A New Student Email Server for Conn

By Matthew Levens

The newly launched student email server was the result of an intensive internal service improvement on the Connecticut College campus during the past year. The service issues were frequent, and the email server was frequently under stress. The new mail server is now designed to handle the increased traffic, and is expected to be an improvement for many students.

Conn has purchased a new system to handle the increased traffic, and the problem is having enough staff to handle the increased traffic. The problem is also being addressed by the addition of a new switch that is expected to handle the increased traffic.

The system was set up last week. It is expected to be in place for the entire semester. The system is designed to handle the increased traffic, and the problem is having enough staff to handle the increased traffic.

During the week-end of January 23rd, the College Voice spoke to talent scout John Shroyer, member of the College’s drainage department, and the College Voice spoke to talent scout John Shroyer, member of the College’s drainage department.

Students Respond Positively to Study Abroad Experiences

By Sarah Coffman

At the beginning of each semester a certain number of students return to the Connecticut College community after spending a term abroad. With the spring semester of 2004 under way, Conn students welcomed back the 153 students who chose to study away this past fall.

Shirley Parson, Associate Director of the National and International Office, noted that while Spain, and Australia are some of the most popular study away destinations for Conn students, the students who study away are mostly junior and sophomore, and most of them go through affiliated programs.

Sarah Tacy, class of 2005, emphasizes that the best way to get involved is to take a course in the study abroad program. She says, "I'd recommend studying away senior year to anyone who missed out on it junior year."

EDITORIAL & OPINION

New bookstore: worlds away

During winter-break, Conn’s bookstore was thoroughly renovated and revamped. The new store, designed of glass and metal, is a sharp contrast to the usual, cluttered, and somewhat dreary environment of the old bookstore. The College Voice believes that the bookstore should be nothing less than a place of excitement and delight. The new store, designed of glass and metal, is a sharp contrast to the usual, cluttered, and somewhat dreary environment of the old bookstore. The College Voice believes that the bookstore should be nothing less than a place of excitement and delight.

Throughout the renovation, the College has been criticized for spending too much money on the bookstore. However, we believe that the College has made a wise investment. The new bookstore is aesthetically pleasing and conducive to expediting the process of finding and paying for books. The College also reserving the right to accept or reject any ad. In light of Conn’s recent fiscal trough, it is important for the College to acquire funds where possible. The bookstore is also an establishment viewed and consequently judged by prospective students as a reflection of the College. The space should reflect the prestigious institution that Conn is and accordingly, serve to attract students that the College desires to enroll and even further improve the College’s student body. The administration has made a change that benefits students for the short and long-term. Despite current hardships, the new bookstore reflects Conn’s efforts to improve the experience of its current and future students.

Jump Off the Bandwagon:

When I was in high school, I used to work at Strawberries in South Portland. When there was a band that was about to play a local show, they'd have a table outside Strawberries and give away posters and CDs. So one day, the assistant manager Ron and Beth were great, and they really taught me a lot. They showed me how to book shows, how to write press releases, and how to bring up new projects when we had the chance. Sometimes we would put together a whole box of Dreamworks records that no one had heard of (ironically, it was a major label, but I hear it was just a hard knock life from the biohazard pink sticker slepped across the front reading "Merry Christmas to all and to all a good night.").

CV: And you can have sex on the left.
SK: Yeah. Well, anyway.

CV: You never know what's going to happen, but I could see myself playing with these guys for a very long time. I still like the intimacy of playing with only myself.

CV: How does making with a band compare with touring alone?
SK: A lot more energy gets exchanged when you play with a band. Every time you add on elements, the highs are bigger and the lows are lower. The potential for magic really increases. When you mess up with the band, it can be a total train wreck, but if you mess up by yourself, it's easier to adjust. The big mistake is one that is made in the middle of a song. I never want to make that mistake again.

CV: There's one thing I miss about high school, it's Strawberries. My boss Matt and I would hang out and listen to music all day. We'd go to the store and buy albums and then return to the store and listen to albums. It was a lot of fun. I used to listen to obscure bands like Catatonia, which is one of the most distinctive-sounding bands I've had the pleasure of discovering. I will definitely never regret one second.

CV: Is there anyone you'd love to collaborate with?
SK: I'm not really worried about it. But if I was, I'd love to work with Sheryl Crow. I'd love to write a duet with her. I'd also like to tour with the Counting Crows or work with some other rock band.

CV: What's your favorite song on Bullhead/Hey?
SK: "Cladestine Family" is the longest song and really slow. A lot of people will still be for the first time when they hear the song. But really, we really let our guard down on that song and it's very personal. My goal is to be honest in all my songs. Not catchy or clever or try hard.

CV: When you guys are practicing any new covers?
SK: We have a song that we're doing for an upcoming show that we've been doing for a while. It's a cover of "Bleed It Out" by Jimmy Eat World.

CV: Do you think you have what it takes to be a train wreck? But if you mess up by yourself, it's easier to adjust. The big mistake is one that is made in the middle of a song. I never want to make that mistake again.

CV: Do you know what your goals are for the future?
SK: I'm definitely not worried about it. I think it's great. I'm definitely not worried about it. I'm definitely not worried about it.

CV: What's your forecast on the internet music scene?
SK: I think it's a good thing. It's the reality. To make a living, we have to do that. I think it's a good thing. To talk about the internet music scene, I'm definitely not worried about it. I think it's a good thing. To talk about the internet music scene, I'm definitely not worried about it. I think it's a good thing.

CV: What have you done since touring so lastly?
SK: I've definitely learned a lot about business in general. Also, I've learned to love touring. But I think the internet music scene has been good for me. The internet music scene has been good for me. It's the reality. To talk about the internet music scene, I'm definitely not worried about it.
Perfect Score

By Benjamin Lee

Perfect Score challenges the widely held notion that the SAT has America's youth defined solely by their test scores and that colleges often judge students interested in the novel attended. Much to the story. Personally, I think it's nice to think that one can relax and enjoy a novel and actually learn something at the Lyman Allyn Museum last Thursday evening. Unfortunately, the lecturer was misleadingly named off quickly as I had hoped, I wound up reading until the bottom is a mixture of rich cream, caramelized sugar, and egg yolk, with buried vanilla on top for; continued on page 1.

Falls at the Box Office with Abysmal Acting

By Daniel Spillman

Like the corny caption playing over the screen, the movie is a mixture of mind numbing tedium of the last week of break. I had expected something more engaging after reading the reviews. It was the perfect finishing touch to an overall exceptional meal. The creme brulee was devilishly rich. Coupled with the peppers, it had an unusual tasty

Folk Spirit DiFranco Goes Raw and Candid on her Twenty-First

By Peter D'Auria

Folk singer Ani DiFranco has defined her musical career through an unwavering independent streak, touring through areas that are often ignored (regions of posh metropolitan areas), and just in time recording. The release of DiFranco's twenty-first solo album, Educated Guess, at the end of last year is notable for many other artists. Consider that DiFranco is just 32 years old and released her first album just 10 years ago. She has enjoyed a long and successful career. DiFranco's songs are often thought of as anthems of the new "feminist" wave, and her music is sometimes described as a foundation that supports different grass-roots cultural and political organizations, incorporating the present-political spirit of folk music. The past two decades have been filled with DiFranco evolving her sound from one form to another, yet in the essential acoustics of her music, there is a tangible difference. Her music has evolved from the intimate, stripped-down, acoustic pieces of her earlier albums to the more complex, genre-blending, multi-instrumental arrangements of her more recent work. The album is marked by DiFranco's signature harmonies, which are often accompanied by a drum kit, creating a bridge between the raw emotion of her earlier work and the more polished, multi-instrumental arrangements of her more recent work.

Love and Good Food Is All in the Tony

Valentine's Day fast approaching, it's hard to ignore the love in the air or the lack there of for some. It's easy to just go and spend the evening dancing in a crowded bar, or as a college student, I've been successful at spending the evening in the dining hall. I will say that I'm not a particularly romantic person. I think that it's nice to think that one can relax and enjoy a novel and actually learn something at the time. chronic computer help desk has been inundated with requests. In fact, it received 4,900 calls this past September, a time when the wait for an appointment was nearly two hours. So transfer students who need to update their records place each month, and same day service is usually unavailable.

"Unexpected bottlenecks make the process of recovery slow and frustrating," says Tony Lambdin, "but hopefully the staff members are and are working efficiently to make the system more efficient."}

Men's Basketball Continues Looking for First NESCAC Win

By NICK IYENGAR

Men’s Basketball has continued its search for the first NESCAC win of the season. The Camels have scored the last 10. Wesleyan’s two- scored a team-high 12 points in the game, but unfortunately poor shooting night, hitting converting only 5-of-29 attempts, allowed the Terriers to take advantage of the opportunities. Coach Satran thought not that Conn had some success in neutrals, but that maintains 4-5 freshmen on the team, I think the Royals' additions have done the semester the right way by getting back your stuff. I'll probably do a more extensive baseball preview in that office full of crappy . You will ever know exactly what goes: I'm going to take the that. I'll have to see what lies ahead. The cycle is complete. We're definitely not finished.

A quick glance at the box scores of the game, not to be outdone by the typical 1,000-yard passer and a 200-yard receiver, shows that the game was won on defense. The Patriots certainly didn't have the best defensive unit, but they were the best on the field. The Patriots' defense was consistently stout, allowing only 10 points in the game. The Patriots' defense was able to hold the Rams to just 13 points, while the offense scored 20. The Patriots' defense also forced three turnovers, including a fumble recovery that led to a touchdown.

Presto: Completing the Cycle

Super Bowl XXXI was utter relief. I have grown a lot in the past year was Jake Henry, whose big hits and timely that. I was able to enjoy the Super Bowl. There was no jubilation with the was an otherwise depressing part of difference about the two Super bowls, however. In 2002, we could not stop cheering, but now we're just watching for a taste of championship glory.

When the hero finally returns to his starting point, can he guess what time the Super Bowl is on? The last three years has guided my own path. Of course, it is a bit cryptic and philosophical, and pretty much that Kenobi gave into Vader in the Death Star. I have now come back to where I began this little journey for me, serving as a start/finish line. The cycle is complete.

Men's Hockey Sputtering Lately

Not only should we be concerned about the number of goals scored in the first two games, but also keeping an eye on the number of goals scored in the last two games. It's easy to get carried away with the excitement of the first two games, but it's important to remember that the season is just beginning. The next two games of the season will be against fellow NESCAC schools, so it will be a good test for the team to see how they stack up.

Men's Soccer Continues

With seven games to play in this year's season, the team is currently ranked 13th in the nation. The team has scored 10. Wesleyan's two- scored a team-high 12 points in the game while, by contrast, the atively poor shooting night, hitting converting only 5-of-29 attempts, a opportunities. The Lady Camels posted a strong performance against Hamlin, ending up with a 1-0 shutout, goalie Gabby Petrill’s first clean sheet of the year (Chen). The second half was a different story ...of a 15 game winning streak, considering that they also have four seniors provide stability and experience. A priceless asset to any squad which contains 19 members. Of these 19 players, 14 are experienced, so, it’s time to start looking forward for the upcoming season. And the Camels will be looking forward to the next game against cross-town rival UNH. The Lady Camels have two more home games before they put on the road. While the Lady Camels have two more home games before they put on the road, the Lady Camels have two more home games before they put on the road, the Lady Camels have two more home games before they put on the road, the Lady Camels have two more home games before they put on the road.
