New student health plan has only one full-time doctor

by Caris Gordon

With only one full time physician at the infirmary this semester, the college has instituted a new student health program featuring the increased use of paramedics and part-time specialists. The program may become permanent.

This new program was instituted when a physician who had been hired by Conn to replace Dr. Ronald L. Fishman decided not to come and informed the school of that on January 21. By too late to get someone else, Fishman, whose contract terminated at the end of last semester, was not rehired.

Under this new system as explained by Dr. Mary N. Hall, director of the Student Health Service, a doctor will be available through a paramedic’s discretion, not a student’s. It is no longer possible to see a doctor by just saying, “I want to see a doctor.”

A student must first see a paramedic. “A paramedic serves students who need medical attention, but not a doctor,” said Dr. Hall. A paramedic is a nurse trained to diagnose and dispense treatments for certain illnesses and injuries. The paramedic is under the standing orders of Dr. Hall. Conn presently has one paramedic, Lois M. Hall, R.N. Another is being trained.

An appointment will be needed to see a paramedic who will be in constant communication with Dr. Hall.

Specialists from New London Hospital will be available people to protect themselves by the proper use of keys they are given and by asking permission of others by the kind of basic consideration that people living in a group must always have for one another,” Mr. Shain himself said that this answer to the question, “What will be done to prevent this from recurring?”

Mr. Sain responded, “All we can do is try to persuade ourselves that the menu will be better for the College if the matter is dropped,” he said.

Although the woman had not positively identified her assailant, investigation after the incident occurred indicated that the man is a Connecticut College student, according to Mr. Shain.

“The first thing he said upon entering the room was ‘Are you all right?’” he continued.

It is “possible but improbable” that the attacker was a Conn student. Pointing to the fact that the man knew the woman’s name, Mr. Shain has suggested that it was “someone who comes up to the College looking for girls. Someone perhaps who moves from dormitory to dormitory.”

Evidence does suggest he was looking for a particular girl. “It also seems probable that he had moved into the room before and that he hoped in the darkness that he would not be identified,” added Mr. Shain.

Dr. Hall reported that although there have been only two rapes on Campus in recent years, about four or five people are assaulted on the campus and in the Arboretum a semester. “No one should go into the Arboretum alone day or night,” she warned.

Connecticut College students have also been assaulted and raped in downtown New London and on the grounds of the Coast Guard Academy.

In an answer to the question, “What will be done to prevent this from recurring?” Mr. Sain responded, “All we can do is try to persuade ourselves that the menu will be better for the College if the matter is dropped,” he said.

Although the woman had not positively identified her assailant, investigation after the incident occurred indicated that the man is a Connecticut College student, according to Mr. Shain.

“The first thing he said upon entering the room was ‘Are you all right?’” he continued.

It is “possible but improbable” that the attacker was a Conn student. Pointing to the fact that the man knew the woman’s name, Mr. Shain has suggested that it was “someone who comes up to the College looking for girls. Someone perhaps who moves from dormitory to dormitory.”

Evidence does suggest he was looking for a particular girl. “It also seems probable that he had moved into the room before and that he hoped in the darkness that he would not be identified,” added Mr. Shain.

Dr. Hall reported that although there have been only two rapes on Campus in recent years, about four or five people are assaulted on the campus and in the Arboretum a semester. “No one should go into the Arboretum alone day or night,” she warned.

Connecticut College students have also been assaulted and raped in downtown New London and on the grounds of the Coast Guard Academy.

In an answer to the question, “What will be done to prevent this from recurring?” Mr. Sain responded, “All we can do is try to persuade ourselves that the menu will be better for the College if the matter is dropped,” he said.

Although the woman had not positively identified her assailant, investigation after the incident occurred indicated that the man is a Connecticut College student, according to Mr. Shain.

“The first thing he said upon entering the room was ‘Are you all right?’” he continued.

It is “possible but improbable” that the attacker was a Conn student. Pointing to the fact that the man knew the woman’s name, Mr. Shain has suggested that it was “someone who comes up to the College looking for girls. Someone perhaps who moves from dormitory to dormitory.”

Evidence does suggest he was looking for a particular girl. “It also seems probable that he had moved into the room before and that he hoped in the darkness that he would not be identified,” added Mr. Shain.

Dr. Hall reported that although there have been only two rapes on Campus in recent years, about four or five people are assaulted on the campus and in the Arboretum a semester. “No one should go into the Arboretum alone day or night,” she warned.

Connecticut College students have also been assaulted and raped in downtown New London and on the grounds of the Coast Guard Academy.

In an answer to the question, “What will be done to prevent this from recurring?” Mr. Sain responded, “All we can do is try to persuade ourselves that the menu will be better for the College if the matter is dropped,” he said.

Although the woman had not positively identified her assailant, investigation after the incident occurred indicated that the man is a Connecticut College student, according to Mr. Shain.

“The first thing he said upon entering the room was ‘Are you all right?’” he continued.

It is “possible but improbable” that the attacker was a Conn student. Pointing to the fact that the man knew the woman’s name, Mr. Shain has suggested that it was “someone who comes up to the College looking for girls. Someone perhaps who moves from dormitory to dormitory.”

Evidence does suggest he was looking for a particular girl. “It also seems probable that he had moved into the room before and that he hoped in the darkness that he would not be identified,” added Mr. Shain.

Dr. Hall reported that although there have been only two rapes on Campus in recent years, about four or five people are assaulted on the campus and in the Arboretum a semester. “No one should go into the Arboretum alone day or night,” she warned.

Connecticut College students have also been assaulted and raped in downtown New London and on the grounds of the Coast Guard Academy.

In an answer to the question, “What will be done to prevent this from recurring?” Mr. Sain responded, “All we can do is try to persuade ourselves that the menu will be better for the College if the matter is dropped,” he said.

Although the woman had not positively identified her assailant, investigation after the incident occurred indicated that the man is a Connecticut College student, according to Mr. Shain.

“The first thing he said upon entering the room was ‘Are you all right?’” he continued.

It is “possible but improbable” that the attacker was a Conn student. Pointing to the fact that the man knew the woman’s name, Mr. Shain has suggested that it was “someone who comes up to the College looking for girls. Someone perhaps who moves from dormitory to dormitory.”

Evidence does suggest he was looking for a particular girl. “It also seems probable that he had moved into the room before and that he hoped in the darkness that he would not be identified,” added Mr. Shain.

Dr. Hall reported that although there have been only two rapes on Campus in recent years, about four or five people are assaulted on the campus and in the Arboretum a semester. “No one should go into the Arboretum alone day or night,” she warned.

Connecticut College students have also been assaulted and raped in downtown New London and on the grounds of the Coast Guard Academy.

In an answer to the question, “What will be done to prevent this from recurring?” Mr. Sain responded, “All we can do is try to persuade ourselves that the menu will be better for the College if the matter is dropped,” he said.

Although the woman had not positively identified her assailant, investigation after the incident occurred indicated that the man is a Connecticut College student, according to Mr. Shain.

“The first thing he said upon entering the room was ‘Are you all right?’” he continued.

It is “possible but improbable” that the attacker was a Conn student. Pointing to the fact that the man knew the woman’s name, Mr. Shain has suggested that it was “someone who comes up to the College looking for girls. Someone perhaps who moves from dormitory to dormitory.”

Evidence does suggest he was looking for a particular girl. “It also seems probable that he had moved into the room before and that he hoped in the darkness that he would not be identified,” added Mr. Shain.

Dr. Hall reported that although there have been only two rapes on Campus in recent years, about four or five people are assaulted on the campus and in the Arboretum a semester. “No one should go into the Arboretum alone day or night,” she warned.

Connecticut College students have also been assaulted and raped in downtown New London and on the grounds of the Coast Guard Academy.

In an answer to the question, “What will be done to prevent this from recurring?” Mr. Sain responded, “All we can do is try to persuade ourselves that the menu will be better for the College if the matter is dropped,” he said.

Although the woman had not positively identified her assailant, investigation after the incident occurred indicated that the man is a Connecticut College student, according to Mr. Shain.

“The first thing he said upon entering the room was ‘Are you all right?’” he continued.

It is “possible but improbable” that the attacker was a Conn student. Pointing to the fact that the man knew the woman’s name, Mr. Shain has suggested that it was “someone who comes up to the College looking for girls. Someone perhaps who moves from dormitory to dormitory.”

Evidence does suggest he was looking for a particular girl. “It also seems probable that he had moved into the room before and that he hoped in the darkness that he would not be identified,” added Mr. Shain.

Dr. Hall reported that although there have been only two rapes on Campus in recent years, about four or five people are assaulted on the campus and in the Arboretum a semester. “No one should go into the Arboretum alone day or night,” she warned.
Giant steps for Connecticut College

The new Pundit leadership takes office during a semester more pivotal even than the one in which the College greeted its first male undergraduates. All over the country, the course of higher education is being set for all time. Questions as basic as who should be educated, towards what end and at what cost have never been more pressing. Since the word “relevant” became a cliché in the 60’s.

At Conn, such questions are headed up by the quest for the first new president in a dozen years. Who the new leader will be and how and she or he is selected will be the first giant step towards the new way Conn continues to adapt to the educational times.

But from today, it is becoming easier to predict where the giant step will land. Not all of the signs are welcome. The recent Summer Study report gave some impetus to the view that faculty members are among the most expendable of this College’s resources. And like some backwoods board of education, it gave honor to the practice of using students head counts for establishing which colleges and departments are valuable and worth having (a policy repeated by Course Information Book promoters).

Pundit recognizes that a liberal arts education is expensive. But good books and good teachers — even in subjects tonge may be — are what a liberal arts education is all about. The renovator. Pundit will encourage education as a priority, and encourage budget-minded policy makers to look to more courageous solutions to their problems. In spite of what President Charles E. Shain has said publicly, the Summer Commission did not even attempt to look into such questions as whether costs may be cut by taking air conditioning out of Fanning, by closing a dining room or two or by seriously examining superfluity at the administrative and secretarial levels.

The status of minority group members and women on campus is sure to be a subject for thoughtful discussion this semester. Conn, which has been guilty of paying and promoting its women less than its men, is initiating action to remedy this situation. Pundit only hopes that Conn develops an enthusiastic spirit in this regard. Advertising to Conn is “an equal opportunity employer,” as the trustees have done in their search for a new president, is no longer adequate, philosophically and often legally. The more enlightened phrase in the scholarly trade these days is “affirmative action employer,” meaning that the employer is actively seeking qualified candidates who have in the past experienced discrimination. In the next several weeks, as the housing lottery is developed, criticism of an all-black dormitory will hopefully reawaken.

Pundit will also speak to the deterioration of campus life which Mr. Shain rightly says is one of his greatest worries this semester. Like the replacement of Mr. Shain, the replacement of student leaders during the election late this month will indicate something about where we are going. Students, without adequate powers to elect a new leader will be and how he or she is selected will be the first giant step towards the new way Conn continues to adapt to the educational times.

Pundit editorial board expands

Pundit announces eight new additions to its editorial board.

The new members are: Lynn L. Cole, news editor; Susan J. Maunder, features editor; Nina LaPointe, arts editor; Judith H. Boland and Elizabeth K. Huffer, fine arts editors; Sandy Parkman, photography editor; and Jacqueline S. Cooper and Rachel D. Carley, graphics supplements.

The editorial board positions were advertised in Pundit and on posters. There were no applications for the positions of sports editor.

The editorial board is the group whose job it is to establish the philosophical and aesthetic tone of the paper. The large number of vacancies this semester were caused by resignations, December, graduation, and transfers.

Among the more positive developments Pundit looks forward to this semester is an upgrading of outside coverage of cultural activities. Pundit will encourage growth in this valuable aspect of college life with both previews and reviews of such events.

Not the least of Pundit’s obligations will be to the Pundit staff. Pundit is presently the only opportunity for Conn students to develop journalism skills. The new editors will expect higher quality journalistic writing, and will make arrangements to help the reporters towards that goal. The editors are developing plans to pursue the journalistic techniques, at the same time that journalists address the staff room time to time. If these initial plans are successful, Pundit would hope that journalism would earn its rightful place in the academic curriculum.

By necessity, a newspaper cannot fulfill its obligations to its readers unless it has independence from those about whom it writes. Pundit will fight, if this college council if that group of administrative, faculty and student leaders again attempts, as it did last semester, to interfere with legitimate operations of the Pundit. The newspaper believes that it acts as a valuable check on such college decisions-makers and its freedom should not be taken lightly. Pundit will try to secure its independence for next semester by lobbying for direct funding from the student comprehensive fee. Presently, it must ask College Council for money.

In its news and editorial writing, Pundit intends to place kudos and blame at the feet of those who deserve it. Pundit believes that it is in the best position on campus to be a rallying point for honest discussion. Giving offense, it believes, is inevitable. Pundit will print that which may anger, as long as the content is accurate. In its two roles as cheerleader and critic, Pundit will consider itself accountable only to its readers.

U.S. freshmen found conservative

More than half the nation’s college freshmen are now "middle-of-the-road" politically, but the tumultuous events of 1973 have not had any pronounced effect on the political labels freshmen give themselves, according to a major national survey conducted for the American Council on Education and the University of California at Los Angeles. Connecticut College was among 60 New England colleges and universities included in the survey.

The survey also shows that a slight conservative trend found in 1972 has been reversed, and that college freshmen are now more liberal than those in the South and West.

The percentage of freshmen favoring student freedom and independence continues to increase over last year. The survey indicates, but a notable exception is that fewer freshmen are agreeing that disadvantaged students should get preferential treatment in college admissions.

Dr. Alexander Astin, director of study and a UCLA professor said the trend toward more student independence and freedom from college regulation has been developing "like clockwork" but he said there was one notable exception.

When students in 1968 were asked if they agreed that disadvantaged students should be given preferential treatment in college admissions, 41.6 per cent agreed.

Letters to the editor

TO SENIORS, FELLOWSHIPS AND AWARDS FOR GRADUATE STUDY

An application form covering all of the following awards is now available in Dean Cobb’s office (Fanning 202).

1. KAPPA KAPPA KAPPA SCHOLARSHIP

ROSEMARY PARK FELLOWSHIP FOR TEACHING

ROSEMARY PARK GRADUATE FELLOWSHIP

Completed forms must be returned by April 1, 1974, to Dean Cobb’s office.

GRADUATE RECORD EXAMINATIONS

The next exam on campus will be in April, and applications (Available in Fanning 202) must reach ETS before April 2.

The next Law School Admission Test will be given on April 30, and applications must be mailed before March 29. The Business Board will make the arrangements, given March 30 (due March 8).

CONNECTICUT STATE SCHOLARSHIP GRANT FOR GRADUATE STUDY

Application forms for a Connecticut State Scholarship Grant for Connecticut residents, due by March 30, are now available in Dean Cobb’s office.

To the editor:

We are presently confined in an Institution at London, Ohio, and it is very lonely here. It would be refreshing to hear from the nice people in the free world who may wish to write to us.

We will answer all letters that we receive from the outside. Please enclose photo with your letter and we will do the same. Thanking you for your time and trouble.

Jack D. Reediff, 131-411 and Anthony (Tony) Allen, 134-092

P.O. Box 59

London, Ohio 43140

Pundit

Published by the students of Connecticut College Thursdays while the College is in session. Information to be printed for a Thursday issue must be in the editor’s hands by that Monday at 5:00 p.m., unless prior arrangements are made. Pundit’s box number is 1351. There is also a box at the Conn Pundit news office, room 212 Cro. Pundit is represented for national advertising by National Education Advertising Service, Inc., 360 Lexington Avenue, New York, New York 10017. Editorial Board meetings are held every Thursday of publication in room 212 Cro, time to be announced.

EDITORIAL BOARD

Co-Editors-in-Chief

Carin Gordon and Bernie Zelitch

New Editor

Lynn Cole

Sue Maunder

Nina George

Judy Boland and Liz Huffer

Sandy Parkman

Lonnne LuPrie

Andrea Stoner

Patricia Kyne
Thieves rob Cummings second time

by Carin Gordon

Cummings Art Center was robbed for the second time this school year. "Thousands of dollars of stolen goods were taken and approximately $1,200 worth of damage was done to the building," said Francis P. O'Grady, Campus Safety Director.

The break-in occurred sometime around 9:00 p.m. on January 21. Thieves smashed plate glass sliding doors of rooms 213, 215, 216 and 220, all on the northwest corner of Cummings. Mr. O'Grady estimated the total replacement of the four doors to be about $400 each.

Speaking of the furtaries, am- pthizers, a tape-deck, and a stereo were stolen and then some of the loot was stashed under the fir trees near the air conditioning building on south campus and more behind the south tennis courts.

Eastburn receives PR honor

Warrine E. Eastburn, secretary to the College president, was cited for her work in organizing and publicizing the school's participation in Independent Colleges and her work in developing educational television in Connecticut.

Deadline extended for internship

With the hope of increasing the number of applicants, the Mary Morrison Internship Program's May 31 deadline has been extended to February 18. "For the past eight years the program has been in existence, we always had about 20 applicants," said Warrine Eastburn, Assistant to the President and director of the Internship at Conn. "This year so far we only have five." Ms. Eastburn also mentioned the decrease in the super-break. The Morrison Internship "provides an experience of work and socializing in the operations of the League of Women Voters."

Trustees discuss sex bias, summer report

The Board of Trustees today and tomorrow is expected to consider sexual discrimination in faculty and administration reports on the Summer Study Report. The operation of the school, is also expected to narrow the list of presidential candidates and to appoint a steering committee.

According to George J. Willauer Jr., chairman of the English Department and co-chairman of the faculty-trustees committee, he will initiate trustee discussions about the possibility of conforming to federal law that pertains to equal pay for women. Generally, it is acknowledged that women at Conn are paid less and promoted more slowly than their male colleagues.

The meetings at College House and in the President's office in Franklin Hall also include discussion of President Charles E. Shain's position on the Summer Study Report, which is essentially non-supportive of the faculty's position on the Report, which is essentially non-supportive of the faculty's position on the Report. In a letter dated February 4 and sent to the faculty, Mr. Shain said that he supported the Report, except for the suggestion that the physical education department be reduced by two members below the 1973-74 level.

Mr. Shain also said that he would like to save money in library books and academic fees were "troublesome and need continued study." Concerning the physical education department, he said, because over half the student population has increased and will increase, it is my judgement that we need a second full-time male

Larabee flood victims don't pay

by Robert Hoffman

According to students whose rugs were washed away during Larabee's basement during winter recess they will not pay the bills sent to them by Larabee's Hot Shop. A pipe freeze and burst January 15, causing water damage to personal property in the basement of the building. In similar accounts given to this reporter by other students, Mr. O'Grady estimated that he has contacted insurance companies to cover damages, since according to the College Bulletin, "The College assumes no responsibility for the loss of students' personal property, however, contend that the College sent the rugs to Kalamazoo for inspection and further permitting. Furthermore, the students state that the letters concerning the damage were ambiguous as to who was responsible for payment of the bill.

Bob Gould, stated, "I never had the rug cleaned since the cleaning bill was $18.75 and the rug only cost $15.45. I have stated that he has contacted his insurance company but will not let them pay the bill because he is assured that his insurance rates will not go up. His rates are raised he plans to bring legal action against the College in a joint suit with the other students.

The students believe that the college could have been completely SHOT if it had not been for the negligence on the part of the College. Robert Shiffrin, whose rug was damaged bought not sent to the cleaner and therefore rotted, said, "I was responsible for paying the bill by stupidity!"

Besides rugs being damaged, other personal property was lost as well. Gould has approximated that he has had $1,000 in records ruined and all last semester notes destroyed.

Presently the students are waiting for an appropriate response from the College in regard to their position.

What's left—socialism an answer to economic, political woes

by Nina George

How many of us have been forced to accept a job we disliked simply to make ends meet? Or how many of us have had any say in the policies dictated by oil companies and food trusts? We have no choice but to accept the high profits rather than service to the people? These are only two examples.

The message that has been facing the United States of America is that the economic and political system of our country. This means: when all people vote for the same moneyed elite - have a share in controlling the means of production, regulation and purchase commodities which fill their basic needs and, when all people have a measure of effective self-, local and national government in a decentralized system designed to respect the individual's in private and public needs and the needs of the society as a whole.

Not only can the individual person be able to control his own life, but he should not control anyone else's life at the expense of that person's dignity and freedom. This can be achieved when a nation of self-governing individuals (NOT the American way) exists there is no separation of political power and power under capitalism. Certain types of private property work under socialism: transportation systems, newspapers, factories, schools, government buildings, hotels, grocery stores, fuel and electric companies, (etc.) can function without exploiting them, when they are publicly owned and controlled. Socialism is an economy based on service and creative fulfillment, instead of the profit ethic in which private individuals own the means of production. Liberals will voice some of these same aspirations, urging various reforms within the existing wage-price and regulatory agencies, and so forth. However, socialism contends that the dynamic of socialist society is such that no amount of internal reform can ever eradicate the basic injustices it engenders. Here is the essence of the Liberal position: The system and looks to new elections and consumer-oriented laws to perform this necessary task in a crumbling economy and government. The Radical will not compromise with the capitalistic system in any way, since capitalism and socialism are two totally different manifestations of similar social, political and economic organization. For socialists, the road to change lies in revolution.

This is the third in a series of political commentaries. Next week: some specific aspects of socialist society.

Larabee flood victims don't pay

Dr. Fishman Fishman dies at 46

Dr. Ronald L. Fishman, M.D., at 46, died of a heart attack sometime late last Saturday afternoon. He had been a resident of West Hartford, received his M.D. from Temple University in 1953.

Dr. Fishman, lived in New Britain and leaves two daughters and a son; he was divorced.

Fishman came to Conn in September, 1972 after having recuperated from an illness. He had had a private practice until his death. He received his M.D. from Temple University in 1953.
Straw Dogs', offensive, but why?

By Robert Hoffman

On Friday February 15 many people will leave Palmer Auditorium offended by Sam Peckinpah's "Straw Dogs," starring Dustin Hoffman, and they will not know why, being totally confused by this new and strange movie. "Straw Dogs" as being a brutal and savage male chauvinistic film which should not have been brought to the screen.

"Straw Dogs" concerns itself with an American school teacher (Dustin Hoffman) who leaves the big and bustling American city for peace and solitude in the Welsh countryside.

In brief, Wales is no more at ease than New York City. Hoffman's wife enlists the handyman into becoming her rapist, and what she thought would be an ordinary turn into a nightmare, as she is raised by more than one man. With his house besieged by the rapists and their henchmen, Hoffman, the up to now pacifist and neutish, metamorphoses into the male animal, protecting his domain.

It is this metamorphosis which offends us, for we do not look for Hoffman to run amok before, but as an animal we despise him. We realize that the violent side that emerges in Hoffman exists in all of us and this offends us. In the same position we would have done the same as Hoffman. This reviewer would advise all to see "Straw Dogs," besides being hard core realism. It is beautifully photographed, exceedingly directed, and masterfully acted. Aside from the "Wild Bunch" it is Peckinpah's finest film and so far the best film to be shown this year at Corsa.

Newcomers set second semester record

The largest number of second semester newcomers in the college's history entered this semester, 48 new students matriculated: 20 who are early freshman entrants in the class of 1978 plus 28 upper-level men and women who have transferred to Connecticut from other colleges and universities. Mrs. Jeanette B. Hersey reports that most of the entering freshmen completed high school last June and delayed moving into college in order to have an interim break for travel and employment. Some completed high school requirements in mid-term, and their strong academic credentials have won them early access to college classrooms. The 10 men and 16 women who have just transferred to Connecticut came from colleges and universities as distant as Western Washington State.

Judy Jamison in the "Wading in the Water" section

"I don't care what people say, rock & roll is here...

- Dick Clark

The newest phenomenon in radio, ironically, is the rapid growth of the old golden station.

For up to twenty-four hours a day, WCBS-FM in New York, WHOR-FM in Los Angeles, and KRL in St. Louis take their listeners to Revivalville, playing KRT/FM in Los Angeles, and New York, WROR-FM in Boston, KRL in St. Louis.

Radio, we were their devoted disciples. We were their ... to college classrooms.

The 10 men and 16 women who have just transferred to Connecticut came from colleges and universities as distant as Western Washington State.

Judy Jamison in the "Wading in the Water" section

"I don't care what people say, rock & roll is here...

- Dick Clark

The newest phenomenon in radio, ironically, is the rapid growth of the old golden station.

For up to twenty-four hours a day, WCBS-FM in New York, WHOR-FM in Los Angeles, and KRL in St. Louis take their listeners to Revivalville, playing KRT/FM in Los Angeles, and New York, WROR-FM in Boston, KRL in St. Louis.

Radio, we were their devoted disciples. We were their devoted disciples. We were their devoted disciples. We were their devoted disciples.

We were their devoted disciples. We were their devoted disciples. We were their devoted disciples. We were their devoted disciples.

The 10 men and 16 women who have just transferred to Connecticut came from colleges and universities as distant as Western Washington State.
Hebron, Ct., the place to pick up a horse Friday night

by Jim Malihove

The Connecticut College campus is loaded with excitement on a Friday night. Yet perhaps your Friday feast has left a slicing spirit in your belly. If this be the case, and if you can talk your way into some means of transportation, why then it's perfect night to hit the road. Now there are many things to do in New London's rural surrounds and one thing that can be indulged in only on a Friday night. It looms as a "Friday night," for indeed, on the following Saturday you'll question if it was a dream.

The name of the "dream in question" is the "Hebron Horse Auction," and its next door neighbor, the "Public House Cafe" and they can easily be dreamt into a Friday night by taking a 20 to 30 minute drive. All of a sudden the road will be lined with cars and pickup trucks in the middle of nowhere. But this night it must be a somewhere, for as you approach the barn with its open door of golden light against the black night, you'll hear the rising hum of a country auction. Inside you see a star shaped sparrow, it's way through the dirt floor and looking up from it you see a farmer with a bayou, speculating that that big horse staring you in the face ain't worth half as much as what I'm gonna own him'll bring. Looking around this half of the barn you'll see horses 'cepting a goat or two.

Moving into the other half of the barn which is divided lengthwise you'll find yourself in the midst of the first part of this great agenda; the tack auction, where saddles, bridles and blankets are on sale. You see everythink from clock radios to oranges. Most everybody wears boots and a good deal sport covers and they aren't wearing them to dress up.

You once get to feeling at home in this new surroundings just go and buy yourself a cup of coffee at the snack counter, for it'll be half past noon if not after, the horses are brought out. And with the horses come the horse traders, who would probably make some of the best lawyers in the state of Connecticut. If the horse auction is old and tame, the standard line is: "why ladies and gents, this horse is great for you, they've even seen a horse before you, you don't have to be worried 'bout letting them ride it. Horse is real gentle and raly likes kids." This is the cue for some kids who have work for the auction to get up and ride the horse; first one twelve-year-old, then two and finally three or four up on the horse back at once. And as if this isn't enough to prove to the gaping audience of the true benevolence and gentleness of the animal, the horse trader lies down underneath the horse, while the horse is in no way, not even so much as brushing the daring horse trader. These are marvelous feats of salementship, but all the horse traders could take some lessons from Wishbone. He's short but strong, with a black beard and an awful mean look in his grin. And his distinctive mark is his habit of giving a wishbone over the brim. This man deals with horses that look big and good and is the kind for kids. "Why this horse rides well and drives well and is one hundred per cent guaranteed, take him outside after and if you don't like the way he rides you don't buy 'im. You take him home, ride 'im, and if there's anything won't find a better a horse around. It's one hundred per cent guaranteed, and it drives well and rides well. Ain't nothing wrong with this horse.

After the opening speech Wishbone lets the auctioneer handle the bids for a while before he breaks in to tell the auctioneer: "I ain't letting the horse go for that." And then he yells at the crowd: "Why this horse is sweet as a pig. You go look wherever you want, you ain't going to find a better riding horse. You hurt the horse's feelings you bid so low. I paid three times as much for him. I paid twice as much last year when I had him hear.

When you've had your share of the horse auction, don't be hasty and start to hit the road back. Just step down on the road to the "Public House Cafe." It is Hebron's second night spot that looks somewhat like an old western bar and has live music to God knows what hour in the morning. The place is unusual and brulous to say the least.

And the music, selections such as "The Night My Momma Socked It to The Harper Valley PTA," and others of equal distinction, give you something different to sing on a late, late, Friday night, coming home to New London.

by Robin Sue Linder

The new exhibit which opened at Cummings Arts Center in the Manwaring Gallery on February 16th will be here until March 14th. An exhibition which was sponsored by Mr. Barkley Hendricks consists of art pieces by twelve artists who are his personal friends. The artists are Ayres, Baylon, Brayton, Brim, Garrison, Grant, Owen, Simpson, Tooley, Watson, Wilkie, and Searles. The exhibit is primarily concerned with showing that each black artist expresses his or her art in an individualistic style.

The exhibit contains a wide diversity of styles, techniques and media. Roland Ayres, one of the artists, has a deep concern for the African American community. His works have a definite style and a delicate feeling despite the coarseness of the material. Charles Searles has one small bronze sculpture of a black woman, presumably African. This piece is simple in design but very effec- tive in feeling.

The reviewer's favorite artist was seeing the two watercolor abstract paintings from a series of studies he is doing in Africa. This explains the African flavor but not own recognition. They were done on what appeared to be a coarse canvas. All of his paintings, Grant, Continuation of the King, and Nigerian Impressions No. 7 Market Ladies, can be purchased and will be presented at the "Public House Cafe." This exhibit, they are for sale and include the canvas to work in the paintings. They were well done and express a definite theme of African life. Other works included in the show were Baylon's four foot bronze sculpture representing a black woman, Brantley's two oil paintings in his own style of black, and Grant's two and pastel abstract drawing and his silk screen design, Gasdson's two oil paintings, Hendricks' two watercolor abstract paintings, his ink and water color abstract painting, and a collage of "The Night My Momma Socked It to The Harper Valley PTA," and others of equal distinction, give you something different to sing on a late, late, Friday night, coming home to New London.

The flowers that bloom in the winter (tra la)

The natural side

The flowers that bloom in the winter, (tra la)

with the Arboretum staff

Witchhazel, a shrub which likes to associate itself with magic and medicine, is one of the few plants in the world to have flowers in winter.

The oriental variety of the plant, Hamamelis mollis, can be found between Fanning and Bill Hall, in its last days of producing long yellow petals. It has been blooming from early January to February. In the spring, the seeds produced from pollination will be shot out in large numbers. You will find watermelon seed popping out from between a thumb and forefinger.

If one were to cut a fruiting twig, one would be surprised to hear from time to time the popping noise occurred when the seed is released.

Today, the native variety, Hamamelis virginiana, is known for its extract found in bottles on old-time barber shop and medicine cabinet shelves. The Indians used the "witch hazel" poultice from the inner bark for inflamed eyes and skin surfaces. Witchhazel is always being a favorite with water and gold diviners. Even today, there are people in the New London area who claim to be able to take a forked witchhazel stick balance it between the thumb and fingers, and then they will "see" what you should dig a well. According to one source, witchhazel received its name in England because diviners used to use hazel for this purpose.

The native variety can be found between Bill and Fanning Halls. Having yellow petals shorter than its oriental relation, this flower blooms in September and October.

Revelations.

The natural side

The flowers that bloom in the winter, (tra la)

with the Arboretum staff

Witchhazel, a shrub which likes to associate itself with magic and medicine, is one of the few plants in the world to have flowers in winter.

The oriental variety of the plant, Hamamelis mollis, can be found between Fanning and Bill Hall, in its last days of producing long yellow petals. It has been blooming from early January to February. In the spring, the seeds produced from pollination will be shot out in large numbers. You will find watermelon seed popping out from between a thumb and forefinger.

If one were to cut a fruiting twig, one would be surprised to hear from time to time the popping noise occurred when the seed is released.

Today, the native variety, Hamamelis virginiana, is known for its extract found in bottles on old-time barber shop and medicine cabinet shelves. The Indians used the "witch hazel" poultice from the inner bark for inflamed eyes and skin surfaces. Witchhazel is always being a favorite with water and gold diviners. Even today, there are people in the New London area who claim to be able to take a forked witchhazel stick balance it between the thumb and fingers, and then they will "see" what you should dig a well. According to one source, witchhazel received its name in England because diviners used to use hazel for this purpose.

The native variety can be found between Bill and Fanning Halls. Having yellow petals shorter than its oriental relation, this flower blooms in September and October.

Hockey Game 7:30 p.m. Wesleyan

Connecticut College Lobby of Dana Hall
Cummings Art Center Thurs., Feb. 14, 1974, 11 a.m. p.m.
EXHIBITIONS MAY BE CHANGED
Some inner-city ghettos have special schools. For little boys who don't talk.

Not mute little boys. But children so withdrawn, so afraid of failure, they cannot make the slightest attempt to do anything at which they might fail.

Some don't talk. Some don't listen. Most don't behave. And all of them don't learn.

One day someone asked us to help.

Through Kodak, cameras and film were distributed to teachers. The teachers gave the cameras to the kids and told them to take pictures.

And then the miracle. Little boys who had never said anything, looked at the pictures and began to talk. They said "This is my house." "This is my dog." "This is where I like to hide." They began to explain, to describe, to communicate.

And once the channels of communication had been opened, they began to learn.

We're helping the children of the inner-city. And we're also helping the adults. We're involved in inner-city job programs. To train unskilled people in useful jobs.

What does Kodak stand to gain from this? Well, we're showing how our products can help a teacher—and maybe creating a whole new market. And we're also cultivating young customers who will someday buy their own cameras and film. But more than that, we're cultivating alert, educated citizens who will someday be responsible for our society.

After all, our business depends on our society. So we care what happens to it.

Kodak
More than a business.
Vandalism prompts special student leaders meeting

by Walter Palmer

In response to the growing problem of vandalism on campus, President of the Student Government Laurie Lesser called for an urgent meeting of the house fellows and other campus executives. In a drawn-out meeting the group attempted to determine why there is vandalism on campus and how it should be dealt with.

Because of basic differences of opinion and conflicting interests, no concrete policy was established, but several areas of concern were discussed:

- The Judiciary Board was criticized as being weak and ineffective.
- The idea of punitive fines was discussed.
- The Judiciary Board urged greater involvement of House Councils in dormitory activities.
- The use of security cameras was criticized as alienating itself from the student body.

The Housefellows suggested that the hours of Cro and the library be extended and more social activities be planned.

30 cents, he said, and the xerox machines are a dime.

- The group asked Pundit to be more responsive in reporting incidents of vandalism.

Chief Judicial Board Mike Lederman asked the group of Housefellows, House Presidents and Class Presidents to support the five Judicial Guidelines:

1. Property destruction is not tolerated.
2. Stealing is not tolerated.
3. A host is responsible for their guests.
4. People are responsible for their parties.
5. You have the right ends where your neighbor begins.

However, the general feeling was that those guidelines had no real authority and stronger measures are needed for the Judicial to deal with vandalism. Many members felt that punitive fines should be levied by the Judiciary Board. Concern was expressed that fines might be unjustly discriminatory to scholarship students. However, the point was made that “the fines would not normally exceed twenty-five dollars, and be based on the action.”

Mike Lederman expressed what was one of the few undisputed points when he called on the House Councils for greater participation in handling problems within the dorm, rather than referring all offenders to the Judicial Board. Another point that most members felt was valid was that the faculty was overly involved in labor and salary disputes, and had alienated itself from the community.

The recommendation that suspension be increased as a method for dealing with chronic offenders was Starkly criticized by one Housefellow who said that this suspension might destroy the entire term, and cause irreparable damage.

by Sally Abrams

Had Benjamin Franklin lived in the twentieth century, he might have invented the duplicating machine. This modernistic, sophisticated printing press equipment was recently installed in the duplicating office, first floor Hillier, next to the post office) by a trustee of Conn College.

Earl D. Shinault, General Administrative Assistant, explained it to the students.

This machinery consists of two parts: a special camera, located in the basement of Winthrop makes a negative and the Ultra- line 1000, which is installed in the duplicating office, bakes the negative into a plate.

Before the school owned the camera and the baking machine, it had to go down to a printing office. It not only took time to have the plates processed, but it was tremendously expensive. The printing companies in New London charge $45 for a single page for a thirty-five line page.

It normally takes about two dollars to send a page of print to a duplicating house, and it can be done right on the premises.

With this new gift the printing operation is now a self-contained unit. After the plates are bared, Mr. Shinault can now put his materials on the press, instead of waiting for the plant downtown to process the plates. When asked if students could use the duplicating machine, Mr. Shinault replied negatively. “It is not a toy,” he said. The machines are dangerous. You have to know how to use the special camera and plate burner, and how to run the press.”

When asked if students who have all this knowledge can use it, Mr. Shinault was skeptical. “The machines are always busy,” he continued. “There is no time or place open for students to use it. You must learn to appreciate our work.”

Mr. Shinault has some familiarity with running the new equipment, but he is having someone come this week to train him thoroughly.

He mentioned that although the Bunting machine is not at the disposal of the students, the magnesium and metal plates are open to anyone. A stencil for the magneto machine is affected these decisions. He pointed out that no action has yet been taken on the Report. Mr. Shinault said that the PhD was “not an absolute factor” in considering permanent appointments. “For instance,” he said, “we have full-time faculty without PhD’s.” Such people, he said, are likely to be artists who demonstrate their proficiency by getting published, performing, and the like.

Teachers fired, retired and resigned (continued from page 1)

He added that the PhD is an indication in some cases of a person’s commitment to the academic community. “What the PhD says is ‘I am a scholar, in a way. Is it a kind of bar mizvah? You’ve got to have very good reasons for not getting it.” He said, “If you don’t get it, you can be extremely rare, and the lesser said that this group met with President Shinault and the House Council. No problems. However, many members were apprehensive about meeting with the administration, and the Executive Committee could come to some basic agreements among themselves.

VISTA & PEACE CORPS HAVE THOUSANDS OF INTERESTING JOBS

Both Peace Corps and VISTA have job openings for college grads, people with some practical experience in a trade and people with a real headful of knowledge of poverty problems. VISTA works around to places where people are in serious need to be served in places where you can do something.

Representatives will be on campus soon looking for people with majors and experiences like these, to go into programs beginning in July-September:

VISTA: Law, Pre-School, Special Ed., Psychology, Guidance Counseling, Social Sciences, Recreation, Journalism, City Planning, Home Ed., Construction Work, Carpenter, Community Health, PE, Elementary, Secondary Teaching, BBA’s, Accounting, Architecture, Civil Engineering, Vocational Education, Special Education, Pharmacy, Agriculture, LPN.

Peace Corps: Architecture, Ag Economics, Biology, Liberal Arts, Ag Engineering, Accounting, Public Administration, Agronomy, Plant Pathology, Business Administration, Geology, Home Economics, Hospital Administration, Civil Engineering, Speech Pathology, Biomedical Engineering, Surveying, Statistics, Veterinary, Economic Development, Agriculture, French-Spanish majors and fluent speakers, MS and BS BA’s, Math and Science.

The above is only a partial list. We’re looking for people about to graduate in many fields and people with farm experience and rural people, people with problems—help with organization, literary, technical and organizational experience. Peace Corps and VISTA pay a living allowance, travel, medical expenses and a completion-of-service allotment of $50-$75 per month on the job.

Representatives will be on campus Thursday, Feb. 19. Stop by the Placement Office now for more information and to sign up for an interview.

CUP AND SHOW THIS AD — $AVE $7.50 ON A UPTICKET

SPECIAL STUDENT PRICE

SKI 7/8 PRICE ON:
WEDNESDAY 5:00 P.M. TILL 11:30
SATURDAY 10:30 P.M. TILL 3 A.M.

JUST SHOW THIS AD AT OUR TABLE WINDOW

SPECIAL PRICE FOR

YOU CAN HAVE A BLAST ON WEDNESDAY SINGLES NIGHT OR ALL NIGHT $7.50 TILL 3 A.M.
WHEN THE MUGS HAPPENING AT THE RIDGE LIVE ENTERTAINMENT

at our slope side restaurant and cocktail lounge CALL TOLL FREE IN CONN. 1-800-622-3321

4 SEAT CHAIR—3 DOUBLE CHAIRS—2 T-BARS—2 TOWS

PUNIT want ads accepted

Pundit will accept short wanted and personal ads from students.

Sell your rooms and save your

Classified Ad Pundit Box 1351 Connecticut College

Please print your ad clearly.

For sale For rent Personal Help wanted Service offered

Name/Organization P.O. Box Dorm Phone

SWEETCARE FOR NOTHING. Submit to Pundit by Fri., by noon Wednesday for publication on Friday.
Making the scene at Pro Bar, Low Bar, High Bar... Bar Stool?

by Michael Collier

That sounds ridiculous.

What?

That’s spelling, the sound’s the same.

The Institute for Paralegal Training

ALL IN THE WRIST. Four students try out their beer drinking techniques on opening night.

Fridays and Saturdays. Monday night it will be closed, this seems to be an agreeable day for all religious groups.

How much did she want?

Forty cents each.

Sure, couldn’t have been very expensive.

Guess so, but the real stuff is expensive.

Beer is for leaders, too. Presidents Charles E. Shain and Laurie J. Lesser share bacchanalian conversation with an unidentified man.

Special permit governs bar

The liquor license which allows the College to operate a bar in Oro is a new special college license, according to E. Leroy Knight, College treasurer. “The legislature passed the bill allowing this kind of permit only last March,” he said.

“We can only sell beer,” said Mr. Knight, “not wines or spirits with this permit.”

This new college permit is controversial. Bar operators across the state fearing a loss of business lobbied against its passage. Allowing the sale of only beer was a concession to public taverns.

“We have had no local opposition,” said Mr. Knight. “We should be thankful for that.”

The College would not have been eligible for the other two kinds of permits granted by the State Liquor Commission. Because students do not have an equal voice in the governing of the College, the College cannot qualify as a “Club.”

The restaurant-bar license does not apply to a private organization.

The first night at the as yet untitletd and curiosly inuative licensed Campus bar was a scene of orgastic beer drinking and inuative talk. In this writer’s humble and sheltered view, it was a welcomed (although, hardly fresh) diversion for the hearty Conn. students who via the white, wreath, and crunched their communal and heavenly meeting area than the bus transport. In this writer’s perspective, allowing this kind of permit to public taverns is a victory for the College. The College to operate a bar

HELP WANTED

$100.00 weekly possible addressing mail for firms - Full and part time at home. Send stamped self-addressed envelope to COMMACO, BOX 157, ROUND ROCK, TEXAS, 78684.