fulbright Scholarship for study in Germany.

Working for Pressboard in the Publicity Office is MRS. CLAIRE W. ENGLE, a member of the class of 1954. Mrs. Engle majored in English and was head of Pressboard her senior year. After graduating she began working for the New London Day. She told me that ten minutes after she left that paper, she received a phone call from a fellow alumna telling her of the position here at CC. It was perfect timing. She obtained the position and has been working in See "Conn. Grads"—Page 4

Santa Claus Comes To Celebrate Xmas At Each Dorm Party

by Betsy Wolfe

Santa Claus, realizing the value of a feminine labor force, extended his workshop to Connecticut College dormitories. After his recruits started working, a boom in good will and Christmas cheer appeared.

Emily Abbey had their annual Christmas Open House on December 10 and 11. The weekend started with a morning decorating party. Dates and friends entered into the fun later and played games with eight Learned House Children who all stayed for dinner. On Sunday afternoon, Open House was held for parents, faculty, and other students.

Knowlton House girls are all contributing $1.02 in order that two or three underprivileged New York City children may be sent to some suburban home for Christmas Day.

Santa Claus and Miss L. Toe will have a gay time at Mary Harkness dormitory when the girls must come to their party dressed as an image of the song, The Twelve Days of Christmas. Dressed as little girls who believe in Santa Claus, Winthrop girls will come to their party where they will announce who made the best tree and dorm decorations.

The girls in Vinal are entertaining faculty and are having Christmas cookies baked by their house-fellow.

If Santa Claus finds that someone has beat him down the chimney, it is just one of the many secret Santas on campus. Every dorm is full of them.

Merry Christmas to all of Santa's helpers. His workshop is a wonderful place where working-men's compensation is a rewarding smile on the face of a Learned House child, a New York City tenement child, or one of your friends.

Busy Bee Director Buzzes with Active Extra-Curric Plans

Art, Theatre Interest Marie; W. & C. Jobs Gave Stage Experience

by Sue Adler

When one is looking for Marie Waterman, she will have a difficult time, for Marie, the director of the Christmas Pageant, is usually busy at some campus activity. The girls in her dorm, Windham, suggest the possibility of finding her at a Conn Chord rehearsal, or a Wig and Candle meeting, or in another dorm working on the promotion of Rec Hall. This vivacious senior is the chairman of the Rec Hall committee along with her many other extra-curricular activities. This reporter finally found Marie in the Auditorium workshop, where she took time out from painting sets for the Christmas Pageant to talk about herself.

Costume Designer

Marie's special interests are art and the theater. She has done a major part of the costuming for compet plays of her class since her freshman year, and, besides being a member of the cast she worked on costumes for the Junior Show presented on Father's Day last year. In her sophomore year she was both social chairman and ring chairman of her class. Marie is majoring in art, and after graduation she plans to return to her home, New York City, to enter the field of either fashion designing or theatrical costuming. She designs and makes most of her own clothes.

Hard Working Team

The director of the Christmas Pageant is appointed by the Art Department and the chairman of the pageant of the previous year. The plans are formulated at the end of October, but this year, because of the recent Wig and Candle production, there has been little time for much productive activity. Therefore, the committee has worked hard with little time.

Marie is very proud of her committee; she says that they have all been unusually cooperative and attentive in the short time they have had to prepare for the actual production. The members of the committee are equally proud of their chairman, because Marie has led them ably, and worked tirelessly to help make the 1955 Christmas Pageant a magnificent presentation.

Dr. Namba's administration. Students in Japan attend high school for six years.

The extra-curricular activities at Kobe College are very similar to those at Connecticut. Sports, such as basketball, riding, volleyball, and golf, are important. The Japanese are very skilled in the dramatic arts and Kobe College often puts on plays by Shakespeare and other Western authors, sometimes in English and other times in Japanese. When asked what most of the girls want to do after they graduate, Dr. Namba replied, "they want to get married." Many of the students at the school are married.

Western ideas have taken a strong hold on the Japanese people. The younger generation and many of the older people wear only Western-styled clothing. One reason for this is that the Japanese kimonos are very expensive. The buildings now being built are volve a nationwide scholarship competition in which all of the approximately 25,000 secondary schools in the country, public and private, will participate on an equal basis. Mr. John Stalnaker, president of the board of the corporation, explained that each scholarship granted will carry with it an annual supplemental "cost of education" grant to the colleges and universities selected by the scholarship winners. The supplement will roughly equal the cost of tuition, in recognition of the fact that tuition now covers only part of the cost of educating a student to any college.

Scholarships

Mr. Laird Bell, chairman of the board, observed that even in a period of rising college enrollments, about half of the high school graduates ranking in the upper quarter of their class were not going on to college. "Without new measures to locate the best brains among our youth and encourage their further education in larger number than at present," he said, "the nation will fall far short of developing its vital sources of talent and leadership."

The corporation's initial working funds came through grants by The Ford Foundation and the Carnegie Corporation of New York. Industry donors include The Sears-Roebuck Foundation and Time Inc.

The first scholarships will be awarded before May 1, 1956; the first winners will enter the colleges of their choice in September 1956. It is estimated that there will be at least two hundred four-year scholarships granted.

the floor, and he obligingly helped her up when her leg went to sleep. A graduate of the class of '55 from Yale, Michael is now Head of Public Relations for the Borroughs Research Lab. Lyn will not come back to Connecticut after Christmas, and the wedding will take place on the week end between semesters of this year.

Nancy Scholnick

A blind date arranged by Ricky Sprafkin March 19 of her Freshman year was the first time Nancy Scholnick '58 met her fiance, Jon Blum. The couple will live in Philadelphia.

the Publicity Office for the last two months.

From last June's class is MRS. NANCY DOHRING LEVITT, who teaches in the Nursery School. Mrs. Levitt majored in Child Development, and in connection with her major, spent much of her time working in the Nursery School. Miss Warner, its head, asked her to come back. While a student, Mrs. Levitt was an active member of the Choir. She admits that, though she is now a faculty member, it seems very strange to call Mr. Quimby, Arthur. She says that though she loves it, it "feels very funny" being back as a part of the faculty, and not as a student, and that sometimes it makes her rather lonely to look around campus and not see the faces that were so familiar.

Another of last year's graduates is MRS. CYNTHIA R. WORKMAN. Since September Mrs. Workman has been teaching in the Home Economics Department and directing operations down at Emily Abbey. As a student, she majored in Home Economics, and was a member of the Home Economics Club. What Mrs. Workman enjoys most about her change from student to faculty, is her coming to the full realization that faculty members are human beings. In addition to this, she says, she has gained an understanding of why things at Connecticut are run as they are.

in Western-type architecture, and perhaps, most important of all, the Japanese now have a constitution based on the American Constitution.

Even though the country has been westernized to such an extent, Communism is still a strong force in Japan. In Dr. Namba's words, "Japanese society is insecure and changing very rapidly. During the war, most of the people lost their homes and property. Many of the people are very poor and many of the younger generation want to change the society."

"Japan is now under a capitalistic society, and a change would mean either a socialistic or a communistic system. The college students are interested in these movements and it is very easy for them to express their ideas because the recent Japanese constitution provides for freedom of speech and assembly."

Russian Propaganda

Anybody can now study or teach anything he wishes and, consequently, many of the higher institutions of learning are teaching both communism and democracy. Dr. Namba says that the Japanese are now midway between the two schools of thought. They want a psychological change and the Russians and Chinese Communists are doing their best to provide it. There is a great deal of Russian propaganda, and Soviet literature, music, and the like are common in Japan. Some of the people respond warmly, although Dr. Namba says that they are in the minority. It is obvious that a democratic regime controls the country but the communist menace is strong.

School Begins in April

The school year in Japan begins in April. The main reason for this is that the government budget begins at that time and most of the schools are public institutions. Dr. Namba must be back at Kobe College in time for commencement exercises in March and, before then, he intends to visit Europe. He recently returned from five weeks in San Francisco.

Aside from being president of Kobe College, Dr. Namba teaches sociology and cultural anthropology at the school. He has studied Sociology at Harvard University. Dr. Namba has been a member of the Board of Directors of the Japanese Sociological Society and, in 1951, belonged to the Board of Directors of the Japanese National Federation of UNESCO Associations. In 1951 he was a member of the Harvard Faculty Club, in 1952 a member of the council of the Japanese Society of Ethnology, and in the same year, also became a member of L'Institut International de Sociologie.

from an American college or university by the time of departure; good academic record; good knowledge of French; correct usage of English; good moral character, personality and adaptability; and good health.

Recipients of French teaching assistantships will teach conversational English in secondary schools and teacher training institutions in France. These posts are intended for future teachers of French. A few applicants with special training in American literature and some experience in college teaching may be selected for postes de lecteurs, teaching assignments in French universities. Stipends cover maintenance.

Graduate fellowships are open to students in all fields of study. In the field of medicine, candidates must have the M.D. degree. Fellows study in French universities and other state institutions. These awards provide tuition and a modest maintenance.

Since the number of supplementary travel grants is limited, applicants should be prepared to pay their own travel.

Applicants for the French Government awards should apply to the United States Student Department of the Institute of International Education.
