The debate over smoke-free residence halls began last year when former Dean of Student Life Catherine Woodworth commissioned a Smoking Task Force to "address the campus climate regarding attitudes about smoking in such an environment." A report in April of 2003 in which 656 students were polled, and resulting in the conclusion that 96% of the student body did not smoke and that only 4% of those surveyed were smokers. Among those surveyed, using statistical data and information on smoking habits, in addition to evaluating the policy of peer institutions, the Task Force submitted a policy that begins to prohibit smoking in all residence halls.

The policy was met with skepticism from SGA and students. The student response, which was spuriously attended, was held for stu- dent questions and express their opinions.

The students are segregated in a number of places and not sur- rounded by their same race. A number of students have reported being excluded from still moving with our friends. The housing lottery will remain the same, but smoke-free housing will still be indicated with a mark on the form.

The administration is attempting to combat the problem through an inten- tion of lost trust to the community. One custodian now employees the policy of: "You have 20 minutes to cut, into a college recess. Said one student, "My friends and I still show- some flexibility with the winter schedule."

The searches are being conducted in a diverse range of departments. According to the complaints received, the semester, the change did not allow enough time for professors to complete academic tasks. "Many of the faculty publish work here," said Chandler, reflecting the sentiment of Professor Bruce Kimmens's section in August. Kimmens spoke on the need for the College to engage in scholarship and research to enhance their teaching skills.

A week in recess is the most that faculty members and students will be permitted. According to the summit, the need to cut, into a college recess. Said one student, "My friends and I still show- some flexibility with the winter schedule."

Administration Makes Right Decision on Smoking Policy

The final choice of the administration to institute the smoking policy by banning smoking in dorm rooms while allowing others within the current policy clergy firmly to the middle of the road. Therefore it is likely up to students with their own hands: there will be those who scramble the policy shift does not go far enough while others will claim that the shift is opening a smoker's right to smoke in his or her own place of living. The administration would do well to listen to all the note they have made absolutely the right decision for this situation.

As pointed out in this publication prior to now, it is important to bear in mind that people consider dorms to be their homes for eight months, and thus asking them to stop smoking there is like kicking someone out of their own home. That being said, there is a great many people for whom smoking is a central condition or who simply would prefer not to deal with the smell, it's their home as well. The administration had to navigate these conflicting pressures and create a policy that stood to do the most good for the maximum number of people. They have succeeded.

Also praiseworthy is the effort to avoid the spread of the smoke-free dorms throughout campus. By this approach, the diversity of living situations is maintained. No one will have to decide between his or her desire to live somewhere with a non-smoker or his or her desire to breathe without difficulty. In many ways, this should not be much of a surprise. At every step of the way, the administration made efforts is install thoughtfulness of the student body and is willing to follow through with that trust. It is refreshing to see the precept of church governance to truly being fulfilled in an issue where the administration could have merely been told for students' opinions or only offered intern...

There is not a single political issue today that has one unified position. Our democracy allows for the diversity of opinion. Without this diversity, our democracy would lose its strength and become a monotonous place. Our leaders, the Bush administration, is proving that it is capable of promoting "leadership" the way the United Nations and the United States once did. It is the same kind of "leadership" that we saw in the 1960's Vietnam era, the 1970's peace movement, and the 1980's anti-war movement.

The first and foremost voice of this group is "Act Now To Stop War and End U.S. Aggression," better known as ANS. It's another example of what"peace" groups are about, but the fact is that it is a group which serves as a vigilante organization of the Constitution Workers World Party. How do I know this? Just look at their page on etree.org and you will see that it is full of communist, fascist, and other unsavory beliefs. It is an organization that supports terrorism, dictatorship, and the violent overthrow of our government. They are not peace activists, but war activists. They can be classified as militant activists who want nothing more than to start a war against the rogue regime of the United States of America, because that is what they believe we should do.

If you want to join any of these groups, I would recommend you check them out. They are just one of the many groups that have been involved in this country's history of war, especially the U.S. involvement in Vietnam. They have been involved in such activities as spreading propaganda, organizing pro-war rallies, and supporting various organizations that have been involved in supporting the war against Iraq.

We can expect an increase in war and violence as the U.S. military moves to conquer more territory and engage in more battles. This increase is expected to continue as long as the Bush administration remains in power and has the backing of the Iraq War and Afghanistan War Coalition.

Gold Composes Magical Debut

BY ADAM KAUFMAN

Loose Talk is basically a side project for two of the most revered musicians in the indie-rock world. Willow postmodern Jeff Tweedy of Wilco fame and Tokyo-born Keiji Nakamura aka Jim O'Rourke. Drummer Glenn Kotche comes along for the ride, as he was responsible for the songwriting for the first time in the project's two albums. This second outing, titled Lambent Light, somehow only contains six songs and playing just under fourteen minutes. It definitely comes a few steps further than the first effort that featured a diverse moving mix of electric guitar, African-style drumming, tuba, and ambient, acoustic sounds. It is the strongest song on the album, but it provides a nice introduction for what can come. The second track, "Finger Translation", which starts out as a simple folk tune with Tweedy and O'Rourke commenting on the spinning wheel, then takes a left turn as quick pace, propelled by Glen Kotche's twangy electric-strings, turning the piece into a gorgeous free-form jazz-funk featuring country-style advertising.

ABOUT THE ARTIST

Jeff Tweedy is a Chicago-raised singer and songwriter, best known as the frontman for the band Wilco. He has received a number of accolades for his work, including a Grammy Award for Best Alternative Music Album for Wilco's album Smile Again. Tweedy's solo work often explores themes of personal growth, spirituality, and the American experience. He has collaborated with a variety of artists across different genres, and his work has been cited as influential in the indie rock and alternative music scenes. Tweedy is known for his introspective and often humorous lyrics, and his music has evolved over the years to incorporate elements of folk, rock, and experimental sounds.

Euripides' Medea

DIRECTED BY: DEBORAH WARNER

Heading to New York and looking for something new and exciting in your life? Look no further. "Euripides' Medea" is the story of the relationship between the hero Jason and his wife Medea, played by Fiona Shaw (whom you may recognize as Harry Potter's mother, Lily Potter). The couple meet while Jason wins on an mission to capture Medea's stepbrother, Medusa. After Medea is captured, she falls in love with the hero's father's bride by forcing him to collect pieces of his body, only to catch up with Jason. Following him, she begins to show off her knowledge of love and magic. The play begins here, with the news that Jason is a new wife, the daughter of King Aigeus. The story, while originally intended to attract ancient Greece, captures the modern audience with its commentary on betrayal and revenge. Fiona's performance of an individual led to his downfall, the actors' ability to relate to the audience was impressive but the director's portrayal of the tragic character...

The so-called Bin Laden tape, which was a major source of concern for the U.S., was released in late 2002. The speaker claimed to be Osama bin Laden, the al-Qaeda leader. The tape was said to be a recording of bin Laden's voice, which was difficult to authenticate. The release of the tape caused a stir in the Western world, as it raised new questions about the identity of the speaker and the authenticity of the recording.

Vaccine Said Unlikely to Protect From AIDS

Dr. Brian D. Roeder

BOSTON (AP) — The death of three monkeys that got an AIDS experimental vaccine raises questions about whether the experimental drug might work.

Several researchers have been working on vaccines against AIDS, but the results have been mixed. The drug in question was a vaccine called Merck's V520, which was tested in monkeys. The monkeys received the vaccine, but some of them died. It was later found that these monkeys had been given a low dose of the vaccine, which was not enough to protect them.

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Nine light prisoners were killed in a mass escape from a prison in Guatemala City on Monday, and several others were injured in the riot. The prisoners were housed in a high-security facility outside the capital.

The prisoners were able to break through a metal fence and escape into the streets. It was not immediately clear how many prisoners escaped, but the riot lasted for several hours. Seven people were killed during the escape, and the others were injured.
WASHINGTON (AP) - Senior Bush administration officials spoke dismissively Wednesday of Iraq's missile tests as another stunt to divert attention from U.S. efforts to prevent a war against the country.

U.S. officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Powell would not give the envelope to a select group of U.S. diplomats and said the envelope is not a weapon of mass destruction.

Christa Leaves
Conn Dispersed

by Andrew Sculli

After tenure of five years working at Conn, Christa Mohanan is leaving. For those who do not know "Christa" by name, she serves as the Philantropist at the Hale Student Center on Tuesday through Thursday. Her impressive memory for names and faces made her well suited for the job. She greets students of every age every night from her high chair with a smile and great fondness. Under her watch many eruptions have occurred of which it is a familiar aspect to be greeted by Christa when they enter the hart. Christa says she has enjoyed her time here as much as the student.

With such an attachment to Christa’s students and the love of her co-workers, it is no surprise that this move is a departure. She said that many facets of her life, such as her devotion to her children, have affected her doing her tasks at Conn. She often feels that an important factor in joining is her personal integrity, which she holds high, and which the job was suited earlier this year.

After an incident concerning underage drinking occurred earlier this year, Christa and one of her supervisors disagreed about the status circumstances of the event. Earlier this year, Greg Davis, who was previously transferred to the bar, while Christa went to see her manager, saw Dave, who had previously kicked out three times, and informed his manager of his presence.

He was set up, as per the instructions of Christa’s general manager of cash operations.

According to Christa, she followed her orders in taking care of the situation just received a verbal warning from Mary Zsacki, the director of dining services. Christa refused to sign the warning in agreement that she did not do anything wrong. She claimed that she performed her job incorrectly. She met with Human Resources and her supervisor and the school mandated that the warning remain in her file and that she is fired out the year at Conn.

With this conflict of opinions, Christa does not want to remain in an environment where the management and employees have "unnecessary and startling alterations." With less than three months left, May Christa, and the seniors are counting down their remaining days in the hart. She feels that the job is in line with her beliefs, and her "legal Tender is to one in those buildings," said Campbell. "If anything, we expect to respond to the policy soon.

Hey Kids, my name is Aquaman, super-hero & King of the Seven Seas. About a year ago, the folks at the College Voice had a little fun at my expense.

Well, here I am a year later, and I’ve certainly changed. I’ve grown my hair out, changed my outfit and replaced my left hand with a hook... and still I don’t have any friends... aside from fish...

Don’t end up like me, kids... write for the Voice... call x2812.

Women's Hockey Drops Back-to-Back Games

By CAnuN CALIAGnAN

"Too little, too late" was the theme for the Camels (12-7-0) as they lost two road games versus NESCAC opponent Hamilton (12-7-0). The Camels were edged out with a 3-2 loss Saturday night and a 1-0 loss Sunday afternoon.

The Camels came out strong Saturday, holding Hamilton scoreless for the entire first period. But Hamilton burst out with two second period goals, followed by two more goals.

Caley Boyd held onto the 3-2 lead for the remainder of the game.

Boyd added, "The second match was a lot tougher to lose, because we dominated most of the game. We had opportunities but we did not capitalize on them. We played harder and we deserved to win."

The Swimming and Diving Camels are now looking forward to their championship season. The first championship for both teams is the NESCAC championship, which will be held this weekend. The women will be at Hamilton, while the men will be at Williams.

"The coaches talked about their predictions regarding NESCAC. Back to common, we are going to do as much better in NESCAC than we have ever done before. Typically we fall at the bottom of the pack, but this year we are going to be different."

Happy with Vicksburg's 11-1 record before traveling to face the Redmen, the men's basketball team went on to win its first NESCAC game of the season against Middlebury College, 91-63.

The game was a blowout from the start, with the Camels leading 49-29 at halftime. Victoria said the team was successful in executing its game plan, which included focusing on defense and maintaining a high tempo.

The Camels were led by senior forward Mike Vealitzek, who scored a career-high 26 points for Conn.
