PAUL MATTHEN

University of Connecticut Ph.D. in philosophy, said: "Certainly it complicated the task of the students, but they did their best."

The thesis of Dr. Morris. should therefore be commended to the attention of the American academy and as a model of the early days of American education, which is in the tradition of the Chinese university and the University of Athens. The thesis has been highly praised by Professor Baldwin. The Phi Beta Kappa Society has been an active factor in the development of the University of Connecticut, and it has been the tradition of the University of Connecticut, and it has been the custom of the University of Connecticut to present a philosophy class in the absence of Dr. Morris.

Music Dept. To Meet Interested Students

A department meeting for those interested in majoring in music will be held in the Music Room on Wednesday, March 22 at 5:10 p.m., after Miss Ramsey's class for freshmen.

CC Students Speak On Summer Work At Job Conference

Sophomore Acting: Cohesion of Senior's Play Commended

by Kenneth Levens

The senior class brought an impressive force to the Palmer Auditorium for its competitive play this year. To review the performance of the Class of 1950 is a pleasant duty indeed, for the reviewer's opinion is that it was a success.

The choice of Saroyan's Subway Circus, which deals with the tasks of the bomb squad, was a wise one, for it gave the students an opportunity to present a play that was both modern and entertaining. The play was well written and the acting was excellent.

Amalgamation Meeting—a meeting of individuals? a meeting of classes? a meeting of ideas? ... recitals, one in London, and one in Amsterdam.

Amalgamation and the question of the answer to the challenge was up to the students on academic probation are not to engage in extracurricular activities so they may have the necessary time to devote to their studies.

The fact that the administrative decision regarding students on academic probation had been so widely disregarded was brought to the attention of members of Student Government by the editors of the News. An extra personal was held students on academic probation worked on the junior evaluation, and since we had exercised our right to vote at this stage, it has been impossible to classify any action as being anything other than negligent.

We understand that the student government which our actions were to classify any action as being anything other than negligent.

We also understand that the student government which our actions were to classify any action as being anything other than negligent.

What Price Honor?

This is my impression of what went on at the Amalgamation meeting last night. Let me say at once that the thing seemed to me a disgraceful performance. Rather than allow our procedure, clarification of issues, etc., the fact remains that the motion was not considered by the students. The motion stood up in front of the entire student body. All the members of the senior class were involved in this discussion.

Once the support is removed nothing can remain but a name. We should think seriously about our decision to discriminate against those students who did not understand the issue.

Don't Whip Us!

The obvious conclusion to be drawn is that the student body has become more prevalent during the year.

Please don't forget us!

Anyone remember who said the loudest?

Basis For Competitive Play

Amalgamation Discussion Revealed

Due to the widespread confusion in regard to last night's Amalgamation and the question of the awarding of the cup, Competitive Play Association, the student government officers, up to the entire student body. It is ridiculous to say that the students did not understand the basic point at issue. There has been much discussion on campus about the alleged "confusion" at the Amalgamation meeting. Let us look at the facts.

A question arose on clarification of the word "amalgamation" and that the word "amalgamation" must come willingly from the student to be up to Student Government standards.

Regardless of parliamentary procedure, clarifications of issues, etc., the fact remains that the motion was not considered. The motion stood up in front of the entire student body. All the members of the senior class were involved in this discussion.

The decision on the cup was not to be up to Student Government officers, but up to the entire student body.

Horton’s Topic Is Protestant Faith For Sun. Vespers

The final Vespers speakers in the unfinished series were held last Sunday evening. The topic of Dr. Horton’s sermon was the Protestant faith. In explaining his concept he stressed the breadth and universality of Protestantism which he feels is a desire to see and understand other religions. He stated that ours is a Protestant civilization stemming from the Protestant heritage which were formed from our Puritan ancestors.

Dr. Horton included in his sermon an explanation of the theories of Martin Luther and the Protestant Reformation. The Reformation sought to correct the medi-evil Church, which had very litttle religious significance; they were “man-controlled” with no one “listening for the voice of God.” The churches which it formed were a realignment of the Protestant concept that God speaks to groups of people. The Church was just one type of the Church as a mediator.

Another Protestant concept which Dr. Horton stressed was Christian faith, as shown through the life of Jesus or what God has already given us. This faith demonstrates the great effect which the Protestant religion has had on our contemporary civilization; for this assertion of the existence of God in Christ has changed our civilization.

The speaker’s final statement was that the Church is carried from person to person; it is spread by the determined, convicted, and kindly efforts of all its believers to make it clear to every person in our society.

Choir selections for the week were “We Three Kings,” by Will-ham Billings and Adoration Te by Wolfgang Mozart.

Junior Week
Looking at the scores of last week's basketball and volleyball games, we would say that it was junior week. The juniors defended the soph in a hard fought battle on the basketball court last Thursday. Both the first and second teams were victorious. In the first team game Sue Ann Aikens starred for the juniors, while the soph combination of Bratiniard, Terry, and Rockwell really showed us some great teamwork. The final score was 53-29.

Earlier in the week the junior's first and second teams defeated the fresh in volleyball. Both junior teams showed very good teamwork. Next week's schedule for volleyball is: first team, soph vs. juniors, and fresh vs. seniors; second team, fresh vs. soph. All of these on Tuesday, March 14. Let's have some class support behind the rest of our games. You've been swell so far.

CAMELS for Mildness!

Yes, Camels are SO MILD that in a county-

NOT ONE SINGLE CASE OF THROAT

WITH SMOKERS WHO KNOW...IT'S
The curtain came down to thunderous applause, and the bravos gave voice to the appreciation for an esthetic triumph. T. S. Elliot's The Cocktail Party had opened. The Elit play is not ordinary or even expected theater. It is a combination of clever, well-paced dialogue and deep philosophizing in what seemed, to my unstrained ear, to be verse.

First and foremost, The Cocktail Party is a fine production. E. Mer- tin Browne has directed his talented and accomplished actors with precision and understanding of Eliot's purposes and points of view. Alec Guinness is superb as the psychiatrist—an unknown guest. He is almost the role of the chorus making revealing, but objective commentary on the action and the characters.

Cast Outstanding
Mr. Guinness, an Old Vic graduate, is by far the outstanding per- former of the cast, and his acting conveys a clear comprehension of the ideas and abstractions so much a part of Eliot's works. Catherine Nesbitt plays the Mrs. Julias, with serious and sympathetic character, with charm and flu- ence; Miss Nesbitt runs a compar- atively close second to the perfec- tion of Alec Guinness.

Robert Flemyng, Eileen Peal and Irene Worth fulfill the re- quirements of their parts with a more or less adequate knowledge of the meaning of their lines. To Miss Worth, Eliot has given a large percentage of the philosoph- ical and mystical nomenclature, and she does amazingly well with them; on occasion, however, one does feel that the lovely actress is a little lost in the cadence and deep imbedded religious sym- bolism, but on the whole, she makes Calliopeansome- thing with perception and depth. The plot is involved; it deals with the separation of the Cham- berlaynes, a middle-young couple, and their consequent renewed rela- tionship through the aid of the psychiatrist, who helps their true conflict by shattering the Illusions of each. Paralleling this plot is the tale of the mistress of Mr. Chamberlayne and his wife; all four are involved in an unusual cross-rectangular far too com- plicated to be outlined here. The point is, however, that all four have lost touch with themselves and the world. The psychiatrist, Mr. Henry, enables eth to choose his path to his own destiny.

Symbolism Apparent
Eliot's religious degree becomes quite apparent. The road to dis- troy must be the humble one, the real life of giving—not the super- ficial cleverness and brittle philos-ophy of our decadent society. The expected allusions to the cri- ticism and the blessed release from this hell-earth are not lack- ing, and to any student of Eliot's symbolism is not too obscure.

The audience sets no cocktai par- ty, but the meaning of the title is clear enough.

This play deserves respect and thought, and *is undoubtedly worthy of reading, as well as be- ing seen. I will not predict a box- office sensation for The Cocktail Party; the audiences will be the esthetic and intellectually curious few who like to be provided with thought and discussion. I do not pretend to agree with Eliot's ideas, but I can admit that he presents them with honesty and sincerity, gives even with a certain degree of clarity. This is a remarkable aesthetic triumph, although not essentially good theater.
